MISS CASSIE WALMER, who has added so much to her popularity her her clever interpretation of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's novelty song, "Good-bye, Ebenezer," has secured from the same writers a worthy successor to this big winner. It is entitled "Anna Maria," and possesses limitless possibilities for the eccentric character impersonations in which Miss Walmer excels.

MR. ARTHUR BLOUNT concludes his summer tour to-night at Portsmouth, and returns to town for the winter season.

MR. J. M. GLOVER'S Drury Lane orchestra brought an eminently successful season to a close yesterday (Friday) at the Bexhill Kursaal.

MESSRS. CARL AND CARR commence the Moss-Stoll tour on Monday, opening at the Empire, New Cross, with the Coliseum to follow, in A Drawing-room Interlude.

MISS MINNIE D'AUBYN, the popular vocalist and successful principal boy, who will be playing her sixth consecutive pantomime this Christmas, and who has scarcely had any time out for the last eight years, is fast booking up 1911 and 1912, including the Syndicate halls.

THE latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1 7-16; Empire, 15s. paid, 1⅞; Empire, 10s. paid, 1½; London Pavilion (5), 2⅝; London Pavilion Pref. (5), 4½; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss' Empires (5), 3½; Oxford (5), 6⅞; Palace Theatre, 9s. paid, 15-16 xd; Tivoli, New (5), 6 xd.

ONE of the cleverest juggling acts at present before the public is being performed nightly at the Empire Theatre by the troupe of Perezoffs. The scene is set in a restaurant, where the waiters are preparing for the evening. A party of two ladies and two gentlemen arrive, and are entertained by the maitre d'hotel and his staff, who relieve them of their cloaks, &c., by the most astounding methods. Eventually the diners join in the fray, and the act closes with plates, glasses, flower bowls, &c., flying in every direction on the stage.

MME. YVETTE GUILBERT is about to found a school in Paris where the art of singing decent songs is to be taught. It is true that her songs have not always been above reproach, but there is a wide margin between her contributions and the songs that are sung in many French music halls, where frank indecency too often takes the place of wit. She will take gratuitously a number of promising pupils from the working classes; but the school will also be open to more ambitious singers.

AN "extra" in the attractive programme at the Holborn Empire on Saturday afternoon last was the performance of Gates's British Burlesque Band, a combination of some thirty instrumentalists, whose selections were loudly acclaimed. The conductor, in Russian costume, wields the bâton with much energy and no little originality, and his business with the gentleman who manipulated the big drum was responsible for much laughter. In a descriptive piece the resourceful instrumentalist-comedian-knockabout was particularly funny. His antics with the drum, which for the moment becomes a motor-car, and as a policeman, who punishes the drum severely, are very ludicrous. All the selections were admirably played and keenly enjoyed, and at the conclusion conductor and band were frequently recalled. The British Burlesque Band supplies a novel and attractive interlude that will undoubtedly soon be seen on the London halls.

"THE PRICE OF PEACE."

Sketch, in Four Scenes, Adapted by Cecil Raleigh and R. Heaton Grey, from the former's Drama of the same name, and Produced at the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre on Monday, Sept. 12.

Earl of Derwent ..... MR. WALTER GAY
The Hon. John Addiscott, M.P. MR. ARTHUR T. LENNARD
Sir Henry Delabere, M.P. MR. EDWARD JEPHSON
Marcus Benton ..... MR. RAYMOND WOOD
Count Ostadine ..... MR. FRANK WOODVILLE
Lady Kathleen Rossmagh .. MISS KITTY LOFTING

The difficulties of compressing a Drury Lane drama into a half-hour's sketch would appear to be insuperable, but the author of The Price of Peace, in combination with Mr. R. Heaton Grey, has done so in an effective manner, preserving most of the exciting incidents and arriving at a sensational ending. It is ten years almost to the day that The Price of Peace was produced at the National Theatre, and it is well therefore to recall the leading features of the plot. It will be remembered that Marcus Benton, the villain of the piece, induces Lady Kathleen Rossmagh, the daughter of Earl of Derwent, Prime Minister of England, to deliver to him a code message the publication of which would precipitate a war and involve the loss of thousands of British lives. Unable to read the code, Benton hands it to Count Ostadine, the agent of a foreign Power, who proceeds to make a copy of its contents. The Prime Minister, contrasting the issues at stake, determines that the death of Ostadine is the only way to preserve peace, gets the Count brought into his library, and there deliberately shoots him dead. It is given out that Ostadine has committed suicide, but Benton guesses the real state of affairs, and in an endeavour to overthrow the Government practically accuses Derwent of the crime from the floor of the House. The Earl does not deny the charge, but replies by denouncing Denton as a would-be traitor, and then succumbs to an attack of heart disease.

The production is that of Mr. Harry Selwyn, and is on a most elaborate scale, the Ball at the Prime Minister's Mansion and the Interior of the House of Commons being realised down to every detail. The cast is an able one, and includes that practised actor Mr. Walter Gay, who gave a finished performance of the Prime Minister. The effect of the dramatic scene in the Premier's Library was well worked up by Mr. Gay, and both the long speech in which he vindicates his action and of the succeeding delivery in the House were excellent feats of memory as well as fine elocutionary efforts, no flaw being perceptible throughout. There is little love interest in the playlet, but Miss Kitty Lofting availed herself fully of the opportunities presented in the part of Lady Kathleen Rossmagh, playing with much tenderness and emotional skill. A characteristic study of Count Ostadine was given by Mr. Frank Woodville, who was very effective in his defiance of Earl Derwent, and the sinister nature of Marcus Benton was thoroughly suggested by Mr. Raymond Wood. Mr. Arthur T. Lennard and Mr. Edward Jephson acted with sincerity and force as the Earl's faithful supporters. The production, which was rehearsed under the personal supervision of Mr. Cecil Raleigh, was heartily received by a crowded house.

FRANK HARDIE AND COMPANY are next week at the Granville, Walham Green, and Standard, Pimlico. At the former they play The Honour of the Regiment, and at the latter Pedlar Sam.

A CHAT WITH "MY FANCY."

It was on a Sunday afternoon when our representative rang the bell at the home of "My Fancy." He was not expected, nor was the purport of his visit known. He heard a musical voice in the drawing-room ring out: "Why, why, yes, do come in. So glad to see you! We've only just got in from Birmingham, and this is the first time I've been in the place. We're all upside down, so you'll forgive the muddle. Sit right down, and, excuse me, I was just unpacking. I've got to get my 'props' ready for to-morrow." A glance round convinced him that if "My Fancy's" idea of muddle was what he could see around him, well, what would tidiness be? He did not think he had ever been in such an ideal homestead. Everywhere was the sign of artistic temperament; articles of vertu, bric-a-brac, quaint souvenirs from almost unknown lands, æsthetic decorations, and an air of lofty taste in art. As for muddle—why, no such thing. It was "My Fancy's" banter. "I was just thinking," she prattled on, "what a glorious motto that is, 'Nil desperandum'; you know I never despair. I can't. Everybody should set out with the great resolve to work and have patience. Take our profession, for instance. It looks easy to amuse everybody. Look at the thousands of stage aspirants who get thoroughly discouraged because they perhaps draw a few blanks at the start. Look at those who do so in the middle of their careers—why? They inevitably go down the scale, don't they? Why, then? Faint heart—that's it. I always say that a kind word of encouragement to a despairing fellow artist often stimulates him or her into new life. That's my sentiment. Let's all do it!

"Once upon a time in the old one-night stand shows out West, we got stranded—two girls and our old lady guardian. No money, no anything. After a long, wet tramp we struck a railroad camp, and, by the way, a more villainous crowd of evil-looking men I don't think it's been my experience to see. There were blacks, whites, and sickly yellow ones, all railroad cutters, probably the scum of the West. They didn't wait for us to say anything. They simply swarmed round, and, but for a wild-looking Texan, who, I suppose, wanted to shine as a 'champion,' we girls would have tasted some very unsavoury attentions. However, after a few pacific measures in the shape of 'guns up, hands up,' it was explained who and what we were, and what we could do. 'Would we dance?' 'Yes.' Then started the strangest entertainment you could dream of. For two solid hours we took it in turns, my companion and I, to dance jigs, flings, anything, on the stump of an enormous cedar tree, to the accompaniment of the motliest music imaginable. Sometimes it was 'Yankee Doodle,' sometimes 'The Old Folks at Home,' sometimes our own National Anthem, and occasionally a selection from Moody and Sankey's hymns. Any old time was kept. Some whistled the tune, some hummed, some beat it out on tin cans—pannikins, they call them—some hammered it with big sledge hammers on the steel rails, and some tried to dance it out. Oh, what a corroboree! Ah, but they gave us 123 dollars and let us go—and we were happy."

"I had another comical experience, but this time in Wales—Abbotsvale, I think. When I got there I was astounded to find only three items on the bill. So I sought out the manager, and asked him when I could rehearse. Says he, 'Any time you like.' Says I, 'Where's the band?' Says he, 'We've got one.' Then it dawned upon me. He was the all-in-all—manager, stage manager, the band, and the other two items on the bill. And this was the programme, which started at 8 p.m.:

1. Grand selection on piano ..... Manager
2. Half an hour Pictures ..... Manager
3. Ten minutes (Top of the Bill) .. My Fancy
4. Half an hour Pictures ..... Manager
5. Ten minutes Performing Dogs .... Manager
6. Ten minutes Piano ..... Manager
7. Half an hour Pictures ..... Manager
8. Finale ..... Manager

"I stood this for one week. How long he lasted I don't know, but he was full of my maxim, 'Work and patience.'"

And so, one after another, "My Fancy" reeled out quaint little yarns, interspersed with still quainter observations.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP

A MEETING of the Heads of Departments Association Committee was held on Tuesday, when several applications for membership were considered. On the request of Mr. Ian Robertson a member of his staff was elected a member subject to the payment of an entrance fee of £5 and twelve months' contributions. It was decided to approve the rates of pay for Heads of Departments engaged by the promoters of Sunday entertainments in London, as announced by the National Committee. It was also agreed to reprint the rules and circulate them generally.

THE following members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees are now in America or on the way, or will shortly leave for that place:—Mr. E. S. Dawson, with Mr. C. W. Hart, at the Colonial Theatre, N.Y.; Mr. Harry Porter, master carpenter with Mr. Weedon Grossmith, leaves for Montreal this week; Mr. W. P. Tritchler, property master with Mr. Ian Robertson, leaves shortly for New York; Mr. H. S. Henby returns with Miss Maud Allan; Mr. W. Hersey leaves for New York as master carpenter for Mr. Forbes Robertson. All these members will have letters and credentials from the Association to the American Alliance of Stage Employees.

THE National Association of Theatrical Employees, the Variety Artists' Federation, and the Amalgamated Musicians' Union have contributed several resolutions to the agenda of the Trade Union Congress held in Sheffield this week. Mr. William Johnson, General Secretary of the N.A.T.E., who was to have moved the first resolution on behalf of the three societies, was prevented from attending the Congress owing to the serious illness of his wife, who has undergone a serious operation at the Bolingbroke Hospital this week, but is fortunately, making good progress.

THE following resolution was proposed by Mr. J. B. Williams, General Secretary of the Musicians' Union, and seconded by Mr. W. H. Clemart, Chairman of the Variety Artists' Federation:—"That this Congress instructs the Parliamentary Committee to assist by deputation and other effective means the National Association of Theatrical Employees, the Variety Artists' Federation, and the Amalgamated Musicians Union to prevent the opening of places of amusement on Sundays by way of trade or for the personal gain of the proprietors of such places of amusement, and thus avert the imposition of a compulsory seven days' working week upon employees, artists, and musicians."

IN proposing the resolution, Mr. Williams said musicians and indeed all connected with the theatrical and music hall profession were, he was afraid, in danger of having a seven working day week instead of six. The system had already been introduced in regard to the seaside resorts in summer. Of course, it was quite optional, so they were always told, whether they worked on the seventh day. The option came in this way: In applying for these summer engagements they were told that if they did not work on the seventh day they could not have an engagement. Thus it was truly optional. He did not object to concerts on Sundays in aid of some charity, but in these cases the proprietors always thought that charity began at home. They fixed the management charges, and when one charitable organisation protested against the smallness of the proceeds for a Sunday concert, a director informed them that they were lucky to get anything at all. They wanted an end put to what he could only describe as these "bogus charity Sunday concerts." They were the thin end of the wedge for the introduction of a seven working day week in the music hall world, which of course would have to be done for the six-day week money. Sometimes big fees were given to musicians for playing on Sundays, but in time these disappeared or were made up by reducing the amount paid for the performances during the week. If places of amusement were opened regularly on Sunday shops in the same street as a hall would have to open. Let them take down their shutters, and others in the immediate neighbourhood would also want to open because of the loss they would sustain compared with their rivals; and so it would go on until we had the Continental system established here. He did not want to see the Continental practice introduced in England.

MR. W. CLEMART, Variety Artists' Federation, said there was, he thought, a tendency towards the Continental idea of seven working days to the week. Variety artists were workers, and should have their day of rest. Often they did not get it, because they had to spend Sunday travelling to the next town. In some towns in America there were three performances daily in six days in the week, and on the seventh no less than four shows were given, all in the same house. The resolution was agreed to without further discussion.

WE understand that the Sunday Defence Committee have been waiting for the result of the reception by the Congress of this resolution before taking further action in the matter of the Sunday entertainments now being given in London. Now that the allied societies composing the Sunday Defence Committee have secured the support of the Trade Unions throughout the United Kingdom (the Congress represents upwards of two millions of organised men and women), they can rely with confidence upon an effective response to their action by the Trade Unionists of the Metropolitan area, and no doubt a communication will at once be made to all the labour organisations concerning those halls where entertainments are given on Sundays and having special reference to the electric theatre shows, where it is well known the employees are poorly paid, and practically compelled to work on Sundays without extra pay.

IN addition to the foregoing resolution the A.M.U. had other resolutions down on the Congress agenda having particular interests for musicians. These were duly submitted and approved, unanimously, as follows:—"That the Parliamentary Committee be instructed to assist the Musicians' Union to obtain a reform in the law, so that musicians will be placed on the same level as other wage-earners in regard to the recovery by legal procedure of money due for services rendered."

"THAT this Congress reaffirms the condemnation of the action of the Government in allowing Army and Navy bandsmen to compete with civilian musicians, and instructs the Parliamentary Committee to again bring this matter before the Cabinet Ministers, and so assist the Musicians' Union to put an end to the competition of Army and Navy bandsmen against civilian musicians, a great many of whom through this competition are thrown out of employment and deprived of their means of livelihood."

THE Stage Employees' Association Committee are again to have the pleasure of giving the annual concert in aid of the Employees' Benevolent Fund at the London Coliseum, Mr. Oswald Stoll having generously consented to lend this fine house for the purpose. The date selected is Sunday evening, Nov. 20. Mr. William Johnson, the hon. secretary, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, will be glad to hear from those who will kindly assist, and also from employees who will volunteer to sell tickets.

"WHICH do you consider the better dancer, the carefully trained or the self-taught?" she archly inquired. "Why ask me?" I appeal. "Because I don't know myself. Do you know I've never had a lesson in my life. My dancing creations come to me almost spontaneously, but the curious fact is they remain with me in splendid consistency. That is to say, once executed, there is no variation, and I can go back to them—even those I created when a little girl. By the way, have you ever tried to rub your chest with your left hand and pat your hand with your right and dance a double-shuffle at the same time? No? Well, that's as near as makes no difference to the dance I execute in my scena, 'Spring, Summer, and Winter,' when I tear paper patterns all the time. You wouldn't think it. Try it. Isn't it a diversified movement? Great fun at a Christmas party, eh? I'm going to show Scotchmen a real brand-new kind of a Highland fling in a day or two. It's my own invention. Do you know what 'winging' is? Well, I'm going to do both 'double' and 'single.' Scots wha hae! Probably I shall do it at the London Coliseum, where I open a 'starring' engagement on Monday next, Sept. 19, with my big scena already spoken of. And now I think I must be busy. I've a lot to do, and little time to do it in."

Inwardly our representative wished that "My Fancy" had another hour to spare him, but she is so volatile that too much talking and no work do not agree with her amiable nature, so alone he took another glance round her artistic home and departed.

MR. SAM SHIPLEY'S success in South Africa is marked, his new songs being decidedly popular with the Cape and Johannesburg folk.

Comedy Cyclist Ahearn Ill.

News was received the early part of the week of the illness of Chas. Ahearn, who has a clever comedy troupe of cyclists, who played the Hippodrome and Stoll time last year. Mr. Ahearn was stricken down with an attack of appendicitis while en route from New York to play an engagement at Keith's, Philadelphia. He was forced to turn back before arriving at his destination, and came on to New York, where an operation was decided upon. He was taken to hospital, where he was operated on the following day. News received this week states that Mr. Ahearn is getting along nicely. The act was booked for a return over the Stoll tour, and was supposed to open this month.

Al Reeves Sailing

Al Reeves, a brother to Billy Reeves, and manager for America of Fred Karno's companies, sails on Tuesday for Montreal with a company of Karno's comedians. In a répertoire of Karno's sketches Wow Wows has been the one selected to open with in America. Either Justice Perkins or Jimmy the Fearless would go well, and I hardly think there could be any mistake made with either, for both the latter sketches will appeal to the patrons of variety in the States, particularly through the fact that there is plenty of action and plot throughout.

Jack Hayman goes To-day.

I am informed that Mr. Jack Hayman sails for America to-day to take the place made vacant last spring by Mr. Llewellyn Johns as American representative of the Stoll tour. They often say in show business that it is a pretty hard job to follow a similar act which makes a big hit right ahead of you. Mr. Johns dug up some good stuff while in America for the Stoll tour, all of which registered big hits the first crack out of the box. His continued success in picking out live ones for the English halls gained him a prestige all over America and England as the foremost critic in vaudeville. He was very frequently quoted by the Press of the States, and more frequently interviewed on questions bearing upon international variety or theatrical matters. I wish Mr. Jack Hayman bon voyage and good luck.

The United Booking Offices.

This office books the Keith Circuit, Canadian Circuit, Percy Williams's house, and many more, and can give forty weeks of the big time, with more to follow. The general-manager is Mr. Ed. Albee, who has supervision over all acts booked. His lieutenants are S. K. Hodgdon, Phil Nash, and Dan Hennessey, all located at Long Acre Building, New York City, U.S.A.

Western Vaudeville, Chicago, Ill.

The Western Vaudeville offices are located in Majestic Theatre Building, Chicago, Ill., U.S.A. The manager is Mr. C. A. Bray, with two able lieutenants, Mr. Carry Meagher and Joe Hayman. This circuit can play acts of value indefinitely. It is said that middle-priced acts can play two years in the vicinity of Chicago alone.

Orpheum Circuit.

Mr. Martin Beck is general-manager of the Orpheum Circuit in the United States, and the offices are located in Long Acre Building, Times-square, New York City, U.S.A. All bookings for this circuit are under the supervision of Mr. Beck and his American lieutenant, Mr. Frank Vincent, and Mr. W. Passpart, Randvoll House, Charing Cross-road, London. The former has charge of the American acts, while all English and foreign acts must apply to Mr. Passpart. The circuit guarantees twenty-four to thirty weeks, and can play high-class acts many more weeks.

Watching Americans Arrive and Depart.

Russell and Held are the big people in Southampton this week. These clever performers' names appear at the top of the biggest bills in vaudeville by virtue of the fact that they do something on the stage which their patrons of variety appreciate. The junior member of the team is to be seen down at the landing stage every morning, especially when the American steamer either arrives or departs. And to say she has felt quite a little homesick is putting it mildly. While the senior member, Fred Russell, is pounding his ear and dreaming of some idea how he can get even with the Blackpool club juggler for keeping him up all night.

For the Empire.

Sam Stern, who has done so nicely at the Coliseum this week, was booked for an engagement of four weeks at the Empire, Leicester-square. Sam says, "Not a big riot, but continually growing popular each day."

Kaufman Troupe Big.

Nick Kaufman and Wallace Bradley do enjoy to sit out in the nice cushion seats of the Palace and note how pleased the audiences are with their offering.

Natt Wills Honoured.

At the big Press dinner given at the Hotel Cecil last week Natt Wills was invited from the Palace to entertain, which he did. Now, before going any further, did you ever hear Natt and Hertence at a smoker? Natt don't tell these only at a smoker, consequently the Press boys had a half-hour's good laugh, which they enjoyed immensely.

Harry Olson.

The clever American black-faced comedian put on another number last week at the Empire, New Cross. To say the number was a big success would be putting it mildly. He was a riot of laughter before he finished.

Wallace Bradley's Gift.

Nick Kaufman has been very happy the past week. The champion bike-rider was always a great lover of sweet potatoes, so Mr. Bradley did not forget his little brother-in-law when leaving New York. He brought back a few barrels of sweet potatoes, green corn (on the ear), and Rochester jam. In fact, everything came from Rochester. For Rochester is the only city in America, anyway, and is the home of the Kaufmans—that is, all except Nick.

Don't Mind It.

Tommy Dawe had Nick Kaufman and Earle Reynolds out looking over some of the Karno sketches. Reynolds and Kaufman liked Jimmy the Fearless and Justice Perkins for America. It cost 36s. to go the rounds, but Tommy don't care for money.

Ike Rose in Paris.

Herr Isaac Rose, the German impresario, is in Paris this week at the Olympia, where he has the two Bohemia Twins showing. The little freaks are a big draw at every place.

Terry and Lambert.

This clever duo have established themselves as English favourites, and both represent two fine types of real Americans who do not find fault with everything English. They are booked for an indefinite time here in Great Britain.

Go Next Week.

Earle Reynolds and Nellie Donegan go to Berlin the latter part of next week, where they are billed to open at the Winter Garden on Oct. 1.

Mr. E. E. Meredith has sent the following notes from Chicago:—

Mlle. Vanity, who has signed with The Kissing Girl for another season, appeared at the American Music Hall in Chicago week of Aug. 29 with her "picks." It was her second appearance at that house within a few months. Her dancing has made a big hit on this side.

Cæsar Rivoli, who has been in America for two years, has contracts which keep him in the middle west (in and around Chicago) until November. Arturo Bernardi, who also does a protean act, is playing the Orpheum circuit for a second time.

Hill and Sylvianny, who have been on this side for three years, are booked up again by William Morris.

Henri French, manager, agent, and artist, played at the Majestic in Chicago week of Aug. 22, and had two more weeks of the Orpheum time. They put him on second at the Majestic and moved him up to fifth after the first performance.

The Heras Family is playing fairs in the middle west under the direction of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association.

Kroneman Brothers, who recently finished the Orpheum circuit, have signed up with William Morris.

John Considine announces the opening of a London office, with B. Overmyer in charge. This will give Sullivan and Considine a much better opportunity to get foreign acts.

The Bonhair Troupe, which has been in this country a few months, starts on the Sullivan and Considine tour in November.

Fred Zobedie is to get married.

The Wartenburg Brothers are playing fairs around Chicago.

Zona Vevey is making a big hit in America. She began her second week at the American Music Hall Aug. 29.

"The Barnyard Romeo" opened a new American music hall in Omaha, Neb., Aug. 29, for Morris.

William O'Clare is now doing a "single," which is bringing him into favourable notice.

The circuses are having a prosperous season. Business was very big in the early summer, and is satisfactory now.

THE LATE E. F. COLVERD.

In the presence of a large gathering of sorrowing friends, the funeral took place on Wednesday (14th inst.) of the late Mr. Edward F. Colverd, of the Father Redcap, Camberwell Green, who passed away on Saturday last, after a brief illness, at the age of thirty-seven years.

The deceased was a son of the popular comedian, the late Jovial Joe Colverd, and brother to Mr. Arthur Reece, Mr. Arthur Boyne, and Miss José Colverd, who are well known in the variety and theatrical world; whilst his esteemed wife is a daughter of Mr. Thomas Holden, of marionette fame.

The cortège left the deceased's residence at 11.30 a.m. for Nunhead Cemetery, where the interment took place, the body, which was enclosed in a shell, with an outer coffin of polished oak, with massive brass mountings, being borne in a glass-panelled hearse. Six mourning coaches followed, the principal mourners being Mrs. Colverd (the widow), the Misses Dorothy and Violet Colverd (daughters), Master Tom Colverd (son), Mr. Arthur Reece, Mr. Arthur Boyne, Mr. Charles Colverd, Mr. Geo. Colverd, Mr. Henry Colverd, and Mr. Frank Colverd (brothers), Mrs. Isaacs and Miss José Colverd (sisters), Mrs. A. Boyne, Mrs. H. Colverd, Mrs. A. Reece, Mrs. C. Colverd, and Miss Ethel Holden (sisters-in-law), Mrs. Sendle, Mr. and Mrs. James Holden and family, and Messrs. Frank and Arthur Colverd (nephews). Then followed a number of private carriages containing several well-known local residents.

In addition to handsome floral tributes sent by the widow and family and the whole of the other mourners, there were choice wreaths from Messrs. Newham and Latimar, Miss Ada Holden, the Misses Emberson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fossett, the staff at the Camberwell Palace, Mr. Edwin Lawrence and company, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reeve, Mr. Lew Lake, Mrs. Ellis (of the Borough Theatre, Stratford), Mrs. A. E. Abrahams, the staff at the Father Redcap and Charlie, some friends at Forest Gate, some customers and friends at the Father Redcap, Mrs. Pryor (of the Castle, Camberwell-road), Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Mills (of Putney), Mr. and Mrs. Garrard, some customers of the Duke of Clarence, Mr. Joe Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Kohler, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, the Misses Dawson and Tyler, &c. The funeral arrangements were satisfactorily carried out by Messrs. J. T. Wybrow and Sons, Upper Kennington-lane.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

By Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (London). 5s. The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.
Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.
Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at The Era Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and technicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To everyone connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.—The Encore.

MAKING MYSTERY.

The cartoon given below is reproduced from Variety, the American vaudeville paper, from the issue of Sept. 3, by the kind permission of the London representative.

The cartoon shows how the Americans consider the present vaudeville situation in the States. It shows also the different opposition circuits and so forth, and has caused quite a good many laughs among the Americans, as well as the many English artists who have played these circuits which the men represent.

Mr. Pat Casey is the king of the vaudeville booking agents in America, and it is said that he handles close on to 1,500 acts.

The two gentlemen in the victoria are General-Manager Martin Beck, of the Great Orpheum Circuit, and William Morris, of the William Morris Circuit, which has a string of opposition theatres to the United Booking Offices, or formerly known as the Keith Circuit in the East. The two gentlemen on horses are General-Manager Albee, of the United Booking Offices, which controls the bookings of many affiliated circuits of theatres, and B. F. Keith, who is the pioneer in American vaudeville, and who owns many large variety theatres outright, besides being a large stockholder in many other music halls in the East.

The cartoon shows clearly the uneasiness and the unsettled condition of American vaudeville just at present, which has been caused by the numerous reports of the intended affiliation of the Orpheum Circuit and William Morris, which at this date has not yet come to pass. In case of an affiliation of this kind being promoted, it would give the Orpheum Circuit, which now confines its business to the Middle West and West, an entrance to New York City and the East, which is now governed by the United Booking Offices, thereby giving the Orpheum Circuit a chain of theatres reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, of which possibly sixty weeks of big time could be given the highest-class vaudeville acts in the business.

During this time of unsettled condition of the American vaudeville, it is reported that B. F. Keith has purchased large blocks of stock in the Middle West theatres, i.e., in Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and Louisville, which will give him a splendid opportunity to fight the progressive Orpheum manager in case he joins with Morris.

THE future of the Aquarium and the Municipal Band was the subject of considerable discussion at the meeting of the Brighton Town Council on Thursday. Mr. Griffith moved that all questions relating thereto should be referred to a representative committee of the Council. While arguing that Brighton could afford the best band procurable, he urged the necessity of separating it financially from the Aquarium.

MR. HUEN, however, said the tide seemed to be turning in regard to both concerns, for on the previous day, when there were three orchestral performances, no fewer than 2,240 people paid for admission. The motion was defeated.

IN connection with the proceedings of the Finance Committee, Alderman Colbourne stated, as showing the increased popularity of Brighton as a residential resort, that the produce of the penny rate—£3,435—was larger than it had been during any period of the last three years. Houses were letting most satisfactorily.

American Roller Rink, Glasgow.

A SMOKE ABATEMENT EXHIBITION, under the auspices of the Glasgow Corporation, is now being held at the American Roller Rink, Victoria-road, Glasgow. This will delay the reopening of the skating season at this rink until about Oct. 22. Mr. G. M. Wells, who is now managing the Tournament Hall Rink, Liverpool, will return to Glasgow for his third consecutive season at the rink's reopening, due announcement of which will be made in these columns.

Pontefract Pavilion Rink.

AFTER being repainted and decorated and the floor resurfaced, the Pontefract Pavilion Rink was opened on Saturday last. About 400 persons paid for admission. Mr. C. W. Hill (late manager of the Mexborough Grand Rink) has been engaged as manager for the coming season. He hopes to introduce the Bioscope to his patrons in the course of a few days. A military band is in attendance at all the sessions.

LONDON HIPPODROME OUTING.

The front of the house staff of the London Hippodrome on Sunday last had one of the most happily devised outings ever experienced since the opening of the theatre. The start was fixed for 8.50 a.m., the rendezvous being Victoria, whence the party travelled by two special saloon carriages attached to the 9 a.m. train to Dorking. On arrival there a number of carriages were in waiting for a drive to Wootton Hatch.

The sun was up, the air was fresh, and the uplands of Surrey were looking their best in this most delightful part of South England. On arrival at their destination many of the company indulged in various outdoor games, while others wandered amid the woodlands, now just tinged with the russet of autumn.

At one o'clock dinner was served at Wootton Hatch. At its conclusion Mr. Fred Trussell, the genial manager of the Hippodrome, toasted "The King and the Royal Family" and "The London Hippodrome." In reply to the toast of "The Chairman," proposed by Mr. Tom Miller, assistant-manager, and seconded by Mr. R. Winslow, stage-manager, Mr. Trussell made a characteristic speech. Telegrams were received from both Sir Edward Moss and Mr. Oswald Stoll wishing the party a pleasant day and an enjoyable outing. After dinner the party drove off for a few hours through the Surrey lanes and picturesque villages, and, needless to say, calls were made at some of the famous hostelries en route, the happy crowd returning to Wootton Hatch again at six o'clock for tea.

Owing to the late hour the musical programme was short, consisting of two songs by Mr. Trussell and the rendering of "The Corsican Maid" by Miss Maisie Mace. The company returned to Dorking and travelled by train to London, arriving back at Victoria shortly after 10 p.m. The day was delightfully fine, and everyone enjoyed the outing immensely.

American Roller Rink, Birmingham.

THE American Roller Skating Rink, Monument-road, Birmingham, reopens to-day for its third season. Mr. F. C. Rothwell has been engaged as resident-manager, and Mr. John Williams as floor-manager. The rink has been newly decorated and painted during the closed period, and the prospects for a successful season are very bright. The Famous Winslow skates are used exclusively at this rink. The rink is open three sessions daily—10.30 to 12.30, 2.30 to 5.30, and 7.30 to 10.30—and Mr. Edward Murray, of the Tournament Hall Rink, Liverpool, is furnishing the music.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Chelsea Rink Reopened.

LOVERS of roller-skating welcomed the re-opening of the handsome rink at the corner of Church-street last Saturday afternoon. The skating surface is in splendid condition, and the rink undoubtedly compares favourably with any in the metropolis for comfort and artistic surroundings. Mr. Walter Power, the genial manager, has sole control of the undertaking, and he has arranged several novelties in the way of carnivals, gymkhanas, confetti battles, &c. A military band performs daily, and cosy tea and smoking lounges are provided. A Sunday club is in process of formation.

Reopening of Olympia Rink, Pentre, Rhondda.

THIS popular rink, which has been closed during the summer months for renovation, commenced its second season on Thursday, Sept. 8. The floor has been entirely resurfaced, and is now the finest in the valley. Many improvements have been made, adding to the comfort of the patrons. Prof. Tom Butterworth (late of West Hartlepool) has been appointed manager, with Miss Jennie Wilkes (of the Palace, Folkestone) as instructress and floor manager. An efficient military band under the batonship of Mr. J. Sheridan contributes delightful music during the evening session.

Prof. Butterworth and Master Eric.

ON the opening day Mr. Butterworth gave a clever exhibition of fancy and trick skating, assisted by his five-year-old son, Master Eric, which met with well-merited applause from the onlookers. Skating and hockey clubs are being formed, and there is every prospect of a successful season.

Barnet Rink Reopens.

THE Barnet skating rink will reopen for the season to-day. The rail separating the rink floor from the promenade has been lowered, a new bandstand has been provided, the floor has been specially resurfaced, and the whole building painted and decorated.

Empress Rink, Ilkeston.

A BOLD bid for the patronage of the Ilkeston public is being made by Mr. T. Wheatley, of Bath-street, who, at considerable expense, has enlarged and redecorated the Empress Skating Rink, off Granby-street. Roller skating has been exceedingly popular throughout the country, and Mr. Wheatley has had laid down at the Empress Rink a rock maple floor, the materials for which came from Olympia, London. Not only is there accommodation for the skating pastime, but there is a spacious dancing room. The decorations and fittings are of the latest kind, and no doubt large numbers of people will in the coming winter find this an attractive place in which to spend their leisure hours. The rink reopened last Saturday.

Prof. Phillips at Gerrard's Cross.

THE proprietors of the Gerrard's Cross Rink provided a special exhibition of figure and fancy skating at the reopening on Saturday, when Professor Phillips, champion free skater of Great Britain, performed some of his unparalleled feats.

Empress Rink, Gloucester.

THE Empress Skating Rink, Gloucester, is open for the season. The building is under new management, and good patronage is secured.

Leicester Rinks Reopened.

THE whole of the Leicester roller skating rinks are now in full swing, and there is every indication that they are in for another successful season. The Boulevard Rink has undergone a thorough overhauling, and now presents a charming appearance. It has been entirely redecorated. A large café, which is raised, is a welcome addition. It is upholstered and draped in deep red silk, and it is adequately heated and ventilated. The two opening sessions were crowded to their utmost holding capacity, and on all hands admiration was openly expressed for the manner in which the directors had looked after their comfort. We are pleased to see that Mr. T. P. Blakesley is again installed as manager. At the Empress the opening session was attended by many of the leading citizens of the town. At this rink also Mr. Butters, the proprietor, has carried many improvements which add greatly to its attractiveness. A splendidly furnished and decorated café has been added, and a new learner's annexe, with maple floor, is another new feature. Mr. A. E. Court is back at his post as manager, duties which he fulfilled in so popular a manner last session, and has formed a club, entitled the Empress and County Roller Skating Club, which includes both skaters and non-skaters.

Music Licence for Belgrave Rink Refused.

WE regret to have to record that the fifth application for a music licence for the Belgrave Rink, Leicester, has again been refused. A protest meeting has been held, and was largely attended. Councillor Reynolds, Councillor Loseby, and Councillor Taylor were the chief speakers, and the resolution of strong protest was carried without a single dissentient. The proprietors only applied for a string band. The opposition before the magistrates numbered three persons, and those in its favour can be counted by thousands. Mr. L. H. Cockram is the managing-director, and in spite of the drawback of want of music the rink is well patronised.

Ealing Rink Reopens.

THE Walpole Rink, Bond-street, Ealing, reopens for the season on Friday, Sept. 23, at 7.30 p.m. There will be an excellent programme for the opening night, including an exhibition of fancy and figure skating by Walter Stanton, N.S.A., amateur champion of Great Britain; a dance display by Mr. G. Conyers-d'Arcy, N.S.A. (the new resident-manager), and Miss Rhoda M. Brockie, N.S.A.; a match between Goys United and Walpole Hockey Clubs, and many other special attractions. Under the direction of Mr. Charles Byng-Hall the rink has been entirely redecorated, the floor surfaced into splendid condition, and patrons will find that everything has been done to add to their comfort at this, the daintiest of London's rinks.

Rinking in Bath.

RINKING has recommenced in Bath this week by the reopening of the Central Rink, while this afternoon (Saturday), the new County Rink, which is undoubtedly the finest building of its kind in the West of England, is to be opened by the Mayor of Bath (Major C. H. Simpson, J.P., M.C.). A large number of invitations have been issued.

Reopening of Paisley Rink.

AN auspicious reopening of the Paisley Hippodrome Skating Rink took place on Monday, when a large number of rinkers attended at the afternoon session. The evening session saw the floor of the big building fully occupied. The interior during the vacation has been entirely redecorated, the floor has had the best attention, the band engaged is a first-class one, and the entire arrangements are such that patrons will find the rink more comfortable than ever. Mr. Jack B. Bostock, with his usual affable and courteous manner, is still at the head of affairs, and everything points to a successful season.

Neath Rink Reopens.

THE Gnoll Skating Rink, Neath, reopened on Thursday, the 8th inst., when there was a large attendance. Mr. B. P. Rees is the new manager, under whose control the company hope to have a record season.

The Aldwych Rink.

THE Aldwych Rink, transformed almost beyond recognition, opened its season on Thursday evening with bright prospects of continuing its past success. The rink will be open mornings, afternoons, and evenings. An efficient military band and a comfortable café afford additional attractions to what is likely to become a very popular rendezvous.

Holland Park Rink.

THE Holland Park Skating Rink, W., will inaugurate its reopening for the skating season of 1910-11 this morning at eleven o'clock. Mr. A. Holmes-Dallimore's ex-British Guards Band has been engaged to furnish the music at each of the three daily sessions, the hours being 11 to 1, 3 to 6, 7.30 to 11.

"A Bower of Beauty."

MESSRS. J. DEFRIES & SONS, LTD., AND F. AUSTEN, the well-known decorators, have transformed the rink's interior into a bower of beauty by means of a very handsome and attractive decorative scheme, designed by Mr. E. B. Barnes, the managing-director. The entire roof of the rink has been buried in over 16,000 yards of bright-hued bunting, which has been stretched over frames, the construction of which required two and three-quarter miles of 1in. by 3in. timber, bound together with some 3cwt. of iron braces and 500 yards of steel cable. The large electric sign over the main entrance has been connected by Messrs. Brooks and White, and Holland Park-avenue in the vicinity of the rink will be one of the most brilliantly-illuminated thoroughfares in the district.

Winslow Skates and Perfect Floor.

THE rink is equipped with the celebrated Winslow skates, and the floor is in perfect condition, and no "wheel" will be left unturned this season to ensure the rink's success—socially, artistically, and financially. Numerous applications from various roller skating clubs who desire to make this rink their headquarters are being received. Mr. Will Albert, upon whose shoulders the managerial mantle has again fallen, is very optimistic concerning the season's prospects, and will introduce many novelties in the way of gymkhanas, exhibitions, and races.

American Roller Rink, Chester.

THE American Roller Rink, Upper Northgate-street, Chester, after a continuous run of one year, closed last June, and reopens to-day under the management of Mr. Frank Maher, who has been re-engaged as resident-manager. Mr. T. Maidment, who has had considerable Continental experience, has been engaged as floor-manager, and Miss Winifred Tompkins returns as lady-instructor. Mr. Edward Murray, of the Tournament Hall Rink, Liverpool, is furnishing the music. During the summer season the entire interior has been freshly painted, and the skates (Winslow) and floor have been cleaned and repaired.

American Roller Rink, Croydon.

MR. ALEXANDER TELFORD, late manager of The Belle of Brittany company, has been engaged as resident-manager of the American Roller Skating Rink in Cherry Orchard-road, East Croydon, which reopens to-day for its second season. Mr. Telford formerly managed the American Roller Rink at Cardiff, and comes to Croydon full of new ideas and schemes for the enjoyment of rink patrons, to whom he promises many a delightful evening's sport. The entire interior of the rink has been redecorated and painted, and the floor and skates (Winslow) are in perfect condition. Mr. Alec. Glaze will again have charge of the floor, and Miss Daisy Chilton-Heyes has been engaged as lady-instructor.

Notes from Wales.

Neath Fair is the annual occasion for one of those kindly deeds of charity for which showmen are proverbially celebrated. On Saturday, Sept. 10, the various charitable institutions were entertained by the various generous showmen, and a very enjoyable time was spent by the youngsters. Messrs. Dooner, Wadbrooke, Crecraft, and Haggar put on a good selection of pleasing pictures. Messrs. Davies' colliery exhibition was next visited to advantage. Mr. and Mrs. John North let the children have shies at the cocoanuts ad lib., and also presented sweets all round. Mr. H. Studt, Mr. E. Danter, and Mr. S. White also gave the use of their various machines.

The Guardians, through The Era, wish to thank most heartily the showmen for the great kindness shown to the various charities, and Mr. H. Hutchins, The Era local correspondent and hon. Guild agent, for taking up the responsibility of personally conducting the children round the fair.

On Saturday night, happily without any accident, the razzle-dazzle of Messrs. Ford broke down, supposed to be due to overstrain. Fortunately, the proprietor had a successful run over the fair. The machine will soon be in working order again.

Penalty of £200 a Day—Liability of Theatre Proprietors.

The Watch Committee of the Merthyr Corporation met on Friday last week, Mr. J. M. Berry, J.P., presiding. The Town Clerk submitted a report stating that under the Sunday Observance Act of 1780 proprietors of cinematograph theatres who gave entertainments on the Sabbath to which persons were admitted by payment of money, were liable to a fine of £200 a day. It was decided to draw the attention of the conductors of such entertainments to the penalty.

Holbeck Feast, Leeds.

With this suburban fair on Holbeck Moor, Leeds, the Leeds and Bradford circuit of fairs reaches its highest perfection of expression. Holbeck Feast, in its order and arrangements, its vast display of multiform amusements, its mighty crowds, and its public acceptance, ranks with the great pleasure fairs of the world.

The long line of shows, all of the very best of their kind, was aglow with thousands of electric lamps, and the gilded artistry of show fronts and parades. Here were displayed the picture palaces of Messrs. Aspland, Murphy, Farrar and Tyler, Crighton, and Waddington, Bailey's circus, and numerous side shows.

In the centre of the feast ground were the motor car sets of Messrs. Murphy, Howden and Sons, J. W. Waddington, Marshall and Redfearn; other varieties of roundabouts by Messrs. P. Collins, Proctor, Waddington, and Marshall; razzle-dazzle by Messrs. Relph and Pedley; and Richardson's cak[illegible]alk machines.

[illegible] were avenues and streets of throwing-[illegible] bazaars, toy, gingerbread, and pot stalls—[illegible]u might count by the score. Altogether, [illegible] feast.

[illegible]vallow's International Circus at [illegible]pe.

[illegible]estabished Circus concluded a two-days' [illegible]undee on Monday evening, 12th inst. [illegible]nt was pitched on the Esplanade, and [illegible]nces were attracted to the two per-[illegible]iven daily. Mr. John H. Swallow, [illegible]ily upholds the reputation of his father, who established the show in 1830. The entertainment provided is of a high-class order, a pleasing feature being the entire absence of anything pertaining to vulgarity. The highly-trained mare Elizabeth, a beautiful piebald animal trained and introduced by Mr. John Swallow, reflects the utmost credit on its trainer; a graceful quick-change act of equestrianism by Miss Amelia was much admired; a performance of quite an exhilarating character was given by Chloe Diana, described as "the only black lady equestrienne"; the Seven Wilburs, in their stage-coach act Fun on the Rocket, gave a clever and humorous performance; M. Globella did some clever balancing work on the sphere; the game of polo by six mounted gentlemen proved exciting, and appealed to the sporting instincts of the audience; a dexterous performance on the electric wire was given by Mlle. Lydia; Wild Orest and Wild George submitted an interesting display of lasso-throwing and buck-riding; Herbert Oregon, "the modern Jack Shepherd," securely manacled and placed in a sack, and then dragged round the arena by a horse, succeeded in freeing himself in a remarkably short time; a very finished, and at the same time comical, performance on the cord elastique was given by Linton; a sensational cycling feat was accomplished by Elektra, who races down an incline and turns a somersault in the air; the Quetas, in their cycle hurricane race upon the smallest track ever ridden, showed a wonderful control of the wheel; a neatly-executed jockey act by Mr. Swallow was vociferously applauded; much merriment was created by Funny Johnny and his educated mule and dogs; no circus is complete without the clown, and in the capable hands of Comical Walker and a troupe of clever comedians the comic items kept the audience in the best of humour. Appropriate music was discoursed by the band, under the leadership of Mr. Robert Horrocks. Mr. G. E. Swallow is the capable manager of the Circus.

Notes from the Midlands.

At Astwood Bank were Scott's galloping horses, swing boats, houp-la circle, and other amusements. From Astwood this aggregation moved to Fecken ham, and met with great public acceptance. Her bert's roundabouts and other attractions have been on exhibition at Henley-in-Arden.

Brutal Murder of a Roundabout Owner.

Horley, a pleasant suburb of greater London, was greatly shocked on Thursday last by the discovery of a brutal crime. Wednesday was to have been the occasion of the annual sports and fête in aid of the Horley Town Band funds, and the committee had let the privilege of providing roundabouts, swings, &c., to Mr. Christopher Odam, a well-known and highly-respected showman. Owing to the wet weather which prevailed on Wednesday morning, however, it was decided at the last moment to postpone the sports and fête until the 21st inst.

Odam had incurred some considerable expense in travelling to Horley, and the proprietor of the field agreed to allow the show to remain there for a week. In order to avoid disappointment to any farm hands from a distance the entertainments were in full swing on Wednesday night.

During the day Odam had disposed of two horses, and among the witnesses of the sale were two men who had been following the show for some time past in hoping of securing a job. One it is reported, had been promised "a start" next week.

Contrary to his usual practice, during the evening Odam did not act as moneytaker on the roundabouts, and about nine o'clock he was seen in conversation with a roadman. He did not return to his caravan at bedtime, and his wife and son set out to search the neighbourhood. The quest was continued until about two o'clock in the morning, but without avail.

Just after daybreak a milkman coming along the Balcombe road saw the body of a man lying in a field not much more than two hundred yards from the field lent for the fête. It was the body of an elderly man with a black silk scarf tied tightly round his neck, and near by a knife and two pieces of wood studded with nails. He informed the police, and Sergeant Bird, of the Surrey Constabulary, who at once recognised the remains as those of Mr. Odam, had them removed to an outbuilding of the King's Head Hotel, where they were identified by one of the dead man's sons.

There can be little doubt that the motive of the murder was robbery, but the assailants must have been disappointed. Mr. Odam had handed over the proceeds of the horse sale to his wife. His pockets, however, were turned inside out and rifled. The police believe that the dead man was attacked from behind, strangled with his own scarf, and then beaten.

During the day a systematic search of the countryside was undertaken to discover the two "followers," who have disappeared. Up to a late hour on Thursday they had not been found. The greatest consternation prevails in the town and district, more particularly as Blindley Heath, where an old man was recently done to death in a barn, is only six or seven miles away.

The Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union.

The next meeting of this society is fixed for Sept. 20 at Bury. For place of meeting and time, see advertisement.

Showman's "Letter Box."

Limerick Rink and Electric Picture Palace.

The Limerick Roller Skating Rink and Electric Picture Palace still seem to be favoured by the classes and the masses. The films put on this week are both chaste and instructive, and in the absence of Director Kidd, who is spending a well-earned holiday in Waterford, Mr. George Ledger is the moral censor. The Race for a Bride, Bravery Rewarded, Over Silent Paths, Fury of the Waves, The Late Guest, and Pathé's Animated Gazette are especially attractive. The special engagement of Mr. Harry Drew, piano recitalist and mimic, adds a stimulus to the scenic effects. Mr. W. J. Potts, of Walturdaw Operatives, is skilful and exacting, and Mlle. May O'Connor has contributed some choice musical selections, appropriately set to the subject matter of the pictures exhibited.

Merton Picture Theatre.

A SHOWMAN'S LAST WISH.

An enormous crowd witnessed the remarkable funeral at Cardiff on last Tuesday, the 13th, of Mr. John White, father of Mr. Sidney White, the well-known South Wales amusement caterer. Deceased, who was seventy-seven, died ten days ago, and before he breathed his last he made his son promise that he would have his coffin taken to the cemetery on his great traction engine, "General White."

The promise was duly carried out on Tuesday according to the prescribed programme, and, consequently, Constellation-street was packed with spectators long before the funeral was timed to leave, and the police had a difficult task in keeping order.

The hearse was attached to the traction engine, and some twenty carriages followed behind. The engine itself was most beautifully decorated with huge wreaths on the wheels, which were also draped in crêpe. On the front of the engine was a superb design of the Prince of Wales's feathers in white flowers, with the motto "Ich dien."

The coffin was brought from the house through the front-room window, and a start was quickly made for the cemetery, via Clifton-street, which was also thronged by the curious. It then passed along Newport-road, Queen-street, Park-place, and Cathays-terrace to the cemetery.

Arriving there, another huge gathering was seen; but, in accordance with the instructions of the Lord Mayor, issued the previous day, the police only admitted to the cemetery the actual mourners. This was done to prevent a recurrence of the happenings during a military funeral last week, when numerous graves were trampled on.

When the cortége reached the cemetery a halt was called, the traction engine being drawn up outside the gates. The coffin was removed from the hearse, and conveyed on the shoulders of bearers into the chapel. The Rev. C. A. L. Senior, curate of St. German's, Roath, was the officiating minister, and the interment took place in the Church of England portion of the cemetery. Despite the vigilance of the police, a considerable number of the public found admission to the burial ground.

The chief mourners were Mr. Sid White (son),

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. J. WHITE AT CARDIFF.

Mrs. James (daughter), Mrs. Harry Rehorn, Miss Lillie White, and Miss James (granddaughters), Mr. William White, Mr. Sidney George White, Mr. Tom White, and Mr. Tom James (grandsons), Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, of Blaengwynfi (cousins), Mr. and Mrs. Fry, of Cymmer, Mr. T. Williams, and Mr. H. Watkins, of Bridgend, and Mrs. Ridout (cousins).

Following the relatives were Mr. White's staff: Messrs. Ted Holloway, Ernest Lowe, Walter Gibbons, Tom Curl, Chas. Taylor, Joe Gillespie, Harry Unwin, Chas. Passmore, and Misses Trapnell, Patty Trapnell, Nellie Troy, Trixie Troy, and Elsie Meds.

Other friends and travellers were:—Mesdames C. Taylor, G. Taylor, John P. Studt, E. Danter, A. Philips, Lloyd and Bounds, Misses Pernell (who decorated the engine so beautifully), Violet Winsper, Ford, M. Ford, and E. Unwin, and Messrs. Geo. Winsper, Geo. Goodwin, Watkins, Alf. Holmes, Alf. Smith, H. Lucas, H. Craddock, Butlin, Prof. Lloyd, and Prof. Bounds.

In the last coach came Mr. Renot (at present appearing at the Palace, Cardiff) and Mr. Rory Macs (Mr. White's business representative).

The whole ceremony was most interesting, and created a great stir in the city. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr. R. Jordan, of Messrs. G. Stone and Co., 11 and 12, Working-street, Cardiff.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Important changes in the law affecting the amusement professions have been made since the issue nine years ago of the second edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable book on Theatrical and Musical Law, and the third edition just published comes opportunely to hand. The work has been greatly enlarged, upwards of sixty additional pages being required to accommodate the mass of new information. The publication has been brought as nearly as possible up to date, and within its pages will be found analyses of important measures which have been adopted both in Parliament and out. There is, for instance, the full text of the recent Berlin Convention, and the New Copyright Act of the United States. The awards governing the relations between managers, artists, and agents are reproduced in their entirety, and a number of fresh cases illustrating the effect of the barring clauses is included.

Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable treatise on "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at the offices of The Era, has reached a third edition. This includes the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States, also all the important decisions of the Courts, since the last edition, on which the compiler has been able to lay hands. As Mr. Strong remarks, "There is probably no more fruitful source of litigation than the ordinary theatrical contract." If the work under notice achieved no other object than to impress this fact on the parties concerned, it would still be worth its weight in gold.—The Music Hall, May 12, 1910.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Dramatic authors, composers, and all of those interested in dramatic enterprise will find much that is useful and instructive in "Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert Strong.—Sporting Life, May 16, 1910.

FILM GOSSIP.

The Johnson-Jeffries Pictures.

The much-discussed pictures of the Johnson-Jeffries fight at Reno were shown at a private gathering held in the National Sporting Club on Monday afternoon. Costing £52,000, the pictures, beautiful specimens of cinematography, give a very realistic idea of what took place. The complete record of the contest, in all 60,000ft. of film, occupied something like an hour and a quarter, and the display throughout is absolutely devoid of offence.

Remarkable Pictures.

A gentleman acting on behalf of Mr. W. J. Wainratta and Mr. George Smith, the English manager for the Vitagraph Company, prefaced the exhibition with some explanatory remarks. Pictures of the preliminaries show Johnson chewing gum, playing cards, and posing with friends and members of his family in the back-yard. Jeffries is seen going through his training exercises and having sparring bouts. Then follow scenes in and about Reno on the day of the fight. There are also pictures introducing fighting heroes of bygone days. When the rivals enter the ring they soon get to work, and although the fight is a very disappointing affair, some clever footwork is witnessed. Mr. Smith, of the Vitagraph Company, Cecil-court, is making all arrangements for placing these remarkable films on the market.

Kensington Picture Theatre.

This week's programme here includes His First Place (Ambrosio), A Rake's Romance (Cricks and Martin), The Italian Switzerland (Cosmopolitan), Calino Buys a House Dog (Gaumont), Our Dear Uncle from America (Eclair), Unexpected Help (A.B.), A Lesson in Wrestling (Pathé), and Pathé's Animated Gazette of all the latest news.

Another Historic Film for the F.A.F.

Another historic moving picture film has been set apart for the benefit of the poorest children of London and other towns, through the medium of the Fresh Air Fund. Mr. E. J. Muddle, editor of the Bioscope, has sent to the secretary of the Fresh Air Fund a film of the lying-in-state of King Edward in Buckingham Palace, which has been placed at his disposal for the Fresh Air Fund by Mr. W. W. Johnson, lessee of the Public Hall Theatre, Scunthorpe. The film is forty-seven feet long, and cannot fail to be of the deepest interest to any audience. It will be sold to the highest bidder, and the secretary of the F.A.F. will be glad to receive offers.

The Pioneer of the Cinematograph.

The books, lantern slides, Press cuttings, &c., which the late Mr. Edward Muybridge, the pioneer of the cinematograph, bequeathed to the borough of Kingston-on-Thames, have been placed in the Kingston Free Public Library for the inspection of the public during this month. Mr. Muybridge was the first photographer to take photographs showing an object in motion. Arising out of a bet between two millionaires in California, while in charge of the General Photographic Survey of the Pacific Coast, in 1872, he took a series of photographs of a trotting horse which proved, what had not previously been believed, that the horse had all its feet off the ground at the same time, thus showing that existing sketches of a trotting horse were all wrong.

Moving Pictures of Women Chain-makers.

Public sympathy with the women chain-workers will be stimulated by the series of cinematograph films issued this week by Messrs. Pathé. The pictures, taken at the suggestion of the Daily News, give a vivid representation of the women in the act of chain-making, and clearly show the arduous nature of the occupation. A scene in which little children are playing around the "forge" is followed by some incidents of the strike, including a procession of the women accompanied by a large crowd of sympathisers. An explanatory headline is also given as to the wages received by the women. The pictures tell their own story and make a powerful human appeal. The films are being shown this week at the principal music-halls in London and at between 500 and 600 picture theatres in all parts of the country.

Edmonton Baby Show.

Andrews' pictures continue to draw crowded houses at the King's Hall, Lower Edmonton. The local film, The Edmonton Baby Show, is a great attraction. The programme also includes The Bottle of Milk, The Call of the Blood, Through the Darkness, A Bolt from the Blue, Ma's New Dog, and illustrated songs and lecturing by Mr. Jack Roberts.

Terry's Theatre to be a Picture Palace.

Terry's Theatre, in the Strand, has been leased to a cinematograph company, and will be opened by them in November as a living picture theatre under the style of the Grand Casino.

Picture Theatre, Kingston.

The Picture Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, opened successfully three weeks ago by the Mayor (Councillor George Huckle, J.P.), has since continued to do record business. The high quality of the films exhibited has been the subject of general comment. The management enjoy the local monopoly of Animatophone pictures, and some of the best of this company's records and films have been made features in the programme. On Thursday, the whole of the Boy Scouts in the Kingston district, under their scoutmasters, were to attend, and a special selection of films submitted.

Novel Beauty Competition.

The Beauty Competition now in progress on entirely new and unobjectionable lines has drawn a host of competitors. Photographs only are sent in, and these are to be converted into lantern slides, the audience itself selecting the four winners of four valuable prizes.

Poole's Picture Palace, Aberaman.

The attractive programme here includes the Brothers Hannaway, smart dancers and patter comedians; Mlle. Sylvesto and her comedian Rumbo in their comedy pot-pourri contortionist act, a very good turn; and Henry Carlton, a delightful entertainer at the piano. The pictures shown on the Bioscope are as attractive as ever.

Sunday Picture Shows in Carlisle.

The Carlisle City magistrates on Monday granted permission to the lessee of the New Public Hall to exhibit cinematograph pictures on Sunday evenings after the hours of Divine service. The Chief Constable said he had no objection. Other places had permission, and had not abused it at all. In fact, some Chief Constables rather approved of these entertainments.

Hastings Picture Palaces.

Extensive structural alterations and additions are probable in the near future at the Wellington-place Electric Theatre, Hastings, consequent upon a recent change in the proprietorship. The Pelham Hall Electric Theatre continues a very prosperous undertaking under the management of Mr. Dale. The People's Picture Palace Company, at the Public Hall, locally managed by Mr. A. Ashcroft, provide an excellently varied series of interesting subjects. Among some noticeably good are Forty Years in the Land of Midian and The Goldseeker's Son. An agreeable interlude is provided by Miss Daisy Silcott, a dainty comedienne and danseuse. On the Hastings Pier, the pictures shown outside the Pavilion during the evenings attract a large audience, and prove a financial success.

THE SHOP HOURS BILL,

The warning note to travelling auctioneers sounded in The Era a fortnight ago has roused the leading men in the business. Not only did we give a general warning through our columns, but we sent out (in answer to many inquiries) our best expert opinion as to the course to be pursued in meeting the threatened danger.

Messrs. Bloom, Barber, Harrison, Smith, Greenwood, Rowley, and others have taken immediate action to organise the trade for its own defence. Quite naturally, as some of the travelling auctioneers are members of the Showmen's Guild, the Rev. T. Horne was appealed to for advice, and if possible active assistance on the question. That advice in general terms was embodied first in the special article two weeks ago dealing with the Bill itself, and again in an interesting paragraph last week.

The Showmen's Guild and the Bill.

In a letter to Mr. F. M. Barber, of Mansfield, now on tour with his auction mart, and at present located at Ravensthorpe, the Guild organiser referred Mr. Barber and other Guild members in his line of business to the rules of the society. In rules 2 and 19 it is set out that "the objects of the Guild shall be (1) to watch any attempt at legislation which is calculated to affect or interfere with the rights or business of showmen and van dwellers in general, and to take such proceedings in Parliamentary and other matters as may be deemed advisable," and (11) "the Guild's principal object being to protect the interests of amusement caterers as a body, they can only support such actions at law as affect the whole community."

Fairs and Markets Exempted in the Bill.

The Showmen's Guild, Mr. Horne pointed out to Mr. Barber, would have no locus standi against the Bill, as the general interests of showmen proper were already provided for. This opinion did not prevent him personally rendering all the assistance in his power to help the auctioneers, for he recognised the close links that bound their line of business to the fairground. Mr. Horne suggested that the auctioneers should form a defence league of their own, and to seek affiliation with the Guild Parliamentary Defence Committee. He offered to place at the auctioneers' disposal his own services, and suggested that the Guild Parliamentary agents and solicitors would be the best experts to handle the business for them, as the Guild could not by its constitution spend its funds on sectional interests, but only those touching the whole body of travelling amusement caterers. He advised that the auctioneers formed their own league and raised a defence fund to carry the matter through.

Mr. Barber's reply was a grateful acknowledgment of the advice given, and an invitation to attend an organisation meeting of the proposed defence league at Manchester next week. (See our advertising columns for date, time, and place of gathering.) Mr. Horne will attend and render all the assistance possible.

This is in strict accordance with the past action of the Guild. In all local and sectional questions the expense of any action taken must be borne by the parties interested.

We were sure that the whole body of auctioneers pursuing their business on the best modern lines, taking a circuit of towns in the yearly round of their business, would rally to the cause of trade defence, and with such champions and leaders as Messrs. Bloom, Harrison, Barber, Greenwood, and others there is little doubt of ultimate success.

EARLY DELIVERY.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD IN SCOTLAND.

Up to the present time two great rallying centres for the work of the Showmen's Guild have been opened out in Scotland—at Greenock Fair and again at Ayr Fair. There are, we are told, other centres where Scottish show-people who do not go to either Greenock or Ayr might be encouraged to support the general work of trade defence. But, as we have already said, the work of organising the interests of the Guild in Scotland has of necessity been confined to two great centres. It is hoped that in the near future opportunities may be given to the organising chaplain to get into complete touch with the whole body of showmen and fair-ground traders in Scotland.

It was necessary to state the hitherto partial character of the Guild's enterprise over the Border, in order to give full value to the remarkably successful work already accomplished, and to the equally remarkable generous support the Guild has received from Scottish showmen. It is from scarcely more than half of the whole body that the generous support to the Guild funds has come, and it is confidently expected that when the appeal is made to the others Scotland will take a very proud position in its support of the trade defence movement.

When it is remembered that the whole country is not covered, the contribution of Scotland to the Guild funds places it in the premier position. At Greenock Fair, earlier in the year, the special subscription and the general subscription of yearly members amounted to close upon £20; and now, at Ayr, the benefit and the general members' subscriptions reach over £74. Scotland, considering what we have already stated—that only two places are touched in the business year—undoubtedly leads the way.

The Benefit.

The opening night of Ayr Fair is always a quiet one as regards business, and a certain number of the concerns would hardly think it worth while to open under ordinary conditions, but when the idea of giving a benefit to the Guild funds was proposed by Mr. George Green, acting in the matter with the full sympathy of Mr. John Wilmot, it was gratifying to notice that every showman and stallholder determined to do his best, and that, however little each concern might take upon the opening night, the entire proceeds would be given as a benefit to the Guild. It is a remarkable instance of the success of combination, and is a very practical example of how the whole body of workers in the industry may be encouraged to take a real and personal interest in its well-being.

The Originator of the Ayr Fair Guild Benefit

The Scottish showpeople at once were anxious to know all about the Guild they were asked to support, and one great result has been crowded and interested meetings of the Guild at Ayr Fair.

Another result, hardly less important, has been the increasing interest of the general public and the growing attendance year by year on the benefit night. The people of Ayr have crowded the Guild services, and, through the chaplain's addresses and commendatory notices of his ministry in the local Press are now taking a greater interest in the showpeople and their Guild. Practically, on the opening night there are only two or three hours' possible business, and for some of the amusements only very little time indeed wherein to take money, but, whatever the result, it is earnestly worked for and cheerfully given.

On the opening night the weather was gloriously fine, and there is no doubt that the advertisement of the Guild benefit and meeting fixed public attention upon the fair, and that many people made a first visit on that night who otherwise would have waited later. In our pilgrimage of the fair, we were much pleased with the evident enthusiasm of the showpeople to do their best for the Guild funds. Not only the big shows, but the little shows, not only the roundabouts, but the houp-las, throwing games, and variety stalls were doing their very best to interest the visitors to the fair. We have much pleasure in giving the full list of contributors:—

Mr. George Green, £15 1s. 6d.; Mr. John Wilmot, £10 6s. 9d.; Mrs. Biddall's show, £3 10s. 4d.; Mr. S. McIntosh, £2 11s. 10d.; Mrs. Baker and Sons, £2 6s. 6d.; Chipperfield's menagerie, £2; Mr. Talbot, £1 15s. 4d.; Tom Paulo's circus, £1 8s. 6d.; Mrs. Howard, £1 8s. 6d.; Mr. H. Irvin, £1 5s. 1d.; J. Wilmot, jun., £1 0s. 3d.; H. Irvin, jun., £1 3s.; Mrs. Mander's show, 18s. 1d.; Mr. W. Irvin, 16s. 11d.; Mr. S. Rostron, 12s. 2d.; Mr. J. Day, 10s. 6d.; Mr. A. Carrick, 10s.; Mr. J. Beaty, 9s. 5d.; Mr. W. Merrick, 8s. 6d.; Mr. H. Smith, 8s. 8d.; Mr. H. Hughes, 8s. 2d.; Mr. Moore, 8s.; Mr. W. Smith, 7s. 3d.; Mrs. Stevenson, 7s. 2d.; Mrs. Anderson, 7s. 1d.; Mrs. M. Smith, 6s. 11d.; Mr. Lawrence, 6s. 9½d.; Mr. J. W. Kelly, 6s. 8d.; Mr. W. McIndoe, 5s. 10d.; Mr. A. Testo, 5s. 7d.; Mr. J. McIndoe, 5s. 6d.; Mr. Illingworth, 5s. 6d.; Mrs. Cunningham, 5s 4d.; Mr. R. Russell, 5s. 4d.; Mr. C. Smith, 5s. 2d.; Caddick and Sons, 5s. 1d.; Mrs. Blockley, 5s.; Mr. G. Stott, jun., 5s.; Mr. J. Clarke, 5s.; Mr. J. Bradley, 5s.; Mr. J. Buckley, 4s 10d.; Mr. J. Dobbing, 4s. 8d.; Mr. J. Matchett, 4s. 6d.; Mr. J. Dawson, 4s. 6d.; Mr. J. W. Ross, 4s. 5d.; Mr. H. Chapman, 4s. 2d.; Mr. D. Kennedy, 4s. 2d.; Mr. G. Blockley, 3s. 9d.; Mr. J. Wright, 3s. 6d.; Mr. J. Graham, 3s. 4d.; Mr. J. Newey, 3s. 3d.; Mr. J. Knight, 3s. 2d.; Mr. J. Blockley, 3s. 2d.; Mr. Fitzpatrick, 3s. 2d.; Mr. Hiscoe, 3s. 1d.; Mr. W. Graham, 3s. 1d.; Mr. P. Swallow, jun., 2s. 8d.; Mr. T. Dawson, 2s. 7d.; Mrs. Carter, 2s. 7d.; Mrs Lipton, 2s. 7d.; Mr. C. Miller, 2s. 6d.; Mr. Robertson, 2s. 6d.; Mr. H. Johnson, 2s. 3d.; Mrs. Newton, 2s. 2d.; Mr. H. Merrick, jun., 2s. 1d.; Mr. H. Merrick, 2s.; Mrs. Sheeran, 2s.; Mr. E. Cooper, 2s.; Mr. Graham, 2s.; Mr. A. Palmer, 1s. 10d.; Mrs. Cooke, 1s. 1d.; Mr. Nelson, 1s.; Mr. W. Smith, 1s.; Mrs. Brady, 9d.; making a grand total of £59 7s. 3d.

This altogether satisfactory result is, as will be noticed, largely made up of moderate sums, and its great significance consists in the fact that it enlisted the enthusiasm and intelligent interest of every showman and fairground trader present. Great credit is due to Messrs. Green and Wilmot for the successful results, first at Greenock and then at Ayr. It is because the Scottish showpeople are so well led, and have so excellent an example set them by their leaders in the business that Scotland occupies so worthy a place in the honour list of contributors to the Guild funds.

The Afternoon Meeting of the Guild.

This was held in George Green's show; the proprietor occupied the chair, and with him were the veteran vice-president John Wilmot, Messrs. S. Mackintosh, H. Irvin, T. Paulo, J. McIndoe, H. Hughes, W. Manders, G. Biddall, J. Buckley, J. H. Chipperfield, C. Miller, S. Sheeran, Mr. W. Irvin, S. Rostron, J. Day, and others. Mr. George Green, V.P., in opening the proceedings, intimated that he would reserve the few observations necessary for him to make till after Mr. Horne's address, and towards the close of the meeting. They all knew the splendid work the organising chaplain was doing on their behalf, and when they had heard the story of the work of the Guild from the chaplain, they would be in a better position to add their quota to the meeting in the discussion and consideration that must follow. He called upon Mr. Horne to address the meeting.

The Organising Chaplain on the Work of the Guild.

The Rev. T. Horne prefaced his address by reading to the meeting the names of the contributors to the benefit and the amounts given, as already shown above. He warmly commended the excellent method by which the benefit was carried through, and spoke of the pleasure it afforded him to bear back to the general funds the gift of the Scottish showpeople. He expressed a strong hope that in every division of the showman world such benefits might be as successfully organised as at Ayr. It was only, he said, when the leaders and the principal Guild workers determined to carry the thing through to a successful issue that success was secured. There had been benefits in other parts, but the only one that seemed to remain as an annual institution was that at Rotherham Statues. The other efforts had been but spasmodic, and although they had flourished for a time they had fallen away. He commended to lessees of fairgrounds and the leaders of the Guild, the practical, business-like plan originated by Mr. George Green, and carried out at Ayr. The result had been what they were all rejoicing in—not only an increased return year after year, but also an increased interest in the work and aims of the Guild.

Dealing at once with the matter that was in all their minds—the Guild and the Moveable Dwellings Bill, he engaged the attention of the audience by exhibiting copies as it went before the Committee of the House of Lords, and as it left that body. He did this by holding up the Bill without any amendment and a copy with all the clauses that the Committee had rejected blotted out. This demonstrated that, with the exception of one clause, Clause 5, of the original measure, the old Bill in all its operative clauses was rejected by the Committee.

The Great Importance of the Victory Won.

They were met, he said, to celebrate a great victory won. All the invidious proposals of the original Bill that would have stigmatised them as a class separate and apart from the rest of the community had been ignominously rejected by the Select Committee of the House of Lords. He referred to the proposals that their moveable dwellings were to be registered, licensed, and inspected under special legislation that did not apply to people living in permanent dwellings. It would have given power to the policeman and the sanitary inspector to determine conditions that were rightly left to the sound sense and the individual liberty of the subject.

They had now reached, he was glad and proud to tell them, after more than twenty years hard fighting, an acknowledged position in the face of the whole world. Their home life, their moral character, and their business integrity were to be no longer under the stigma of special class legislation. The showman's claim for the freedom of the ordinary laws had been fully vindicated, and it was now an established and accepted fact beyond all further dispute or cavil that they should carry on their business and live their daily life just as other people, under the ordinary control and protection of the common law. This was an immense gain. It cleared the ground of all those vexatious and troublesome matters that had occupied so much of their time and attention. It was no exaggeration to say that the travelling showman had at last come into his kingdom. The organised showmen of the Empire had been judged and after full investigation had been proved to be worthy citizens of the commonwealth, moral, industrious, and loyal subjects of the Throne. This verdict had been awarded by the highest judicial authority in the country, a Select Committee of the House of Lords. The report of that Committee had been proclaimed in every newspaper in the land, and the unanimous opinion of both Press and people had been one of great satisfaction with the verdict.

He had dwelt at some length upon the various aspects of the great advantages their trade combination had secured them, and had shown them the vantage ground they now occupied. It was from the secured vantage ground of their present position, with all the force of the well-won vindication of character now universally admitted, that they would in the future deal with the dangers that menaced their business and avocation in life. They would now approach all attacks upon them with a good heart and courage, because they felt certain that what they had already secured would enable them to claim full justice from Parliament with regard to attacks upon their means of livelihood. He was confident that both Houses of Parliament would refuse to sanction any hastily conceived legislation to injure so important an industry and so necessary a branch of public service as the provision of the open air amusements of the people.

He had already shown them that all that remained of the original Moveable Dwellings Bill was one paragraph known as Clause 5, and even in the new Bill, which they would have to seriously consider as far as it touched their trade and business, the old Clause 5 had been modified and divided, and now formed two sections in the new Bill. When the executive council of the Showmen's Guild began its opposition to the old measure, they were compelled to regard with the greatest possible seriousness the importance of the menace to their business contained in Clause 5. The council had declared in regard to that clause that if the Bill contained nothing else, it would be the duty of every showman to offer it the most strenuous objection. Clause 5, as they would remember, gave county councils power to make bye-laws to prohibit the assembly or encampment of moveable dwellings upon any place or places that, in the opinion of the authority, might constitute a danger to health or be a source of annoyance to the neighbourhood. That was Clause 5, and they would readily see how it placed their very existence and means of livelihood at the mercy of the county authority.

It would enable the county councils to practically abolish fairs, no matter how long established, to override the power of the Crown with the regard to both charter and other fairs, and to practically abolish a fair without either the consent of the people or of the Home Secretary as provided by Statute. The serious warning he had to give the meeting was that even in its modified form as it appeared in the new Bill it involved an attack and a menace to the show business of such a nature that it would be their duty to approach Parliament with reasonable and proper amendments to safeguard their interests. He had every confidence of ultimate success, but the necessity for continuing Parliamentary defence work was extremely urgent. Having gained so much, it would be the greatest possible mistake to relinquish their efforts until every danger was over.

In the new Bill there were provisions for closing down their business if in the opinion of the authority it was either a menace to public health, or was a source of annoyance to the neighbourhood in which the fair was held.

Is There a Reason for New Legislation?

As far as the provision of County Council camping grounds for gipsy vandwellers and hawkers go, showmen have no possible concern. That is absolutely a matter for gipsies and their friends to settle, and it is erroneous to imagine that gipsies have no friends, for one of the most able witnesses against the late Bill was Dr. Farrar, a high medical official of the Local Government Board, and a convinced champion of gipsy life. The good-living gipsy has nothing to fear from Parliament—the only excuse for new legislation at all is the admitted peril to country life of so-called gipsies (mostly half-breeds) who live a semi-criminal life, or subsist by dubious means, and whose moveable dwellings and tents are of doubtful sanitary character. It was the existence of this class—in some of the Home Counties an admitted menace and peril to health and good rule and order—that led to proposals like those embodied in the new Moveable Dwellings Bill, for the provision of County Council camping grounds as a necessary preliminary to giving the police powers to drive the undesirable gipsy off the commons and waste lands of the countryside into properly provided compounds.

With that part of the new measure showmen had nothing to do save and only to make sure that showmen are not brought under its drastic provisions to corner the gipsy. We admit that the Select Committee, in its admirable Report, makes clear the distinctions and differences between gipsy vandwellers and showmen vandwellers. We must be quite sure that the good intention is honestly carried out in the Act. It is in that direction that the Showmen's Guild will work, and it was for that necessary purpose that he (the speaker) was appealing that day to Scotch showpeople to generously support the Guild executive with ample means to safeguard the interests of showland.

Legislation for show van life was neither necessary nor desirable. Every show van was already under the strictest control and supervision of the whole body of Public Health Acts and Notification of Infectious Diseases Acts, and as regard the canons of morality, and the rules of good citizenship, the police had just as much power (and no more) as over the people who lived in permanent houses. The same sanitary and police laws applied equally to all people—the pierrot or the peer, the showman or the stockbroker. Their battle was to see that the present just incidence of the common law remained; that no special legislation, however desirable for the undesirable gipsy or squatter, inflicted hardship on their means of livelihood.

Clause 5 Still Threatens Show Life.

The extraordinary powers sought in Clause 5 of the original Bill were now distributed in Clauses 1 and 2 of the new Bill. If these proposals became law it would still be possible for Councils (if so minded) to strain the powers only meant to prevent gipsy encampments to cover moveable dwellings used by show people as part of their working plant. It would be their duty, as working for the good of all kinds of travelling amusement caterers, to see that amendments were drafted and submitted to Parliament entirely clearing up all ambiguity and doubt, and strictly confining its drastic powers to the limited class of undesirable people who have necessitated its proposal. Showmen will ask for, and he doubted not would obtain, full and complete exemption. The executive council of the Guild had already gone fully into the matter, and already amendments had been suggested. These would be fully discussed at the forthcoming meeting of the Guild at the great autumn fairs, and finally approved before Parliament resumes its work.

Better Times Ahead for Showland.

He had every confidence that full justice would be done to their cause—their friends were many and their enemies few and rapidly coming over to their side. He ventured to attribute some of the gratifying results of their recent work to the assistance of their friends, the hon. local chaplains in the great centres of industrial life. His brethren of the clergy took a warm and intelligent interest in the concerns of showland. He referred his hearers to the excellent and wise words of the oldest and best of their friends, the Rev. H. Norburn, of Longsight, Manchester, who, in his parish magazine, had most kindly and wisely referred to the work of the Guild and to the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Lords. He earnestly exhorted all showmen to make friends; to so live their lives that wherever they went they would make friends. Their dear old friend and fellow showman, John Wilmot, still happily present with them at their meetings, was a signal example of the advice he (the speaker) was offering. John Wilmot's one great policy and ambition in life had been to make friends in every town he visited on his extensive circuits of fairs. Although their dear old friend and leader, by his growing infirmities and great age could no longer take an active lead in their affairs, his very presence with his people was a precious advantage, for he made, and he held, wherever he travelled, the friendship of the people, from the highest to the humblest. Let their ideals be noble—to render public service as the entertainers of the people, and to uplift the popular amusements of all who enjoyed the open air fellowship of our fairs, feasts, and wakes.

MR. JOHN WILMOT, V.P.
Father of the Guild in Scotland.

The Chairman and Other Speakers.

Mr. George Green, after a humorous disclaimer of his ability to speak, and his contentment at being one of the band of silent workers, urged the duty incumbent upon every showman and amusement provider of joining the Guild and working in defence of their common interests. To his mind it was the merest act of trade insurance to safeguard their business from injurious legislation. There were other reasons, as Mr. Horne's speech had clearly set out; but to him it had always been difficult to understand the showman who kept out of the Guild. To stand out and refuse to support the good work was a tremendous mistake. Referring to the great work the Guild had already done, and to the able advocacy of the organising chaplain, he quoted the certificate of good character the House of Lords Committee had given show life.

"That apart from a small number of persons who use moveable dwellings as a pastime, vandwellers are divided into two classes—the showman class and the gipsy class. As regards the showman class no legislation appears to be required. Mr. Horne, the Chaplain of their Guild, told the Committee that there were some 4,000 showmen's vans travelling the country, and carrying a population of something like 12,000 souls. The trade is perfectly honest and respectable and its members are well-to-do, and in some cases even thriving. No grievances arise against them."

That, he maintained, was their charter of freedom. It was a discharge in full from all the vicious and vile charges that had in the past been levelled against showpeople.

It was a testimonial of good character from the highest judicial tribunal in the country. They were proud to be counted worthy of so great a verdict. As the Chaplain had shown already, it cleared the way. The faddists' and fanatics' occupation was now gone for ever as regards showpeople. Their business was honest and praiseworthy, and their character known to be beyond reproach. All these great gains were altogether good, but their work was not yet finished. So long as mistaken legislators wanted to get special powers to penalise the show business, so long would they, as an organised body, be compelled to defend their interests. He made a vigorous appeal for all to join and to help in strengthening the hands of the Guild executive council.

Mr. Tom Paulo's Commendation.

The well-known circus proprietor, Mr. T. Paulo, in response to the chairman's request, paid a high tribute to the Guild Chaplain's individual work, as well as the sterling good to showmen done by the Guild Council three years ago, when the Children's Act was under consideration, and an earlier Bill that sought to stigmatise with the calumny of neglect show parents with regard to the education of their children. The need for a society to represent and to defend them before Parliament had been brought home to him. The Guild had fought for the rights of parents and for all reasonable facilities for show children to attend school. This had been done, and there was no education difficulty with showpeople as a class. When he realised what the Guild was doing he felt it his bounden duty to join and to subscribe for the defence work. He personally wished to thank the Guild Chaplain for looking after their interests and the interests of their families and their homes. Every showman, every stallholder should be a member, and he warmly advised and exhorted them to come forward at once with their names and subscriptions.

Mr. George Green proposed and Mr. J. Caddick, jun., seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. T. Horne, Guild Chaplain, for his visit to Ayr, and his address on the work of the Guild. This was carried with cheers, and the secretaries of the Conference, Messrs. Bert Green and Joe Caddick, jun., enrolled the following members and additional subscriptions:—Mr. George Green, £5 5s.; Mr. John Wilmot (third subscription), £2; Mrs. Howard, £1; Mrs. Biddall, 10s.; Mr. C. Miller, 10s.; Mr. T. Paulo, 10s.; Messrs. Irvin and Son, 10s.; Messrs. Mackintosh and Son, 10s.; Mr. J. H. Chipperfield, 10s.; Mr. Buckley, 5s.; Mr. Hughes, 5s.; Mr. Chapman, 5s.; Mr. Bert Green, 5s.; Mr. E. Blockley, 5s.; Mr. Merrick, 5s.; Mr. J. Blockley, 5s.; Mr. Testo, 5s.; Mr. E. Sheeran, 5s.; Mr. S. Rostron, 5s.; Mr. J. Graham, 5s.; Mr. Newey, 5s.; Mr. J. W. Kelly, 5s.; Mr. Talbot, 5s.; Mr. Wm. Irvin, 5s.; Mr. J. Day, 5s.

Guild Service at Night.

In the morning, at the invitation of the Vicar, the Guild Chaplain was the special preacher at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Ayr. The Rev. J. Vavasour Hammond, the Vicar, is the Hon. Local Chaplain of the Guild, and he takes a great interest in the showpeople when they visit Ayr. The Guild service in the evening was held in Green's spacious show pavilion. Nearly a thousand people were in the booth and hundreds went away unable to obtain admission. The choir from Newton Parish Church led the singing and Miss Rainie from the Manse, a great friend of the showpeople, was the organist. The hymns and the canticle were heartily sung by the vast congregation. The Guild Chaplain took the service and preached, taking for theme "compassion." He brought to his hearers by many striking illustrations the need for more sympathy, tenderer and quicker compassion on our fellow sufferers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond and Miss Rainie held an informal reception of the showpeople at the close of the service. 1910 Fair at Ayr will mark a great forward step in the appreciation and acceptance of the Guild and its work.

Mr. Joe Caddick, the veteran pioneer of the trade defence movements in showland, was prevented by a serious illness from being present at the meetings. We saw him in his caravan, and we are glad to state that he is recovering from the exhausting malady which had laid him low. On the Sunday afternoon news came of the sudden (and ultimately fatal) heart failure of Mr. John Robertson, one of the side show exhibitors at the Fair. The Chaplain made a sympathetic reference to the death at the close of his sermon.

MR. H. FINLAY-KNIGHT, in an interesting letter to the Pall Mall Gazette on the Shakespeare-Bacon question, says:—"I do not know, and I do not greatly care, whether Francis Bacon wrote 'Love's Labour's Lost,' but I feel pretty sure he did not write 'The Merry Wives of Windsor,' and these are some of the reasons for my opinion. The writer, whoever he may have been, picked out a Warwickshire neighbour of Shakespeare's and held up his coat of arms to coarse ridicule. Now in Elizabethan days a gentleman's shield was almost a sacred thing, and it would have been in the worst possible taste to make fun of it. It is inconceivable to me that the well-born and cultivated Bacon could have been guilty of such a piece of clownishness, especially if he was connected with Warwickshire people. But the butcher's son need have had no such scruples if he saw his way to scoring off an old enemy. The dialogue goes on:

Shallow: It is an old coat. . . .
Slender: I may quarter, coz.
Shallow: You may, by marrying.

Now this is sheer nonsense. If you marry a man's daughter you impale his arms, but you cannot quarter them. That is for her children, and then only if she be an heiress. My third point comes at the end of the play, where there occurs what I have ventured to call a gross blunder in everyday law. That vulgar fellow, Ford, incoherently exulting over the crestfallen Falstaff, says: 'Falstaff . . . hath enjoyed nothing of Ford's but . . . twenty pounds of money, which must be paid to Master Brook: his horses are arrested for it, Master Brook.' But under correction of 'the greatest lawyers of several generations' there never was any process of English law by which (outside the City of London) a plaintiff could attach the goods of a defendant in the hands of a third party before judgment. Perhaps this also seems insignificant to a layman, but it is not so. No lawyer worthy of his robe would wilfully put bad law into the mouth of one of his characters. It would be worse than blasphemy. Would Scott have done such a thing? No, not for—Edinburgh! But, indeed, the bare idea that Ford could recover money advanced for the vilest of purposes is one that could never have occurred to a lawyer. May I say a few words about the passage spoken by Mrs. Page: 'If the devil have him not in fee simple with fine and recovery, he will never, I think, in the way of waste attempt us again.' I am convinced that no lawyer could have put such a highly technical speech into the mouth of a simple country housewife. It would have outraged all his ideas of the fitness of things. But I can fancy Shakespeare hearing the words fall from some witty Templar in the ordinary, and the laugh that followed. I can fancy him murmuring, 'My tablets: meet it is I set it down,' and then giving them tant bien que mal to the first comic character to whose circumstances they seemed to him appropriate.

IN our last issue reference was made to the trouble between M. Fontanes, manager of the Châtelet Theatre, and his machinists. M. Fontanes has now rebelled. Not only has he refused to take back a stage hand he had dismissed, but he turned away the leader of the agitators and engaged non-syndicate men in their places. The Scene Shifters' Union thereupon proclaimed its intention of disturbing the performances at the Châtelet by "protests" from the auditorium. Consequently, a posse of police and municipal guards attended the reopening of the theatre after an enforced closure owing to the strike. The malcontents, however, did not carry out their threats, and the performance passed off peacefully. We may remark here that the malcontents acted wisely in refraining from any demonstration, inasmuch as they would very likely have been set upon by the public.

AN ACTOR'S IMPUDENCE.

In 1758, when he was in the very zenith of his popularity, the actor Tate Wilkinson took advantage of a holiday to pay a visit to London from York (wrote the late John Coleman). The day of his departure was one of lamentation for his admirers, who were convinced if Garrick once saw their favourite he would never return to the stately old city by the Ouse; and we are disposed to think that he himself was under the impression that he had only to show his face in town to be immediately snapped up by one or other of the London managers.

On the night of his arrival he went to Drury Lane, and paid his money like a man to the pit, to see David Garrick in Hamlet. Next morning he went to the Palais Royal (as Garrick's splendid mansion in Southampton-street was called). The great impresario at length broke the ice thus:

"Well, well, Mr. Frodsham," said Garrick, "I suppose you've seen a play since your arrival in London?"

"Oh yes. I saw you play my own crack part last night, sir."

"Oh, indeed! And how did you approve? I hope I pleased you, sir?"

"Why, yes, certainly, my dear sir—vastly clever in several passages, but I can't say I was struck with your entire performance."

This took Garrick's breath away, and he afterwards avowed that he never had such a "rise" taken out of him in all his life, as by this outspoken and audacious young country actor. The great man gasped and stammered:

"Why—now, now, to be sure now—I suppose you good people in the country—pray, pray, now, Mr. Frodsham, what sort of a place do you act in at York? Is it a room, or a riding-house, occasionally fitted up with scenery? Eh? eh?"

"Neither, sir," replied Frodsham, with dignity. "A theatre—a splendid theatre, Mr. Garrick."

"Ah, to be sure, my Lord Burlington told me so. By-the-bye, come and see my Sir John Brute to-night" (and he gave him an order for the pit); "then come and breakfast with me in the morning, and we'll have a trial of skill. Mrs. Garrick shall be judge between us. Good-day, Mr.—York—good-day. I must be off to rehearsal. Remember breakfast—breakfast at ten to-morrow."

Frodsham was punctual to the moment next day, and did justice to Mrs. Garrick's substantial repast; after which David opened fire with—

"Well, well, Mr. Frodsham, what do you think of my Brute? Eh, eh? Now, no compliments—tell Mrs. Garrick; was it all right? Would it go down at York?"

"Well, sir," replied the young coxcomb, serenely, "I can't undertake to say. Our audiences are confoundedly exacting. For my own part, I was delighted. Sir, I didn't expect it from your Hamlet. You see, I am accustomed to play Hamlet myself, sir; but tragedy is my forte, while comedy—my good sir—comedy is yours. Your Brute, sir—d——n it, Mr. Garrick—your Brute was the most brutal thing I ever saw in my life! I don't mean from an artistic point of view. No, no! there, sir, it was perfect. But you stood on the stage in your drunken scene, flourishing your sword; you placed yourself in an attitude (I'm sure you saw me in the pit), and with your eyes fixed on me you seemed to say, 'D——n it, Frodsham! did you ever see anything like that in York? Eh, sir? Eh?'"

Garrick, who was accustomed to swallow flattery by the hogshead, did not accept the rival Hamlet's doubtful compliments with perfect equanimity. He hemmed and hawed, pretended to laugh the matter off, and then said:

"Well, well, now for a taste of your quality; now a speech from Hamlet, Mr. Frodsham, and you, Mrs. Garrick—ahem! 'bear a wary eye,' my dear."

Nothing loth, with the utmost sang froid, Frodsham recited Hamlet's first soliloquy.

When he had finished, Garrick said:

"Well, well, hey now! There is stuff about you, but you see you want some of my forming; and really, in some passages, you have acquired tones that I do not by any means approve."

"Tones, sir," replied the country actor. "Tones! I flatter myself, Mr. Garrick, I have tones; but you are not familiar with them. Now, sir, you have tones, very odd ones, and Mrs. Cibber has tones, very strange ones, which I do not by any means approve; but I suppose, in time, I might get used to them, as I might to your Hamlet!"

Despite all we hear of Garrick's vanity and jealousy, he must have had many noble qualities.

We are under the impression that if some "young man from the country" were to call on any of our London managers nowadays, and ventilate candid and uncomplimentary opinions about their acting, he would be shown the door with as little delay as possible. Instead of which, as soon as David could recover his breath, he replied:

"Why now—now you're a d——d queer fellow, Frodsham; but, for a fair and full trial of your genius, my stage shall be open to you, and you shall act any part you please. If you succeed, we will then talk of terms."

Surely, here was a frank and generous proposal, and if this bumptious young blockhead had had the grace to have accepted it, the current of his whole life would have been changed. We suppose, however, Garrick's patronising condescension put the other's back up, for, with characteristic modesty, the airy youth responded:

"My dear Mr. Garrick, you are mistaken if you think I came here to cadge for an engagement. I am a Roscius myself in my own quarters, and I judged it a proper compliment to wait upon a brother genius; but I neither want nor wish for an engagement, nor would I relinquish the happiness I enjoy in my dear old York for the first terms your great city of London could afford!" And with an imposing obeisance to Garrick, and another to his beautiful wife, the insolent young puppy made his exit, leaving the rival Roscius absolutely dumbfounded at his impudence.

Of course, this modest young gentleman's visit to town would have been incomplete without an interview with that rough diamond, David's rival, Rich, of Covent Garden, who was as remarkable in his way as Garrick was in his.

Frodsham found the renowned pantomimist (he was said to be the greatest harlequin in the world!) surrounded by his usual troupe of cats. There was one perched on each shoulder, one on each knee, and two or three others purring about his legs. In the intervals of petting his favourites he was teaching a young lady to act. Supercilionsly looking at his visitor from head to foot with a large reading glass, he took snuff; next he blew his nose like a foghorn, then he dismissed his pupil, and began:

"Well, Muster Frogsmire, I suppose you've come from York for an engagement, and you want me to larn you how to act. Did you ever act Richard, Muster Frogsmire?"

"Yes, sir."

"Why, then, you shall see me act," says Rich; and, strutting about like a turkey-cock, and making the most hideous grimaces and contortions, he began to spout—

"Now is the winter of our discontent."

A little of this went a very long way with Frodsham, who cut his would-be tutor short with, "Sir, my name is not Frogsmire; I don't want an engagement; and I don't want to be taught to act; but I do want to wish you and your cats a very good-morning."

So saying, he stalked out of the room, leaving the despot of Covent Garden purple with rage.

THE SPIRIT OF THE PLAY.

The scene was the luxurious private study of a great actor-manager. He was alone. He closed the brown-paper copy of the last act of the play he had been reading and yawned. Forgive him! It was one o'clock in the morning.

He reached for a cigarette from the box at his elbow, and lighting it, puffed a cloud of smoke up towards the ceiling.

"Not bad," he murmured. "Rather a novel idea; and it has atmosphere, but—— wants working up here and there—still, not at all bad!"

He rose from the comfortable armchair and paced the room two or three times. With the exception of the red-shaded lamp on the desk, the room was in semi-darkness.

At last he stopped before the desk, placed the three brown-covered copies of the play together, seated himself, and, taking a sheet of notepaper, prepared to write to the author.

As his pen touched the paper, a small, quaint voice, as from a distance, came to his ear.

"Are you going to send me back, after all," it said.

"I beg your pardon?" he exclaimed, starting round and listening.

"Are you going to return me?" the small voice repeated.

"Well, what else could I do?" he asked.

"You might produce me."

"Absurd!"

"Why absurd?"

"The author is entirely unknown!"

"And likely to remain so!"

"Besides, there's a little weakness about the third act. The part, too, is not quite my line, and the woman scores too much in the second act——" There was a silence.

"Isn't that rather selfish of you?" asked the small voice.

"Who the deuce are you?" queried the great man, rising and glancing furtively round the room. It was beginning to feel rather uncanny, this small voice cross-questioning him.

"Who are you?" he repeated. "Speak!"

"I am the spirit of the play you have just read."

"My nerves are a bit off, I think!" he cried, rubbing his eyes.

"Your nerves are all right. It's your conscience and your judgment that are a bit off."

"Who the devil are you, really?" he cried, irritably.

"The spirit of that excellent comedy there!" the voice answered.

"Impossible!"

"Of course you don't believe. Now listen."

"Oh! Go!"

"I've almost ceased to be a play. I am an uncommercial traveller. For nearly five years have I been wandering around from theatre to theatre. Oh! It's sickening. I am tired and disheartened! What the author is I leave you to imagine, if, indeed, you have any imagination, which I am beginning to doubt."

"Thanks!"

"Oh! You're welcome. I don't pretend to be a perfect play."

"You're not!"

"You're all crying out for new authors and good plays. When you get them, you funk trying them because they are not exactly to your measure. You send them back when an encouraging word, a suggestion, a hint even would transform what was crude into a success. I'm really ashamed of you."

"Go ahead! You're talking through your hat!"

"I'm not, and you know it, too! I'm pleading for my life and the author's too. I am stronger than he is, because he's put the best of himself into me. His very soul, perhaps; while you, you are so stale, so sated, you are not able to judge me fairly."

"Oh! Thanks!"

"I'll tell you of my two last journeys. I was sent, with hope and confidence, to a charming friend of yours, and to an actor-manager of your acquaintance. In due course—weary months, I may mention—I returned from them both. One said I was very well written, the other said my dialogue struck him as being trite and commonplace. They couldn't both be right, could they?"

"Perhaps like the curate's egg?——"

"Damn the egg! Be a man! Ask the author to come round and have a chat. I know you want a play badly. I shan't cost much to mount."

"All very fine! There's the woman's part; it's much too good, the public will say——"

"You're a fool! Haven't you learnt that truism of Billy's, that 'The play's the thing!' Have you ever kept a bad play going? Confess? Will you never learn that the more good parts there are in a play the more chance it has of interesting the audiences."

"I daresay you're right."

"Then 'right now'—as the Americans say—write!"

"Don't talk to me of American plays."

"Write to my author, and you won't need them. Ask him to come here and talk about me."

"Well, as you are so persistent," cried the actor, "I will. But I fear it's useless."

"I prophesy you'll never regret it."

He took up the pen, however, and wrote a short note, asking the author to call.

"There!" he exclaimed, as he placed it in an envelope, "are you satisfied now?"

Silence!

"Well?"

Still no reply. Not even an echo.

"I wonder if I've been dreaming?" he asked himself, taking a cigarette and lighting it thoughtfully.

A soft murmur seemed to come from somewhere in the room like an echo.

"I wonder?"

But he posted the letter.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, BARROW-IN-FURNESS.
Lessee and Manager, Mr. HUGH ROBERTSON.
The Premier Theatre in the Town, with a holding capacity greatly in excess of any other Theatre in the Town.
Now playing to record business. The week of Aug. 29 "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" beat their previous visit by £32. Refer Messrs. Paumier and Howard. Last week, J. W. Turner's Opera Company's fifth visit to the Royalty. The business improved each visit, last week being over £31 above the best. Refer Mr. Turner.
Extract from the North-Western Daily Mail of Saturday, Sept. 10: Tannhäuser at the Royalty
Extract from the North-Western Daily Mail of Saturday, Sept. 10:
Tannhäuser at the Royalty.
Packed from floor to ceiling, and many unable to obtain a seat, the chief theatre of Barrow presented a very gay and festive appearance last night when Wagner's masterpiece was produced by J. W. Turner's company, who have created so much popular interest in high-class music during the week.
Saturday was packed at early doors, and was the largest house Mr. Turner had ever played to in Barrow.
Future Bookings include: "Miss Lancashire, Limited," "The Christian," Mr. George Edwardes' own Company, in "The Merry Widow" (return), Miss Glossop-Harris, "Where is William?", Messrs. Paumier and Howard's Company, in "Her Love Against the World," and Walter Howard's latest play, "The Boy King," "The Arcadians," "Our Miss Gibbs," &c., &c.

CHARLES OTLEY as PERKYN MIDDLEWICK.
Revived at County Theatre, Kingston, Sept. 5, and received with the utmost enthusiasm. Three curtains nightly at the end of the second and third acts. Refer Peter Davey, Esq.
WANTED, immediate dates, Wanted, immediate dates.

At the Royal County, Kingston, last week, Mr. Charles Otley and Company scored &main in "Our Boys." Mr. Otley's Perkyn Middlewick was especially droll.—Referee, Sept. 11, 1910.

Mr. Charles Otley is the life and soul of the play, causing endless fun and amusement.—Surrey Advertiser, Sept. 7.

Everybody is delighted with "Our Boys," which is being presented under the direction of Mr. Charles Otley, who himself gives a splendid portrayal of the character of the generous-hearted parvenu, Perkyn Middlewick. He does full justice to a part which calls for good acting, as well as skilful manipulation of the English language, as interpreted by a person whose education left something to be desired. As the devoted father he extracted the pathos as well as the humour from the rôle, and while he was on the stage there was continual laughter pervading the house.—Surrey Comet, Sept. 10, 1910.

PLEASE NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

Special provision has been made at each theatre for the exhibition of loose photographs. Artistes are requested to supply these to the Manager on reaching the theatre, and they will be returned in good condition at the end of the week.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS.
How the Affairs of a Theatre can be most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.
By CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY,
Chartered Accountant.
Price, 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (3s 6d., The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.). The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" (The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business-managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts." By Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.). Shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN. — POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE. — Lessee, Mr. John R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Robert Tebbitt.—Gosling and Merrall's original Troupe of Australian Bush Boys, in their song-scena Brighteye's Birthday, are a big attraction here; Ingram and Irving, in their farcical absurdity The New Office Boy, cause roars of laughter; Lieut. Chard introduces some well-trained dogs; and the pictures shown are exceptionally good.

ABERDARE.—NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Manager, Mr. Arthur Norton.—Seeley, West, and Rhodesia top the bill here; Flo Delemere is a chic comedienne and dancer; and Will Harris, comedian, has a good reception. Millie Cain, low comedienne, is also popular. The Bioscope pictures are interesting.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's talented company is presenting this week to Aberdeen play-goers Mr. F. Anstey's clever comedy The Brass Bottle. The play carries the beholder back to primitive days, when Arabian Nights were real and genii were creatures of flesh and blood. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., makes an effective Horace Ventimore; Mr. Percy Marshall as Professor Anthony Futvoye is piquantly original; Mr. Holman Clark as the Genii of the Bottle is a pronounced success; Mr. Rudge Harding makes a decided hit as Spencer Pringle; whilst Lieut. Chard introduces some well-trained dogs; and the pictures shown are exceptionally good.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's talented company is presenting this week to Aberdeen play-goers Mr. F. Anstey's clever comedy The Brass Bottle. The play carries the beholder back to primitive days, when Arabian Nights were real and genii were creatures of flesh and blood. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., makes an effective Horace Ventimore; Mr. Percy Marshall as Professor Anthony Futvoye is piquantly original; Mr. Holman Clark as the Genii of the Bottle is a pronounced success; Mr. Rudge Harding is a pronounced success; Mr. Robert Macdonald's capital company in The Dairymaids is here. Miss Ethel Callanan acts and sings in a winsome manner as Peggy; Miss Marjorie Manners makes a charming Winifred; and Miss Marie Rignold is imposing and dignified as Lady Brudenell. Miss Edie Martin is responsible for excellent light comedy as Eliza; Miss Rose Edouin is all that could be desired as Miss Penelope; Mr. Edwin Dodds throws a vast amount of humour into his performance as Joe Mivens; Mr. Harry Scaddan gives a clever reading of Dr. O'Bryne; Mr. Willie Spray is a capital exponent of the part of Lieut. Sam Brudenell; Mr. Harry Clark makes the most of his opportunities as Lieut. Frank Meredith; and the rest of the characters are in good hands.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—N. T. Kioto and C. H. Esa are presenting a unique equilibristic performance here; Francis and Alfred provide a smart juggling act; Joe Belmont, in a whistling act, is entertaining; Tom Gott, dialect comedian, is deservedly applauded; James Basnett proves himself a popular comedian; Miss May Newall has a couple of good songs that take well; Alice Edwards is an acceptable male impersonator; and Will E. Stoppit is a capital acrobatic comedian. The Hippodrome pictures complete.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Idol of Paris, played by Mr. James Bell's company, is here this week. The leading rôle is undertaken by Miss Annie Bell with pleasing results and Misses Frances Bruce (Mme. Sancterre) and Lottie Ray (Ann) are very successful. Mr. Arthur McCullock as the Prince is capital; Mr. Bernard Copping (Phillipe) gives a meritorious enactment; Mr. H. Vivian Thomas is excellent as Taiave; and Messrs. H. C. Ward (Gustave) and Chris A. Olgar (Victor) are both well placed.

ASHINGTON.—MINERS' THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Campbell Browne.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company is here this week with The Prince and the Beggar-Maid. As the treacherous Prince Hildred Mr. Leonard Booker plays his part most capably; Mr. Victor Rae as the afflicted Prince Michael gains much sympathy by his masterly performance; as Prince Olaf Mr. Henry Hallatt is a great favourite; as Captain Hector Mr. Herbert Burton is admirable, as is also Mr. W. S. Hardy as Colonel Wellenberg. As Nathan, the dumb servant, Mr. Oswald Waller is excellent; and the Bishop of Illyria is well played by Mr. Charles Coleman. Miss Viola Holland is a sweet and dignified Princess Monica, and the Camiola Miss Violette May is commendable. The comedy is excellently played by Miss Mona Hall as Viola and Mr. Stafford Dickens as Karl Stromberg.

BUFFALO PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and E. Lamb.—The star turn here is La Belle Duchesse, with her clever boxing horses and dogs, all wonderfully trained animals; Mumford and Marsh are good eccentric comedians; and an excellent ventriloquial entertainment is given by Astor and Billy. The films are of the usual high standard.

PAVILION PALACE, LTD.—Business-Manager, Mr. A. Stoker; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Curry.—The chief engagement here during the week is George and Lillian, in an enjoyable refined musical and dancing entertainment; Flake White is clever with his lightning cartoons and paintings; and Cardwell and Verne are also excellent in their singing and dancing scena Early Closing Day. The pictures are splendid.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The return visit of Mr. W. Maclaren and Miss Lily C. Bandmann, with Claudian, was warmly welcomed. Mr. Maclaren's fine physique and forceful acting make him an ideal Claudian; Miss Loly C. Bandmann is a graceful and tender Almida; Mr. W. Lawrence delivers the curse as the Holy Clement with impressive solemnity; Mr. Frank Owen Chambers is a capable exponent of the cruel, lustful Tetrarch of Charydos; Mr. C. T. Chaloner handles with discretion the humorous character of Belos, and his efforts are ably seconded by Miss Maud Garth as Edessa. Mr. Basil Mitchell makes an excellent Theorus, and a good Zosimus is found in Mr. Martin J. Moar. Mr. Douglas Earle as the blacksmith, Agazil, is also effective in impersonation of character; Miss Amy Hardcastle acts with grace and feeling as Serena; and the minor rôles are effectively sustained.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Heading the programme here is the inimitable comedian, Morny Cash; Forbes Gilbert is an effective exponent of scenes from well-known dramas; Will Sullivan is as diverting as ever; and the clever gyrations of the trick cyclists, the Ellesmere Troupe, are watched with admiration. Dolly Ross is a taking serio-comedienne and charming dancer; L. W. Harris shines as a light comedian; the Three Comedy Chanters give harmonious interludes; and Robins and Collier, clever comedy artists, appear in an "Eggstravaganza Scrambled," entitled Miss Bacon's Easter Egg. The Bioscope remains a feature of the bill.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Barnsley Empire Palace Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wm Smithson.—A good bill here is headed by the Sunderlands in sensational tricks on cycles. Wylie (tramp musician) creates endless amusement; Lucerna's animals are a clever troupe; and Grace Lester and company in Her Ruined Life are applauded repeatedly. Walter Buxton renders two charming songs.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Miss Maggie Morton's company in Havana appeared here for two nights. Mr. William Pringle as Nix caused uproarious laughter by his drolleries; and able support was accorded him by Mr. Arthur Lenville as the ship's boy. Messrs. Chas. Boulting and Cecil Parke made a couple of irresponsible officers; Don Adolpho was admirably undertaken by Mr. John A. Latham; Miss Josephine Sullivan gave a spirited conception of the heiress Consuelo; four dainty newspaper maidens were represented by the Misses Dorothy Melbourne, Billie Brame, Cecilia Bamford, and Marian Ashley; and other principal parts were satisfactorily undertaken by Messrs. John Talford, Sylvester Stuart, and the Misses Beatrice Annersley, Alice Lenville, and Florence Pomeray.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Frank Cellier and comedy company in répertoire are here. Opening with The Taming of the Shrew, Miss Glossop made a spirited and pleasing Katharine, and Mr. Frank Cellier a splendid Petruchio, virile and forceful. Mr. Murray Kinnell did well as Lucentio, and Mr. Arthur Seaton was a capable Baptista. Mr. Herbert Standland was a good Hortensio, and the humours of Grumio were well brought out by Mr. Attred Bristowe. Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, The School for Scandal, Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, and The Merry Wives of Windsor are also billed.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Horniman's company opened with Candida here this week. Mr. Ian Maclaren makes a splendid Rev. James Morell, and Mr. Leonard Mudie a clever Eugene Marchbanks. Miss Louise Holbrook is a good Proserpine Garnett, and Mr. Edward Landor presents a well-drawn Mr. Burgess. The Rev. Alexander Mill is happily hit off by Mr. Ernest C. Cassell, and Miss Rosalind Ivan is a charming Candida. A curtain-raiser, The Troth, precedes. Cupid and Commonsense is also billed.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—A capital programme is presented here this week. The entertaining Tally-ho Trio receive hearty applause; Arthur T. Ward gives an expert hoop-juggling act, and is a clever eccentric dancer; the Redcar Trio submit a creditable acrobatic and tumbling performance; Cassie Walmer has a taking style, and had a hearty reception; the Rizarella Trio of lady gymnasts are clever on the trapeze, and give a smart and pleasing performance; Cliffe and Keen are good in song and dance; Harris Coonie is a particularly smart dancer; and some very interesting pictures are depicted by Vernon's Bioscope.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Fred Newman's picture and variety entertainment continues to draw capital houses.

BARRY DOCK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Hamilton Warden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Dure.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond presents For Wife and Kingdom here this week. Miss Hettie Zillwood cleverly portrays Marie of Gotsburg; very effective is Mr. Fred Osmond as Karl; Mr. Reginald J. Fox is a successful Captain Lubeck; Mr. Albert Guyon is responsible for the villainous part of Baron Breslau; and General Von Nestolde is well played by Mr. Frank Sutherland.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. W. W. Minto.—Included in a strong bill here are the Three Phydoras, instrumentalists, who win hearty applause. Marco is a clever conjurer, and the pictures are interesting.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is here in The Arcadians. Mr. Gus Oxley still gives his diverting conception of Smith, and Miss Marian Edwardes delights with her cultured vocalism as Sombra. Miss Mysie Devine captivates with her Irish brogue and dainty ways as Eileen Cavanagh; and Miss Madge Haines again scores a big success as Mrs. Smith. Newcomers are Mr. George Hester, who is the drollest Peter Doodey imaginable, Mr. Mervyn Dene, excellent as Sir George Paddock, a beau-ideal Jack Meadows in Mr. H. Nelson Hancock, and Miss Beryl Craigie is a win some Chrysea. Others who valuably assist are Mr. Freddie Bentley (Bobby), Mr. Berkeley Davies (Time), Mr. Douglas Marrs (Astrophel), and Mr. W. Dawson (Strephon).

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Dare Devil Dipping, by E. D. Nicholls and company, is a popular item in this week's bill; Billy Merson, comedian, is in great favour; Ida Kessanly's troupe of fox-terriers arouse excitement, the canine football match proving a splendid finish to a clever turn; Nellie Farrell is always sure of a warm welcome in her Irish songs and expert dances; Edith Chantler is a young vocalist of merit, who has the distinct advantage of clear enunciation; Ernestine Desborough is a come dienne who gives a couple of taking songs with favour; and a fine film is Briton and Boer, which is one of the best pictures unfolded for many a week.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company opened here on Monday with The Naked Truth. In the rôle of Bernard Darrell (Bunny) Mr. Stanley Logan achieved a noteworthy success; Miss Violet Ley as Mrs. Hayter gained many of the honours of the representation; and Mr. Townsend Whitling was all that could be desired as the uncle, James Darrell. Miss Kathleen Maude, with a charming stage presence, was a delightful Norah Creighton; and Mr. Horace Sinclair in the rôle of Teddy Lestrange is worthy of a special meed of praise. Miss Ormonde Wynne acted naturally and convincingly as Mrs. Darrell; and Mr. Besley Beltrán was capable as Mr. Hayter.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here this week is the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, presented by Miss Marion Wakeford's company. In the rôle of Joan Miss Wakeford achieved success; as Stephen Armitage Mr. Norton Shields rendered adequate support; and Mr. Tom E. Lewis (who introduces his bone speciality) appeared as David Armitage. Mr. Sydney Dench's impersonation of the Duke of Ancaster reflected credit on him; and Miss Lena Coleman appeared to advantage as Sybil Fay. Miss M. Burgess Barratt as the aristocrat, Lady Summerton, was admirable.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The top of the bill is occupied by that talented actor Mr. Seymour Hicks, who, with his capable company, are appearing in Scrooge; Mr. Hicks's impersonation of the title-rôle being remarkably clever; the Columbia Comedy Trio of comedians make a big hit; Mr. J. W. Gallagher is a smart comedian with good songs; Miss Belle Braham, pictorial songstress, is paying a return visit, and her reception nightly is certainly flattering; and the Jackley Trio appear in their comedy act, which is quite a feature of the programme. Also appearing are Mr. Harold Heath, coon singer and fine dancer; Petro and Leon, classical gymnasts; Sisters Herbert, duettists and dancers; and the Hipposcope, with film Launch of the Olympic.

EMPIRE THEATRES OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The leading attraction here is furnished by Herbert Sleath's company, who produce The Deputy Sheriff, the leading rôles being cleverly sustained by Miss Ewing Kemp, Ray Raymond, Leonard Craske, &c. As a female impersonator Mr. Albert Letine has few equals; Phil Ree's Stable Lads stage with success their novel racing act, Not a Crook; Mr. Bert Weston, comedian, pleases all with his latest hit, "The matman"; Miss Madge O'Neill is a charming comedienne and dancer; and Miss Rose Gower, comedienne, Mr. Joe Wesley, comedian, and the Bioscope complete the programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Among many interesting pictures exhibited here may be mentioned The Launch of the Olympic at Queen's Island, Belfast, on 20th inst., Military Tournament, Between Love and Honour, The Despatch Bearer, &c. The variety element is sustained by Mr. Marcus Boyle, comedian, and Hess and Chivers, in their skating speciality.

BILSTON.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—Mr. Oswald Cray and his company are presenting When It Was Dark twice nightly, with gratifying results. Mr. C. Wordley Hulse acts extremely well throughout as Constantine Schwabe; Miss Lillian Herries distinguishes herself as Gertrude Hunt; Mr. Oswald Cray adapts himself well to the character of the Rev. Basil Gortre; Miss Rosalie Notsello makes a sweet and charming Helena Byrne; and others who render efficient service are Vivian Charles, Vincent W. Carlyle, Frank V. Venn, and Miss Madeline Grande.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—The Hypocrites, presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's company, is attracting large audiences. An effective performance of the Rev. Edgar Linnet by Mr. Philip Darien is highly popular. Miss V. St. Lawrence plays the exacting rôle of Mrs. Willmore with signal success. Mr. W. J. Stirling displays a thorough grasp of the important part of Mr. Willmore, and his son Leonard is capitally played by Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald. Miss Violet Macree is well suited as Rachel Neve; Miss Verita Vivien is a charming Helen Plagenet; and Miss Viola Marsh gives an able impersonation of Mrs. Baney. Mr. Frank Melrose displays exceptional ability as the lawyer, Mr. Viveash; and the remaining characters are ably undertaken by Mr. Morrice Seaton, Mr. Basil Dyne, Mr. A. Quilter, Mr. Elwyn C. Walter, Miss Lilla Nordon, and Miss Margaret Story-Gofton.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Miss Ella Shields, the popular comedienne, is repeating previous successes; Sam Stern, a clever American Hebrew comedian, is also a leading attraction; and the Motramos are clever and amusing vaudeville artists. Other prominent turns are given by Miss Rosie Lloyd, a chic comedienne; Mr. Hal Forde, a smart light comedian; the Three Langfords, novel and expert dancers; Beattie and Blanche, accomplished duettists; Mr. Charles Hatch, a good character comedian; Mr. Walter Stanley, a versatile comedian; Lux's trained dogs; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. The orchestral arrangements are under the direction of Mr. E. Denney.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Two performances nightly of the drama Her Nameless Child, by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, command considerable support. Mr. J. H. Evelyn gives an incisive and telling performance of the blacksmith, Anthony Ford; Miss Jean Wigney plays Phyllis Ford with effect; and the villain of the piece, Lord Woodville, is well embodied by Mr. Leonard Aardale.

BIRMINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Lewis Waller produced Sir Walter Raleigh about a year ago at this theatre, and it comes back with a different company, with the exception of Miss Winifred Emery, who, as Queen Elizabeth, is really excellent. She makes the very best use of the magnificent opportunities which the author has given her, and large audiences pay her warm tribute. Mr. Lyn Harding is successful in the title-rôle, his acting being extremely forceful. In the minor parts Miss Nell Carter is an amiable Bess Throgmorton, Mr. Powis Pinder is amusing as Jim Longhowe, Mr. W. E. Holloway is convincing as Savage, and Mr. Percy Rhodes is good as Don Bernardino de Mendoza.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Samson and Delilah was introduced to the Birmingham public for the first time on Monday night by the Moody-Manners Opera Co. It was a successful performance, which a large audience thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Albert Bowyer was prominent as Samson, and a more seductive Delilah than Miss Bessie Weir would be hard to imagine. Others in the cast to deserve special mention were Mr. William Farmer, Mr. Graham Marr, Mr. Harry Brindle, and Mr. R. Worland. The new opera was repeated at the Thursday matinée. Other operas presented during the week were Tannhäuser on Tuesday, Faust on Wednesday, Carmen on Thursday, Il Trovatore on Friday, and Bohemian Girl on Saturday.

ALEXANDRA.—Manager, Mr. F. Barnardo; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lyndon's company is presenting Why Did She Run Away? which is closely followed by large audiences. As Sybil, the much persecuted village maiden, Miss Iza Lyndon portrays a trying character with distinct success, and Miss Edie Macklin is conspicuous in the rôle of Sally Tompkins. Mr. John B. Shinton plays the part of the Curate with the necessary force and decision; Mr. Harry Lyndon gives a clever study as Weary Willie Lightning; Miss Ada M. Ryder acts well as Vera; and Mr. Stephen Langton is to the fore as Cecil Whiteley.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Married to the Wrong Man is here this week. Miss Mary Pemberton, as Ruth, the dumb girl, has a sympathetic rôle, and is an actress of no mean ability; Mr. Henry Lonsdale is successful as Captain Deering, and others who deserve special mention are Mr. George Arthur, Mr. Walter Pemberton, Miss Clara Milvain, and Mr. Leonard Thackeray.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Midnight Wedding is scoring a further success here. Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is producing the piece, which is in the full tide of popularity. The acting is clever and always convincing, and the chief incidents are depicted with startling realism. Miss Lillian Hallows makes a charming heroine as the Princess Astrea, and Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes does full justice to the character of Paul Valmar. Mr. Malcolm Tearle and Miss Madge Raper are prominent in the heavy characters, and the lighter side of the piece is well sustained by Miss Phyllis Hume, Mr. Harry Paine, Mr. W. Franklin, and Mr. Algie Spalding.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—His Indian Wife is the title of a thrilling drama here, for which Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is responsible. The outstanding feature is the excellent performance of Miss Lelia Zillwood in the character of the Indian maiden, Wild Rose. Miss Zana St. George is a graceful Lady Kingsley, and Mr. Arthur Hinton earns appreciation for a natural representation of the English gentleman, Hubert Ainsworth. Mr. Travis Green is clever as Wolfsfang, and Miss Laura Wright (Black Duck) and Mr. Tod Squires (Billy Twiggie) are responsible for much humour.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Winifred Maude and company are here this week. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday, The Sins of a City was presented. Miss Maude was warmly applauded for her representation of Seaweed, and she was ably supported by Mr. William Vane, Mr. Harold Heath, Mr. Maurice Jones, Mr. Arthur Read, Mr. Victor du Cane, Mr. George Bogue, Miss Gipsy Alexander, Miss Annie Megson, etc. The Stowaway was presented on Thursday and Friday, in which the chief characters were ably portrayed by Miss Winifred Maude and Mr. Victor du Cane.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—The wonderful performances of Miss Annie Abbott, "The Georgia Magnet," provide patrons with food for much speculation, and the turn creates much amusement. Alexandre and Hughes are an entertaining pair of comedians; Rich and Rich add to their popularity in Birmingham by a clever turn; the Eisteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette sing in a way that captivates audiences; the Manchester Mites present a smart vocal and dancing scena; Nora Emerald is a bright and popular comedienne; Barry Lupino is a smart dancer; Clown Argo has a remarkable talent for mimicry; and Nelson Jackson entertains ably at the piano.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Malcolm Scott is an amusing entertainer, and he is warmly greeted; an artistic performance is given by Little Elsie Craven, the delightful dancer, who is assisted by Master Bert Clerc; G. W. Hunter keeps the audience in merry mood with his amusing monologue; Harold Montague introduces The Vagabond Players in a refined burlesque of an Italian opera; Ben Lewin's character impersonations are excellent; a pleasing entertainment is provided by Elsie Roby, "the slavey at the piano"; the Hoyns display considerable acrobatic skill; Miss Alice Hollander sings beautifully, and Dan Fraser is a lively Scotch comedian.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Florrie Forde is a big favourite here; a delightful entertainment is provided by Ivan Tschernoff's ponies, dogs, and pigeons; Will Netta's singing jockeys appear in a racing act of exceptional merit; Lilian Barnes pleases with well-chosen songs; comedy of a bright order is supplied by E. J. Sheldon, Will Penn, and Rentow; Harry Tomlin is a smart light comedian; Austin Temple is an entertaining magician; and the Three Warners introduce some new dances.

HIPPODROME. — Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Fred Karno's company, including Mr. Shaun Grenville, present here this week the farcical sketch, The R.M.S. Wondatainia, and another of Mr. Karno's companies are successful in the farce, The New Slavey. Dramatic fare is provided by Miss Beaumont Collins and a strong company in The House of Terror; Effie White's kaleidoscope dance is very pretty; Two Lancashire Girls are warmly applauded for sweet duets; Vera Wootton and Cissie Retford are charming comediennes; Doris and Frances are comediennes and dancers, and Tod Lowen is a clever comedian.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Pride of place in the programme is worthily allotted to Elise Lambert, a mezzo-soprano of remarkable voice quality. The sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, presented by Mr. Arnold Richardson, assisted by Mr. A. Gordon Laws and Miss Ethel Lonsdale, is received with enthusiasm. Mlle. Leonie de Lausanne performs wonderful feats with a rifle and target; the D'Vorak Family are applauded in a clever gymnastic act; Violet Ray is a gifted 'cello soloist and singer; and Nolly (character comedian), Dan Conroy, Norman Osborne (ventriloquist), and Probin and Bates, in a comedy scena, are also popular.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Walter Jeffs.—A popular feature of a varied list is the new travel series, showing Beauty Spots of South Devon, the pictures being remarkably clear. Miss Marie D'Alcourt and Miss Elsa Arnell are well received in vocal contributions, and score in a clever comedy sketch.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—Many new films are provided here, and full houses are to be found at each performance. The variety turns contributed by Little Lemaine and her mannikins are popular.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—Up-to-date pictures account for the heavy patronage which is extended to this hall, the programme being rendered additionally attractive by clever vaudeville turns. The go as-you-please competitions are eagerly taken part in by the local amateur entertainers.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company is here in Proof. Mr. Francis Roberts gives an effective portrayal of Pierre Lorance; Mr. Geo. Kingsley is well suited to the part of Lazare; and a characteristic portrayal of the Duke D'Aubeterre is presented by Mr. Alfred Wiltshire. Mr. Thos. E. Marshall is a good Chambaran. Miss Hero Hathaway a pathetic Adrienne, Miss Elsie Goulding a charming Valentine, Miss Millicent James a dignified Duchess D'Aubeterre, and Miss Phena Powell is all that can be wished for as Mme. Deprets.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome, Bishop Auckland, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Rabottini and his band are here; the Seventrunas are very good acrobats; Tom Moore is a pleasing vocalist; Fame and Fortune are effective comedians; Guest and Newlyn are an entertaining duo; Stanley and Vandyke produce a pleasing comedy act; Margit and Lever, in Wet Paint, are highly amusing; and the Hipposcope films are good.

BLACKBURN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Resident Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Messrs. T. C. Wray and Austen Stungeon's company is here this week in The Girls of Gottenberg. Mr. Smith, who plays Max, and Miss Grace Desmond, who appears in the part of Clementine, supply humorous impersonations. Mr. R. N. Cory is good as Otto, and the same may be said of Mr. Eddie Foy as Britti Botti. Miss Dora Langham is a graceful Mitzi, and Miss Beryl Vandrey is a satisfactory Elsa. As Adolf, the Town Clerk, Mr. Tom Squire is responsible for a striking portrayal.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—At the head of the bill here we have the Fugi Troupe of Japanese equilibrists and jugglers, who give a smart performance. A novel turn is supplied by Mr. Edward Crossland's Melody Makers; Albert St. Clair is a favourite; the Oakes Duo give a humorous turn, Making a Man of Her; J. H. Wakefield, the "new coon," sings and dances acceptably; Gwennie Morgan quickly gains the favour of the audience; Guy Kyder gives a smart turn; Maurius's Fountains are a beautiful sight, and prove a big attraction; and The Revolution in Portugal is shown on the cinematograph.

NEW PRINCES' THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Manageress, Mrs. C. Clarkson.—The Hand that Rocks the Cradle is here this week. Mr. Guy Hastings as Derek Mason plays well; Miss Gertrude F. Godhart is good as Audrey Melrose; Mr. Gerald Jordan plays strongly as Philip Marchant; and the humorous element is chiefly in the hands of Mr. Finn Doyle, who appears as Jerry Dale.

BLACKPOOL.—HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Arthur Leigh and company are paying another visit here with Lucky Durham, and meeting with their usual cordial reception. Mr. Leigh is very successful as the Hon. Reginald Sleighton, and Mr. William Calvert faithfully portrays Lord Mountfallon; John Durham is forcefully represented by Mr. Edmund Kennedy; Miss Nellie Bonser portrays Mrs. Durham with charming effect, and Miss Florence Tressilian gracefully assumes the rôle of Helen Wallerton.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—The Queen of the Fair, played by Mr. Basil Horsfall's company, is doing well here. Mr. Albert Chapman is a fine baritone vocalist, and appears to great advantage as Karl, Captain of the Hussars; Mr. George Carroll provides much amusement as the Burgomaster, and Mr. Arthur Reynolds as 'Enery is also well to the fore as a fun-provider. Signora Mercedes Dalmada, who plays the title-rôle, is a charming vocalist, and several pleasing dances are executed by Mlle. Rosa Mais.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Orrikshank, the musical clown, is the chief attraction here. Shirley and Ransome provide a good sketch, Charles Erard is a capable pianist and mimic, Michael Madden is a good comedian, the Eight Lancashire Lads dance well, Maud Esmond provides chorus songs, Crystal and Saville are capable sketch artists, and George Casselli is a clever comedian and dancer.

HIPPODROME.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Donald O. Clark.—Besides the latest living pictures, which are always a strong attraction here, the management have secured the services of Louie Freear and Rale Walters.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. J. A. Campbell has presented with success the drama, entitled The Old Folks at Home. The company engaged, which includes Mr. Frank Liston and Miss Maud Warburton, has met with a hearty reception.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Messrs. Glenister and Ingram's company is here this week in The Fires of Fate. Mr. Lewis Fielder plays with much force and skill as Colonel Cyril Egerton, D.S.O.; Mr. Gilbert Yorke is a pronounced Rev. Samuel Roden; Mr. George F. Hyde is earnest in his rendering of the part of James Roden, M.D.; Mr. A. C. Holmes is an interesting Captain Jack Archer; Mr. Henry Gray Dolby is animated and enthusiastic as Mons. Octave Fardet; Mr. Sydney Carlyle's efforts are realistic in the part of Abdulla; Mr. Sam Wilkinson and Mr. G. D. Greig are alike good as Mr. Cecil Brown and Mr. Brodie; Miss Aimee de Burgh plays with much sympathy the part of Miss Sadie Adams; Miss Marie Derbyshire is excellent as Miss Adams; and Miss Dorothy Maude is a capital Mrs. Belmont. The play is preceded by a dramatic episode, entitled After Seven Years.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Good houses assemble nightly to enjoy the programme supplied by the Seven Perezoffs, who appear in their clever juggling pantomime An Animated Supper at Maxim's; Tim O'Connor, comedian and expert dancer; Chaes Lewis, novelty ventriloquist; Ralph and Nellie Howard in a comedy musical act, Military Mad; Luis Hardt, the Sandow Boy; Frey Colley and Minnie Scott in comedy, Tit-Bits; Harry Karr and Walter Kooney, curious comedians; Miss Fatmah Diard, American prima donna; Leo. Fields, comedian; and the De Wynne Bros., athletes, and their canine comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bolton), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—A strong bill here contains Bransby Williams, character actor, who is delightful large audiences with his sketches from Dickens and Shakespeare; Maud Courtney, in song and story; Mr. C., who sings and talks; Palles and Cusnick, comedians and burlesque boxers; Fred Lyndo, comedian; The Paulham Team in a novel and exciting aerial football match on bicycles; Viviana and company in their dancing scena, The Toy Shop; the Seven Brammeas, juvenile musicians, in "Music Afloat"; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is on a visit here in The Dairymaids. Mr. Norman Bowyer as Joe Mivens keeps the audience in a continual roar of laughter, and is well supported in this respect by Miss Ruby Louis as Eliza. Miss Eva Ellis plays Peggy in a captivating manner; Mr. Donald Price-Evans and Mr. Algernon W. Lee as Lieuts. Sam Brudenell and Frank Meredith are responsible for much amusement; Miss Kathleen Sinico plays and sings well as Winifred; Miss Margaret Carter is well suited as Lady Brudenell; and Mr. Bernard Vaughan makes an excellent Dr. O'Byrne.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee,

Strathpeffer; Miss Eily Malyon as the Governess is all that can be desired; and Miss Marjorie Day is a charming Gwendoline. The comedy is preceded by A Question of Diplomacy, in which Mrs. Russ Whytal and Mr. F. P. Stevens are conspicuous.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—We are having another visit from The Private Secretary. The company is Mr. Eugene Stafford's, and the comedy is presented in a manner which does not fail to elicit hearty laughter, the most being made of the funny situations by Mr. James Hussey as the Rev. Robert Spalding, Mr. W. Hargreaves as the irascible Mr. Cattermole, and Mr. Kendal Chalmers as Gibson. The support by Miss M. Mallalieu as Edith Marsland and Miss Estelle Despa as Miss Ashford is noticeable amongst other impersonations in the excellent cast. A curtain-raiser, The Captain's Wife, is well played.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—The Wilson Barrett version of East Lynne is staged here by Mr. Tom Watt's capable company with excellent results. Miss Ida Heron, in the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine, succeeds in arousing the deep sympathy of her audience by her emotional acting; Mr. F. Beresford's Archibald Carlyle is an impersonation of restrained power and excellence; and noticeable support is rendered by Miss Anita Palozza as Barbara Hare, Miss Isabel Singleton as Cornelia Carlyle, Mr. Joe Rowland as Bullock, and Miss H. V. Homewood as Willie Carlyle. The play is well staged.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—"My Fancy," in her charming and novel scena, Winter, Spring, and Summer, is dancing herself into the affections of the audience; Ernie Mayne's quaint and irresistible humour provokes hearty laughter; The Human Bridge is an exceedingly clever and novel acrobatic act presented by Ricardo and Salving; Mina Denvil is a pleasing vocalist; and as deputy for Millie Hylton Doris Trevelyan quite wins her audience with her sweet vocalism. Maggie Bowman and Tom Morton's comedy turn, Mixed Pickles, is very amusing; as "the tramp at the piano" James Stewart is diverting; Lew Lake is the central comedy figure in King Nobbler, and he has capital support from his company; and some fine films are shown by the Bioscope.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Tamamoto, a Japanese performer on the wire and perpendicular rope, gives a daring and graceful exhibition of skill; Dare Austin and C. E. Howard are very diverting in a capital sketch, His Wedding Morning; Lulu Lord is a dainty comedienne; in his entertainment as an instrumentalist and trick cyclist Bert Woodward displays much skill; Harry Taylor, the Lancashire comedian, is particularly quaint; and Ernest Rees, a comedian of another method, is very funny. In immaculate male attire, and in an artistic and convincing manner, Edna Latonne wins hearty applause for her excellent songs; the Whittington Trio give a comic acrobatic performance full of merit and skill; and the Perfection pictures are most entertaining.

BRIDLINGTON.—Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The engagement of Mr. Julian Clifford and his famous Harrogate Kursaal orchestra have given a great treat to the lovers of first-class music here, the overtures to Oberon and Raymond and Liszt's Rhapsodies and the beautiful symphonic poem "Finlandia" being much enjoyed. The Hon. Mrs. Julian Clifford was the vocalist on Saturday and Sunday, and her rendering of "Let the bright Seraphim," with trumpet obbligato by Mr. Mark Hemingway, was rapturously encored. Master Julian Clifford conducted two special items, and the remarkable precision with which he wielded the bâton proved that he had inherited the gift. Mr. Edward Elliott, the leader of the orchestra, played the solo part in Handel's "Largo" in a most artistic manner, and "1812" on Sunday night concluded a fine programme.

BRIGHTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Large audiences attend the performances here this week of Under Two Flags, by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Wernham Ryott merits high praise for his masterly impersonation of Bertie Cecil Royellieu; Miss Agnes Verity gives a charming enactment of Cigarette, which is very warmly appreciated; Miss O'Neill achieves great success with her portrayal of Princess Venotia Corona; Mr. David Hawthorne is duly vigorous as Lord Rockingham; Mr. Charles E. Johnson's Colonel Chateauroy is an able representation; Mr. Harry Benson affords much amusement as Rake, the valet; and others meriting comendation include Mr. Charles Brooke (Lord Royellieu), Mr. Wilfred Jessop (Berklie Royellieu), and Miss Angela Stewart (Countess Olga).

Alhambra.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Barney Armstrong and Kelly, comedians, are very entertaining, and evoke the heartiest laughter and applause; the Brasques achieve distinct success in A Society Butterfly, Miss Cora Duncan being especially effective in the title character; Bartling and Green combine juggling and comedy very happily; the Kowans, "two voices and a piano," are cordially applauded; Renee Day is a clever acrobatic dancer and comedienne; the Fentons are well received in The Doll and the College Girl; Poole and Maguire are a good vocal comedy duo; Preston Holmes, musical speciality artist, gives a capital turn; Jessie Harding is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and the Alhambra Picturegraph presents an excellent series of films. Mrs. Lewis Waller and company are giving daily matinée performances here this week, supported by Mr. Maurice Farkoa. On Saturday last, when Mrs Lewis Waller opened her engagement, she appeared in The Admiral's Lady and A Midnight Visitor, and was assisted by Mr. Leonard Robson, Mr. W. Lenton, Mr. Malcom Cockerell, Miss Olive Twain, Miss Aileen Woods, Miss Doris Woods, Mr. E. Freeling, Miss Emmie King, and Mr. Villiers. Mr. Maurice Farkoa sang half a dozen songs.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Theo C. Le Gar's company, including Señor Angel Blanco, an accomplished violinist, win hearty applause in the representation of Music, the Conqueror; wonderful illusions are submitted by Oswald Williams, assisted by Winifred La Barte and company; Wilson Hallett is a capital mimic and entertainer; Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane are very effective in the Hobble Skirt Dance; the Schmettans are clever equilibrists; Harry Taft is a gifted and clever whistler; Topsy Sinden dances herself into high favour; the Four Vagabonds are artistic and humorous vocalists; Madge Grey is a versatile Lancashire comedienne, who is enthusiastically received; Leonard Teel, "the suffering dame," gives a diverting turn; and George Norton is an attractive burlesque turn.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr Charles Windermere and company are here this week with Where is William? Mr. Charles Windermere is very amusing as Sir William Gregory; Mr. Rule Pyott materially adds to the fun as William Jolly, the butler; Mr. Leslie Norman gives a capital embodiment of the peppery General Rubbub; Mr. Robert Urquhart, as Henry, and Miss Clare Manifield made a capital pair of lovers; Miss Zoe Davis is well placed as Eliza; Miss Bele Donaldson acquits herself admirably as Lady Gregory; Mrs. Alfred Davis is distinctly successful as Emily, the cook; and able support is given by Mr. Fred Archer as the burglar, and Mr. Albert Plant as the policeman.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera company is here for the week. On Monday evening Carmen was performed in excellent style. Miss Doris Woodall acted splendidly and sang superbly as Carmen, and the same must be said of Mr. E. C. Hedmondt as Jose. Miss Rita Wallace sang charmingly and played prettily as Micaela; Mr. Hebden Foster was successful as Escamillo, obtaining an encore for his toreador song; Miss Hilda Morris and Miss Annie Van Dyck were pleasing as Frasquita and Mercedes; Mr. Frederick Cleudon and Mr. William O'Connor scored as Don Cairo and Remendado; and Mr. Alexander Richard, Mr. R. Carter, and Mr. Albert Felton did well as Zuniga, Morales, and Lilias Pastia. Lohengrin, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, The Bohemian Girl, The Queen of Sheba, and Faust are also billed.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is here with The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Miss Lorraine Stevens acts with much power as Molly Vernon; Mr. Charles Sparrow is convincing as Jack England; Mr. W. Kellson is effective as Captain Geoffrey Caversham; Mr. Charles Ashwell makes an interesting part of the Rev. Robert Everton; Miss Dorothy Thayer is pleasing as Rose Seymour; Miss Letitia Rushforth does well as Marian Franklyn; and the comic parts of Isabella Jones and Dick Punch are capitally taken by Miss Lilian Drake and Mr. Allan Carruthers.

Palace. — Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Messrs. Peterman and Rickett's company is here with the amusing Turkish musical comedy The Belle of the Orient; the Flying Winskills present an admirable gymnastic act; Tom Jones, Welsh comedian, is highly successful; Niagara and Falls score with their acrobatic act; Ian Colquhoun is a successful baritone vocalist; the Hesseys please with their musical entertainment; Alec Lawson performs many clever feats as a dancing acrobat; Wisper juggles cleverly with plates and hats; and Beattie Bloom is a pleasing vocal comedienne. Interesting animated pictures conclude.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Victoria Monks is highly successful with her songs, which are mostly new to Bristol; the Countess De Russe presents a charming entertainment, including a series of graceful poses, classic dances, &c., in which she is assisted by Carl Menitz, who conducts a travesty of overtures by the Empire orchestra; Billy French is a clever dancer; Smith and Johnson, coloured vocalists, are successful; Clifford Morgan, baritone vocalist, pleases with Rudyard Kipling's ballads; the Wilton Heriot Trio amuse with their comedy sketch Father's Footsteps; Lily Eyton is a pleasing comedienne; Will Douglas and his jolly bakers present some smart tumbling, &c.; and Harry Thurstan, comedian, is appreciated. Animated pictures conclude.

Colston Hall.—This is the ninth week of Mr. Ralph Pringle's animated pictures in this large hall, and the attendance is still being well kept up. The Five Musical Marvels are specially engaged for this week.

BROUGHTON. — Victoria Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. J. P. Moore and Montague Beaudyn; General-Manager, Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Collingwood.—A Girl Redeemed from Sin is this week presented to good houses. Will May is in the capable hands of Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Miss Irene Munroe is a charming Nancy Lee; and Miss Cora Patey, as Nancy's mother, also does well. Comic business is in the hands of Mr. A. A. Tomlin (Jim Jakes) and Miss Phyllis Rae (Peggy). Mr. Wm. Melvyn (Robert Denham), Mr. Chas. D. Pitt (Ernest Sylveston), Mr. George Overs (Samuel Lee), and Mr. E. Denson (Rundle), also gave good support.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. Mouillot's company is here presenting The Geisha. Miss Aimee Grey, in the rôle of O Mimosa San, is a great success, and a clever performance is that of Miss Renee Reel as Juliette Diamante. Miss Aleda Crispin as Molly gives much satisfaction; Mr. Edward Carlton in his old part of Wun-Hi is irresistibly funny; Mr. Colin Coop as the Marquis Imari is a fine actor; and other pleasing parts are represented by Mr. Edmund Sherras, Mr. Murray Stephen, and Mr. Harry Reynolds.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The programme here this week is of the highest order. The Four Paxtons are particularly smart in hand-balancing and acrobatics, and in a pretty scena; George Payne's Wanderers do some capital work; the De Hais Bros. are fully appreciated for club-throwing; Ernie Myers pays a return visit with his merry jokes; Siems displays his remarkable ability as a conjurer; and Lily Lonsdale has a flattering reception for two songs. Good songs are given by Tom Drew, and the Empire Theatrescope concludes.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Rintaoul.—Mr. John Lawson's company is here this week presenting Humanity, with Mr. Rene Owen as the Jew; the Michael Richardini Troupe gain much applause for smart gymnastics; Zellini has some very laughable comic illusions; W. B. Raby is as popular as ever with "Sleep"; and the wonderful use of legs for arms is demonstrated by Elroy, the armless man. Hearty laughter is caused by the Arthur Gallimore Trio in a burlesque; and Harry Bancroft is well received for chorus songs. Emmie Ames, comedienne, and the Palace pictures complete.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. De Hague Body.—Mr. Harry Roxburgh presents his two comediettas The Prince of Monte Carlo and The Cowboy Millionaire. Mr. Tubby Edlin plays the principal rôle in each, and his racy humour keeps the house in roars of laughter; Miss Cissie McCullam sings well; and Mr. Will Lytton is a droll comedian. Clever exhibitions are given by Paulie and Billie (skating), and by Green and Willa (tumbling). The Operscope pictures are good.

BURY (Lancs.).—Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—A Message from Mars was presented on Monday by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company. Mr. Harry St. Barbe-West gives an admirable performance of the part of Horace Parker, thoroughly emphasising the selfishness of the character without in any way over-acting it. As the messenger, Mr. W. H. Brougham furnishes a sound representation; Mr. Norman Clark is excellent as the Tramp; Miss Josephine Middleton is a charming Minnie Templar; Miss Magdalen Navarre and Miss Aubrey Ashton also do clever work.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Pictures are still the main attraction, and variety turns are contributed by May B. Brilliant, comedienne and dancer, and Percy Dalton, eccentric dancer.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baker. —H. O. Wills, a comedian with a quaint and original style, is as popular as ever; Burns and Bentley are clever in their exhibition of simultaneous dancing; a capital turn is that of Two Brilliants, lady xylophonists; the Brothers Ashley appear successfully in a comedy boxing sketch; a charming scena with living tableaux is presented by Agnes Molteno and company; the Lovelaces, in illustrated song scena, and the Four Athos, a smart combination of ball manipulators and acrobats, complete the bill.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Miss Florence Glossop-Harris; General-Manager, Mr. Max Jerome; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mason.—Mr. Murray King's company is here in Our Flat. Mr. Warburton Gamble gives a first-rate portrayal of Reginald Sylvester, Mr. Ireland Thring making a good second as Clarence Vane. The dry humour of Mr. McCullum is cleverly delineated by Mr. Ardene Linden; the eccentricities of Nathaniel Glover cause endless merriment as set forth by Mr. Murray King; Mr. Walter Brodie (Pinchard) and Mr. Owen Rice (Stout) both play well; Miss Florence Radcliffe is a charming Marjory Sylvester; Miss Rhoda Beresford makes a dainty Lucy; Mme. Volant is well portrayed by Miss Evelyn Shelley, the same remark applying to Miss Gracie Mathieson as Clara Pryout; and Miss Louie Tinsley is simply delightful as Bella.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—A very welcome visit is being paid here by D'Oyly Carte's principal répertoire company, and capital houses have resulted. On Monday night the ever-fresh Mikado was listened to with great appreciation. Mr. Henry A. Lytton is an immense favourite here, and was as good as ever in his rendering of Ko-Ko; Mr. Fred Billington played Pooh Bah as only he can; Mr. Leicester Tunks' fine voice was heard to advantage in the title-rôle; Mr. Henry Herbert made an admirable Nanki-Poo; Mr. Sydney Granville (Pish-Tush) and Mr. Fred Drawater (Go-Go) played their old parts with ability. Miss Marjorie Stour (Yum Yum) rendered the part with conspicuous success; Miss Beatrice Boarer (Pitti-Sing), Miss Myfanwy Newall (Peep-Bo) sang charmingly; Miss Ethel Morrison was good as Katisha. The Gondoliers, Princess Ida, The Pirates of Penzance, and The Yeomen of the Guard are also in the week's bill.

CANTERBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon.—The Arcadians was the attraction last week-end, and packed houses resulted. Mr. Harry Rignold was entrusted with the dual rôle of James Smith and Simplicitas, and his impersonation was very entertaining. Immensely successful was Mr. Percy Cahill as the ill-fated Peter Doody; Jock Meadows and Bobby were safely placed in the hands of Messrs. Max Wakeham and F. Sinclair; and Mr. Horace Nye enacted appropriately Father Time in the Arcadian scene. Miss Maisie Riversdale was a humorous Mrs. Smith; Miss Violet Roberts gave a charming enactment of Eileen Cavanagh; another pleasing impersonation was that of Sombra by Miss Beartice West; Miss Dorothy Clancy made a sweet Chrysea; and the numerous minor parts were all carefully filled.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—On Monday Mr. Edward Compton and company opened here with David Garrick, a large and fashionable audience assembling to accord an enthusiastic reception to the eminent actor. In the title-rôle Mr. Compton was as histrionically brilliant as ever, and won prolonged applause. Mr. Henry Crocker was again seen in his really admirable delineation of Alderman Gresham; Mr. Frank Royde was a particularly fine Tom Tallyhaut; while Mr. Charles Stone (Rumbelow), Mr. J. W. Austin (Sowerberry), and Mr. C. Marquand (Simkins) were all skilful exponents of their respective parts, interest being centred around the latter gentlemen owing to local connections. Miss Rita Sponti as Violet gave an impersonation which captured all hearts by its grace and charms; Miss Agnes Williams as Selina gave a most skilful and humorous portrayal; while Miss Marie Hassell was equally as successful in a talented interpretation of Mrs. Rumbelow. Tom Noddy's Secret preceded. Other pieces included in the repertory are She Stoops to Conquer, The School for Scandal, The Road to Ruin, Used Up, and The Rivals.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Cardiffians have been delighted this week by a return visit of the original ideal coon impersonator, Eugene Stratton, who proves as great a favourite as ever, his new song-scena, "I may be a millionaire," being rendered by this well-known artist in his usual charming style; Captain Fred Woodward's sea lions show marvellous ability and dexterity; a pleasing and interesting sketch, entitled Hester's Mystery, is capitally rendered by Horace Pollock and company, Mr. Pollock as Owen Silverdale being seen to considerable advantage—the other members of the company are capable artists; a refined vocal and instrumental act is that of the Dumond Minstrels, who obtain vociferous applause for a clever entertainment; and the Mezzettis are favourably received in their exceptionally smart horizontal-bar performance; Lawrence Barclay, comedian; the New Macs, patter comedians and dancers; and Aida Martine, pleasing comedienne and expert dancer, complete the bill.

Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. E. Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Windsor Stevenson.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is here in Happy-go-Lucky O'Lyn. Interest is caused by the appearance in the cast of the eminent tenor, Mr. John Child, this gifted vocalist delighting all by his sweet singing in the character of Bryan O'Lyn; Miss Anna Hickisch as Kathleen is a superb singer, her impersonation being altogether one of exceptional charm; Madame Marie Alexander is prominent as Aunt Charlotte; Miss Josephine Ellis is a very pretty exponent of the part of Mollie Murch; and Miss Hetty Graham causes amusement by her portrayal of Jemima; Mr. Walter B. Nugent as Donald Dunn submits a talented exposition; Mr. J. G. McMahon is capitally placed as Isaac Murch; and Mr. Reginald Adair as Frank Fentiman, Mr. S. Lansdale as Dennis O'Lyn, and Mr. F. B. Walters as Shaun Dermot prove worthy of the trust placed in them.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Wonders are worked here by Yangar, the West African magician, whose cleverly contrived tricks cause astonishment; unrestrained laughter follows the antics of Ted Karno's company's in the pantomime sketch, The Hotel de Quick; and the Society Quartette, singers and speciality dancers, provide a turn brimful of talent; T. C. Jaques, character comedian, possesses a fine voice and a clear delivery; and the Zanfrellas, equilibrists, obtain applause for a smart performance. Irene May, soprano vocalist; the Four Maisanos, musical clowns; Dorothy Dacey, dainty singer of chorus songs; and a pathetic Bioscope picture complete a strong programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—An excellent entertainment is given here by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's clever company in Hop o' My Thumb. In the title-rôle Little Georgie Harris makes quite a hit; Mr. Vivian makes an excellent dame; Miss Daisy Wood as the Prince and Miss Kitty Rafferty as the Princess are distinctly lively and entertaining; Miss Evelyn Major and Miss Marie Lumberg are dainty ladies, who render excellent assistance; and the knockabout comedy business is in the capable hands of Messrs. Tom Cowley and Alf. E. Rick, who, as two Cockney Jews, create no end of laughter. The dressing, scenery, and music are special features.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—The De Breams, in a Japanese entertainment, in which they introduce some mysterious illusions and clever juggling, successfully top the bill. Arthur Croxon, on a return visit, is deservedly popular; a fine comedy gymnastic act by the Two Walonells is greatly appreciated; and the Two Zees, who introduce many novel features in a comedy instrumental act. Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers of distinct ability; the Lomas Duo, in a smart speciality, the principal feature of which is some remarkably clever rope work; and Doris Druce, a charming little mimic, complete, with excellent pictures, a much-approved entertainment.

CARMARTHEN.—Assembly Rooms. — Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—This week Mr. Tom Owens, the well-known Welsh comedian, and company is paying a visit. Mr. Owen's quips and cranks create roars of laughter; in the musical comedy Indiana, by Mr. Edward Mervyn, Mr. Owen as Taffy Thomas is most amusing; Mr. Owen Ford as Jack Meredyth is good; Mr. George Kelly is an imposing Rajah; Mr. Ivor Hughes a capable attendant; Miss Hilda Deacon a very good Gwendoline; Miss Nellie Turner a most successful Mrs. Taffy Thomas; Miss Dorothy Barron an effective Indian charmer; and Miss Edith Mason an excellent Dorothy Goodheart. The songs and choruses are well rendered.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company, in A Life's Revenge, is appearing here this week. Miss Millie Ford as the Princess proves herself an actress of ability, her acting in the Duel scene with Marcia provoking much applause; Mr. Percy Brown impersonates the Prince with force and energy; Mr. Ulick Burke gives a capital portrayal of Orloffs; a creditable performance of Paul Starovitch is submitted by Mr. Edward E. Louis; Miss Amy Ellam is successful as Marcia Vittoria; Mr. Richard Walsh is very funny, supported by the dainty and vivacious Miss Nellie Hook; Miss Holly Hazlewood gives a good delineation of Acculina; Mr. Charles E. Warne does remarkably well as Colonel Tumbleoff; Mr. Francis Leslie is forcible as General Mikhaloff; Mr. Lancelot Usher makes a typical Englishman as Trevor; and Mr. Arthur Dudley is an amusing dude.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and Will H. Emerson.—Felix and Fisher are clever and amusing gymnasts; Edith St. Claire sings with much dash and vivacity; a capital character-sketch by the Dees is thoroughly appreciated; Jack Truman, tenor vocalist, is a great favourite; Martin Conway evokes laughter with his comic songs; Belrose and De Velin's (George and Maude) contributions are thoroughly appreciated; Poole and Poole (Tom and Florrie) introduce some clever dancing; and Louis Kerno, coon impersonator and dancer, comes in for a deal of applause. Good pictures by the Loyal Dominion Company are still in evidence.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard are this week presenting The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Miss Miriam Pritchett wins sympathy as Monica; Prince Olaf and Prince Michael have capital representatives in Messrs. E. H. G. Cox and Lionel Gadsden respectively; Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke does well as Prince Hildred; and other parts are in good hands.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The one and only Joe Elvin is starring here for one week, the sketches being Touched and Deaf. Host Barnard's popular hall is crowded at every performance. The following turns are also announced:—Madge Beresford, comedienne; Kendric and Laura, in harmony and eccentric dancing; the Maro Duo, in comedy triple-bar performance; Bert Byrne, eccentric comedian; Jack and Willie, in acrobatic act; and Connie Dupres, comedienne and dancer.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—Paul Cinquevalli tops the bill here, and has a splendid reception nightly. Miss Winifred Ward is making a hit; Callie and Walker present a lively interlude; and Johnny Hurley renders coster songs in an unassuming manner. Others who appear are Lucky Law, comedienne; Arthur Stacey, comedian and dancer; and Monahan and Sheehan, instrumentalists and singers.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The premier Hutchison company introduced Don to a delighted audience on Monday. Mr. Gordon Bailey in the title-part is entirely successful; Albert Thompsett is realistically represented by Mr. Charles Harley; Miss Viola Garland plays with much charm as Ann Sinclair; and Miss Violet Harley presents a clever study of Elizabeth Thompsett. Miss Emma Hutchison depicts with skill the foibles of the doting Mrs. Bonington; Mr. Arthur Willoughby is pleasing as the much-perplexed Canon Bonington; Mr. Charles Tyrel acts effectively as the brusque General Sinclair; and Miss Celia Gordon does well as Mrs. Sinclair. Miss Dorothy Gordon is natural as Fanny, the maid. In Chalk and Cheese, which precedes, Mr. Lionel Bevans, Miss Viola Garland, and Miss Mamie Matthews appear successfully.

Winter Garden Electric Theatre.—Lessees, Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Cecil Gill-Smith.—Messalina is the pièce de résistance of coloured photography shown this week. Cheltenham Steeplechases are a great attraction. Pharos continues to mystify the audience with his conjuring and clairvoyance.

Albert Hall.—The two-houses-a-night system is now adopted here, the high-class picture entertainment being reinforced by Waltham and Lacey, military vaudeville artists, and Harry Clarke, comedian and dancer. The Martyrdom of Thomas à Beckett is a powerful film subject.

CHESTER. — Royalty Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The attraction here is Messrs. Milton Bode and John Hart's evergreen Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. E. St. Alban as Gaspard ably sustains the rôle of the miser, and maintains the Shiel Barry tradition. Mr. Cyril Thompson is good as Henri, and the Grenrichean of Mr. Arthur Geary is a capable portrayal, both actors having fine voices. The Baillie of Mr. Fred Dark and Gobo of Mr. Alfred Selby are excellent bits of character acting, provoking much mirth. Miss Kitty Dale is charming as Germaine, and Miss Dolly Castles plays Serpolette with a vivacity and grace worthy of high praise. The opera is beautifully staged.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY. — Theatre and Winter Gardens.—Lessee, Mr. W. Wiseman; Manager, Mr. Walter Stott; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. L. Smart.—The following films are worthy of special mention: In a Submarine, Italy's Marvellous Cavalry, A Father's Crime, A Mother's Last Wish, Adventures of Tifine, Burglar's Dog, and A Princess Slave. There is an entire change of pictures during the last three nights of the week.

CLYDEBANK.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Mitchell.—The bill here includes the Two Castles, in sketch entitled The Miser; Melrose and Maxwell, comedians and dancers; Lily Hales, excellent wooden shoe dancer; Horace Horner, another smart dancer; Wallace Muirhead, tenor vocalist; and the bioscope.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Sutton Vane's company in Two Lancashire Lasses in London opened to a large house on Monday. Mr. Robert Gilbert as John Edmunds and Mr. T. Dennis-Byron as Rev. Selby played with considerable cleverness; Mr. Edward Heanley made a capable Jonas Bear; the parts of Jim Price and Ratty were well taken by Messrs. Dan Mining and Frank Irwin; Miss Florence Zillwood was always dramatic as Constance; and the intensely pathetic character of Nell was finely portrayed by Miss Mabel Coleman; Mr. Tom Newell as Sam was ably seconded by Miss Doris Kelvey as Jane Adelaide; and Mr. Wm. Grand made a most natural Doctor.

Hippodrome.—Lessees, Co-operative Varieties, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Leo King.—Gilbert Heron and company, in a thrilling "wireless" episode, top the bill this week; the Creedons, club juggling and ball-punching in unison, make an attractive turn; Cliff Ryland is a fountain of dry humour; the Tintos present African gambols in a clever and humorous method; the Wedburns, burlesque instrumentalists and patterers, give a praiseworthy show; Minnie Warner goes well with her acrobatic dancing; and Sadie Simpson also shines as a dancer.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance. —The Sign of the Cross, as presented by G. W. Bawes company, is here this week. Miss Peara Gardner played the part of Mercia with admirable and realistic effect, which won her loud applause; Miss Effie Dane gave an effective portrayal of Stephanus; as Dacia and Berenis Miss Marie Vere and Miss Joan Savile respectively do well; while Miss Daisy Towers fills the part of Poppæa with skill. Mr. Leonard Yorke makes a fine Marcus, his interpretation leaving nothing to be desired; Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice gives a good account of himself as Nero; and as Tigellinus Mr. G. Osmond Tearle excels. Licinius is in the capable hands of Mr. J. E. Cowell; and Mr. Donald McAdam is amusing as Glabrio. The remaining parts are all excellently played.

Daly's Hall.—Lessee, Mr. J. Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—The Marconis head the bill, and are both weird and interesting in their electric exhibition. Doyle and Gibson, comedians, keep the house in roars with dance and patter. Excellent films are shown, among the best being A State Secret, Saved by the Flag, and Tom Thumb.

New Town Hall.—Proprietors, The Town Hall Co., Ltd.; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—A capital programme is provided here, headed by Edith Tudora's ponies—a clever and smart turn. Bandoni, one-man band, is good, as are also the Sisters Volka, comedy artists. Pleasing pictures conclude.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, with The Little Damozel, opened a week's engagement here on Monday, when there was a full house. Miss Emelie Polini as Julie Alardy gave an excellent study of the part, and drew forth enthusiastic applause; Mr. George A. Brandram furnished a convincing rendering of Capt. Neil Partington; Mr. Alick Chumley as Rocklaw Poole was most successful; Mr. Guy Newall as the insurance agent; and Mr. William Matthews as Walter Angel afforded excellent portrayals. Miss Marion Lockie as Sybil Craven was also pleasing. The play was preceded by a clever curtain-raiser, entitled The Lie.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Violas, White Mahatmas, give a mysterious performance, the lady Viola answering numerous questions with marvellous accuracy; Professor Norton performs wonderful magical tricks; the Custances, in A Game for Two, afford considerable amusement; Bessie Willows, vocalist, and Marie Brayman, chorus vocalist, are great attractions. The Six Brothers Luck, in the absurdity Liftems, Limited, create roars of laughter; the Leigh Brothers are capital in a billiard balancing turn; the Five Whiteleys, in the acrobatic musical and wire walking act, provide much amusement; and the Palascope pictures continue to please.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is here in Our Miss Gibbs this week. Mr. Theodore Leonard as Timothy Gibbs is full of fun; Eustace Burnaby takes the part of the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint in an able manner; Slithers, the professional thief, is ably portrayed by Mr. John Leopold; Mr. Hugh Weybrand as Lord Rynesford, Mr. Ernest Darrell as the Earl of St. Ives, and Mr. Campbell Brown as the manager at Garrod's are all good. The parts of the modiste at the Stores and the Duchess of Minster are well sustained by Miss Ethaline Thorne and Miss Helen Langton. Miss Lilian Birtles makes a charming Lady Elizabeth.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Mr. Chas. T. Aldrich provides the chief turn at the Hippodrome. He is a character impersonator of great merit, and also gives a clever burlesque of the "tramp juggler." Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas have a clever and amusing sketch, entitled Her Birthday; Duncan and Godfrey, first-class entertainers, present The Coster's Courtship; the Four Janowskys perform difficult acrobatic feats; Dion Wade wins much applause for his mimicry and impersonations; Leon and Tee, in the act On the Farm give a good display on various musical instruments; and Nora Dene is a good comedienne.

CROOK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Manageress, Mrs. Davidson.—A variety entertainment is being given here by Mr. Ernest Dottridge's vaudeville company. A very pleasing turn is that of Zelda, the instrumentalist; the Three Eltons are mirth-provoking comedians in their horizontal bar performance; the Les Rallis give a clever performance; the Harwood Juveniles are much appreciated; and other turns help to provide a good evening's entertainment.

CROYDON. — Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles Wood; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. Herbert Jay has brought to the Grand this week an exceptionally fine company in Captain Kidd. Miss Maie Ash is piquant and pleasing, her style is fresh, and she has a crisp and roguish way of delivering her lines as Lucy Sheridan which are very entrancing. Miss Marjorie Maxwell as Señorita Juanita Arquilla wins golden opinions all round; she has a rich voice well under control, and her undoubted abilities receive warm recognition. Miss Dorothy Eden makes a charming Mrs. John T. Bowie; Miss Margaret Lynhart dances cleverly in the rôle of Sarita; Miss Helen Holmes does herself credit in the part of Aggie Shrubb, and completely electrifies her audience with her fine voice; and Miss Constance Grainger is a buxom and refreshing Mme. Ducrot. Mr. Roland Bottomley is of material value in the rôle of Viscount Albany, singing and playing in the happiest manner, and he comes in for a large share of approbation. Mr. Harry Benet keeps the audience in merry mood by his quaint rendering of Simpson; Mr. Harold Deacon distinguishes himself as Dick Hyne, and his song is redemanded; Mr. Lister Morr sympathetic rendering of the part of Ned Chippies, an orphan; Mr. Walter Clarke works hard as Lucas List; and Mr. Henry Scratchard is capable as Octavius Screwe.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—Jake Friedman's company, in Happy Holland, is a big attraction here, the principals being Miss Florence Hunton as Gretchen and Mr. Friedman in the humorous rôle of Jakey Ookievasal; the Four Kasracs provide a first-rate acrobatic performance; Damerel and Rutland have an original and amusing boy scout parody; Hugo and Smit execute some clever single-bar business; Arthur Aiston has some first-rate songs; and Jack Hylton and Harry Cotton are both popular contributors to the humorous side of the programme. The remaining number is contributed by the Belle-Belles, a troupe of accomplished dancers.

Mr. Owen Nares as Karl Heinrich works earnestly and well; Mr. Frank Powell is a strong and decided Von Haugh; Mr. Ernest Bodkin does capitally as Dr. Juttner; Mr. Sidney Hamilton demands a special word of praise for his clever and artistic work as Lutz; Mr. Percy Crawford is an animated Ruder; Mr. Ian Ogilvie Will extracts fun out of his part as Kellerman; Mr. Alex Onslow and Mr. C. Derwent Grenville share honours as the students Asterberg and Wedell; and Mr. Walter Palmer as Hofmarshall and Mr. Martin Lewis as Scholermann do capital duty. Miss Kitty Ricimer is a bright, girlish, and attractive Kathie; Mrs. Braithwaite makes all capital possible out of her part of Frau Dorffell, and Miss Hilda Hamilton is a pretty Frau Ruder.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama is paying a return visit here this week, and it is as interesting and up-to-date as ever—the Battle in the Air is even in advance of the time. At the head of a good variety company is Amasis, with an elaborate and picturesque staging for his clever conjuring and illusions; the Cairo Trio find great favour in a skilful musical performance, which boasts many novelties; the Ettenas, in a well-varied act, are clever globe manipulators, balancers, and dancers; Vasey and Ramsey are exceptionally agile and smart dancers; the Jerome Duo are nimble and funny comedy jugglers; Inez and Pym are gymnasts of ability; and Mr. W. L. Rowland provides great fun as a comedian. Mr. John R. Poole is the guide, and Mr. F. Mann heads the musicians.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—The Norman and Leonard Trio head the bill here, and in a very attractive musical incident, play the violin and harp and dance with much cleverness; the Three Comerfords have a very successful gymnastic sketch, Leading the Strenuous Life, which goes excellently; Mr. Will Dacey and Miss Nellie Lewis offer a smart and effective performance, which is well received; Rosa excels as a wire and globe performer; Miss Dorothy Sephton has a fine voice, and gives her songs in a taking, refined way; Mr. Montague Biggs as the male Marie Lloyd again amuses the audience; Mr. Frank Sylvo provides much fun as a juggler; and new films are shown.

ECCLES. — CROWN THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Lewis Gilbert and company are presenting A Daughter of the Sea. Miss Florrie Green as Sunshine proves herself a talented and capable actress; Miss Alice Wyllyams as Mollie, a Cornish maiden, acts naturally throughout; Mark Glensdale has a powerful representative in Mr. Lewis Gilbert; Mr. Sutton Taylor as Sir Maxwell Brentwood is all that could be desired; as Ken Moreland Mr. Ashmore Vincent acts with vigour, and his lines are spiritedly declaimed; Mr. H. C. Lancely as Captain Ben Morrison gives a very clever character study; Mr. Jo Monkhouse as Billy, the village idiot, is responsible for a finished impersonation.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. — Man.-Dirs., Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—A crowded audience welcomed Mr. Lewis Waller and his company last Monday on their appearance for the first time in Edinburgh in the romantic play, Bardelys the Magnificent. Mr. Waller in the title-rôle carried all before him by his fine acting; forcible in the stronger scenes, delightfully tender in the love passages, and graceful and easy in his bearing, Mr. Waller has, in the part of Marcel de St. Pol, added another success to his gallery of gallant portraits. Mr. William Haviland was incisive and powerful in his performance of the Comte de Castelroux; and a finished, effective study of Louis XIII. was contributed by Mr. Herbert Jarman. Miss Madge Titheradge displayed a command of expression in voice and feature, and a skill and appropriateness of gesture which made the character of Roxalanne de Lavedan a charming and touching representation; Miss A. B. Tapping, always a genuine artist, brightened the play at many points by her humorous impersonation of the Viscountess de Lavedan; and Miss Dorothy Dix infused the requisite passion and pathos into the part of Andree de Marsac; Mr. Alec F. Thompson gave a clever rendering of the part of Pierre Rodenard; and amongst several minor characters Mr. Cronin Wilson's excellent acting as Rene de Lasperon must be singled out for especial praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A well-filled house assembled on Monday evening to greet Mr. Edward Terry, much interest attaching to the genial comedian's first appearance here in his new character part of The Toy-maker of Nuremberg. The piece, which has not previously been staged in Edinburgh, was very kindly received, and the tender pathos of Mr. Terry's portrayal of the simple, gentle old man secured cordial recognition. The cast was strengthened by the inclusion therein of Mr. Robert Pateman, who made a fine old Sergeant; Miss Adah Barton as the Mother shared in the successes of the production; the Boy and the Girl had pleasing young interpreters in Mr. Percival Madgewick and Miss Christine Rayner; and the Boy's Friend was nicely played by Miss Gabrielle E. Paul; while the Old Actor, the Stranger, the Employer, and the Cook were effectively characterised by Mr. Percy Bell, Mr. Templer Powell, Mr. William Dexter, and Miss Eugenie Vernie. Nebuchadnezzar, too, though unnamed in the bill, was faithfully represented. Bardell v. Pickwick, Fiander's Widow, The Magistrate, Liberty Hall, and Sweet Lavender have had places in the repertory for the week.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Armand Maxard.—Mr. T. E. Dunville occupies principal place in the programme here, and keeps his audiences in the best of humours. Miss Jenny Johns character sketches are done in admirable fashion, and the talented comedienne receives a splendid reception; Miss May Fairclough in her dramatic monologues evinces much ability; and the entertainment at the piano by Mr. Fred Elton is full of humour and freshness; The Greys (Diana and Len) are admirable dancers and very clever bâton manipulators; the Three Stewarts give an extremely smart turn in their balancing act; and that exceedingly versatile, able comedian, Mr. John Le Hay, makes a distinct hit in the name part of the farce entitled Poor Beggar; Mr. Harry Knox and Mr. Charles Gardener, comedians, are also in the bill; and the King's Bioscope shows some good films.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Madame Fanny Moody and Mr. Charles Manners dominated the week's bill at the Empire, this being their first appearance at the Moss-Stoll Edinburgh house; the distinguished vocalists hugely delighted the audience with a varied selection of popular ballads and songs, which secured the inevitable recalls. Russell Wallett provided excellent entertainment with his topical ditties; Ben Albert contributed an amusing comedy turn; and the singing comedians, Verno and Voyce, made a hit with a novel scena, John Bull's Cash Box. The feminine single-handed turns included clever male impersonations by Rhoda Paul, acceptable songs from Lola Patey, and pleasing violin playing by Gladys Hooley; and the American Bioscope exhibited a series of good pictures. The well-known artists, Bella and Bijou, were unable through indisposition to take their allotted part in the programme on the earlier evenings of the week.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Variety holds the boards here this week, two performances nightly being given, while owing to a recent alteration in the local by-laws smoking is also permissible in all parts of the house. Claude Ginnett and company head the bill in Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which proves exceedingly popular, the same company also presenting Rejected Remounts, a highly diverting sketch; Iris Yohe and the Sisters Harcourt are clever comediennes and dancers; Jack Marogate is a smart speciality dancer; Mavis and Mavis contribute a diverting item, entitled You Struck Me; H. D. Adams introduces a humorous juggling turn; and A. T. Ramp and Lottie Lee also render excellent service.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sands.—Liane d'Eve heads the bill, and with her charming manner and excellent voice is winning golden opinions; Will Hanvarr and Anna Lee are very popular in The Golfer and the Maid, introducing some smart juggling; Sam Fay proves an exceedingly diverting comedian; and the Corcoran Brothers contribute a musical speciality act of a high order of merit; Adela Masson is equally at home as dramatic, operatic, or humorous vocalist; Johnny Fuller, as the great little cat on the wire, is as dexterous and nimble as the animal he represents; and Walter Aubrey is an expert wooden-shoe dancer.

EXMOUTH. — KING'S HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint.—An attractive programme is given at this pretty hall twice nightly, and so greatly is it appreciated that it is difficult to find a vacant seat, except at early doors. This week, in addition to a fine selection of pictures, the Rurals are delighting the audience with a musical and comedy sketch that is received with great applause. Vint's photo songs also please greatly, while the music supplied by Mr. Sinclair adds in no small degree to the excellence of the menu.

FLEETWOOD.—EMPIRE.—Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Harry J. Snelson.—Dare-Devil Dorothy so won the popular affections on the occasion of her last visit to Fleetwood that it is not surprising this week to find large audiences welcoming the vivacious Australian lady's return visit to the Empire. Mr. J. W. Cordiner's company improves on further acquaintance, and nearly all the smart songs and dances are nightly encored. Miss Dorothy Desmonde, in the title-rôle, acts and sings well; Miss Florence Corri as Judith contributes, amongst other items, a taking song and dance; Ruth Montrose is admirably portrayed by Miss Margaret S. Forbes; Mr. James Salter, in the humorous character of Silas Crump, is loudly applauded; Mr. Walter Ashley makes a handsome and dashing Captain Fielding; Mr. James Morath as Captain Dudley acts with force; Mr. Edward Aldworth as Smith is excellent; and Mr. Geoffrey Berwick puts in some good work as Featherstone Haugh; the Misses Lillie and Iris Elvido contribute a clever "mirror dance." Mr. Louis Elgar ably conducts.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Laurence Irving, Miss Mabel Hackney, and company, in The Unwritten Law, met with a tremendous reception on Monday. The rôle of Rodion Raskolnikoff enabled Mr. Laurence Irving to show his dramatic abilities to great advantage. As Sonia Miss Mabel Hackney invested her part with pathetic gentleness and charm. The delineation of Bezak by Mr. Dalziel Heron was a clever and most effective piece of work; Mr. Rupert Harvey played the part of Zosimoff, the young doctor, with ease and judgment, and as Kashkin, a student of the Teclinological Institute, Mr. Frank Esmond was acceptable; Mr. James Shea was good as the uncouth Gromoff, as also was Mr. Wentworth Fane as Keller, the unscrupulous District Attorney. Miss Margaret Omar gave a lively rendering of Raskolnikoff's sister, Doonia; Miss Alice Inman as Pulcheria, Miss Mabel Nelson as Katya, Miss Beatrice Swanton as Nastasia did well, and the remaining characters were in safe hands.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. J. Reece.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company appeared here in Send Him Victorious. Miss Lily Roselli and Mr. G. M. Montanini as the pseudo-Countess and Col. Kaufmann respectively filled their parts in a capable manner; Mr. Bert Woodwin and Miss Madge Palmer supplied the comic element; Sergt. Max was well played by Mr. Charles Russell; and the other parts were in the hands of Messrs. H. Hardy, Edwin Turner, Charles Higgins, and Miss Netta Mitchell.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Messrs. Alan Holt and company, in A Society Woman, are starring here this week; the Lukushimas are entertaining Japs, who have some novel acrobatics; Harry Nelson, a local comedienne, is received with gratifying warmth; Bardelli excels in a ventriloquial act; Maxwell and Francis are entertaining vocalists; the Brooklyn Boys are seen to advantage in song and dance; Earle and Godfrey are successful in a dancing scena; and the Kingscope completes the bill.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bowlam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. F. Douthwaite.—Mr. Walter Melville is presenting A Girl's Cross Roads here this week. Mr. Edward Valentine repeats his praiseworthy impersonation of the old farmer, Meadows; Mr. Carl F. Kerzo efficiently portrays Jack Livingstone; Cuthbert Lumley, the villain, receives the best of treatment at the hands of Mr. Fred Rivers; Mr. Kendrew Milson makes an admirable Dr. Weston; Barbara Wade is admirably played by Miss Nell Oliver; Miss Adah Rothwell ably depicts Nellie Meadows; Miss Florrie Lyndon is a charming Constance Cornell; and other parts are in capable hands.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Harold V. Neilson and his repertory company are appearing here in The House Opposite. As Richard Cardyne Mr. Neilson gives a clever and convincing impersonation; as the Hon. Mrs. Rivers Miss Amy Langster acts with pathos and passion; as the Right Hon. Sir Henry Rivers Mr. Lemmon Warde displays a sangfroid under trying circumstances; as Sir Edward Harrowby Mr. Franklin Miles gives a taking conception of the funny and pompous old Under-Secretary; while as Marie, the French maid, Miss Dorothy Blackader is very successful. As Lady Muriel Wentworth Miss Elizabeth Rosslyn causes great amusement; while as Mrs. Calthorpe Miss Effie Leigh Hunt gives a realistic impersonation. Stuart Fillerby, Paul Sandys, and Parker are in the capable hands of Mr. Alfred Hilliard, Mr. A. C. Bute, and Mr. C. Edwardes-Horobin respectively. The drama is preceded each evening by the studio scene from Rudyard Kipling's The Light that Failed, in which Mr. Neilson and Miss Langster distinguish themselves.

KING'S LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—The second week of the Beecham Opera company commenced on Monday with a brilliant performance of Strauss's comic opera The Bat. Miss Caroline Hatchard sang magnificently in the rôle of Rosalinde, and Messrs. Wilson Pembroke (Von Eisenstein), Frederick Ranalow (Dr. Falke), and Alfred Heather (Singing Master) excelled themselves both in singing and in acting. Mr. M. R. Morand delighted his Glasgow admirers with his portrayal of the Prison Governor; excellent work is also done by Miss Kate Anderson as Adele, and Miss Ruby Gray as the Russian Prince. The Bat is down for three performances, the rest of the week being taken up with Offenbach's Tales of Hoffmann.

ROYALTY.—Sub-Lessees, the Scottish Playgoers, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Humphrys.—This week the repertory company is producing here Miss Elizabeth Baker's clever play Chains, and the simple but poignant story is excellently brought out by a clever cast. Mr. Campbell Gullan particularly distinguished himself by his acting as Charlie Wilson; Miss Eve Titheredge was also well suited as his young wife, Lily Wilson; Miss Lola Duncan as Maggie Massey gave a clever study of a young woman discontented with her humdrum existence; a striking study of an elderly and timid old clerk was given by Mr. George Tawde; Mr. Frank Cochrane as Massey and Miss Gwynneth Gatton as his wife gave two clever portraits of a typical family group; Miss Irene Clarke and Mr. Mark Hannam were an amusing pair of young lovers; and Mr. W. G. Robb as a jolly and self-satisfied neighbour and Mr. Norman McKeown as a sedate widower completed an excellent cast. The play was produced by Mr. Norman Page.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The stock company here is now presenting the farce My Neighbour's Wife, in which Miss Julia Kent gives an excellent rendering of Mrs. Somerton; while the audience is kept in hilarious mood by Mr. Alex Keith as Jonathan Smith. Mrs. Brown is pleasingly played by Miss Margaret Zaidia; Mrs. Smith by Miss Ann Haughton; the husbands being amusingly rendered by Mr. Chas. Homer as the fiery and hot-tempered Somerton, and Mr. F. Wingate as Brown. The man from Birch's by Mr. John Roberts completes the cast. Mr. R. W. Speed, tenor, gives adequate expression to the illustrated songs. The moving pictures include The Man to Beat Jack Johnson, Prison Reform, The Governess, Hako's Sacrifice, Her Uncle's Will, and other up-to-date films.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—A drama new to Glasgow was presented here by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott—A Wife's Triumph. Mr. Abbott as Robert Dewhurst gives a convincing representation; Mr. Andrew Money ably undertakes the part of Frank Wilton; and other leading parts are filled by Miss Ada Abbott, Miss Florence North, and Misses Stephen Crossley and Weedon Ross.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company, in A Royal Divorce, is here this week. Mr. Frank Bradley gives a capital reading of the Emperor Napoleon; Josephine was effectively played by Miss Edith Cole; Talleyrand had admirable treatment at the hands of Mr. George Traill; while Mr. Charles Hartopp gives a careful study of the Marquis de Beaumont. Miss Dorothy Garth cleverly interpreted Stephanie; General Augereau was admirably represented by Mr. Ernest Plumpton; Miss Winnie Tempest as Marie Louise has scope for her talents; Mr. Thomas Barry gives a praiseworthy portrayal of Marshal Murat; and the Grimaud of Mr. George Hudson was capital. The King of Rome is successfully played by Miss Dorothy Hudson.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mrs. E. H. Knight's company, in The Lighthouse Robbery, is appearing at the Govan theatre this week. Baby Freda as Little Nellie, a clever young child actress, sings and dances charmingly; Miss Hilda Baynton as Rose Prescot was all that could be desired; and Messrs. Percy Beresford, H. Gordon Ingram, and Rupert Talbot all played their parts in an admirable manner.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—The visit of Miss Ellaline Terriss in Bluebell has this week caused an enormous rush to secure seats at all performances. Her talented company includes Mr. Stanley Brett. Geo. Leyton introduces his latest military scena The Roll Call, included in which are a number of Crimea and Indian Mutiny veterans; a capital comedy gymnastic act is given by the Flying Hanions; Cole and Raggs, as comedy jugglers, prove successful in their endeavours to amuse; Ray Wallace is as popular as ever; the Legay Trio execute a number of clever and attractive whirlwind dances; Betty Green is very entertaining; dainty Ethel Beech is well received; and the Bioscope films are fresh and much appreciated.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Middleton and Spellmyer meet with a most cordial reception in their sketch, A Texas Wooing; Ram Bhuj gets through a lot of mystifying tricks, which are appreciated; in his impersonations of international stage stars Max Waldon meets with a good reception; Morton and Elliott do some phenomenal things in the manipulation of paper, while their singing and playing is of a high order; Madeline Rossiter appears in a graceful dancing act, and is well received; the Real Mackays are a smart pair of juveniles, who get through their work in business-like fashion; Rolando Martin is a clever comedian much above the average, and is responsible for much amusement; in all her latest chorus songs and successes Evelyn Taylor appears to great advantage; and Gicardo (juggler) and Jack Barker (comedian) complete the programme.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Wee Georgie Wood's impersonations of Vesta Tilley, George Formby, &c., are clever and popular; Adelaide Waldorf sings with great taste and acceptance; Anthony, who claims to introduce the funny side of magic, is entirely successful; Dale and O'Malley get through a deal of funny work, and their cross-talk patter is much enjoyed; Chas. Parker's Æolians provide an excellent turn in refined comedy, vocalism, and dancing; while Don and Mabel meet with a capital reception for their vocal efforts. An attractive roller skating turn is given by Les Videos, who perform many clever feats; Cumminger and Colonna are well received in their dancing act; Cosgrove and Burns do well in their clever sketch, entitled The Singing Academy; Wal Langtry (the dialect comedian) makes a reappearance after a most successful tour "across the pond," and is capitally received; good duettists are Tennis and Laune, and the work is received appreciatively; in a military gymnastic entertainment the Mars Trio get through a lot of good work; and in the Palascope films those worthy of mention are Burglars Expected and Papa's Cane.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—Fred Karno this week stages his latest production, Mr. Justice Perkins—included in the company are Messrs. Chewd, Herbert Sidney, and Albert Bruno, the latter as Perkins being quite the feature of the show; Howard and Harris, the quaint American humorists, are to the fore again with their attractive work; Harry Frisky is a funny American comedy juggler; A Lesson in Physical Culture is the title ascribed to the remarkable entertainment of Lieven and Pantzer; Coverdale is responsible for much amusement in his lengthy turn, which is of an enjoyable nature; good Scotch comedians are always in demand, and the reception accorded Jock Mills this week has been most gratifying; that talented and dainty little lady, Agnes Tina, is a warm favourite, and deservedly so, as her various impersonations are perfect; Elsie Roy sings a couple of good songs, and is well received; while the Bioscope films are novel and entertaining.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—An interesting bill is here this week, and on the opening night a large audience thoroughly enjoyed a programme of historical, dramatic, and humorous pictures, which included among others, The Enchantress, The Moths and the Flame, The Inventor, A Coquette's Suitors, A Child's Faith, Romance of the Auirl, and all the principal up-to-date events. The vaudeville programme is sustained by Cissie Norton, versatile artist, and Purse and Devlin, comedians and dancers. Both turns were thoroughly appreciated.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Manager, Mr. W. Sinclair.—Luke and Logan are amusing knockabouts and patterers; Charles Howarth proves very versatile in his quick-change sketch Fun in College; May Glenroy sang two songs in fine style; Susie Hayman was loudly applauded for her descriptive songs; while Jack Hamilton does well as a light comedian. The Bioscope pictures are of admirable variety, and much enjoyed.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—The picture season here continues to attract large crowds. This week's variety turns are given by Phil Goldie, a clever and humorous Hebrew comedian; the Macdonald family, whose singing and dancing is much appreciated; and Sam Kelly, an amusing comedian with a style of his own. The pictures are, as usual, up to date.

STAR.—Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—The pictures here are well chosen and of contrasting natures. Excellent relief from the curtain gazing is provided by the Tweenies, in a quaint turn of an amusing kind; Miss Lorna Lomond is successful as a singer of some fine old ballads; the McGregors, in a smart comedy turn; and Les Lanonis (who appeared in place of the Three Royal Temples), in a very clever juggling entertainment.

ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Some good variety turns are here this week, including Mlle. Leoville, in her graceful act of wire-walking, her comic assistant, Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke, as a Frenchman studying horsemanship being extremely amusing; Nimble Nip and Wee Willie keep the fun from flagging; the Ronnies are a pair of clever jugglers, and their high-springing is start

Whitlock gives a dignified impersonation of the King; Mr. Clavering Craig is admirable as Captain Rupert Landgrave; Mr. Arthur St. John is an able Crown Prince Oscar, and is well supported by Mr. Harry Lynton as General Stevonie; Miss Florence Radcliffe is a charming Lady Anastasia, and Miss Florence McInnes an excellent Lady Florina; and the fun of the piece is capitally sustained by Mr. Fred Newburn, Mr. Witton Drury, and Miss Maud Stuart (Margot).

GLOUCESTER.—Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is appearing in Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt gives an admirable performance of Anthony Raybrook; and Laura Raybrook is capitally enacted by Miss Violet Forbes, who later in the drama plays the lad Walter Hatherley in an equally able manner; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes gives a powerful rendition of the villainous Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Edward Finlay as the lesser villain, Dick Saunders, sustains the part effectively; Mr. Harry Layton as Willie, an outcast, is distinctly good; and a word of praise is due to Mr. Fred C. Imbert as John Anderson; Miss Emily Burnley is well placed as Barbara Ashdown; as is Miss Susan Bevan as Margaret Bailey. Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez Thomas and Mr. P. George Beresford as Walter Hatherley the elder are adequate; and Miss Madge Muriel is noticeable as Jane.

King's Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Alfd. Stewart.—Varieties and pictures provide a good show here. The artists are Helene and Emilon, Continental gymnasts; Williams' Welsh Minstrels, in instrumental and vocal selections; and Miss Kitty Woodford, in illustrated songs.

Theatre de Luxe.—Electric Theatres, Ltd. (1908).—Entertaining pictures of travel and humorous films are shown here with much success.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—The Goole Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society are presenting The Mikado.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and his company are appearing here this week in For Love and the King.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Four Royal Scots are scoring a big success with their refined musical turn; Mlle. Doris introduces some cleverly-trained dogs; the Twin Brothers Dean are experts in the terpsichorean art; Fred Ellis's funny stories are well received; Syd Crossley does well with his humorous songs; the Four Panamas give a refined and clever acrobatic turn; Hayes and Merritt are remarkably clever acrobats; Doodles, with new eccentricities and witticisms, keeps the audience in roars of laughter whenever he enters the arena.

GREENOCK.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Horace Lingard, Miss Beatrice Moreau, and company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, when The New Lady Bantock was presented to an appreciative audience. Miss Beatrice Moreau sustains the title-rôle with exceptional ability; Mr. Horace Lingard merits warm recognition for his rendering of the character of Martin Bennet; Miss Miriam Holt and Miss Dorothy Clifton submit a delightful study of the two maiden aunts, the Misses Wetherell; Mr. Alfred Gray plays well as Lord Bantock; Dr. Freemantle is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Leon Hastings; and the rôle of George Newte is admirably presented by Mr. Wilfred Compton.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Lowenwirth and Cohan are topping the bill here; Charburn's Young Stars prove extremely popular in their scena, A Picnic Up the River; Maggie Fraser renders her songs in good style; the Three Orleans, vocalists and dancers, do well; highly amusing is the turn presented by Cedria, the acrobatic juggling waiter; and Ernie King, comedian, is particularly quaint.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The Merry Widow is here this week. Miss Mary Ridley now plays Sonia, and is a daintily bewitching widow; Mr. J. Warren Foster realises the dash of Prince Danilo with excellent effect; Mr. Edwin D'Arcy extracts much humour from the part of the Ambassador; Mr. Fred Fowler is also highly amusing as Nisch; Mr. Ripley Evans is responsible for good vocal work as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon; Miss Ada Thomas acts charmingly as Natalie; and Miss Kitty May proves a clever dancer as Frou-Frou.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—Staley's transformation act is a decided novelty, the quick change of a drawing-room into a blacksmith's shop being excellently worked, and the smiths prove clever trick instrumental performers; Talbot and Pearce introduce good vocal work and pleasing fun into their Irish musical duologue; Julia Reeve is a comedienne with an engaging manner, and she has good songs; Leo and Roland give a capital display of equilibristic business; Miss Adah Payne, a popular prima donna, sings excellent operatic selections; C. H. Charlton gives a smart display of conjuring and sleight-of-hand; and Gene Crowe is a coloured artist with a distinctly original style.

GUERNSEY.—Theatre St. Julian's.—Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Imperial Electric Pictures and varieties, despite the rinking craze, continue strong here. The Flash of Light and The Fire Chief's Daughter are capital films, and Robert the Silent is a beautiful coloured picture. The Deroneys provide a good turn; Mr. Edward Lane contributes; Amleer and Avon, a Canadian musical couple, elicit plenty of applause; and Mr. P. J. Durney, champion globe walker, gives an interesting exhibition.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. C. Dudley Bennett's company is here with A Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Gwennie Harcourt is a lively Fi-Fi; Miss Gladys Ivery (Princess Soo-Soo) sings nicely, and acts with a charming grace; Mr. Frank H. Crimp is an ideal Tom Hatherton; and Mr. Will Harman ably sustains the rôle of Mr. Pineapple.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—John Clempert heads the bill with his death-defying mysteries, and is supported by Minora and her trained dog, Jack; Bros. Burgo, in comedy boxing act; Lily Ray, comedienne; Fred Conquest's company, in Something for Nothing; Edgar Budden, bone soloist and skate dancer; and Fred Land, a clever eccentric comedian.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Carl and Mary Ohm introduce cleverly-trained dogs, ponies, and monkeys; Silly Billy Elliott is on good terms with his audience; the Loube Trio, trick cyclists, are decidedly clever; and others appearing are Ernest Montefiore's company, in The Little Colonel; Cromo and Hamilton, burlesque artists; Bros. Rees, in a military act; Sisters St. Julian, duettists and dancers; and Lizzie Hay, comedienne.

Victoria Hall, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Leslie H. Murray.—The pictures are good; Pulo, juggler, provides a smart turn; and Carl Osmond, lightning cartoonist, completes the programme.

HAMILTON (N.B.).—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Musical-Director, Mr. J. Millar.—Friend and Downing (Rosenthal and Downing) are topping the bill here this week; Maud Mortimer sings a couple of songs with style; Marie Dreams is the possessor of a baritone voice, which she uses to effect; Bromley and Fontein in their skit, The Man Behind the Music Stand, go well; the Floradors in their skit, Fishing, are a popular turn; the Leopold Leglere Troupe of Acrobats and gymnasts are good; Newco and Lullo, the boys in red; Frederico and Edgonto, together with the Bioscope, conclude.

HANLEY.—Royal.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—The Fighting Chance is here. Miss Marie Duncan as Ethel Hardy is a success; Miss Mary Campbell as Jean Fielding is strong and expressive; Miss Annie Barclay as Mrs. Mackintosh is good; Miss Amy Venimore as Mrs. Vanstart is capital; and Miss Lilian Constance as Marjorie is praiseworthy. Mr. C. B. Bedells as the black chief proves his powers as an actor; Mr. C. Leverton's Larry is very fine; Mr. Austen Milroy (Stephen Blanchard), Mr. Sidney Vautier (Jim Blanchard), Mr. F. J. Walker (General Blanchard), Mr. Arthur Elwyn (Philip Rivers), and Mr. Terence O'Brien (Dr. Vorland) display histrionic ability.

Grand.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Amati's British Empire Band is proving a terrific attraction; Jack Pleasants is a favourite; Jessie Merrilees as La Chrale is excellent; Driscoll and Felino in Fun in a Paddock are very smart; Marie Pera in a sketch, Two Doors and a Passage, are loudly cheered; Vere and Nelldon introduce a decided novelty; the Northcotes, duettists, are good; and the Grand pictures are excellent.

King's.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—The Range Riders is a thrilling picture; and Heart of a Heathen Chinee, A Child's Impulse, Sweethearts, and Fireworks Gone Mad are the chief. Wylie Fox, mimic, is very good.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—This week Mr. Alex. Marsh and company occupy the theatre in Shakespeare and classical drama. On Monday Taming of the Shrew was in the bill. Mr. Alex. Marsh was well cast as Petruchio, and Miss Carrie Baillie was excellent as the shrewish Kate; Miss May Grimshaw made a winsome Bianca; Mr. Wilson Gunning was good as Lucentio, and Mr. Ian Fleming made the most of his opportunities as Grumio. Other parts were well filled. On the remaining nights of the week School for Scandal, Merry Wives of Windsor, Twelfth Night, Much Ado About Nothing, Julius Cæsar, and Merchant of Venice were billed.

The Kursaal.—Manager, Mr. J. E. Wilshire; Musical-Director, Mr. Julian Clifford.—The last week of a very successful season has arrived. The March Hares, including Mr. Dave Burnaby, are a capable troupe of entertainers. The band, of which Mr. Julian Clifford is so able and so popular a conductor, are billed for a gala night on Saturday.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—Tom Lloyd, always popular here, has a capital reception; George Edmunds is a capital mimic at the piano; and Ruby Maybutt, "the dancing dot," exhibits considerable skill. Pictures by Ruffell's Bioscope complete.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Chasing Cynthia held the boards the early part of the week. The author, Mr. Frank Stanmore, takes a principal part, and creates much merriment in the character of the Hon. Billy Bootle. Mr. Arthur Poole displays a large amount of original humour as Col. Theobald Chutnees; Dobson (the head waiter at the hotel) is cleverly depicted by Mr. Mark Lester; Miss Pinch (proprietress of the Academy) is ably depicted by Miss Adie Boyne; Miss Gladys Beech as Fifi is a vivacious representative of the maid; and Miss Gurney Delaporte is charmingly natural in the character of Cynthia. For the remainder of the week Mr. Laurence Irving and company, including Miss Mabel Hackney, were announced to appear in The Unwritten Law and Margaret Catchpole.

Pier Pavilion.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Maxwell.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and his large company are paying a return visit in Lord and Lady Algy. Mr. Norman puts plenty of healthy vigour into his embodiment of Lord Algernon Chetland; the Duke of Broneborough is given a natural interpretation by Mr. Campbell Cargill; a very good rendering of the Marquis of Quarmby is shown by Mr. F. Lock Whittaker; Mr. R. Taylor in the part of Lieut. Standige evinces decided aptitude for comedy; Miss Beatrice Wilson in the character of Lady Algernon Chetland gives a touch of refinement and distinction which is delightful; as Mrs. Vokins, Miss Madge Trenchard is worthy of praise; Miss Agnes Thornton is excellent in the part of Mrs. Brabazan Tudway; and Emily Cardew and Lady Pamela Mahinson are well represented by Miss Syretta Synnett and Miss Ena Douglas.

American Palace Pier, St. Leonard's.—Manager, Mr. M. Leopold; Pier-Master, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The London Répertoire company are producing Caste. Old Eccles is very naturally taken by Mr. Arthur Levien; an excellent sketch of George d'Alroy is given by Mr. Edward Vivian; Mr. Vernon Crabtree in the part of Capt. Hawtrey plays with constant vitality; a good character sketch of Sam Gerridge is shown by Mr. Lionel Howard; Miss Grace Garside quite realises the part of the Marquise de St. Maur; an effective portrait of Esther Eccles is given by Miss Kathleen Yates; and Polly is charmingly played by Miss Sylvia Yates.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.—Gaiety.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Ainsley and H. Hall.—Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's company opened to a packed house on Monday in The Face at the Window. Mr. W. H. Macauley was a powerful Lucio Delgado; Mr. T. Dunscombe a smart French detective; Miss Nita Imeson, in the character of Marie de Brisson, won unstinted applause; Mr. James Chippendale gave a realistic reading of the Wealthy Banker; and the comic element was cleverly interwoven by Mr. J. Stimson as Peter Pottlebury and Miss Frances Day as Babbett; Miss Marie Sennant also contributed largely to an enjoyable programme.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The outstanding turn is Carlton, whose dexterity in the manipulation of cards is bewildering. His patter is good and his exposure of a seemingly great illusion is interesting. Also appearing are the Kebbles, duettists and dancers; Harry Drew, bass vocalist; the Almas, a pair of acrobats; Tom Clifford, ventriloquist; Miss Kitty Allen, comedienne; Tom Haigh and Miss Millie Novel, comedy artists, the male partner being smart in his acrobatic work; and David Poole, ventriloquist.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—A well-varied and interesting bill here includes Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde in their unique shadowgraphic act; Miss Flo Warner, a bright comedienne; Harry Herbert, a highly amusing comedian; J. A. Wilson and his wonderfully wise dog, "Private Towser," in a charming little turn; Gus Harris, in Hebrew impersonations; Frank Maura, a wonderful foot balancer; George Sheldon and F. Rawson Buckley's company in a dramatic playlet, entitled Before the Dawn; and the Palace pictures.

HULL.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The present is a Hall Caine week. On Monday we had The Bishop's Son, and later in the week The Eternal Question. Opinions differ as to the merits of the plays, but none can as to the capabilities of the company, which include Mr. W. F. Grant, who realised with much success the rôle of the Bishop. Mr. Julian Cross was well cast as the Doomster, whilst that sterling artist Miss Helena Millais did her task with consummate skill. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine gives promise as the Bishop's Son of good work in the future. The play is well mounted.

Alexandra Theatre.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Little Phil's Mother is the play this week at this popular playhouse, and a capital crowd has been gathered together for its representation. Little Phil as portrayed by Little Daisy Rochefort is remarkably well done. The Ruth Towers of Miss Maud Russel is a distinct success, whilst other prominent parts find excellent support from Miss Kate Blair, a capable artist; Mr. Herbert Evelyn, who gives a good study of the rôle allotted to him. The remainder of the company are effective.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Considerable interest is manifested here this week in Mr. Raymond Phillips' wireless-controlled airship, which the clever inventor manœuvres in the auditorium, amidst roars of applause; Tom Costello is popularising himself still further with new songs; as cycling eccentrics Campbell and Barber are in the front line; the Kirbys are deservedly applauded for a notable musical comedy potpourri; Joe Boganny and his lunatic bakers are responsible for much hilarity with their acrobatic tumbling; Kitty Wager is a vivacious comedienne; with his political song Fred Poplar scores; and the Sisters Jerome, duettists and dancers, had a cordial reception. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

The Empire.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hy. Slingsby.—The Five Musical Tritons score a well-merited success; Auto-Ajax is an athlete whose many feats call forth loud praise; Rowlands and Forth are comedians of considerable ability; with popular songs Charles Lilburn is a big favourite. Other items of acceptance include Kavados, a clever juggler, equilibrist, and cannon-ball performer; Ally Berson, dame comedian and whistler; Emilie Warren, ballad and operatic vocalist; and Flo Melville, dainty comedienne.

Prince's Hall.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morton.—The films here include Aviation, Inspecting the Guard of Honour at the Middlesex Hospital, A Child's Faith, Sights Along the Nile, The Plumber, A Wasted Effort, and numerous others both instructive and amusing.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Midland Electric Theatres and Cinematograph Co., Ltd.; Chairman, Mr. J. W. Moore, C.C.; General Manager, Chas. P. Cooke.—The variety turn for this week is the Herald Comedy Four in a laughable show, entitled The Indians and the Sailor. The chief films are Ironworkers' Strike, In Time for War, &c., &c.

INVERNESS.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Messrs. F. and R. Kelso's Royal British pictures and vaudeville started their fifth week on Monday to a crowded house, the high standard of the pictures being well maintained. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment is supplied by Mr. Harry Harcourt, comedian, and Miss Rose Fyne, while a popular soprano singer is Miss Jessie M. Govan.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Murray King, Clarke, and W. H. Savery.—Messrs. Leedham Bontock and Frederick Mouillot's company is here with Those Terrible Twins, the author, Mr. Bantock, playing the leading part of William the Butler effectively; Samuel Pringle is in the safe hands of Mr. Robert Rivers; Charlie Pringle is well played by Mr. Cyril Delevanti; the Hon. Harry Scott is realistically portrayed by Mr. Martin Alwyne; and Minks, the lift boy, is drolly personified by Mr. Archie McCraig; Miss Maud Adams is adequate as Mrs. Pringle; Mrs. Watt Tanner makes the most of Maria the Cook; Miss Enid Baird plays Violet Fairfield ably; and Miss Norah Walker is excellent as Lillie Leyton. Only a Clown precedes.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Courtiers, under the direction of Mr. Paul Mill, give a miniature musical comedy, which is bright, pretty, well acted, and excellently staged; the Dorrington Family are justly billed as wonders on wheels; Charles Norton, in a mimetic monologue, introduces a racecourse scene which gives him ample scope for fun; Baby Wolff is a child comedienne of promise; Lennard and Vereker have a pictorial scene; and Ferris and May an amusing sketch, entitled Two's Company; Dan Thomas is always popular here; Hilda Mascott is a pleasing comedienne; and the Bioscope concludes.

JERSEY.—Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Edward Marris and Albany Ward; Manager, Mr. Lindsay Edwardes.—The electric pictures include a capital coloured film, entitled Athalia. Kitty Caffrey entertains in songs and dances; Geo. Bernard renders "The Charge of the Light Brigade"; and Fanny Humber gives a skipping-rope dance.

Royal Hall.—Lessee, Mr. J. T. West; Manager, Mr. George Francis.—The films here include A Modern Cinderella and A Rake's Romance.

Alhambra.—Proprietors, Messrs. L. C. Langton and L. Poulain.—Some good pictures are shown here, and Miss Dolly Pritchard still supplies the variety turn.

KEIGHLEY.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Keighley Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George S. Holmes.—Sexton Blake is proving a powerful attraction. Mr. Murray Yorke deserves commendation for a capital rendering of the detective, Sexton Blake; Roger Blackburne is strongly presented by Mr. Edward McLean; Mr. Millar Wilson is a big favourite as Tinker; Farmer Blackburne is well portrayed by Mr. Victor C. Rolfe; and Miss Elizabeth Watkins plays with power, sympathy, and charm as Marjorie Lovell.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—This week Mr. Lodge Percy presents here Miss Henrietta Schrier in the plays Mr. Barnes of New York, The Idler, and Forget-Me-Not.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton and Travis Green's company is presenting Her Fatal Marriage, which is well staged. Mr. Jerrold Heather is most effective as Zaco; Mr. Ernest Allen makes an able Wilfred Grey; the difficult part of Paul is well presented by Mr. P. Morton Wright; Miss Maude Hustings shows ability as Lily; and Miss Hilda Shirley is excellent as Myra Malletto.

LANCASTER.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The Girl Who Went Astray, the attraction this week, is well presented by Mr. Bulmer's company. Miss Doris Brookes is successful in the title-rôle; Violet Harvey is well rendered by Miss Ada Oakley; and Miss Sybil Haughton does well as Eleanor Merton; as Captain Frank Julian Mr. Richard Ferris is effective; and the parts of Rupert Murdock and Adolphus Boomer are successfully played by Messrs. Austin Mortimer and Evan Roland respectively.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—The original Leopolds are appearing here in The New Frivolity. Mr. Willie Leopold proves himself a versatile and clever comedian in the rôle of Samuel Vermiglio, whilst as Oliver Buckwheat Mr. Harry Douglas is responsible for much merriment. Mr. Tom Leopold's Jules Vermiglio is a pleasing performance, and Miss Kathleen Kavanagh plays Mme. Cobwebb with success. Other parts ably fulfilled are those of Lucy Buckwheat by Miss Amy Hall, Daniel Teething by Mr. John Leopold, jun., and Professor Fumble by Mr. Charles Goff. The U.S.A. Girls are a clever troupe of dancers, and the Leopolds, in their many knockabout and acrobatic feats, are as successful as ever. The piece is preceded by The Houseboat.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Millar.—The Dollar Princess is drawing crowded houses. Mr. W. H. Rawlings is highly amusing as Bulger, and Mr. Leslie Stiles is also diverting as the millionaire. Mr. Leonard Mackay sings effectively, and is altogether a big success. Miss Madeline Seymour takes the character of the adventuress in capable style, and Miss Effie Mann sings and acts well as the millionaire's sister. Miss Mabel Russell is a very graceful dancer, and the rest of the company give adequate support.

The Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Courtice Pounds and company have a bright entertainment in Charles, His Friend, interspersed with some delightful singing; Hilda Jacobsen gains much popularity in several choice numbers; the Arnatos are old favourites; Schichtl's Marionettes are very cleverly worked; Lillian, the trick cyclist, is here; and Peggy Pryde is a big favourite. Other good turns include Little Keeno and Alice Maple.

The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Frank Fenton and company appear in a well-acted tragic sketch, entitled Treachery. Arthur Reece is a big favourite here in new songs. A very clever bar show is given by the Carpatti Bros.; Maisie Ellinger's songs are well received; and others comprising a good bill include Daisy and Dot, Mabel and Moss, Sam Thompson, and Merian's Dogs.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Horace Hunter and company are appearing in a good sketch, Under Suspicion. Fred Hallam is vastly popular; Ike Scott and Son are in good form; and Ernesto, Perrier, Madge Goodall, and others are included in the programme.

The Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Whiteman.—Harry Weldon tops the bill, and has a flattering reception; Madge Osmond, the ideal dandy, makes one of the hits of the evening; Leslie, Lyn, and Willie are singers of repute; Clare and Pastor are good comedy artists; Frank Leslie is a big favourite; and the Eldras appear in a novelty act.

LEEK.—Grand Theatre and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Leek Theatre Co., Ltd.; Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Barry Bond.—Miss Hilda Beverley's admirably balanced company is here this week with A Woman of Two Lives and East Lynne. Miss Beverley, in the dual rôle of Ogarita and Angela Fenton, adds to her reputation; Mr. Herbert Pearson displays ability and vigour as Captain Travers West; Mr. James Garlett is a commendable Garda Khan; Mr. Jack Armitage is exceedingly good as "Billy" Tremaine; Mr. Arthur Slater gives a praiseworthy study of Colonel Fenton; Mr. E. Hall Eidon makes the most of his opportunities as Dick Smarter; Miss Marie Robertson acts charmingly in the character of Lottie Loudon; Miss Mary Brammer submits a powerful portrayal of the Red Witch; and Miss Hetty Schuler well sustains the part of Lady Arabella. The staging is excellent.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business Manager, Mr. Treeman Towers.—A first visit is being paid here this week of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's well-selected company in Smith. The principal parts of Smith and Tom Freeman are enacted in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired by Miss Cicely Stuckey and Mr. Robert Minster.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Alberton Turner.—The drama The Wrongs of Woman, which was originally produced with signal success a short time ago at this theatre, is on a welcome return visit, being presented by Mr. Hubert Hellliwell's company. Miss Ada Hender is again making a conspicuous success as Mrs. Helmstone; Mr. Harry Cullenford deserves praise as Corner Helmstone, and especial praise is due to Mr. Hubert Helliwell as Sir Herbert Comerford.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. L. Knight.—The premier turn this week is Serene Nord, aptly described as the "diving Venus"; the American ventriloquist, Lester, is responsible for a smart, novel, and entertaining turn; the Jackson Family of versatile musicians are making their usual hit; F. V. St. Clair is cordially received for his songs and recitations; the Soho Trio are popular in a good vocal and dancing scena; the Hadj-Mohammed troupe of Arab acrobats and whirlwind tumblers give an excellent display; Horace Wheatley, the well-known Irish comedian, is very good, his dancing being of the best and neatest; Lizzie Glenroy is a capital Scotch comedienne and expert dancer; and the Bioscope is also retained with entertaining films.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Heading this week's programme is Henri Cazman, in his entertaining potpourri act; Jack Hayton, the Lancashire comedian, convulses the audiences with his songs and patter; Rita and Roma are smart and entertaining; Edna Barrett is an excellent speciality dancer; and Gracie Hunt, comedienne and dancer, and Jim Meeson, light comedian and dancer, also appear. The films shown are especially good.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—At this, the first picture hall in Leicester, Mr. F. R. Griffithe continues to give his patrons a programme that is replete with the best films that can be procured. The two leading pictures this week are The Reign of Terror and Cowboy and Squaw, very fine examples of the art of animated photography. Val Robbins, an entertaining comedian and instrumentalist, is also appearing with success.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Gould; General-Manager, Mr. A. F. Beaton.—Mr. John F. Preston and company have occupied the boards here for the first three nights of the week with Mr. Smith. Mr. John F. Preston gives an exceedingly clever study of the title-part; Mr. Francis Everard supplies a fine interpretation of Lord Angeleand; and the Hon. Dudley Dysart has an able exponent in Mr. Dan F. Roe; Miss Mabel F. Barlow proves herself a clever and graceful exponent of the part of Lady Mary; Miss Maud Kynnersley makes a dignified Duchess of Angeleand; Miss Lily Pearce acts with dash and vivacity as Mrs. Smith; and Miss Ethel Leslie makes the most of her opportunities as Ruth Anhenser.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—At the head of a good bill here are the Brothers O'Brien, who are exceedingly clever in a trip'e-bar act; Tiny and Mite, juvenile artists, appear with success; Henry Hilton, sleight-of-hand expert, does many neat and clever tricks; a musical turn, provided by Musical Silvo, is greatly enjoyed; Marion Adelaide, in a song-scena, is much appreciated; Fred Carr and Ada Rose, and Misses Purvis and Partner, sketch artists, all find favour; and the Hipposcope is admired.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Davison.—Mr. Fred Granville's No. 1 company provides sound entertainment with the lively musical production A Hot Night. The chief burden of the more farcical element is vigorously sustained by Mr. Frank Daleno in the part of a waiter, and the rôle of a leading lady is made diverting by Mr. Jimmie Watson. A goodly group of familiar musical comedy characters includes Mr. Edward Stream and Mr. H. Jackson Collis as Frank Frith and Mark Maybury; and Mr. Charles North as Captain Drake, with Miss Olive Sparke, Miss Hilda Brent, and Miss Nellie Valentine as their respective wives. Mr. R. Austin Earl as Fontenoy Flutterwig, Mr. H. Val Morgan as a bogus professor, and Miss Mimi Fisher as Lucy Lorrimer help the fun along very effectively; and in addition to smart speciality turns contributed by all the above-named performers, the Granada Girls introduce—besides other terpsichorean attractions—a sensational Apache dance. An augmented orchestra works well under the direction of Mr. Sydney L. Hampton.

LIMERICK.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. G. V. Fogerty.—The Irish Animated Picture Company commenced a week's engagement at the Royal on Monday, and presented a realistic series of pictures to a most appreciative audience. The Jameson pictures are always well received, and the variety company, including Messrs. Francis Rayne, Ralph Goggin, and the clever little Sisters Colley in their artistic turns leave nothing to be desired. The principal films are The Doctor's Automaton, The Portuguese Rebellion, and Elephant's Labour in India. The other films are of the dramatic series.

Athenæum Hall.—Mr. George Mallins's pantomimic company are also attracting very popular houses, and Blue Beard was delightfully received. As the humorous Sister Anne, Mr. Mallins himself was very funny, and the pretty dancing and sweet singing of Miss Richardson as Selim pleased the audience. Mr. Herbert Lemley was good as Blue Beard, and as Diavolina Mr. Dick Howard was amusing. Messrs. Keenan and Fry as Rusk and Lusk were also very funny; whilst the clever sisters Alice and Ada Hibbert sustained their respective rôles with ability. As Fatima, Miss Lil Richardson proved an efficient artist; and the Misses Mollie McNaught, Venice Rome, and Precious Kinsella were equally capable and attractive.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—The Education of Elizabeth, presented by Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company, constituted the attraction on the first three evenings of the week. Miss May Norris was highly satisfactory as Elizabeth; and Miss Phyllis Dailey cleverly played the difficult part of Blanche; Mr. H. B. Waring as Fairfax and Mr. Ernest E. Norris as Reggie Harkey scored greatly. Her Fatal Marriage, submitted by Hinton and Green's company, concludes the week.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Atlas and Vulcana fittingly top the bill, and their weight-lifting, with that of the Sisters Atlas, is astounding, while Vulcana's posing is the acme of grace and effect; Frank Cass sings exceptionally; Miss Norman Grant is one of the best entertainers at the piano we have had; and Edwin Garth's dame song and patter are extremely funny; Forrit's whistling, the work of David Fuller, and Sydney Burdon's impersonations make up a fine bill.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Our Miss Gibbs is paying a second visit here, and meeting with much favour. Mr. George Edwardes's excellent company is headed by Miss Carrie Moore in the title-rôle, and Mr. George Gregory as Timothy. Both sing and dance to everybody's delight, and cordial recognition is extended to the accomplished artists. Mr. Frank Hector does capital work as Hughie Pierrepont; Mr. H. V. Cropton makes a natural Lord Eynsford; as Mme. Jeanne Miss Nancy Hervyn finds favour; and also in the cast are Miss Olive Moore (Lady Thanet), Mr. Leslie Gaze (Slithers), Miss Kitty Cavendish (Mrs. Farquhar), and Mr. Ernest Mahar (Toplady). Miss Florence Phillips dances excellently.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr John Gaffney.—The Benson company are putting in a second week. On Monday evening they opened with The Taming of the Shrew, in which Mr. Benson repeated his admirable Petruchio, Mrs. Benson being Katerina, followed on other days by The Merchant of Venice, The Piper of Hamelin, Richard III., The Winter's Tale, and Twelfth Night.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company, with Her Forbidden Marriage, is receiving strong support. Miss Alice Bowes plays Lucy tenderly; as George Maddison Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson shows much power and manliness; Mr. W. H. Porter brings out all the strong points of the rascally Charles Devereux; Mr. T. Macdonald, as his assistant, does well; capital comedy comes from Messrs. Fred de Vere (Timothy) and Vincent Lorraine (Joe Lambkin), aided by Miss Kitty Merrick (Patty Lovejoy); Lady Lancaster is capitally represented by Miss Vera Grafton; and Mr. Frank Denis acquits himself in the part of Sir George Lancaster.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—For the first time in Liverpool A Criminal's Bride is here with Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Emmie Barton plays Lavender Loseby in a sweet, tactful manner that earns for her a deal of favour; Miss Ella WiEmer presents a sound study of the Italian girl, Tessa Gianetta; as Sir Harry Felstead Mr. Frank Robertson acts with vigour; Austin Deepdene is capitally portrayed by Mr. Annesley Hely; Mr. Grayson Bancroft affords every satisfaction as David Loseby; good comedy comes from Mr. George Brentwood (Village Constable) and Miss Mollie Hackett (Jemmy Jenkins), and Mr. Herbert Belmore acquits himself as Canova.

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Miss Tommy is here for the first time. Miss Annie Hughes, in the title-rôle, proves exceedingly pleasing. The accomplished artist is having most flattering recognition. Mr. Henry Dene makes an admirable Dick Danvers; Mr. Mayne Lynton is a particularly amusing Peter Hope; Miss Vera Pole presents a careful and attractive Honor; and Miss Elinor Foster handles the heavy part of "Mr. Morrison" with tact. *Meg, the M with merriment; Dr. Mievi'le played well as Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr. Bernard Hobson as Frank Abercoed displayed useful musical talent; Mr. D. E. Mosely also made an excellent attempt at the part of Captain Arthur Donegal; and Mr. F. L. Canney was good as Leandro. As leading lady Mrs. Ewart C. Potter was delightfully successful, showing marked ability in acting as well as in musical proficiency in the part of Lady Holyrood; Miss Margaret Long acted artistically as Dolores; while Miss Josephine Moss made much of the part of Angela. The chorus did well, and the orchestra was quite efficient.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, which is staged here, affords Mr. H. B. Irving an excellent opportunity to show how well he can present the weird and uncanny. A big house witnessed the play on Monday, and the audience were duly horrified, especially by the scene in which the bestial Mr. Hyde returns before their eyes to the personality of Dr. Jekyll, incidentally startling his friend, Dr. Lanyon, to death. Miss Dorothea Baird as the wife of the unhappy Jekyll has, unfortunately, a very poor and unnecessary part; Mr. Eillie Norwood plays Dr. Lanyon in the style of an accomplished actor; Mr. Charles Sugden is cynically entertaining as Sir Danvers Carew; a quiet and natural impersonation of Mr. Utterson is given by Mr. Henry Vibart; and Mr. Frank Tyars makes an effective Poole, the butler. Miss Grace Croft as Lady Carew adds strength to the play; and among other clever members of the cast, Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem makes a hit in the comedy character rôle of Mr. Hyde's landlady, Mrs. Leppery. The play is preceded by a costume episode, A Maid of Honour, in which Mr. Frank Tyars as Cromwell and Miss Grace Croft as Mary Cave are the notable figures.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The Arcadians is always sure of a welcome here, and certainly there is no diminution of the wonderful attractiveness of this merry Courtneidge production. Mr. Walter Passmore keeps up the fun excellently as Smith (Simplicitas), and Mr. Oliver J. Round's Peter Doody is still one of the best things of the show. Miss Veronica Brady as Mrs. Smith admirably fulfils the comic requirements; Miss Ethel Erskine acts and sings very nicely as Sombra; and a pleasing impersonation of Eileen Cavanagh is given by Miss Billie Sinclair. The remainder of the long cast are all adequate, and the piece throughout is as bright and satisfying as ever.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, in The Cingalee, provide the week's attraction here. Miss Molly Wolstenhulme makes a charming Nanoya; Mr. Jack Crichton is prominent as Chambhuddy Ram; Mr. Cyril Dane's Harry Vereker is smart; Mr. Milroy Cooper plays Boobhamba with humour; Mr. Scott Cullen's Bobby Warren is an engaging impersonation; Miss Ida Ernest is pleasing as Peggy Sabine; and Mr. F. W. Ford makes a satisfactory Sir Peter Loftus. Full chorus and orchestra add to the entertainment.

METROPOLE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Mr. Fred Granville's (Productions, Ltd.) company is here in the domestic drama Another Man's Wife. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe plays excellently as Carlos de Vergas, and Miss Ruby Loncraine's depiction of Lucia, his wife, is also an outstanding feature. Mr. Sammy Foster as Sam Smiles provides a great deal of fun, and the whole production is exciting and enjoyable. It is played twice nightly.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Pearson.—The fourth and last week of Mr. Walter Howard's The Boy King adds further emphasis to the great success which this latest addition to romantic drama has attained.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 company is here this week in Florodora. It is brightly staged and played, the principals being Mr. Johnnie Schofield as Tweedlepunch, Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores, Miss Florence Horsee as Angela Gilfain, Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood, and Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus Gilfain. The other parts are well filled, and an Apache dance is introduced effectively in the second act.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The production of Mr. Galsworthy's Justice here is a notable event, and there is every sign that the fortnight of its run will be a very busy one, so far as the public are concerned. A better interpretation of this remarkable play than that which was given on Monday could not well be conceived, and the author, who superintended the production, must have been gratified to find his work in such astonishingly capable hands. Miss Irene Rooke's embodiment of Ruth Honeywill stamps her as an actress of the first-class—natural, tragic, and in every way effective without strain; and Mr. Milton Rosmer's Falder stands out as his best impersonation, which is saying much. Mr. Charles Bibby adds another to his successes as Cokeson, the managing clerk; the firm of How and Son are well represented by Messrs. Frank Darch and Henry Austin; and a marked success is added by Mr. Whitford Kane as Hector Frome, this actor being responsible also for the sketch of convict O'Cleary. Among others worthy of mention are Mr. Esmé Percy as Cleaver, Mr. Stanley Drewitt as the Judge, and Mr. John Beech as Sweedle. The play is produced by Mr. B. Iden Payne, Miss Horniman's art director, and it is extremely well put on.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Miss Ada Reeve, the famous comedienne, tops the bill here, and charms with her clever rendering of several taking songs; Elsie Southgate, assisted by Jas. Coward at the Mustil organ, contributes a delightful musical turn; A. and A. W. Asra are seen in a very smart and original juggling act; the Chrisps dance well in a novel scena, The Little Deputy; and other good turns are offered by Ethel Loftus, character comedienne; J. W. Rickaby, the popular comedian; the Four Sydney Girls, vocalists and dancers; the Three Cunards, in vocal and dancing act; Ridiculous Recco, burlesque acrobat; and Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer. The Palace pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Fred Karno's Mumming Birds and Skating form the two principal attractions here; the Three Asa Boys give a clever vocal and dancing act; Blanche Vincent, burlesque actress, is smart, and is well received; Pat Carey, comedian, provides an enjoyable turn; and other entertaining items are Rosie Lee, eccentric comedienne; Billie Melia, the dancing comedian; and Gwen Frances, a dainty comedienne.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Mme. Ella Russell tops the bill here, and gives the audience a rare vocal treat; King and Benson, who occupy the second place of honour, provide enjoyable comedy; Les Romanis present a novel musical act; Jean Clermont's burlesque circus is a wonderful exhibition of training; Farr and Farland's cross-talk is highly amusing; the ladder act of Les Silvas, the Portuguese firemen, is a sensational and thrilling turn; Witty Watty Walton, comedian, is bright and popular; and pleasing turns are added by Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer, and Will Johnson, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Happy Fanny Fields is the big attraction here, and meets with a most flattering and deserved good reception; an interesting turn is George the First, an exceedingly well-trained chimpanzee, introduced with success by Dandy George; Edmund Manner's company, including Henry Latimer, score a success in a one-act drama, Blind; Austin Rudd, a very popular comedian, is funny, as usual; Little Ganty is highly amusing in eccentric song and dance; Minnie Leslie and Edgar Stevens are well received in neat comedietta, Love Levels All; the Gotz Trio are seen to advantage in a wonderful globe and wire act; the Du Gros Trio, comedy gymnasts, give an original and clever turn; and Katie Butler is good as an eccentric character comedienne. Excellent pictures are also shown.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—An excellent all-round show is here, headed by Sylvia Cavalho and Clifford Pembroke in a well-acted romantic episode, The Fortune of War; Violet King, a very clever pianist and violinist, deserves the loud applause she gains; Charles Ulrick manipulates a large barrel, &c., with his feet in a most surprising manner; Josephine La Barte is well received for amusing songs at the piano; Jean and Josie are clever contortionists; Rayburn and Dix have some funny patter, and take well; Harry Morgan, comedian, sings coon songs with success; Pauline Potter, vocalist, sings well; and Vera Saunders is pleasing in song and dance. The pictures are very laughable.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore and company are the attraction this week in A Pair of Spectacles. A fine performance—twice nightly—is given, the principal parts being well sustained by Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore, Mr. Harry Emmerson, Mr. Frederick Meads, Mr. Hugh F. Wildy, Mr. Vernon West, and Miss Katherine Maynard, whilst capital support is rendered by Miss Sybil Greig, Miss Daisy Race, Mr. Claud W. Sykes, and Mr. George Preston. On Friday evening Hedda Gabler.

HULME.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—George Gilbey scores a huge success here this week; Maria Racko, an astonishing lady athlete, and Partner perform some astounding balancing feats, and are well received; De Ganty's grand illuminated water grotto, introduced by Mlle. De Silva, is a most beautiful spectacle; Cullen and Carthy, and Little Cluley are very funny comedians, and make their usual hit; Dolly and Elsie, dainty duettists and dancers, give a pleasing turn; G. H. Carlisle and H. M. Willmon in an original novelty musical act, are good; and Clifford Stuart takes well as a Lancashire comedian. Prison Reform on the Bioscope is an interesting film.

BIJOU ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thos. Morrison.—This week's films are very fine, and include Native Industries in Cochin-China, All's Fair in Love, Central American Romance, The Other Johnson, The Closed Door, Saucy Sue, and Mother's Love. The realistic effects, invented and worked by Mr. H. Danby which accompany the pictures, also deserve mention.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND.—Managing-Director, Capt. C. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Clayton.—This week Mr. Percy Williams presents The Fatal Wedding. An able and energetic company includes Mr. Cecil A. Melton, who deals in most satisfactory manner with the part of Howard Wilson; Mr. Alexander Wills is an able exponent of the part of Robert Curtis; Mr. Watson Hume faithfully represents the German, Janitor Peter; Mr. Harry A. Vernon is a good Toto; Mr. Frank Newton also is a success as O'Reilly; Miss Violet Keand is a sympathetic Mabel Wilson; Miss Elaine Vanburgh, an imposing adventuress; Miss Blanch Huber as the cook causes much merriment; and a clever little actress is seen in Little Hilda May, who plays Jessie.

MARCH.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Joe Collingwood, J.P.—The Love Birds, given by Miss Lole Esmond's company, were here on Monday and Tuesday.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—During the week Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus' company has been playing The Thief, and the cast has included Mr. Bernard Limpus and Miss Diana Cloud. As Richard Chelford, Mr. Bernard Limpus has given a clever character study, playing an exacting part in a natural and effective manner. Mr. F. Morland as Raymond Leyton has touched the heart of everyone, and sustains the pathetic situations with fine effect; Mr. Carl W. Lindsey has contributed good work as Harry Leyton; and Mr. W. Somerset, as the detective Protheroe, is excellent; Miss Diana Cloud puts much feeling into the part of Marise Chelford; Miss Mary Forrester does remarkably well as Isabel Leyton; and Mr. Leo M. Briggs is excellent as the servant.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the South of England Hippodromes, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mayall. — Fred Lindsay, stock-whip expert, heads the programme this week with a novel and remarkably clever display with the Australian stock-whip; the Sevronis, comedy artists, and Victor Widdicombe and company, in the sketch Her Devonshire Dad, are particularly amusing; Mr. Leslie Gordon, baritone, makes his début on the music hall stage this week, and his reception has been a most cordial one. Other contributors to the programme include Edith Harmer, character comedienne, and Arthur Leslie, comedian and mimic.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sandon Perkins.—The Merry Widow made her first bow to Merthyr audiences on Monday and had an enthusiastic reception. In the title-rôle Miss Dorothy Arliss is very successful as a vocalist, she is far above the average, while her graceful acting won the applause of all; Miss Mabel Hope as Natalia is charming; Mr. Robert Needham is Danilo, and his powerful acting and singing is highly appreciated; Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter is irresistibly humorous as the Baron; Mr. Harry Emeric is capital as Niech; as Jollidan Mr Harold Homeroy is seen to advantage; Mr. Tom H. David is well-placed as the Marquis; Mr. C. L. Steward does good work as Khadja; and Mr Cecil Warwick causes laughter as General Notakovitch.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, the Merthyr Entertainments Co.; Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Sisters Showell (Florence and Rose) are receiving much applause for their vocal numbers; the Oxos in their comedy pantomime, Sinbad Up-to-Date, score a success; Carlos Menard is a skilled musician. Other pleasing turns are provided by Ted Lennard, eccentric comedian; the Grayson Comedy Four, Florrie Wright, a dainty comedienne; Lisbon and Barker, comedians; and W. E. Hilton, the Scottish Valentine Vox. Pictures complete.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. F. Cyril Leighton's company is here this week with Capt'n Jack. In the name-part Mr. Ernest Owttrim makes a manly hero; the rôle of Mary, his wife, is effectively portrayed by Miss Nina Blake-Adams; the part of Anthony Cliversedge is well taken by Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh; Mr. F. C. Leighton is good as Barry Trent; Miss Betty Manners does well as his sister, Winnie Trent; Miss Ada Arnott as Ginge, a barmaid is well suited.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Goodison.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott and company are here this week. On Monday they presented The Octoroon. Mr. Chas. Draycott played with his well-known skill as Salem Scudder; Mr. Clinton Baddeley made a vigorous McCloskey; Mr. St. John Stuart did well as George Peyton; and Mrs. Chas. Draycott presented Zoe most artistically. A Stolen Birthright, The Heart of a Hero, Colleen Bawn, and Shadows of a Great City are also in the week's bill.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Messrs. Glenister and Ingram are presenting The House of Temperley. As Captain Jack Temperley Mr. Lionel Glenister makes a good impression; Mr. Howard Rose is seen to distinct advantage as Sir Charles Temperley; and the part of Lady Temperley is ably undertaken by Miss Adria Hill. The other characters are in competent hands.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Imeson.—The Prodigal Parson is played by Mr. W. V. Garrod and his company. The Rev. Tom Godley is ably played by Mr. W. V. Garrod; Myrtle Godley is cleverly portrayed by Miss Celia Barnard; and Miss Bertha Kingston is a success in the part of the parson's wife.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. J. Rembges.—George Lashwood occupies the top of the bill, and his contributions are received with much appreciation by large audiences; the concertina solos and patter by Dutch Daly are enjoyed; Donnas Trio, equilibrists, give a fine performance; Mooney and Holbein, advanced vaudevilleans, are amusing; Miss Edith Pink, comedienne; Rover and Gloria, comedy artists; Miss Violet Romaine, comedienne, and the Empire Pictures complete an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—Large audiences nightly witness a capital show of pictures. Owing to Mr. Tom Melbourne, of the Melbournes, having sprained his ankle while rinking, Li-Chang-Hi, Chinese conjurer and illusionist, assisted by Princess Tai-Mao, is substituted. Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in their speciality act, are very amusing. Other interesting items are provided by Miss Dorothy Watson, entertainer, and Mr. Hardy Williams, vocalist.

MORLEY.—ALEXANDRA PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Deacoff.—An entertaining turn here is supplied by Shenton and Chicks; Bessie Hind is a pleasing comedienne; Vera Mayne, vocalist, scores a distinct success; the Malbans, comedy duo, evoke merriment; and pictures complete.

MOTHERWELL. — New Century Theatre — Business-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company are here this week in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Claude Hermann is excellent as Harry Steyne, and Mary, his wife, is sweetly played by Mlle. Trissie Humphrys; Mr. Fred. G. Evison as Billy Brener is very good; Lenard Royde is well sustained by Mr. H. W. Hatcham; Hersam Padisha being equally well played by Mr. F. S. Strickland; while Miss Mildred Carr calls for mention as Nancy Brever.

NELSON.—Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Manager, Mr. J. S. Livesey.—Ethel Arden and Geo. Abels' company, who head the bill here this week, score a big success in their amusing sketch Three of a Kind; a unique turn is presented by Gitto, the Welsh double-voiced vocalist. His singing is preceded by a series of living pictures showing him at work as a moulder of steel plates. Gitto, who comes from the mills, possesses a fine baritone voice, also sings in the higher register. He gave a splendid rendering of "Queen of the earth," and, in response to an enthusiastic demand for an encore, contributed a charming little Welsh song attired in female costume. Gitto had a well-merited ovation. Villiers de Caston presents a series of clever illusions; the Les Carmody Trio of Continental juggiers do some smart work; and the Four Miovskys are highly diverting in their comic acrobatic and musical entertainment. Other good turns are supplied by Frances Hanlon, comedienne and dancer, and the Four Lubins, Russian singers and dancers.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Horner; Manager, Mr. Parker.—Messrs. J. Forbes Knowles and Harry Masterman's company is presenting Nick Carter, Detective, here. In the title-rôle Mr. Knowles proves highly successful; Miss Helena Walbran is an effective Madeline; and little Hilda Vokes acts prettily as Cyril. Mr. Raymond Thomas depicts the villainous machinations of Eustace Lee with skill; Dave Crawley is admirably treated by Mr. William Burgess; Miss Nellie Shirley makes a charming Stephane; Mr. H. C. Momber and Miss Nellie Fern sustain the comedy parts admirably. Mr. Will Ellythorne is a capable exponent of the rôle of George Slade; Mr. Jack Turnbull's Inspector Wilson is exceedingly good; and Miss Nellie Fern represents Bessie Timmins with distinct success.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Crowded houses are enjoying The Earl and the Girl, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's principal company. Mr. Edward Lewis has made a great success as Jim Cheese, and is ably supported by a large company and full chorus.

Pier Pavilion.—Lessees and Managers, the Amusements Syndicate, Ltd.—This week we have The New Barmaid, played by Mr. Alexander Loftus and company.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Miss Ethel Irving is paying a welcome visit here in Dame Nature. Miss Irving plays Lolette in a manner that secures emphatic recognition, the affectionate character and impulsive emotion of the part being depicted by Miss Irving in a vivid and natural manner. The supercilious and arrogant Princess de Chabran is admirably portrayed by Miss Mabel Hunt and Miss Florence Nelson gives a refined and pathetic rendition of Mrs. Garford. Mr. Frank Cooper carries conviction by his vigorous impersonation of Robert Bertram, and a clever piece of character acting is that of Mr. Norman Forbes' Prince de Chabron. The shrewd and good-natured Paul Garford finds an apt exponent in Mr. W. R. Staveley; and Mr. Charles Vane gives a dignified and serene delineation of James Ridgeway. Miss Kemble Cooper, Miss Olga Renne, and Mr. Alfred Brayton do good work in a thoroughly satisfactory fashion.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The Adelphi company, in The House of Temperley, occupy the boards here. Mr. Claude King has a part that suits him admirably in Captain Jack Temperley; whilst the elder brother, Sir Charles, is in the able hands of Mr. Stratton Rodney. Mr. Murray Carson impersonates the villainous Sir John Hawker with power and skill; Mr. Blake Adams as Ginger Stubbs is provocative of hilarity; and Mr. Leon M. Lion is an admirable Jakes. Mr. Douglas Munro is seen to advantage as Tom Cribb; and the same may be said of Mr. Stanley Turnbull as Jackson. Miss Joyce Francis makes a charming Mary; and Miss Pollie Emery scores as Lucy.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. Edwin B. Clark.—Messrs. Henry Chattell and Jack Denton's company, in Through the Divorce Court, is here. Miss Hettie Chattell appears as Lady Doloras Penarth, and her clever acting of the difficult part gains her much favour; Miss Lydia Hart makes a fine study of Dinah, and is very amusing; Mr. Riddell Robinson's acting as Lord Robert Penarth is very impressive; and Mr. Henry C. Cooper infuses the necessary vigour into the somewhat difficult rôle of Guyman di Mendoya. Much mirth is produced by Mr. Jack Denton's humorous rendition of the Hon. Algernon; and the minor parts are well filled.

Empire.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. W. Kilgour.—Kate Carney and Co. hold the place of honour this week, and their latest production, Fun at the Fair, is greatly appreciated; Goodfellow and Gregson are an exceptionally smart comedy couple; the Grassis score in a unique musical acrobatic act; Kitts and Windrum score in an amusing sketch; the Bollingers, in their rag-painting turn, Leo Stormont, baritone, Mary Ambrose, vocalist and violinist, Ugo Nap, comedy artist, Mike Nono, comedian and dancer, and the pictures conclude.

Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—Clark and Hamilton present some new and original items, and their clever patter is much enjoyed; the Six Brothers Luck are paying a return visit, and their sketch, H.M.S. Perhaps, is exceedingly funny; Mabel Mignon, comedienne, sings and dances herself into favour; Sniescll Bros. and Mack are acrobats of considerable ability; A. E. Clifford, vocal comedian; Addie Adell, vocalist; Eight Frolics, juvenile dancers, &c., the Smarte Bros. eccentric comedians; Bertie Herron, and the animated pictures complete the programme.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—Excellent variety turns are provided here by the Phœnix Trio of singers and dancers; May Mayho, serio and dancer; and Cambo and Castelle, in their clever vocal and acrobatic act. There is also the usual excellent and up-to-date show of pictures.

NEWRY.—Town Hall.—Owners, Newry Urban Council.—Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. C. Wray's company is here in Miss Hook of Holland. Mr. Charles Sims as Mr. Hook gives a capital representation; Miss Carda Walker excels in the title-rôle; as Captain Papp and Bandmaster Van Vuyt, Mr. Griffiths Moss and Mr. Jack Gray respectively are well placed. Mr. Edward Kipling sustains the part of Simon Slinks excellently; Miss Marion Armitage's Mina is also a capital portrayal. Mr. Harry Winton as Schnappe, Mr. Tom Bardsley as an old policeman, Mr. Ted Oliver as Hans Maas, Mr. B. Latham as Drack, Mr. Charles Jenner as Van Eck, Miss Hazel Alexander and Miss Ella Burke as Freda and Clara Voss, Miss Frances Walker as Gretchen, and Miss Harrie Green as an old market-woman all give valuable support.

NORTHAMPTON. — Temperance Hall. — Andrew's Pictures, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—A varied list of films is provided here. Two illustrated songs, sung by Mr. F. Nettleton, elicit great applause.

Picture Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. J. F. Bentley; General-Manager, Mr. J. W. Borrowman.—The leading films are Adventures in the Golden Valley, a fine coloured picture, Sandy, the Substitute, and Isabella of Arragon; the best comics are Wearie Willie as Ballet Girl, The Waiter's Dream, and The Only Pebble on the Beach.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's capable company is attracting large audiences here with Her Love Against the World. As Eric Mr. Fred Emery proves himself a clever and experienced actor; Mr. W. H. Hallatt as Prince Othmar is excellent; Mr. Roy Fortescue gives a capital performance of Ulric; Mr. Arthur Chisholm scores as Prince Maurice; and Mr. Charles R. Hann makes a satisfactory General Tessler. As Iris, Princess of Idalia, Miss Ellen Snow acquits herself with distinction; Miss Rossie St. John as Nello wins much appreciation; and Miss Blanche Steele as Sheela is worthy of mention. Some amusing comedy is provided by Mr. Fred Acton as Heinrick Pimpernickel and Mr. John Mill as Fritz Pimpernickel.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—An entertaining programme here is headed by the Three Merrions, vocal and instrumental comedy entertainers, who meet with a deserved big reception; Rohde and Roche present their comedy act, which is heartily greeted; Lily Langdon is a smart comedienne; the Five Yorkshire Lasses, in their vocal scena, are very pleasing; the Crowtrees, speciality artists, win applause; Jenny Vincent's dramatic recital is much liked; and Willie Haines, character comedian, is a great favourite. The pictures are interesting.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—A Message from Mars has been presented by Messrs. Percy Tyler and Dudley Stuart's company here this week. Mr. Dudley Stuart's Horace Parker is a capital portrayal; Mr. Percy Tyler's Tramp is a clever and natural study; the Messenger is impressively played by Mr. G. Beresford Innes; Mr. George Ronald fills the part of Arthur Dicey with distinction; Miss Eilly O'Dempsey does well as Bella; Miss Ruth Wingrove is a stately Miss Parker; and Miss Maud Gill is a charming Minnie Templar. Other characters are ably filled. The last three nights are taken up with Mr. Dickie Clare's company in Lucky Liza.

NORWICH. — Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Harry P. Bowers' company is here this week in The Best People. Mr. Harry Renouf as Lord Emsworth gives evidence of his ability, and is greeted with enthusiasm; Mr. Frederick Sargent is equally good as the Hon. Gerald Bayle; Mr. Claude Haviland gives a natural representation as Lord Wynlea; Mr. O. Forester as Jackson is everything to be desired; while Mr. Edward Nimme as Mr. Spofforth is excellent. Miss Irene Lavington deserves praise for her charming portrayal of Lady Emsworth; and Miss Evelyn Summers is particularly good and pleasing as the Hon. Mr. Bayle. As a curtain-raiser The Last Night is given, in which Miss Summers and Mr. Renouf take the chief characters in excellent style.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—An attractive programme is presented this week, heading which are Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, in their comedy playlet, An Amateur Anarchist. Paul Barnes as the droll American is most amusing; Griff, the sarcastic juggler, gives his inimitable performance and patter, and is much appreciated; the Valdo Brothers, in their absurdity The Eccentric Motor-bus Men, display agility as gymnasts, and prove great funmakers; Jack Lorne is quaint as the "Yorkshire lad," and inspires much mirth; Yetmah and the Japanese lady render a clever magical entertainment; Connie Mascot is a dainty comedienne and dancer, whilst Dolly Harmer proves a pleasing character comedienne. The Hippo. Bioscope pictures are very good, and include The Lady and the Burglar and other up-to-date pictures. A grand picture matinée is held here every Thursday, and proves a success.

Theatre de Luxe.—Proprietors, the Electric Theatres (1908), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. Hallisey.—The pictures this week include The Bandit's Wife, For Old Friendship Sake, Friends from Childhood, Dr. Grow 'Em Quick, Don't Hurry Nature, The Wild Man of Borneo, and others depicting travels.

NOTTINGHAM. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The excellent company of Mr. Harry Towers are giving The Mountaineers to big houses. Mr. Fred Eastman's drolleries and comical mannerisms are irresistible; Miss Marie Dainton is altogether delightful as Clarice, singing and acting with a sprightliness and charm that evokes hearty applause; Miss Spinifex is played on amusing lines by Miss Aida Jenoure; and Miss Ida Stratham makes a vivacious Annette. The Fritz of Mr. Claude Flemming is a fine performance, and his songs are rendered in an artistic and vigorous style; while Mr. Sen Holloway supplies a pleasant and agreeable portraiture of Conrad. Mr. Nevill Voyatt is a diverting exponent of Gustave; Miss Mona Campbell makes a demure Prudence; and Mr. Leo Sheffield vocalises acceptably as Sergeant Frederico.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry J. Crane.—Her Road to Ruin is here this week. As the Curate Mr. Charles Dickens plays with a dignity and manliness that carries conviction; Mr. Albert Grenville makes a pitiful picture as the Poor Journalist; and Mr. Dane Clarke is unctuous as the Bishop. Mr. Knox Orde enacts Philip Hardy in vigorous style; and Mr. R. L. Ellis gives a good performance as Charles Cholmondeley. In the pathetic part of Jess Miss Doris Gilham acts with commendable tact and sympathy; and Miss Grace Lester capitally embodies the sorely-tried Mary Dawson. Miss Gertrude Tate makes an engaging May Willoughby; and minor rôles are well filled.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—A lively little playlet, The Model and the Man, is divertingly given by Miss Zena Dare, Mr. Frank Wilson, and Miss Ivy St. Helier. As a raconteur Mr. Leslie Harris is very entertaining, and his delightful songs at the piano are always welcome; Barrett and Knowles are smart in their patter; and the ventriloquism of Thora is both amusing and clever. Alec. Piccad and company present a mirth-provoking sketch; the Cavalotti Brothers show remarkable skill in their musical act; Gwennie Hasto dances well; Dan Hendy's comicalities are appreciated, as are also some excellent films on the Bioscope.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. W. Austin.—The thrilling sketch The Midnight Express is a prominent item in this week's bill. Daisy James, in her latest skit on the hobble skirt causes much laughter; Madison and Webb add to the merriment by an amusing duologue; Elton and Elma give their expert bar performance; the Fitzroys are skilful gymnasts; Amy Anderson and company make a success in The Banana Queen; the Elite Harmony Boys sing pleasantly; and the eccentricities of Hadley Harman, comedian, and Fred Dunstone, comedian, are duly rewarded.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here this week with Her Secret Love. Mr. W. H. Wilson ably enacts Capt. Darrell Rose; Mr. J. Edward Fletcher is good as Gilbert Seymour; Mr. Alfred Stretton proves a capable villain, and is ably seconded by Miss Flora Leslie as Alicia Royale. Miss Laura Walker meets with much appreciation as Ivy Seymour; the humorous interludes are in the hands of Mr. Fred Russell as Billy Burley and Miss Lynn Darlington as Jane Maria Wilkes.

Empire.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; General-Manager, Mr. J. F. Elston.—On Monday the Nuneaton Empire opened as a first-class music hall, and, judging from the attendance at both houses on that evening, bids fair to be a success. The building has accommodation for 2,300 persons, the grand circle alone seating 400 in the newest tip-up chairs. The architectural arrangements have been carried out in a highly satisfactory manner by Messrs. Ward and Ball, of Birmingham. The furnishing was the work of Messrs. A. R. Dean, of London. Mr. J. F. Elston, recently the manager of the Grand, Bolton, has arranged a good bill, which is topped by the Three Krakes, in their clever and amusing act The Electric Tram Conductor; the Bros. Obo, as the laughing comedians and comedy duologue artists, supply a merry turn; Bonnetti and Corrie give a very funny juggling display; the Sisters Henderson provide and excellent turn; Douglas Campbell pleases the audience; and Phyllis Seymour's sentimental songs are well received. Some first-rate films on the Bioscope conclude the performance.

OLDHAM.—Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and his company are here in répertoire this week. The selection for the opening of the engagement was Hamlet, with Mr. Wilkie in the title-rôle. The Taming of the Shrew was staged on Tuesday. Mr. Wilkie acted in a capital manner as Petruchio, and Miss F. Hunter Watts as Katharina received hearty applause for clever work. Miss Hilda Plowright was charming as Bianca; and Miss Mary Lovett made a vivacious Curtis; Mr. Henry Hargreaves as Lucentio played the part to perfection; and Mr. G. Edward Dunstan makes a capital Tranio; Mr. Sinclair Neil was good as Baptista; and Messrs. H. Mansfield and Sibley Hicks as Hortensio and Vincentio, also acted well; Mr. Philip Gordon as Grumio acted cleverly, and received much applause; as did Mr. Houston Meharry as Biondello; Mr. John Paley as Pedant and Mr. Frank Mayes as Gremio also did good work; and the remaining parts were well filled. During the week The Merchant of Venice, The Sleigh Bells, The King and the Miller, School for Scandal, and Othello were staged.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company occupies the boards in the romantic play The Apple of Eden, and they have a good reception. Miss Janet Alexander as Queen Margaret acted with power; Miss M. Hayden was a clever Lady Hanbury; and Miss Tessa Myers as Winifred Cresson was excellent; as was also Miss Mysie Monte as the Maid. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland in the part of Julian Hanbury acted effectively; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan as the King did well; and Mr. Percy Ballard as Prince Nicola and Mr. Bertie as Robert Bertram were excellent; Mr. John F. Traynor was capital as General Pavlos; and Mr. H. Chalmers made a good Colonel Ferat; Mr. Percy Follis as Vassili and Mr. James Saunders as L'Atan were both capable.

Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Beggar Princess is being played here by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy and company. Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Seaweed acted in a charming manner; and Miss Ada Roscoe as Countess Olga was excellent; Miss Hilary Burleigh made a sympathetic Maggie Bolton; and Miss Isabel Hunt as Tommy Bostock was clever; Mr. Cassidy as the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh caused merriment; and Mr. Jaun D'Alberti as the Duke Sergius was excellent; whilst Mr. E. Lowrie as Moulet and Mr. F. Norburn as Allen Armstrong were capital, the bluff Abraham Bolton being well played by Mr. E. J. Fay; King O'ga, in the hands of Mr. A. Boxhall, was a creditable enactment; and Mr. Henry Danson as Michael Ichon did good work.

Royal Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Leach.—Convict 796 is the principal film, and Miss Aidee Mellor sings "Lead Kindly Light" with great success during the showing of the picture. The Attack on the Mill is another fine dramatic film; the Warwick Journal is again interesting, and some laughable films are shown which include The College Chicken, The Runaway Star, and Aunty in the Fashion. Mr. Leach contributes a good illustrated song.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Burt.—The Heart of a Sioux is a fine picture, and The Thief is another well acted drama. New Messina proves pleasing, as is Pathé's Series of Travel. Father Minds the Baby and An Enthusiast for Sunday Rest are amusing. Mr. Burt also contributes a song.

Osborne Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Hughes.—The attack on the Mill, Mystery of the Bridge of Sighs, and Jane and the Stranger are very dramatic; Ajaccio to Bonifaccio is an excellent travel picture; Foolshead, Fisherman, and The Kidnapped Servant are amusing comedy films. Miss Seddon is the vocalist.

Brown's Assembly.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown.—Tempest and Sunshine and May and December are excellent pictures. Tilly the Tomboy and Dickie's Courtship are good and funny. The programme includes several other pictures of merit.

OXFORD.—East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Karl Edwards.—Scottie and his variety company are occupying these boards. Among many interesting items are: Vivagna, marvellous card manipulator; Fre and Fra, vocalists and dancers; Will Warren, patriotic vocalist; Graham and Barron, quaint comedians; Lawrence Ivors, Irish tenor; and Dot Irving, lightning dancer. Two sketches are contributed by the company—Sexton Blake and Androcles and the Lion—in both of which Scottie plays the leading rôle very successfully. The Marathon cycle racing novelty attracts considerable attention, as does also "Whizzing the Whirl."

New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—On Monday Mr. George Edwardes's company commenced a successful return visit with The Dollar Princess, which was again received with great favour. Mr. Fred Leslie is admirably suited as Harry Condor; Mr. W. J. Douglas delights the house with his breezy and natural impersonation of Freddy Fairfax; Mr. H. Henson is a capital Dick; and Mr. Horace Mills has full scope for his wonderful comedy powers in the part of Mr. Bulger. Miss Muriel Allen is a handsome and imposing Olga; Miss Daisy Elliston plays the part of Daisy with conspicuous success; and Miss Kathleen Courtney wins all hearts with her delightful singing and clever acting as Alice. The Dollar Princess is splendidly staged.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey, the popular Irish comedian, is here for the second time within a few weeks, this time presenting the Irish musical fairy play, Rollicking Rory. In the name-part Mr. Mackey is the personification of real Irish humour, and Rosie, his sweetheart, is earnestly and well played by Miss May Livesey. Mr. Conway Hastings makes an excellent Stephen D'Arcy; as General Ashleigh Mr. Charles M. Julian gives an admirable presentment; Mr. J. P. McBride distinguishes himself by a clever and intelligent embodiment of Desmond Fitzgerald; Miss Jeanette Lyons as Rory's mother gives a characteristic delineation; Miss Nellie de Lacy plays with dignity the part of Mrs. Ashleigh; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey submits a good portraiture of Rosaleen.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—As a leading turn George A. Street and company gain the heartiest praise for their American sketch The Cattle Thief; the Mysterious Mysticus performs in a novel and wonderful manner; a daring and marvellous exhibition is submitted by the Bellong Brothers, cycle equilibrists; Bert Williams is genuinely funny in his ventriloquial novelty; Vera Rochdale, mezzo-soprano vocalist and dancer, has a hearty reception; George Rae is entertaining as a Scotch comedian and dancer; Marie Kay, comedienne and roller-skate dancer, is applauded; the Sisters Luraine contribute a clever musical entertainment; and the Hippodrome Bioscope concludes.

PENTRE.—Tivoli.—Lessee, Mr. Will Stone; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company presented The Female Detective here to good houses. Guilty Gold will be staged on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Workmen's Hall.—Manager, Mr. H. Salway.—An attractive picture programme is supplemented by Andrews and Thompon, the Anglo-American operatic duo; Ethel Ra Leslie pays a return visit, and fully sustains her reputation; and Mr. Joe Leslie, with suitable selections from his extensive répertoire, is still a feature of the evening's enjoyment.

PETERBOROUGH. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. Graham Arthur's company opened here on Monday with Every Inch a Man. Miss Mabel Elliott as Vera Maxwell submits a fine impersonation; Miss Mildred Eversleigh as Mrs. Edwards merits praise; Mr. Ralph A. Armfield is a good Alderman Barnet; Mr. Joe Barker a successful Ben Brown; Mr. W. Graham Arthurs acts cleverly as Dick Barnet; and Mr. Gerald Ord ably sustains the part of Daniel Barnet.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—Alec Hurley, the coster comedian, is on a return visit; Fred Mason is a good whistling comedian; Royston and Bradfield appear with success in The Bailiff and the Actress; the Whatneys are smart club and hoop manipulators; Mabel Sinclair, ventriloquist, is entertaining; Sissie Brand, comedienne and dancer, does well; the Thomsons are smart and amusing; and Leo Dryden, in a selection of operatic song playlets, has a warm reception.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Harry Towers' company in Dear Little Denmark is here this week. Miss Thelma Raye plays Christine admirably; Miss Winifred Volt as Ophelia has a couple of particularly catchy songs, to which she does full justice; Miss Nancy Rich as Adeline executes some graceful dances; and Miss Alice Waldie is an attractive Xandra. As Hans Hansen, Mr. Tom Payne is very humorous; Mr. Edward Thirlby is amusing as the gouty Duke; and Mr. Alec Bolton as Sergeant Ohls has one of the best songs of the piece.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Three Keltons provide a musical number far above the average; Rapoli, an eccentric juggler, has plenty of daring and originality in his tricks; Athas and Collins are as amusing as ever; Stewart and Morris, an accomplished pair of comedians, are very entertaining; the Kathleen O'Hanlon Trio are dancers of ability; Joe Archer's humorous contributions are popular; and Dorma Morgan has a charming style. Bruce Green furnishes the remaining item on the bill.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Mr. Geo. Tankard.—The Barrington Trio (two ladies and a gentleman), who head the bill, give a pleasing performance; the Lennard and Morton company presents a comedy sketch, entitled The Burglars; Mr. Henry Carlton gives a fine rendering of G. R. Sims's "The Lifeboat"; Shawlene brings down the house with his whistling act; the Becketow Brothers are original and amusing acrobats; and Sterling and Cashen, military comedy duo and dancers; the Mosaics, in speciality act; Gus Lindon, trick conjurer; Marie Ray, comedienne and dancer; and the Alexscope complete.

PORTH. — Palace Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth. — Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley present Two Little Drummer Boys here this week. Mr. Ed. Bikker gives a powerful portrayal of General Kingsley, V.C.; and Mr. A. T. Ellis as Captain Frank Carsdale and Mr. Polson Turner as Captain Darrell also play excellently. Mr. Alf. Edwards makes a capital Lieutenant Kingsley. As the two drummer boys, Miss J. T. Tracey and Miss Maudie Douglas contribute admirable portrayals; and Miss Patricia Connaughton as Molly Meadows is captivating. Margaret Rivers, known as Drunken Megg, is in the capable hands of Miss Minnie Watersford; and the General's daughter, Alma Kingsley, is attractively acted by Miss Violet Langley.

PORTSMOUTH.—Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner. The Portsmouth Orpheus Operatic Society are in occupation, presenting Tom Jones, in aid of local and service charities.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Fred Karno's Skating tops the bill, and provokes laughter; Dr. Willmar's spirit paintings, styled "The Riddle of the Century," mystify the audience; the dancing and acrobatic performance of Eadie and Cissie Ramsden is smart; William Mollison and company hold attention with their well-acted sketch, The Touch of the Child; a comedy juggling act is submitted by the Dardinis; another taking comedian is George Brooks; and Lizzie Daniels, Pat Rafferty, Helen Martin, and Bioscope pictures are well received.

King's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—A highly-picturesque entertainment is provided by Vere de Astra, in "A Shepherd's Dream of the Year," the artist appearing in a series of poses, amid elaborate scenic sets; she is assisted by Mlle. Wanda Baranoff and M. Olave Fritchoff, in dances depicting the four seasons. Farcical impersonations are submitted by Terry and Lambert; the Carmos, in a juggling act, introduce an airship novelty; Arabella Allen cleverly impersonates Dickensian characters; the vocalism of the Scottish Meisters is appreciated; the Faludy Troupe are daring acrobats; the Sisters Gaye are successful duettists and dancers; J. H. Greener's songs are liked; Walter and Bailey present their speciality; and this week's sketch is That Brute Simmons, by Geo. Elliston's company.

South Parade Pier.—Manager, Mr. A. Lalande.—Les Vivandieres, under Mr. Carl Frederick's direction, are the principal entertainers here. Mlle. Cordelia's dances, with electrical effects, being greatly admired. Wednesday was devoted to a Scotch concert, under Mr. Hugh Campbell, the artists including Misses Bessie Vigars, Lottie Hore, Messrs. J. B. Huntley, F. Holman, with Piper F. Ross (bagpipes) and James Laughland (sword dancer, &c.).

Clarence Pier.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. Cuddy.—Both Miss Mabel Monson and Mr. Whitworth Milton delighted a large audience on Saturday. The Fantastics have been re-engaged for this week's entertainments.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Mr. James Welch's company, in the farce When Knights Were Bold, is this week's attraction. Miss Violet Noel is an excellent Lady Rowena; Miss Elspeth Oliphant and Miss Lena Flowerdew as Alice Barker and the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave deserve praise; and Miss Lee Lewes is an excellent Sarah Isaacson. Mr. Chas. F. Lloyd as Isaacson and Mr. Colin Johnston as the Dean are both admirable. Mr. Alan Macdonald is a droll Hon. Chas. Widdecombe; and Mr. Humphrey Warden a satisfactory Sir Brian; while Mr. John Cecil and Laurence Stephenson acquit themselves creditably as Barker and Wittle.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Mike S. Whallen tops the bill, and succeeds in raising hearty laughter by his witty patter; the W. T. Thompson Trio, including Miss Maud Leighton, W. T. Thompson, and Bert Wade, in Watch the Chalk, creates much laughter; Frances McNulty, in her latest American success, is a winsome comedienne; the Hartley Wonders, in their marvellous jumping specialities, are as acceptable as ever; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl, is very popular; Marie Santoi and her Merry Japs, in their musical scena, A Night in Japan, is a most acceptable turn; and Nightingale and Stigant (Joe and Arthur), in their novel comedy duologue, Two Sides of a Wall, cause roars of laughter. Some interesting views of the Portuguese Revolution are shown on the Bio. Will Shaw, comedian, also contributes.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manager, Mr. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Clarkson.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company, in The Sailor's Wedding, is here this week. Mr. Frank Bertram enacts the part of Jack Hawkins excellently; and the capital company include Miss Madge Moote, Miss Olive Warne, Miss Daisy Gwynne, Miss Celestine Bertram, and Miss E. Giddens; Messrs. Stanley Harrison, J. H. Darnley, Cecil Klein, Alfred Fisher, and Alfred Holles.

RADCLIFFE.—Grand Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Testo Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Sydney Carlton's company are here this week in Night and Morning. Mr. Willie H. Vernon is very good as Bob Barleycorn, and Mr. Bertram Damer does excellent work as Lionel Mildmay. Dr. Gilmour is in the safe hands of Mr. David Curtis, and Mr. Stanley Carlton is seen to advantage as Richard Sefton; while Mr. James Fielding as Captain Shark deserves praise. Miss Rubie Maude is capital as Alice Wylford, Miss Jenny Bostock does ample justice to the part of Mrs. Barleycorn, and Miss Marion Holly is equal to the calls of Selina, a drudge.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Palace Theatre.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Chas. Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman. — Messrs. Clifford Hamilton and Charles Locke's company have this week been staging A Woman's Past. Miss Dora Pass admirably fills the rôle of Bessie; Mr. Percy Dawsone is excellent as David Heath; and a similar description fits the case of Mr. Lock as Frank Delanney and Mr. Victor Gordon as Clement Harpur. Mr. Clifford Hamilton does good work as Uriah Craven; and the ladies' parts are filled in satisfactory fashion by the Misses Laura Bitterne (Mrs. Brown), Dorothy Veheyne (Dorothy Heath), and Phyllis Elton (Clara Darvell).

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Hamilton Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw.—To a crowded house the original Life of a Showman company gave a most acceptable performance on Monday. Miss Dora Price was a powerful and effective Baroness de Villemont; Miss Eileen Bamford a charming and womanly Mrs. Brien Leader; Mr. Frank Sante an admirable Brien Leader; and Mr. J. R. C. Hamilton an excellent villain. Sir Noel Hartland was well represented by Mr. E. Bretton, and Messrs. Tom Maynard and Wheeler were satisfactory. Miss Kitty Lambert was good as Angelina Mutton.

READING. — Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company is presenting Mr. Preedy and the Countess here. Mr. A. N. Baskcomb plays Mr. Preedy excellently; the part of the Countess is admirably sustained by Miss Nellie Powys; Mr. John Nesbitt portrays Bounsall characteristically; Miss Mary O'Farrell is good as Emma Sidgrave; Mr. Shirley Lea acts well as the Manservant, and the other parts are well filled. The play is preceded by The Chance, in which Mr. C. Humphries, Miss Ninon Dudley, and Mr. J. D. Geddes appear to advantage.

The Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Curlins Baldry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Kedge.—The Australian Woodcutters are providing a novel and interesting turn here, preceded by a cinematograph film in which the work of tree felling in the Australian forests and the difficulties of transport are vividly depicted. Jackson and McLaren give a fine exhibition of their skill in tree felling and expert axemanship. Other items are offered by the Prince Milner Trio in their pot-pourri act; Gladys Williams, an attractive comedienne; the Dunvilles, who show ability as instrumentalists and vocalists; Adele Morew, international comedienne, who sings and dances with Parisian vivacity; Ford and Maxwell give a clever exhibition of wooden shoe dancing; Les Alex Carangeot do some wonderful acrobatic gyrations in their original dancing act, "La Fiance du Dragon," in which some startling effects are introduced; and Arthur Pier, comedian, also appears with success.

ROCHDALE.—Royal.—Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Mr. Lionel Rignold's company in What the Butler Saw is playing to crowded houses. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink, the Butler, is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Charles Fawcett is a capital Jack Barrington; Mr. Harry H. Rignold takes the part of Abraham Weinstein cleverly; Mr. Raymond Dudley is good as Sir Charles Foden; Mr. Pat Alexander gives an interesting study of Professor Shale; and Mr. George Ascot is a realistic General Dunlop. Miss Zoe Gilfillan is charming as Mrs. Barrington, and Miss Maria Daltra as Miss Foden is a decided success.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—One of the special events of the season has been the visit of Mr. Herbert Trench's Haymarket Theatre company in The Blue Bird, which on Monday met with a cordial reception from a large audience. Maeterlinck's beautiful symbolic story allied to the charming fairy scenes appealed strongly to the sympathies of old and young, and the music, so well wedded to the fanciful theme by Mr. Norman O'Neill was adequately performed by the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. Jackson Byles. The exquisite scenery and dresses were a treat to people blessed with artistic susceptibilities, and the acting was on a par with the excellence of the piece, Miss Lizzie Webster as the Fairy Berylune and Mrs. Saba Raleigh as Night being much admired. At the close all the artists were enthusiastically applauded.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—The Heathen and the Christian is paying a return visit, the mounting is first-rate, and the members of Mr. Frank Adair's company are animated by a commendable esprit de corps. Mr. Frank Adair's Li, the avenger, is a powerful study of a repulsive character; Miss Louie Adair is a handsome representative of Mira Sampson, and she cleverly depicts the jealous hatred of a "woman scorned." Effective contrasts to the two leading rôles are Mr. Dudley Wynton as a missionary and Miss Stanley Burt as his devoted wife. Miss Connie Meadows as a comic servant, with songs and dances, makes a welcome relief to the melo-dramatic episodes of a cleverly constructed play.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mrs. Morton Powell's Brought to Ruin is hard fact, illuminated by fiction, and the large audiences at the Alxeandra have expressed their opinion on the "white slave" traffic in no uncertain way. As an adventuress the authoress acts with histrionic power, and a certain distinction, which compels attention, and other characters are excellently represented by Mr. Harry Scott, Mr. Richard Vane, Mr. Sydney Bryant, Mr. Alaric Burton, Mr. Julian Mitchell, Mr. Arthur Beaufort, Mr. George Cuthbert, Miss Jeannie Risley, Miss Kathryne Eckhart, Miss Bertha Lake, and Miss Alice Defoe, who makes a graceful and pathetic heroine.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The celebrated illusionist, Mr. Horace Golding is mystifying large audiences this week, assisted by the charming dancer Mlle. Jeannie Fransioli; a smart act of cycling, comedy, and eccentric dancing is done by the clever Villion Trio, who are loudly applauded; Mr. W. J. Churchill's easy manner and funny patter keep him in his assured position as a big local favourite; M. Doris Lensky, violin virtuoso, is enthusiastically received; and Miss Rosa Loader as "The Slavey at the Piano"; the popular McConnell Trio, sketch artists; Mr. Bert Harlow, eccentric; Mr. Barriston, vocalist; and the Bioscope make up an attractive programme.

THE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—Mr. Fred Karno's screamingly funny absurdity Perkins, M.P., with the amusing burlesque actor, Mr. Tom Nelson, in the title-rôle, is again making the welkin ring with laughter; the skilful and original Mephisto does a marvellous and unique entertainment; the Permane Bros. are clever performers; and also appearing are Miss Hazel Glade, Miss Norah Stockelle, Mr. Archie Royer (comedy acrobat), Neodia (a clever quick-change artist), the Ansonia Troupe of equilibrists, Osborn and Brooks, in a good turn, and Miss Amy Clevere, a favourite here. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Gladys Gaunt.—Sterling domestic dramas, well played by the stock company, are delighting the patrons of the "old Star." Convict 99 and The Hand of Fate are billed for this week, with pictures, &c.

PICTURE PALACE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Arnold Shaw.—A series of artistic pictures fully keeps up the prestige of this palatial resort of Bioscope-lovers.

CENTRAL HALL.—The J. Redfern Co., Ltd.—The local motor-car speed trials and other pictures please the habitués of this cosy hall.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr Thos. Baugh.—Day and Dean are a capable pair of comedians; Bowie a clever juggler; Bert Ward a fine whistler; Frank Weaver's sand and eccentric dances are exceedingly good; Will and Nell are a dainty and well-trained couple of dancers; Le Hurst vastly amuses with his ventriloquism; and Mr. Harry Tate's company, in the screamingly funny sketch, Fishing, cause diversion.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is presenting Facing the World Alone. Miss Ethel Van Praagh is well suited to the part of 'Melia Burgess, the flower girl-countess. Mr. J. Edward Whitty plays with telling effect as Captain Parkhurst; Mr. Edward Ouston portrays Caleb Valentine with easy grace; Mr. R. Wilton is an effective Barnard Avory; Mr. Guy P. Ellis a realistic Jim Mouler; and Mr. Harold Forde does well as James Sudbury. Miss Flora Hastings is a satisfactory Lady Cecilia Constantine, and Miss Edith Rutland an excellent Duchess of Pimlico.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Kennedy; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Adams; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Leslie.—At the top of an attractive bill is Beanland, a clever female impersonator. At the bottom of the bill the Lashmars provide an amusing turn. The Leslies, in sketch, A Jealous Wife, are good. Will B. Bright, American back dancer, receives well-merited applause; Charles Dixon is an eccentric comedian; Violet Rivers, whistling comedienne, is much appreciated; Jack Pardoe, wire walker, is smart; the Digbys are an amusing comedy duo; and the pictures are interesting.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is this week appearing in W. Somerset Maugham's comedy Smith. Mr. Montagu Love is very successful as Tom Freeman; Miss Jessica Thorne in the title-rôle gives a capital portrayal; and the Misses Eleanor Delaporte, Kathryn Collier, Eileen Atherley, and Messrs. Vivian Gilbert and Cecil Brooking are all responsible for clever characterizations.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Archibald Pareezer.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's excellent company played A Thief in the Night here on Monday. Mr. Alfred Goddard gave an accomplished impersonation of Alan Escombe; while Miss Florence Dalton as his wife submitted a praiseworthy characterisation; villainy was ably depicted by Mr. Leyton Cancellor as Michael Pagani and Miss Beatrice Homer as Sonia Cleeve; Messrs. Chas. Danecourt as Richard Cleeve and C. Alan-Hineson as Crake gave good assistance; Messrs. Hugh Wallace and Philip Crossley took their respective parts with credit; and Mr. Bert Atherton as Toby and Miss Jeannie Hallworth as Happy Christmas provided entertaining comedy in a pleasant manner.

THE HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis De Burgh.—The programme this week includes the following: Olive Armidale, comedienne; The Findens, in A Desperate Remedy; Fred Barnes, light comedian; Bi-Bo-Bi, instrumentalist; the Two Vestas, juvenile duettists and dancers; Barclay Gammon; Esta Stella, comedienne and dancer; Harry Grey, comedian; and the Jewels, in the Haunted Castle.

LUNA PARK AND PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr. T. W. Hilton; Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Much enthusiasm was shown on Monday, when pictures were again the chief attraction. Messrs. Blackwell and Crosse gave delightful vocal and instrumental act, while Jack Roscoe proved a favourite light comedian. Two programmes are submitted nightly, except on Wednesday and Saturday, when dancing is substituted for the second performance.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison.—The Speckled Band was presented here for the first time on Monday by a good all-round company, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Hardy. Mr. C. W. Somerset submitted a powerful and very effective impersonation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott; Sherlock Holmes had a natural and clever exponent in Mr. Julian Royce; the rôle of Enid Stonor was admirably depicted by Miss Alice Leigh; Miss Adelaide Grace efficiently represented Mrs. Staunton; the old butler, Rogers, was characteristically portrayed by Mr. Herbert Vyvyan; Mr. Bellenden Clarke was very good in the part of Dr. Watson; Mr. William Duncan as the Coroner acquitted himself with great credit; Mr. E. H. Paterson was a droll representative of Mr. Armitage; Ali, the Indian, had a sleek impersonator in Mr. Gerald Rogers; Billy was well played by Master James Woodings; and other good characterisations were supplied by Mr. Harold S. Standring, Mr. F. Finch Smiles, Mr. H. Ainger, Mr. J. Wood Ingram, and Miss Lucie Verrier.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—Mr. Wm. Greet's company presented The Sign of the Cross to good houses. Mr. W. Lawson Butt makes an impressive Marcus. Nero is well accounted for by Mr. Bernard Elliott; Tigellinus, Lucinius, and Viturius are all well played by Messrs. Charles Aldred, I. Weatherall, and Phil Ellis. Miss Evelyne Hope is sympathetic as Mercia; Miss Winifred Delevanti is good as Stephanus; Poppœa is captially played by Miss Mabel Cooke; Miss Dorothy Lart is well cast as Berenice; and Miss Esme Lee makes a good Dacia. The humour of the piece is hit off by Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Appearing here this week is Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company in The King and the Unknown Woman. Mr. Norman Partridge acted well as Prince Louis, and Mr. Walter T. Clifford in the rôle of Prince Menski was a great success. Mr. Cyril Harrison made a capital Captain Gara; Mr. W. R. Winning came out creditably in the rôle of General Platz; Miss Adeline Raby as Countess Melvitch acted capably; Miss Ella Sennett in the part of Else was interesting; Miss Violet Carlyle was seen to advantage as Zora; and Miss Anena Walton in the character of Schnapps played well.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Sleep; Manager, Mr. Leslie Talmage.—The variety turns here include:—Henry Albano, a clever English concertina soloist; Tom Black, a good double-voiced vocalist; Jock McNeil, Scotch comedian; and Ward and Davis in the sketch, Wanted, a Typist.

ARCADIA.—Proprietor, Mr. [illegible] F. Gowland; Manager, Mr. R. Fenny.—A fine programme here includes the Misses Lytton and De Silva, charming operatic duettists; the Marvellous Daye, clever exponents of second sight; and Myrtle Grove is a good juvenile vocalist and dancer. The pictures are up to the usual standard.

TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. A. J. Vasey and E. W. Dodshon.—Appearing here at the head of affairs are the Brothers Hornby, who score well in a vocal comedy act, The Rivals. As an equilibrist and contortionist Chiko is very good. Films of an interesting character are shown.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Mr. George Dance's company is presenting Miss Hook of Holland to big houses. Mr. Alfred Wellesley makes a capital Mr. Hook—his quaintness is so natural and unassumed, and his individuality suits the part so well that his success is assured from the first; pretty Miss Nan Stuart fills the part of Sally charmingly, and her singing and bright acting are quite captivating; Mr. Mansell Stringer acts admirably as Bandmaster Van Vuyt, and his fine voice gives much pleasure—the duets with Sally are especially well rendered; as Capt. Adrian Paap Mr. Arthur Wood Manvey displays great judgment both in acting and singing; Mr. Charles Ross is equally good as Ludwig Schnapps; and Mr. Harry Brayne's Simon Slinks is effective. Miss Maud Denny is a captivating Mina, her rendering of the attractive numbers allotted to the part being heartily encored. The chorus is excellent and the orchestra well up to the mark, both under the direction of Mr. H. A. Dyer.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Minola Hurst and her miniature marvels are exceedingly interesting and amusing; Everhart produces a fine show of hoop manipulation; the Four Mexicans, lasso wonders, certainly do wonderful things with the lasso; Vowles and Bryan are pleasing in their scena; Will Lindsay raises a good laugh; the Rangers are highly expert cycle performers; the Four Sisters Gilby, in becoming costumes, give some musical items excellently; and the programme concludes with a laughable entertainment by Barnard's mannikins.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Fatal Wedding, which has been presented by Mr. Percy Williams's talented company, has attracted large audiences here. Mr. Hugh Montgomery acts with ability as Howard Wilson; as Robert Curtis Mr. Royce Milton is thoroughly effective; Toto is amusingly played by Mr. Sam Springson; and Peter Shwortz is pleasingly impersonated by Mr. Cyril Melton. Miss Leah Marlborough acts with stately grace and power as Cora; Miss Ethel Kay is sympathetic as Mabel Wilson; Miss Nellie Summers makes a mirthful Bridget; whilst a word of praise is due to Little Lussanne as Jessie. The juveniles, in their specialities, displayed marked talent.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—A performance of exceptional merit is that of the Three Royal Dreadnoughts, champion rifle shots, whose display of marksmanship evokes well-deserved applause; an interesting sketch entitled Wrong 'Uns, given by Mr. James Hare and company, is appreciated; Carlotta Levey's songs were pleasingly greeted; the Sisters Geretti, trapeze artists, are wonderfully smart; Harry Morris is an amusing comedian and story-teller; Rosaby and Rene, in Fine Feathers, are very entertaining; Harry Levaine, comedian, causes plenty of laughter; and the Four Quaint Q's, harmonious comedians and dancers, are most successful.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. G. M. Polini's and Mr. Austin Melford's company pays a return visit here with The Silver King. Mr. Arthur H. Rooke as Wilfred Denver is seen to advantage; Miss Mildred Surrey is a charming Nellie; and Mr. Edward J. George, in the character of Jaikes, is most natural.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. V. Stainton.—Tom Foy and company are well received in their absurdity, The First of April; Three Veros are clever speciality dancers; Giovani Daruso, violinist, takes well; Doris Del Monte is daring with her five Polar bears; Robb Wilton is a comedian with good patter; Trevor and Wall are pleasing in a comedy duo; May McPherson sings well; Marguerite Broadfoote is as popular as ever; and the Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson and Mr. James Usher's company was accorded a hearty welcome here on Monday last with The Black Mask. The author himself gave a most dramatic rendering of Le Noir. Miss Florence E. Florence also did well as Nellie Cunningham.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—This week Miss Grace Warner and company present The Scarlet Clue and The Wages of Sin. On Monday evening, in The Scarlet Clue, Miss Warner showed her wonderful grasp of the histrionic art in the part of Scarlet Sal, alias Mrs. Michael Stanton; Mr. George Gordon gives her able support in the part of Michael Stanton; the twin brothers are well played by Mr. Frank Esmonde.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE, PICTURE PALACE, AND VARIETY HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—Victor Brothers, herculean equilibrists, head the bill, and are popular; Winifred Ray is a comedienne of great merit; the Dancing Duggans, skate, wooden shoe, and sand dance artists, give a turn which is out of the ordinary; Harry Cline is a comedian whose songs go well; the Double A's foot the bill with a smart comedy act, The Other Mrs. Brown; and Phelps' Electric Pictures are well chosen.

STROUD.—SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Ghent.—Messrs. Nicoll, Rivington, and Howard's company was here on Saturday and Monday with Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Miss Cecile E. Anson gave a realistic embodiment of the title-part; Miss Muriel Locking as Miss Hazy was droll and quaint; Miss Clara Earle plays Lonely Mary with grace and charm; the Misses C. M. Lancaster, Ivy Sheppard, and Madge Ward were girlish and animated as Asia, Europena, and Australia; Miss Edith Netting as Mrs. Eichorn and Miss Ruth White as Mrs. Schultz added to the humour of the production; Miss Constance Cammreger acted Lucy sweetly; Mr. Stubbins was portrayed with effect by Mr. Kenneth Rivington; Mr. George Howard well embodied Mr. Wiggs; Mr. Robert Herne made a good Deacon Bagsby; and Mr. George Kingsland and Mr. James Hodge ably represented Hunkerdunkus Jones and the Sheriff.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow; Treasurer, Mr. L. Crawford Orr.—Mr. Sylvanus Dauncey and Mr. Hanworth Browning's company are appearing here this week in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards gives a powerful impersonation of Jack Frobisher, and imbues the rôle with much strength; Mr. Russell Barry fills the rôle of Hanky Bannister with commendable unconventionality; the Marquis of Steventon is excellently done by Mr. Franc Stoney; Mr. Hanworth Browning gives a studied rendition of Harry Dallas; Miss Gwendoline Hay displays histrionic ability as Lady Alathea, infusing into the character much sweetness and charm; Miss Dora McDonnell gave a refreshingly piquant rendering of Lucy; and Lady Westerby was capably taken by Miss Eileen Orby. Miss Florence Steventon is also good as Tiny Mornington. The play is excellently staged, and is preceded by a smart curtain-raiser, which is charmingly played by Mr. Ethelbert Edwards and Miss Steventon.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Cliffe and Vanstan are being given an enthusiastic reception here for a clever and refined musical item; Douglas and Clarke are also being appreciated for their dancing and patter.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is playing here this week in The Coal King. Miss Winifred Love is admirably adapted to the rôle of Grace Shirley, and gives a fine rendering; Miss Emily Levetter does some good dramatic work as Mad Ann; Mr. Cecil Woodhouse gives a meritorious interpretation of the part of Tom Roberts; Mr. A. W. Norman gives a masterly performance as Sir Reginald Hartford; as also does Mr. Frank Dalton as Dick Shirley. Mr. Sydney C. Kearns as Walter Hartford proves himself a capable exponent of villainy. The comedy is in the excellent hands of Miss Laurie O'Neill and Mr. Frank Caffrey, both of whom do capital work.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—The Arcadians is being presented here by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson creates fun as Simplicitas; Mr. Alfred Beer's interpretation of Peter Doody could scarcely be better; Mr. Wallace G. Court proves a capital Sir George Paddock; Mr. Arthur S. Macdonald an admirable Jack Meadows; Bobby is well taken by Mr. Cyril Lane; Miss Gertrude Aylward's portrayal of Mrs. Smith is greatly appreciated; Miss Molly McIntyre makes a successful Eileen Cavanagh; and Miss Sybil Tancredi sings and acts delightfully as Sombra.

TODMORDEN.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Dewhirst.—Mr. Stuart Lomath's company is here this week in Whom God Hath Joined and The Thief Catcher. On Monday night Whom God Hath Joined was presented to an appreciative audience. Mr. Stuart Lomath makes a powerful Captain Jack Merritt, and Mr. George Edwin Clive as Major Stevens is very convincing. Mr. Oswald Douglas makes a humorous Digby Trant; Mr. Frank Orehard ably enacts the rôle of Richard Manly; Watty Cooper is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Victor H. Crawford; Miss M. Ainsley capably delineates the part of Marion; Miss Madge Ashdown sings and acts well as Frankie; Miss Olive Lindsey is good as Teddy; Miss Daisy Stone makes a chic Kitty Crumpet; and Miss Amber Wyville as Beatrice Trant ably seconds Major Stevens.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. W. V. Garrod's company is presenting A Country Girl in London. The title-rôle is ably filled by Miss Maude Merrick; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson gives a clever study of Gwendoline Gordon; Frank Gordon finds a capable exponent in Mr. Chas. Halling; Godfrey Clinton's evil deeds are presented by Mr. Scott Leighton; Mr. S. Pateman is a realistic Joe Smithers; and Mr. F. Dallas a diverting Heinrich Oppenheim.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Ton-y-pandy Hippodrome Co.; General-Manager, Mr. David Taylor.—The Great Ruhart, protean artist, heads the bill here. A most popular turn is Mlle. de Bose, and Hilda Claremont; Pitti Sing does well; Stuart and Avans are appreciated; as also is J. H. Hawtrey. Some good films are shown.

EMPIRE.—Chairman and Manager, Mr. John Young.—Chas. M. Daly's company pays a welcome return visit with Men were Deceivers Ever. The Bros. O'Gorman amply justify their description of nimble; F. S. Peake presents a Cromwellian episode; the Two Countees are well applauded. Entertaining and meritorious items are given by Chas. Grantley, Tony Black, Harry Conlin, Rosie Coleman, and Miss Mi-Narom. The Empiroscope concludes.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Ald. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is here with Charley's Aunt. Miss Phyllis Back is a charming Amy, being ably seconded by Miss Ruth Henton as Kitty; Miss Audrey Stafford is quite at home as Donna Lucia; Miss Janet Gillette as Ela Delahay is much appreciated; Mr. Francis Drake is a natural Jack Chesney; Mr. Robert Burnett an admirable Charles Wykeham; and Mr. Theo. McCausland as Col. Chesney and Mr. Henry Hare as Stephen Spettigue are excellently suited, Mr. Sydney Compton as Brassett being exceedingly droll. The chief success of the play, however, is the amusing portrayal by Mr. Hugh Wakefield of Babs.

BATH SALOONS.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. G. Courtney.—The Joseph Poole Myriorama, under the direction of Mr. J. Wellesley Poole, has been doing good business here. Excellent variety turns are contributed by Eileen and May, in a musical speciality; the Victas, acrobatic barrel jumpers; and the Four Wartanas, in a clever juggling turn.

TREHERBERT.—POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A Tottcn.—Crowded houses enjoy the really fine pictures; Miss Elene Briton, the midget singer, sings some very pleasing songs; Rozel does startling tricks on the rope and rings, and Herbert Bartlett and company cause roars of laughter in their sketch, The Collar Stud.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company is here in As Your Hair Grows Whiter. Mr. Hubert Jones is an earnest and manly Rev. John Alberry; a finished study of Farmer Walters is presented by Mr. R. Nelme Crasswell; Mr. Percy St. Clair distinguishes himself in the part of Jack Walters; Mr. Louis Weston is an amusing Mozart; Miss Agnes Collier a sweet and pathetic Alice Walters; Mrs. Walters receives a clever rendering from Miss Florence Delmar; Miss Emily Lewis is a capital Nurse Von Grip, and Miss Lily Fuller an efficient Diana Vanderbout.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Palace Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Councillor Harold Arnold.—Messrs. J. E. Watson and C. T. Doe's No. 1 Company in Priscilla Runs Away is attracting large and appreciative audiences. In the title-rôle, Miss Beatrice Lindley scores a decided success, her acting throughout being admirable; Miss Eve Mansell gives a delightful rendition of the Duchess of Gerstein; Miss Madge Elswick makes the most of her opportunities as Annalise; and Miss Annie Stalman's humorous portrayal of Mrs. Morrison could not be improved upon. Mr. Clifton Alderson makes a dignified and efficient Grand Duke; Prince Henry is admirably impersonated by Mr. Leslie Owen; Mr. J. Edward Pearce gives an effective delineation of Herr Fritzing; Mr. Cecil Clayton is well placed as Dr. Billitson; Mr. Leslie Ryecroft is successful as Robin Morrison; and the rôle of Sir Augustus Shuttleworth is excellently depicted by Mr. Cyril Bruce.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Wakefield Operatic Society occupy the stage this week with an excellent performance of The Gondoliers, in aid of local charities. The production reflects great credit upon the efforts of Mr. Henry Leffler (of the Savoy Theatre), who has been coach to the company.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Tom Davis Trio, in their sensational motor-cycling act in mid-air, have a good reception; the Geraldos display great strength in a clever equilibristic act; Josh Dixon is a diverting comedian; the Rosses prove expert dancers; Barrie and Wood (Dolly and Juan), comedy duo, are popular; Bob Selvidge and Poppy Holland present a successful musical absurdity; Jack Charles, tenor vocalist, sings admirably; and Francesca is entertaining with vocal pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The pictures are again fine, and varieties are supplied by Durazcoe and Azella, clever hand balancers, and the Lawsons, smart dancers.

WALLSEND.—BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—The Royal Banzai Family, who perform marvellous and daring feats, are a big attraction here this week; Keene and Adams, in their singing and dancing duo, are as popular as ever; Daisy Taylor is a refined and fascinating Scotch comedienne, her singing and dancing being highly appreciated; an amusing turn is provided by Fayre and Manning, comedians, who win hearty applause; Millie and Arthur score successfully in their vocal drawing-room act; and the Four Scoreys cause hilarity in their musical mélange; the Sisters Maynard are dainty duettists and dancers of exceptional ability; and Lila Vesta is a graceful and charming comedienne.

PREMIER ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McDonald.—A powerful picture programme is presented at this favourite hall, headed by The Attack on the Mill, which is proving to be a big attraction. A welcome variety interlude is provided by Geo. R. Moncrieff, tenor, who is a vocalist of exceptional ability, and scores a huge success.

TYNE PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McHarg.—The Eight Royal Kino Juveniles, under the direction of Mr. Le Kane, are paying a welcome return visit to this popular place of amusement, and prove themselves to be talented vocalists and dancers. A good selection of pictures is also provided, including The Rosary and Twa Hieland Lads.

WALSALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Miss Geraldine Montrose and company are here in A Woman and Two Men. The part of Madeline Morden is in the capable hands of Miss Montrose; Mr. Harold B. Lewis makes a capital Jack Maxwell; a clever study of the unscrupulous Philip Collister is given by Mr. Edward Vivian; in the rôle of Elsie Warner Miss Phillis Spalding proves herself a charming actress, and the part of Guy Maynard is sustained by Mr. J.

Andsell Wilson with much earnestness. Vivienne Verney is well represented by Miss Alice Corri, and Miss Winifred Rutland gives a capital rendering of Sybil Maynard; Mr. Harry Harrop is seen to advantage as Jim Briton.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Joint Management, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Pride of place is this week held by Harry Ford, whose breezy style makes him an established favourite; a wonderful canine act is done by Duncan's Royal Scotch Collies; the Sutcliffe Family, a troupe of Scottish acrobats, pipers, and dancers, win well-earned applause; the Musical McGregors, in selections on the xylophone, concertinas, etc., are applauded; Carl and Carr, comedians and patterers, have a smart little interlude; Lillian Farrar is a refined comedienne and dancer; Alf Chester is very amusing with his football song, and the Bioscope concludes a first-class entertainment.

WASHINGTON.—Alexandra Theatre.—Lessees, the Alexandra Theatre Co.; Secretary, Mr. Joe Turnbull.—Mr. Harry Newman presents What a Man Made Her. Mr Phil Harper scores as Dr. Mark Haven; a really excellent impersonation of Rupert Dancecombe comes from Mr. W. J. Butler; Mr. Charles K. Francis shows ability in his impersonation of Sir Ernest Cavendish; Mr. Harry Ugar makes a realistic moneylender; Mr. Paterson is capital as Evans; Mr. J. Lindsay, as Lord Taporley, also acts with distinction; the Lady Gorrinking of Miss V. Thomas is a sound impersonation; Miss K. Murgatroyd is seen to advantage as Nurse Arden; Miss Dorothy Dewhurst shows conspicuous ability as Deborah; Miss Nora Kingsley is excellent as Elfrida; and Lady Thora Dancecombe is finely undertaken by Miss Beatrice Shirley. The arduous rôle of Jean McAllister is faultlessly sustained by Miss Renee Glendower.

WATERFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Mr. George Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland attracted large and appreciative audiences during the latter part of the week. As Miss Hook Miss Nan Stuart at once made herself a favourite by her tasteful singing and graceful dancing; as Mr. Hook Mr. Alfred Wellesley was very humorous; Miss Maud Denny was excellent as Mina; Mr. Charles Ross as Ludwig Schnapps was remarkably good; Mr. Harry Brayne as Simon Slinks was irresistibly funny; Mr. Maunsell Stringer as the bandmaster, Van Vuyt, presented a good study; and Mr. Arthur Mansey, Mr. Lacey Mills, and Miss Cherrie Hardy filled their respective parts well.

WATFORD.—Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lionel G. Holding.—Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene, assisted by Miss Eileen Dartrey, are the star attraction in their comedietta, My Lady's Chamber, this week; Henri Bekker and Miss Maie appear in a comedy conjuring act of merit; and a much-appreciated item of a bright programme is the performance of The Markies in The Professor's Studio, in which Miss Marie French is very good; Field and Mansell, lightning oil-painters and jugglers, are clever; and Rose Camboy, Ada and Gert, Dan Daly, and Arthur Albert complete the entertainment.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—King's Palace.—There is not a dull moment in the two hours' programme. Kitty Marion sings delightfully; Harris and Tweed are a fine pair of comedians; and Alex Thomas is also a great success. The Bonheur Trio are an attractive turn.

Empire.—Another great attraction is presented this week in Harry Tate's Motoring, which is immensely successful. Rolf Slater is an accomplished vocalist and mimic. The films are of more than usual interest.

WEST BROMWICH. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Messrs. R. Nightingale and Montague Beaudyn.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn is presenting British Born, in which Miss Sidney Crowe appears to great advantage as Mary Hope, and Mr. Herbert Skardon as George Seymour has a part which he admirably sustains. Mr. Geoff Sutherland as Laban Brood is also good, and the Nancy Treat of Miss May Dana is also a clever study.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Colin, sen.; Secretary, Mr. W. Hebden.—At this place of amusement Mr. William Pardoe is producing Dick Whittington. Miss Lottie Holland is a charming Dick, Miss Cissy Lenore as Alice Fitzwarren, Miss Rose Finnittie as Lord Dedbroke, Mies Elsie Kedward as Princess Preciosa, and Miss Cissy Loveday as Fairy Bowbelle, all do their parts excellently. Monsieur Pauli, as the Cat, is wonderfully clever.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—The principal item on the programme this week is Bank Holiday in [illegible], a production full of comedy and melody. Adam Tomlinson, the Tyneside comedian, is also an old favourite who never fails to please. The musical entertainment of Diamond and Beatrice is admirable; King's College Boys in solos and concerted pieces are appreciated; some smart acrobatic feats are performed by the Saletos; Geoffreys and Benson successfully present one of their popular sketches; and Leonie Dixon is a smart dancer.

WEST STANLEY. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company with The Cingalee is here this week. The part of the Hon. Harry Vereker is capitally filled by Mr. Frank Barclay; Mr. Herbert Franklin is an admirable Bobby Warren; Mr. Hylton Warde as Chambhuddy Ram is funny; Mr. Frank Lennard as Boobhamba acquits himself creditably; Mr. Herbert L. Maistre is well placed as Sir Peter; and as Myancah Mr. Frank Crichton is excellent; Miss Isa Bowman is an attractive Nanoya, and Miss Florrie Greensmith a vivacious Peggy Sabini.

WEXFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—The ever-popular La Comedie Anglaise company, under the direction of the well-known Mr. Wm. L. Dobell, has been here for the early part of the week. On Monday A Child Shall Lead Them was performed. Mr. Oscar Wyatt was well suited to the part of the Hon. Eustace Warde, and Mr. Page Ware was a cool and cynical Sir Robert Burleigh. Mr. W. L. Dobell as Dick Lester acted with great feeling, and Mr. Percy Dewhurst gave a powerful rendering of the rôle of Ned Hudson. Mr. Horace Morton Wright as Billy Tidger kept the audience in good humour. Miss Nora Baker as Violet Warde was natural and convincing, and Miss Lilian Fenn was sincere and sympathetic as Meena Warde. Miss Eva Ballard was well placed as the maid, Elizabeth Ann, and a special word of praise is due to little Nelly Melbourne, who played Essie Warde cleverly.

WEYMOUTH.—Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—Mr. Arthur Shelton's company is appearing in Beauty and the Barge. Mr. Maitland Marler gives a humorous rendering of Captain James Barley, and Miss Hilda Vaughan is a charming Ethel Smedley; Mr. A. Russell-Davis is very effective as Lieutenant Seton Boyle, R.N., and Mr. A. E. Jackson, as the fiery Major Smedley, is well received; Mr. Gerald Carter's Herbert Manners is a careful study; Mr. Frank Lilliput is a realistic exponent of Mr. Porter; and Miss Mabyn Fay a typical Mrs. Porter; and Mr. Fred Lake, as Dibbs, is very droll; Miss Gwenllyan Cattell is a winsome Lucy Dallas; Miss Rose Case a dignified Mrs Smedley, and Mrs. Henry Renouf gives a finished impersonation of Mrs. Baldwin; Mr. Hugh Trevor, as Tom Codd, and Mr. Ivor Barnard, as Augustus, are both good. The piece is uncommonly well staged, the Barge scene being especially effective

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. Gar-Kiddie and F. Bray.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company are staging this week A White Man. Mr. Frank E. Petley as Jim Carston presents a fine character study, and one that impresses and appeals to the audience; and Miss Dorothy Edwards gives an almost perfect representation of the difficult rôle of Nat-u-ritch, the Indian girl. The other characters are all admirably sustained, notably that of Cash Hawkins by Mr. Vernon Sansbury, Big Bill (Mr. John M. East), and Tab-y-wana, Peace Chief of the Utes (Mr. Oswald Linzold).

Co-operative Hall.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—A capital bill is provided here, the turns being presented by the Bijou Troupe of Juveniles; Messrs. J. Peale and W. Brodway, comedians and dancers; Mr. Fred Escador, and Mr. Harry May, both up-to-date humorists.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company, Ltd.—The Bad Girl of the Family is being presented here. Miss Florrie Kelsey gives a capital impersonation of Bess Moore; Miss Alice Esther Belmore makes a charming Gladys Erskine; Mr. R. Marius St. John acts with telling force as Lieut. Marsh; Mr. Sydney Lynn gives a powerful representation of Harry Gordon. The humorous characters are capably filled by Miss Nellie James as Sally Smithers, Mr. Barnett Lando as Barney Gordon, and Mr. Geo. H. Asquin as Sammy Snozzle.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Hayman and Franklin cause endless laughter in their sketch, A Matrimonial Agency; No. 99, finely presented by Mr. Frank Lister and company, is an intense and keenly-appreciated playlet; J. W. Hall's reception is an enthusiastic one; Beatrice English is applauded for operatic selections; J. P. Carrol is a skilful tambourinist; St. George Sylvesta mystifies the audience with his tricks; the Savoleys are clever acrobats; Phillips and Bristow sing and dance themselves into favour; and other acceptable turns are given by Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer, and Fallows and Beaumont, in a novel vocal comedy act.

WISBECH.—Selwyn Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. C. Gates.—We have received a visit here for two nights from Miss Inez Howard's company, in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, which proved a great success. Mr. William J. Rea did excellently as Prince Michael; as Prince Olaf Mr. Chas. A. Baker acquitted himself capitally; whilst Mr. Alfred Brandon gave a good rendering of Prince Hildred of Sylvania; as Monica, Princess of Illyria, Miss Ethel Saville displayed much ability; Mr. J. D. Brannigan as Captain Hector and Miss Gladys Mosswright as Viola also deserve mention. Miss Loie Esmond's company, presenting The Love Birds, is here for the three concluding evenings of this week. Mr. F. H. Dale was good as Colonel Fritters, as was also Mr. Edward Neville as Ferdinand Fluff. Miss Esmond caused much amusement as Araminta 'Awkins.

WISHAW, N.B.—Pavilion.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse.—The Three Biers (the living rubber balls) give a smart tumbling turn here this week; Tony Hoppit and Terry, in their comedy act, The Coster's Derby Day, are amusing; George Madigan introduces a clever troupe of performing dogs; Little Eileen is a dainty and popular comedienne; Eugene and Willie, in a novel musical and acrobatic turn, are good. Some excellent Bioscope films conclude.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. G. Kimberley.—Lovers of ultra-sensational are well catered for this week by the engagement of Mrs. Frank Bateman's company in Charles Darrell's Where Angels Fear to Tread. The Hon. Maurice Masterman has an excellent exponent in Mr. Fred. W. Goddard; Mr. George Herbert is sufficiently inane as St. Diderington; Mr. George Butler as Bert Taylor is the embodiment of brutal depravity, and has an able partner in Mr. Will White as Jim Sadler. Mr. Percy Shaw does good work as Herbert Sloggins; in Araminta Parsons Mrs. Frank Bateman has a part which affords ample scope for the display of those human passions she can so ably portray; Miss Emma Rainbow acts with dignity as Lady Margaret Austinleigh; Miss Dulcia Lawrence is a realistic Lady Clarina Clelland; and Miss Fanny Olive as Selina Sticcles and Miss Mattie Everett as Bedelia Brixton both render good service.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Auguste Van Biene and company are appearing here in Karl's Luck. Mr. George H. Child lends a touch of realism to the part of Ned Christie; Miss Dorothy Radford is a sweet and womanly Margaret Dane. Wood, Wells, and Wilkins, in The Piano Tuner, provide plenty of fun; Joe and Hetty Waldron are a particularly smart comedy duo; and the programme also includes Joe Hunt, comedian, the Falcons, acrobatic eccentrics, Happy Attwood, comedian, and Radie Stuart, comedienne and dancer.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Macnamara.—Monsieur E. Lavigne's Eight Charming Daughters of Eve are making a first appearance in a series of living pictures, representing famous works of art, and have achieved a decided success; Victoria Carmen and H. A. Griffiths make a welcome reappearance in their amusing musical turn, and Carter's Ten Dixie Girls appear in a vocal and dancing scena, entitled "The Silver Coon"; Will McIvor's tenor soliloquy and oldtime melodies are attractive; and "Who Is It?" achieves popularity; Ethel Dancy and Maude Beaumont are talented vocalists, and Vivian Forster's recitals, with Bioscope pictures, complete.

WORTHINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—During the first three nights of this week Mr. Harold Lloyd's company with The Passing of the Third Floor Back has met with a good reception. Mr. Hodgson Taylor as the passer-by won much applause. The following three nights The Master of the Mill held the boards.

Carnegie Hall. — Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—Good houses, as usual, maintain the reputation of the Hall, and the pictures this week are exceedingly good. The variety turns are Douglas and Gordon and Nellie Nora, both of whom are well received.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcolm Spurgin.—A splendid variety show is being given here this week, and at the head of the bill is Bosanquet, the human violin, who charms his audience with selections from the works of great composers, as well as other items. Howe and Ardie give a clever comedy gymnastic act, and Bu-val is a happy Dutchman, who proves to be inseparable from his concertina; Stuart Paton shows that he is a character actor of no mean order, and the Belmonts dance cleverly; the Three Louberts give a good knockabout show, and Fifi Gordon and her quartette are entertaining, whilst catchy songs are sung by Connie Isca. A Bioscope picture of the Portuguese Revolution completes the programme.

YNYSHIR.—Workmen's Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—Some capital pictures are exhibited here, viz., Percy the Cowboy, Military Tournament, The Red Man's Way, The Short-sighted Errand Boy, The Sisters, and Shooting Flying Dogs. The vaudeville element is sustained by the Five M.P.'s in an up-to-date musical speciality; and Miss Daisy Graham and her troupe of educated birds and baby dog "Nap." The Cinephone has the latest chorus songs.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Brewster's Millions has drawn crowded houses during the week. Mr. Percy Hutchison revels in the part of Brewster, delighting all by his excellent performance. Mr. Aubrey Mather gives a clever, breezy performance of McLeod; Mr. Gordon Ash in the somewhat unpleasant part of Charlie Harrison is at once a success; and Mr. Otho Hazelwood is excellent. As Peggy, Miss Dorothy Whitaker could scarcely be improved upon. Miss Lilias Earle makes a fascinating Mrs. Dan de Mille, and Miss Phyllis Stucky is a handsome Barbara Drew. Miss May Seton does exceptionally well as Trixie Clayton.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Miss Stella Gastelle in La Poupée has drawn large audiences during the week. She is an accomplished representative of a popular part. Mr. Leon Simkin also does well; Ethelda is a wonderful athlete; and the dancing of Mr. Herbert Martine is an outstanding feature. Alice Gill is a sweet singer of popular songs, and Signor Persichini is a mandolinist of merit. Sewell and Dudley appear in a smart sketch, and Rastus and Banks are coloured artists who never fail to please.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys, who played the part of the Demi-Vierge in a piece by Rip at the Theatre des Capucines, Paris, a few months since, wore a turban suggestive of a sultana from the "Thousand and One Arabian Nights." It was of pale red silk, and was surmounted by an enormous aigrette. The turban was "created" by a fashionable milliner, and when the actress appeared wearing it, the milliner naturally expected to benefit from the advertisement. But a rival milliner in the Rue de la Paix came forward and declared that the turban had emanated from her establishment. At the same time, in an announcement which, according to a contract with an agent of publicity, should have appeared under the portrait of the actress in the theatre programme, had the name of her milliner suppressed. The "creator" of the turban claimed damages for unfair competition. Her case was heard last week, when she was awarded 25 louis.

A MUSICIAN AND INNKEEPER.

MR. W. J. O'CONNOR.

This young and successful musician has been connected with the theatrical profession almost from the cradle. During Mr. Alfred Hemmings' prosperous direction of the Grand Theatre, Douglas, I.O.M., he was everything by turns. He delivered bills, he assisted the local scenic artist, he devilled for that much-abused individual the resident property man; but his bent was for music. He had, as a child, taken to the fiddle, and for some years he was first violinist in the Grand Theatre, Douglas. Since then he has been musical conductor with Charles Elderton's "Toreadors," the Theatre Royal, Hebburn-on-Tyne, the Empire Theatre, Douglas, the Grand Theatre, Douglas. He also played at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, the Hippodrome, Wigan, and the Hippodrome, Glasgow.

This is the first winter for six years that he has elected to stay in his native land of Mona where he has married. He is able to supply a band of three or four performers for small concerts or a full orchestra for special occasions, and many entertainments obtain in Hall Caine Land, even in the winter, in addition to theatrical shows at certain seasons. Mr. O'Connor has for a considerable period been the proprietor of the Oddfellows' Arms, a quaint hostelry situated on the old Quay, Douglas. During the many years in which he and his father, Fitz O'Connor, have lived here—"Fitzy's" theatrical recollections go back for half a century—they have known all the leading lights of the theatrical profession. The Oddfellows' Arms has been transformed into a real Caravanserai for the travelling artist. The smoking-room is full of memories—day bills setting forth that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean appeared for a week in repertoire at the playhouse in Wellington-street; that Miss Charlotte Cushman, Mr. Edward Askew Sothern, Charles Mathews, and nearly all the great ones also strutted on its boards; while such actors as Mr. James Fernandez, Mr. John Coleman, and Mr. John Wainwright were members of the stock company.

To the older actor the Oddfellows' Arms is the Rosemary of the past; to the new generation the old prints, the faded day bills present an object-lesson of what their predecessors accomplished in the way of study and work. They are confronted in print with the fact, framed on the wall, that at a benefit tendered to Miss Ellen Tree on Dec. 2, 1841, after playing in Sheridan Knowles' romantic drama Love, and having parts in the play which followed, wherein the beneficiaire also appeared, Mrs. H. Webb and Mr. William Rignold danced a pas de deux.

Since Mr. O'Connor's proprietorship it has become the home in Manxland of the great artist and the little actor. They are both equally welcome, and they will be both equally entertained with the quaintness of the environment and the value of treasures collected by "Fitz" and his son.

The Kaiser prepared a pleasant surprise for the Empress's birthday last Sunday, in the form of a concert given at Potsdam after dinner by Signor Caruso and Mme. Geraldine Farrar. The Royal automobile was sent to Berlin to fetch the singers. Mme. Farrar, by special request sang the old Irish song, "The Bluebell" and the old English song, "The lass with the delicate air." The Kaiser chatted for some time with Signor Caruso, asking him how he found the acoustics of the famous Jasper Gallery, where the concert was given, and appointed him honorary Court vocalist.

"Molière was only fifty-one when he died, the same age attained by Lessing and Balzac," writes Mr. Brander Matthews in an article in the North American Review. "Shakespeare survived to be fifty-two, as Thackeray survived to be fifty-three. This comparatively premature death has an importance of its own. Even if they may have done their work thus early and have put forth all their powers before they died, they were deprived of that lingering aftermath of fame which came to Voltaire and Goethe and Victor Hugo by the fact of survival beyond the threescore years and ten. In the external circumstances of their several careers Shakespeare and Molière are often curiously alike. They were both born in prosperous households of the middle class; and they were not stinted in their youth, although the affairs of both fathers may have become embarrassed later. Shakespeare may have gone to the grammar school at Stratford; and Molière went to the best school in Paris, getting a more thorough training. Neither of them ever achieved the wide erudition of Lessing, still less the minute scholarship of Racine. Both broke away from their homes to become actors; and both after acting for a while undertook to write plays. Both began modestly as dramatists, content at first to imitate and patch up earlier work. Even when they had given over this prentice labour, their earlier pieces contained little promise of their later mastery. In Love's Labour's Lost and in the Etourdi we can see clever young writers striving to show off their cleverness, delighting in their own fantasies, and not yet knowing enough about life itself to be willing to rely on it unaided. Molière was the manager of his company, while Shakespeare was only one of several partners in his; and both of them had a shrewd sagacity in business affairs, governing their private fortunes with skill, putting money out at interest and amassing a comfortable reserve. Both of them liked the good things of life; and neither of them took an austere view of mankind. Shakespeare was as little attracted towards the Puritan as Molière was towards the Jansenist."

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Sept. 14.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.—The opera company closed its season here on Saturday evening, when Madam Butterfly was performed, with Miss Amy Castles in the prima donna rôle, Cho-Cho-San. There were calls for the principals after the curtain had fallen. Miss Castles received a round of applause, and Signor Hazon, the conductor of the orchestra, also met with acknowledgment. Mr. Henry Bracy made a short speech, and thanked the public for the support accorded to the company. The theatre will be closed for four nights. On Friday evening the sporting play The Whip will be introduced.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Clyde Meynell and Rupert Clarke; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—Hall Caine's drama, Pete, attracted a crowded audience on Saturday evening, when the pathetic incidents of the play were watched with close interest. Owing to engagements already entered into in London, Mr. Matheson Lang and Miss Hutin Britton will be unable to play a second season here, and will appear at this theatre for only ten nights more. Sergeant Brue will be staged on Sept. 24, when Clarke and Meynell's new English Comic Opera Company will make its reappearance.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Frederic Aydon.—An excellent programme on Saturday drew a house crowded to the doors. Mr. Morris Cronin repeated his dexterous juggling feats, being well supported by his two comic assistants; Mr. Fred Bluett's skit on the Boy Scouts is still one of the most popular items on the programme; the entertaining duologues by Powell and Vesey continue to win favour; graceful Gracie Grahame, Fanny Powers, Johnny Gilmore, Will White, the Waratah duo, and Irving Sayles were also well received. Mr. Fred Aydon, Mr. Rickards' popular manager, has lately been suffering from a severe cold, but is now quite himself again.

King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—After a most successful season, When London Sleeps was withdrawn on Friday in favour of an entirely new Australian drama, entitled The Winning Ticket, which was staged for the first time on Saturday. Mr. Roy Redgrave eclipsed himself as the Count; Mr. George Cross and Miss Eugenie Duggan were never seen to greater advantage; Mr. Bert Bailey must have enjoyed the novelty of a "straight" part; Mr. Edmund Duggan and Mr. Temple Harrison provided good studies as the Count's evil associates; so, too, did Mr. Rutland Becket as the laconic monosyllabic Biggs; a queer, quaint, and comical figure was Mr. Gus Franks. Miss Olive Wilton, Miss Lillie Bryer, and Miss Fanny Erris deserve warm commendation for their efforts; and Mr. Edwin Campbell gave a wholesome representation of Kookaburra's owner; Little Nellie Macdonald made a good newsboy. The scenic studies were from the brushes of Messrs. Rege Robins and John Ricketts, and included, amongst other well-known landmarks, a fine view of Flemington racecourse on Cup day. Judging from the enthusiastic reception accorded The Winning Ticket it should enjoy a long and prosperous run.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—There was a large attendance here on Saturday evening, when Mr. James Brennan introduced several new artists. These included a clever comedian in the person of Mr. A. Holt, who comes from Chicago with good credentials. Mr. Holt sang, cracked jokes, and manifested his powers of merriment for twenty minutes. Messrs. Wills and Hassan proved themselves to be acrobats of a high standard. Other artists who contributed to a first-class all-round programme included Delavale and Gilbert, Miss Lily Vockler, Mr. J. Kearns, and a host of others.

West's Pictures at West's Palace, Spencer's Theatrescope company at Olympia, Tait's Pictures at Athenæum Hall, and Hoyt's Pictures at St. George's Hall all submitted excellent programmes to crowded houses on Saturday.

SYDNEY, Sept. 13.—Messrs. Harry Plimmer and Reynolds Denniston, both prominent actors, have combined with Mr. Allan Hamilton in producing that sweetest of comedies, Lovers' Lane, at the Theatre Royal for the only two weeks during which the popular theatre is available. A feature of this short season is the return to the Australian stage of Mrs. Robert Brough, who made Mrs. Herbert Woodbridge an important element in the cast. Every scene is safe whenever Mrs. Brough is on in it; and Mr. Harry Plimmer is the Rev. Thomas Singleton, whose beneficence is malconstrued by the pious (?) tabbies of the parish. It is a fine interpretation of a manly rôle—just what was expected. To Mr. Reynolds Denniston falls the divorced Herbert Woodbridge, and he gets all possible value out of the trust reposed in him. One of "our own" clever youngsters, Miss Lizette Parkes, wins all and sundry hearts by her ingenuous work as Simplicity Johnson, the tomboy waif befriended by the hospitable parson. Two excellently acted persons are Aunt Martha by Miss Alice Deorwyn and Uncle Bill by Mr. Harry Neville; they are exceedingly clever and entertaining. Miss Valentine Sidney gives much importance to the crisp but kind hearted housekeeper, Miss Mattie; a sweet personage is Mary Larkin as Miss Winifred Austin lets us see her; Miss Beatrice Usher is a spiteful schoolmistress; and she joins Misses Tempe Pigott, C. Edington Byrne, and Alice Holroyd, who are the tabbies—Mrs. Henry Brown, Mrs. Steele, and Mrs. Jennings. A truculent Deacon Steele is Mr. S. A. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Charles Throsby presents a hearty, open-minded Henry Brown. Delightful scenery by Mr. Harry Waite adds a charm which is genuinely appreciated by the large audiences.

"The Orchid" is crowding Her Majesty's at present. Meanwhile the J. C. Williamson Royal Comic Opera Company is actively rehearsing Our Miss Gibbs for its first Australian production on the 24th. The firm brings back its Grand Opera Company to the Royal on the 24th, with Mr. Reginald Roberts this time as its tenor, a position in which Sydney has not hitherto seen or heard him.

Messrs. Allan Hamilton and Max Maxwell have by arrangement with Mr. Blair Holt, revived A Woman's Revenge at the Palace Theatre. This time the principal parts are played by Miss Beatrice Holloway (May Lonsdall), Mr. Max Maxwell (Frank Drummond), Mr. Charles Brown (Jeptha Grimwade), and Miss Nellie Strong (Mabel Wentworth). So far there have been hundreds turned away each night.

The Tivoli has the great turn of the Kremo Family as its star attraction, and a very attractive item is now added by four local singers, who are billed as the "Australian Golddiggers." These gentlemen do some charming part-singing round a camp fire, and gave an interesting change in Mr. Rickards' plethoric programme.

West's Pictures are back at the spacious Glaciarium for the summer, Spencer's Theatrescope still flourishes.

The new Adelphi Theatre, now in course of construction on the site of the demolished Paddy's Market, will be the largest theatre in Australasia.

The Comedy of Errors formed part of the Gray's Inn Revels in 1594. On this occasion the crowd was so great that on their arrival the players could not find room to perform until the angry withdrawal of the guests from the Temple, when "the throngs and tumults did somewhat cease."

There will be a concert of British Chamber Music at the South-place Institute on Sunday. The programme includes works by Holbrooke, Dan Boyes (a new name), and Mme. Verne-Bredt; while Mr. Gordon Cleather will sing songs by Edith Swepstone, Walford Davies, Hamilton Harty, Graham Peel, Roger Quilter, and Cyril Scot.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

THE BEECHAM SEASON,
"FIDELIO."
(In German.)

Pizarro	Mr. Clarence Whitehill
Florestan	Mr. Joseph O'Mara
Leonora	Miss Gleeson-White
Rocco	Mr. Allen Hinckley
Marcellina	Mme. Beatrice La Palme
Jacquino	Mr. Maurice D'Oisly
Il Ministro	Mr. Gaston Sargeant

So seldom is Beethoven's only opera, Fidelio, performed, that special interest was taken by a large audience in Mr. Thomas Beecham's revival of this noble work on Saturday night, Oct. 22, for Fidelio has not been given at Covent Garden since 1907, when Mme. Ternina appeared as Leonora, the opera being conducted by M. Ysaye. Owing to Miss Edyth Walker's indisposition, the part of the devoted wife was undertaken at very short notice by Miss Gleeson-White, who acted gracefully and at times sang with considerable power, particularly in the prison scene, in which occurs the finest music of the opera. Mr. Allan Hinckley as the kind-hearted gaoler, Rocco, sang with splendid effect, and the superb impersonation of Pizarro by Mr. Clarence Whitehill lent distinction to the performance. The duet between Rocco and Pizarro was admirably sung by both artists. Florestan's music was ably rendered by Mr. Joseph O'Mara, and Mme. Beatrice La Palme proved an excellent Marcellina; Mr. Maurice D'Oisly and Mr. Gaston Sargeant were successful in the parts of Jacquino and Il Ministro. Mr. Percy Pitt conducted, and the excellent performance after the second act of the Leonora No. 3 overture was greeted with loud applause.

"RIGOLETTO."

Gilda	Miss Mignon Nevada
Maddalena	Mme. Edna Thornton
Giovanna	Miss Lena Maitland
Contessa di Ceprano	Miss Violet Williams
Il Duca	Mr. Bendinelli
Rigoletto	Mr. Giuseppe de Luca
Sparafucile	Mr. Murray Davey
Borsa	Mr. Leon de Sousa
Marullo	Mr. Charles Knowles

A fine performance of Verdi's melodious opera Rigoletto, in Italian, was given by Mr. Thomas Beecham's company at Covent Garden, on Tuesday night. Mlle. Mignon Nevada, who has already created so good an impression, made a charming Gilda, while her youthful appearance was consistent with the part. "Caro Nome" was beautifully sung, and Mlle. Nevada might easily have taken an encore, so abundant was the applause. As the libertine duke Signor Bendinelli sang well, displaying a light tenor voice of pleasing character heard to great advantage in his duet with Gilda and the always popular "La Donna e Mobile." Signor Bendinelli also had a graceful presence and proved himself a skilled actor. Signor Giuseppe de Luca gave a powerful reading of Rigoletto's part, unconventional and convincing in its truth and graphic realism. Mme. Edna Thornton was excellent as Maddalina, and the famous quartet went superbly, while the fine voice of Mr. Murray Davey made the part of Sparafucile very effective. Miss Lena Maitland appeared as Giovanna, and the other characters were ably sustained by Miss Violet Williams, Mr. Leon de Sousa, and Mr. Charles Knowles. Signor Camilieri conducted, and Verdi's old opera went with spirit throughout.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The students' concert on Wednesday evening had many interesting features. Miss Gladys Platt's piano solo, "L'Ondine" (Chaminade), opened the programme, and was followed by the lively waltz song from Ed. German's Tom Jones, effectively sung by Miss Iris Rainbow. In Schumann's "Two Grenadiers" Mr. Stanley F. Ayres showed intelligence and some regard for dramatic expression; and Miss Minna Sears gave a pleasing rendering of Lambert's "She is far from the land." An important item in the concert was a capital performance of César Franck's Sonata for Piano and Violin in A major, by two advanced pupils of the school, Miss Audrey Richardson and Mr. Eric H. Zardo. Miss Richardson, a talented pupil of Mr. Johannes Wolff, has often won approval and many prizes as a violinist, and her performance of a by no means easy task was warmly applauded; while her associate, Mr. Zardo, equally distinguished himself. Miss Gladys McAuslane, the other violinist in the concert, had a very hearty recall after a clever performance of Ries's "Adagio"; and when Miss Millicent E. McIntyre has greater confidence or more experience, she will do justice to a really fine voice, as her singing of "O flower of all the world" (Woodforde-Finden) was expressive. Mr. Herbert Wild sang "The Jasmine Door" (Scott); and Mr. Arthur O. Duley may be commended for his careful playing of Chopin's Ballade in G minor. No example of the composer can be called easy, but Mr. Duley would have had greater success in one of the Etudes than the more exacting Ballade. Miss Ethel Badrick was set down for "Eleanore" (Coleridge-Taylor); and variety was given to the programme by the clever dancing of Miss Vera Jones, pupil of Mr. B. Soutten, and a recitation, "The Leaguer of Lucknow" (Henry Hamilton), ably given by Miss Ellen Rice, Miss Kate Rorke's pupil. Miss Jenny Hyman, professor, was the accompanist.

Mr. Earl Gandy, an American entertainment "King," has a scheme for building a summer theatre and palace within a mile and a quarter of Olympia. The stage is to have a 170ft. opening and a depth of 100ft., and upon this Mr. Gandy proposes to give spectacular entertainments in which a thousand people will be seen on the stage at one time. Seating accommodation for 3,500 people, a promenade leaving room for 2,000 strollers, a garden entrance, with flower-beds and crystal fountains, tea terraces dotted with 1,000 chairs, a garage for five or six hundred cars, a huge waiting-room for chauffeurs, several restaurants, billiard-rooms, and the largest lounge in the world are other features of Mr. Gandy's astonishing project.

In a lecture on Shakespeare's connection with London, given by Mr. Sidney Lee at the "Times Book Club" on Wednesday, the lecturer reminded his hearers that in Shakespeare's day there were fields and pleasure grounds right up to the walls of the City itself, which were genuine walls still, with frowning and formidable gates. Outside there was no lack of houses—villas, cottages, palaces—but among them were innumerable gardens and open spaces, kept inviolate from further buildings—for the time—by rigid enactments of the authorities, who had grown by then as keen on suburban hygiene as any "garden city" council. The Sunday walk through the London meadows would probably have given the Elizabethan botanist an opportunity of gathering every flower in the herbal.

One use of these open fields that Mr. Lee specially noted as having been significantly familiar to Shakespeare was that of the drilling of the trained bands—the "Terriers" of Shakespeare's day. It was Captain Dumain of All's Well that Ends Well who "instructed for the doubling of files" at Mile End, but whose "soldiership" consisted in "leading the drum before the English tragedians." It was Justice Shallow who learnt his fencing at Mile End Green, where he "played Sir Dagonet" there "in Arthur's show." Incidentally Mr. Lee observed that Shakespeare probably witnessed the actual building of the old house—No. 17, Fleet-street, over the Temple gateway, which was set up in 1610 as "The Prince's Arms," and still shows the three feathers in its decorations.

Derrick Vernon .....MR. SAM WALSH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Contrary to the expectation aroused by its title, this play does not deal with the supernatural, but with the story of an unscrupulous author's ascendancy over another more gifted writer, by virtue of a mysterious secret which would mean social ruin to the latter. In the eyes of the world, John Berkeley is a brilliant author, but the books which bring him fame and money have in reality been written by his private secretary, Derrick Vernon, otherwise his "Ghost." Bound by this unrighteous compact, Vernon has perforce to submit to the fruits of his genius being appropriated and exploited by Berkeley, while he remains in the background, a "mere animated typewriter," as Brenda Carlisle, the woman he loves, bitterly designates him, under the impression that he has lost all ambition and is content to drift into obscurity. His hard taskmaster compels him to continue the writing of books, and, as if this was not humiliation enough, presently announces his engagement to Brenda Carlisle. But Vernon has a stout friend in Philip Doyle, who, after urging him to break his connection with Berkeley, comes to the conclusion that there is something radically wrong somewhere. He reads one of Berkeley's books, and from its descriptions of life and scenery in a part of Italy where he once spent a holiday with Vernon, taxes him with the authorship. Insistently pressed by his friend, Vernon at length confesses that this book, and all the others, have come from his pen, but implores Doyle to keep silence. He will not divulge a word as to the mysterious bond between Berkeley and himself. Doyle is not satisfied, and says he will go to Berkeley and tell him what he thinks of a man who sucks other men's brains. Vernon says that the more Doyle meddles in the affair, the harder he will make it for him. Doyle says there is something Quixotic about the motive, and he will get to the bottom of it. He will make Berkeley speak by exposing him. Vernon makes a final appeal to him to desist for Brenda's sake; she loves Berkeley (so he thinks) and it will shatter her ideal. Doyle consents to keep silence on condition that Vernon breaks with Berkeley. It so happens that while Brenda is reproaching Vernon for missing his opportunities in life, she confesses that she loves him. But she has promised to be Berkeley's wife, and will keep her word; only Vernon must not live with them when they are married. A little later John Berkeley and Vernon are left alone, and Vernon asks for his freedom. Berkeley affects astonishment at the request. Vernon, he says, had turned out a good investment to him, but he was an uncommonly risky speculation at one time. Six years ago he (Berkeley) came into possession of certain information. It was to his interest to make it public. He was a struggling and unsuccessful author, and Vernon had just completed his first book. He (Berkeley) agreed with Vernon that in return for his work and his silence he would keep the information to himself. He had kept his word, and had paid Vernon a handsome salary as his private secretary. He refuses to let him go. The interest of the audience is now fully awakened with regard to the secret which has cast such a blight over Vernon's life. Ultimately, through the loyalty of Doyle and the love of Brenda, Berkeley is fairly cornered; and though at first showing defiance and signs of fight, finally tells Brenda the truth. Vernon's father had committed a forgery, and Berkeley alone held the proof of his guilt. One had expected a rather more sensational dénouement than this, but of course it is more within the bounds of everyday posibility, and it certainly appealed to the audience. Vernon is set free from bondage, and we leave him with brighter prospects and the hope of winning a charming and sympathetic wife.

The play had an appreciative and encouraging reception, and as its serious interest is lightened with plenty of bright dialogue and some epigrams of more than passing merit, should enjoy a good measure of popularity with lovers of the drawing-room play. Mr. Walsh acted with fine restraint and dignity in the by no means easy rôle of Derrick Vernon; Miss Amy Ravenscroft gave a very pleasing and graceful rendering of Brenda Carlisle; Miss Marjorie Moore acted engagingly in the ingénue part of Patty Monaghan; Mr. Robert Horton played with power and distinction as John Berkeley; Mr. Charles Troode was quite amusing as the elephantine youth, Tony Carlisle; Mr. K. Kay portrayed Philip Doyle in a manly and spiritaed manner. A neat little sketch of a crotchetty old publisher came from Mr. George Power; Miss Ella Daincourt did good work as Lady Mary Carlisle; and Mr. Wm. Dempsey, as Cracknell, submitted a clever characterisation of a waiter.

"PROTECTING MRS. MOXON."

Play, in One Act, by Arthur Eckersley, Produced at the Grand Opera House, Belfast, on Monday, Oct. 24.

Mrs. Moxon .....MISS VIOLET TEMPLE
Quartermaster Snapper, R.N. (retired) MR. W. BESLEY BELTRAN
The Stranger .....MR. JAMES HEDDON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The piece opens in Mrs. Moxon's parlour. To her presently comes Quartermaster Snapper, R.N., with vows of love, and proposes to the widow, offering her his hand and heart, stating that she must find herself very lonely and in need of some protection. During the course of his remarks it transpires that his only son had left home after some difference with his father, and his whereabouts is quite unknown. Mrs. Moxon, musing over the proposal, is suddenly surprised by a stranger, who demands her money and threatens to stab her if her purse is not handed over at once. She rings for help, and, after some conversation with the stranger, whom she has disarmed, learns that he is the Quartermaster's own son, who had attempted to burgle the house. She decides on saving him, but in the meantime the Quartermaster knocks loudly for admittance, and the youth is hidden in another room. He is able, however, to slip away, unseen by Snapper, who was not aware of his presence or his identity, and, on the Quartermaster renewing his suit, he is accepted. The little piece was extremely well acted by Miss Violet Temple and Messrs. W. Besley Beltran and James Heddon.

MISS INEZ HOWARD'S company presented The Prince and the Beggar Maid at Shodfriars Hall, Boston, on Wednesday and Thursday in this week. Mr. Alfred Randon was an excellent Prince Hildred; Mr. William J. Rea gave a clever study of the hunchback, Prince Michael; Mr. Chas. A. Baker played Prince Olaf in a masterly manner; Mr. E. W. Parr played the part of Nathan, the dumb servant; the Bishop of Illyria was in the capable hands of Mr. J. W. Brighton; and as Camiola, the beggar maid, Miss Jessie Yatman gained hearty praise. Princess Monica was delightfully interpreted by Miss Ethel Saville.

MISS EVA MOORE'S CLAIM.

A theatrical suit came before his Honour Sir William Selfe at the West London County Court on Thursday, the plaintiff being Miss Eva Moore, the well-known actress, of Apple Porch, Maidenhead, who sued Mr. Adolph Ernest Darewski, described as an impresario, of Sinclair Mansions, Kensington, for professional fees said to be due in connection with a recital given by the plaintiff at Scarborough.

Mr. M. Templeton (Messrs. Templeton and Cox) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Osborne (Messrs. Osborne and Osborne) represented the defendant.

At the outset Mr. Osborne said the defendant pleaded that he was an infant, and was therefore not responsible.

Mr. Templeton, for the plaintiff, said Miss Eva Moore was the wife of Mr. Henry Esmond Jack, who was professionally known as an actor as Mr. H. E. Esmond. In January last Miss Moore was approached by the defendant with a view to her taking part in a play which he said he had. Nothing came of that, but in March Miss Moore received a letter from the defendant, asking what her terms would be to appear at two concerts. She replied that her fee would be twenty guineas a concert, and subsequently it was arranged that the plaintiff should appear at two concerts at Scarborough on March 25 and 27, at an inclusive fee of forty guineas. Miss Moore journeyed to Scarborough and there saw the defendant at the Grand Hotel, where he was staying. The contract was duly made, and a conversation took place, during which the defendant asked Miss Moore: "How old do you think I am?" She replied: "I should think you are 23 or 24." The defendant said: "I am 27." Miss Moore appeared at the two concerts, and immediately afterwards left Scarborough, without having seen the defendant again, or been paid, as was the usual custom. She, however, received a letter from the defendant, in which he said he was sorry to have missed seeing her, but had been engaged with the management. He added: "I shall have to send you a cheque when I return to town, as there is practically no money to draw from the management, the houses having been so terrible. I changed the last cheque I brought with me on Thursday night, not anticipating such poor business." That was an admission of liability, and the plaintiff then gave him a little time in which to pay. The defendant, however, failed to meet the liability, and proceedings were then commenced.

Mr. Templeton added that his Honour would have an opportunity of seeing the defendant and judging whether he was under twenty-one years of age. If his plea of infancy were upheld, Miss Moore hoped that the case would be a warning to her fellow artists not to enter into engagements with Mr. Adolph Ernest Darewski.

Miss Eva Moore, in the witness box, bore out counsel's statement, and said defendant, when she saw him after journeying to Scarborough, told her he was floating a company at Cork, and was getting a good deal of money for it. He asked her how old she thought he was, and she replied, "About twenty-four."

Mr. Templeton: Was he clean shaven at the time, as he is now?—I cannot remember. My impression is that he had a moustache. I certainly put him down at not less than twenty-four.

For the defence a lady was called who said her name was Irene Darewski, and that she was the mother of the defendant, who was born in Austria in 1890. She produced a certificate signed by a doctor. The defendant's correct name was Josef Adolf Darewski.

Cross-examined, the witness said her son did not live with her. He left home nearly two years ago.

Mr. Templeton: Did he leave you to get married?—No.

Is he married?—I do not know.

Do you know his flat?—No.

Do you know that at his flat there is a plate bearing the names of Mr. and Mrs. Darewski?—I do not know anything about it.

When did you last see your son before to-day?—Last week.

Was he then wearing a moustache?—No, I never saw him with a moustache.

Mr. Templeton: He appears to have shaved, at all events.

The defendant, a well-dressed, clean-shaven young man, who was next called, said he called himself Adolf Ernest Darewski for professional reasons.

Mr. Templeton: When did you take the flat in Sinclair Mansions?—Twelve months ago.

Did you run the International Agency in Garrick-street, from which one of your letters is addressed?—I did.

You rented it yourself?—Well, there was another party connected with it.

When you took your flat, did you have the names put up, "Mr. and Mrs. Darewski"?—I did.

Mr. Templeton: Are you married?

The defendant, after some hesitation, said he declined to answer the question.

Questioned with regard to the conversation he had with the plaintiff at Scarborough, the defendant said something was mentioned about age, and Miss Moore remarked that she was old enough to be his mother, which she never would have said if she thought he was over twenty. (Laughter.)

Mr. Templeton submitted that if the defendant was really under age, it was a most discreditable transaction on his part, and he asked his Honour that at least the defendant should be ordered to pay the costs. There were many professionals who were probably less able than was Miss Eva Moore to lose money in engagements, and he hoped they would be warned by these proceedings.

His Honour said the case would undoubtedly cause other artists to be careful in making engagements. There would be judgment for the defendant without costs.

Mr. Osborne suggested that the defendant should have his costs, inasmuch as the plaintiff knew as far back as August last that the defendant was under age.

His Honour: I will consider it when he has paid the £42. Come and tell me, and I will then give costs.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Borodine's Quartet for Strings, in A major, the first item in the College concert on Wednesday evening, was played by Miss Dorothy Devin, Mr. Antonio Piedra, Miss Sybil Maturin, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe with fairly successful results. Mr. Douglas Fox displayed so much ability in L. Delafosse's "Concert Studies" (Nos. 5, 4, and 3), for pianoforte, that the delighted audience gave the talented young performer four hearty recalls. In Bach's D Minor Concerto for two violins, Miss E. Muriel Pickup and Miss Elsie Avril were associated in a very able performance. The broad expressive style of the fine old composer was well maintained, and the young ladies' tone and execution were above reproach. Much applauded were also the organ solos, Choral Improvisations, Op. 65 (Sigfrid Karg-Elert), "Aus tiefer Not" and "Jerusalem" (Toccata), skilfully played by Mr. Albert Midgley.

To the vocal side of the programme Miss Gladys Coppen, who has an excellent voice, contributed C. Saint-Saëns artistic song, "La Cloche," and the duet, "El Desdichado," of the same composer, was sung by Miss Rita Rabone and Miss Violet C. Smith with good execution, but hardly so satisfactory a tone. Miss Katherine Vincent, who sang "Absence" (Berlioz), was favourably received. The accompanists were Miss Grace Humphery, Mr. William Murdoch, and Miss Gladys Cawston.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

In the first act of Mrs. Skeffington, at the Queen's Theatre, Miss Gwladys Gaynor as Effie Thynne appears in a charming little frock of deep rose cashmere-de-soie scooped out over a little cream collarless lace vest, with a tiny bow tie of dull blue satin. The back of the gown is buttoned from the corsage to the hem, while the front is decorated with "pattes" of dull blue and aluminium embroidery of the Oriental description, the sleeves being decorated with a row of buttons and likewise enriched with the same broderie, while the full corsage pouches over the belt, which is bordered on either side with embroidery and finished with a flat bow behind.

Miss Ellen O'Malley as Mrs. Thynne wears a graceful gown of soft black ninon with a tablier of gold lace cut in peplum form back and front, and brought into a point over the bust. This is veiled again with black ninon trimmed with wide bands of black velvet studded with black satin buttons, while a band of gold lace is encrusted into each of the sleeves from the shoulder downwards, and appears to be held in place with a row of tiny buttons. A ruche of feathers decorates the sleeves, and her fair hair is filleted with a wide band of black velvet ribbon.

Miss Beryl Faber's gown is a soft primrose-coloured charmeuse, over which is worn a coat of lavender grey chiffon. This is finished with a deep hem of lavender-grey charmeuse, cut out over the chiffon in rays, while over the chiffon itself are embroidered giant puff-balls of aluminium thread and floss silk. To accompany this gown there is a little hat with curled-up brim, covered with folded ninon, which introduces the two shades of the gown, a twist of chaudron-coloured ribbon being wound round the crown and caught on one side with a single rose.

In the second act she appears in a lovely gown of the palest opal satin, shading to a greyish blue on the corsage, and painted with branches of lilac-mauve and pink blossoms, the gown being made in princess form, and partially covered with a little loose coat of silver lace, edged all round with silver bugle fringe. Her round hat with its curled-up brim cut into points at the side is of lilac silk lined with bishop's purple velvet, and trimmed with a twist of shot blue and silver net.

A dainty little gown of pale blue satin is worn by Miss Gwladys Gaynor in this act. It is draped very lightly on one side, with an overdress of pale sunset blue chiffon to match, hemmed with white satin worked in a lovely design, in rose-blue and green paillettes, which has a chiné effect, the ceinture being of the same, while from a large chiffon bow worn between her shoulders float long chiffon ends. Her pretty polichinelle hat is of steel-grey stretched satin, with a mass of pink roses on one side.

Miss Ellen O'Malley wears a dress of ivory tulle over satin, the corsage being of ivory and gold lace combined, while a deep band of gold dentelle is encrusted into the skirt, and below that is a band of cream lace, with an interlining of rose chiffon showing through it.

The jupe is finished with a deep hem of pink chiffon, while over this is worn a charming cloak of the same pink chiffon, with a very wide hem of satin to match, hung with silk tassels and fashioned with a deep Watteau pleat at the back. A hat of bronze beaver, lined with black velvet and trimmed with a couple of dark lapis lazuli ostrich plumes, provides a finish. In the last scene Miss Beryl Faber wears a motor hat and cloak in dark slate-blue cloth, with a bonnet of the Dutch cap persuasion in leather to match.

THOSE who wish to hear the first performance of Elgar's Violin Concerto by Herr Kreisler at the first Philharmonic Concert on the 10th should lose no time, as the hall was reported to be all but sold out some days ago.

PRINCESS LOUISE, Duchess of Argyll, has graciously given her patronage to Dr. William A. Hall's annual concert at the Municipal Hall, Tottenham, on December 8, in aid of the Prince of Wales's General Hospital, Tottenham.

AT the New Theatre, New York, on the occasion of the first subscription performance for the residents of the poorer sections of the city the house was crowded. For every seat there had been about twenty applicants, so keen was the interest in seeing the performance of The Blue Bird at one-fifth the regular prices. Mr. Winthrop Ames, the director of the New Theatre, has spoken of the affair as "a very successful experiment." Another performance with the same end in view will be given shortly when The Merry Wives of Windsor will be the attraction. The prices of admission on these occasions range from ten to fifty cents, the distribution of the tickets being undertaken by various educational associations. The movement to bring the best plays within the reach of the working classes is extending, and it is expected that several of the leading theatres will shortly be included in the scheme. Mr. Hammerstein has already offered to sell at reduced prices the balcony seats at the Manhattan Opera House.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, OCT. 19.—Madame Troubadour, an operetta in three acts, was performed for the first time in America at the Lyric Theatre on the 10th inst. The music is by Felix Albini, while the Americanised libretto was written by Joseph Herbert, who also staged the production. There are only eight characters in the piece, and there is no chorus, the music consisting of duets and trios, with the exception of the finales. The story is all about the marital troubles of the Marquis de Kergazon, who devotes his life to studying the deeds of the ancient troubadours. His wife Henriette, nicknamed Madame Troubadour, finds herself neglected, and consoles herself with the Vicomte Max de Voigommeux. The ill-mated pair discuss the situation, and agree upon a plan by which the Marquis is to give his wife grounds for a divorce. She visits the country house of Vicomte Max, but he has not expected her, and instead of finding him eager to marry her, she catches him kissing his two good-looking serving maids. Henriette's absence arouses her husband's jealousy, and he follows her. Finally Henriette becomes disgusted with her former admirer, and the Marquis having been disappointed in his efforts to obtain a divorce, they awake to the fact that they really love each other, and all ends happily.

THANKS to its sparkling music, the piece proved thoroughly enjoyable. The score was unusually good, and the orchestration very fine. There were no interpolations. Every number was relevant to the story, and there was a constant flow of melody of the sort that charms the ear. Miss Grace La Rue sang the title-part, and Mr. Van Rensselaer Wheeler appeared as Vicomte Max. Both sang well and received much applause. Mr. Charles Angelo not only gave a capital impersonation of the Marquis de Kergazon, but sang several numbers splendidly. His performance was thoroughly artistic and conspicuously successful. One of the best numbers in the piece was the pastoral duet by the pair of bare-legged serving-maids, Georgette and Martine, impersonated with much vivacity and humour by Misses Anna Wheaton and Doris Goodwin. Miss Georgia Caine sang and acted well as Juliette, the other rôles being creditably sustained by Mr. Edgar Atchison Ely and Mr. Edgar Norton.

MISS HILDA SPONG, who has been seen but seldom on the New York stage during the last few seasons, appeared at the Gaiety Theatre on the 14th inst. in a special performance of a new four-act play called The Penalty, by Henry C. Colwell. Messrs. Cohan and Harris are the producers and are sending the play on tour. The author is a Yale man, and he has written of the divorce problem, the scenes being laid in New York. Bess Rutherford, after divorcing her drunken husband, has become the mistress of James Carpenter, who is able to provide her with luxuries and educate her son as well as help her to pay the sums of money that her husband demands of her from time to time. Her son Jack, knowing nothing of his mother's "past," becomes engaged to Gladys Dexter, a wealthy girl with whom Carpenter is also in love. In vain the divorced wife implores her paramour to marry her. He has no intention of doing so. Jack Rutherford learns from the mother of the girl he loves that he can never be accepted as her son-in-law, because there is a stain on his own mother's name, his drunken father having disclosed the fact of the divorce in a desire for revenge. Carpenter verifies the statement when he comes to ask for the hand of Gladys Dexter, who has promised to marry the son of his mistress.

Jack Rutherford confronts his mother, and she tries to deny everything, but Carpenter enters and makes no concealment of their true relations with each other, at the same time denying the woman's story that he intends to marry her. The son seizes a revolver to kill him, but Carpenter lays the blame on the woman, and tells the boy that everything he has had in life has been bought with his—Carpenter's—money. The lad is turned from his purpose, but his mother seizes the pistol and kills her paramour. Then she locks herself in the room with the dead man and swallows poison. As the curtain falls her son is beating madly on the door.

As Bess Rutherford Miss Spong gave a highly effective rendering of a very emotional rôle, and was warmly applauded. The supporting company was good. The important part of the son was played in manly fashion by Mr. Harry Mestayer, and Gladys Dexter was charmingly represented by Miss Edna Baker. Mr. John Flood as the ex-husband, Charles Rutherford, and Mr. Cuyler Hastings as James Carpenter also deserve praise for their impersonations.

MISS BILLIE BURKE will make her next appearance in New York at Christmas time in a new comedy called Susanne. The play is an adaptation from the French by C. Haddon Chambers. The original was called The Marriage of Miss Bullman, and was first produced in Brussels about two years ago, afterwards running at the Renaissance Theatre, in Paris. Miss Burke's rôle is said to be entirely different from the part she plays in Mrs. Dot, being described as "sympathetic and emotional."

THE Shuberts have opened a new playhouse in Brooklyn. It has a seating capacity of 1800, and is called the Sam S. Shubert Theatre.

MR. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN, who returned to New York last week, said that the Londoners had refused to take him seriously, but the work on his new opera house was about to begin, the builders having agreed under a penalty of $1,000 a day to have the house ready for opening by Nov. 1, 1911.

THE New Theatre company will visit Montreal and Toronto during the latter part of this month, presenting The Merry Wives of Windsor and Pinero's play The Thunderbolt. The company will open the regular season at the New Theatre on Nov. 7.

MR. NAT C. GOODWIN has a new play called The Captain, by George Broadhurst and C. T. Dazey. He appeared in it for the first time at English's Opera House, Indianapolis, on the 10th inst. The scenes of the play are laid in Manila. Mr. Goodwin impersonates Jefferson Lorimer, a New Yorker who has held a commission in the National Guard. He is travelling around the world with two companions when he meets a charming widow in Manila. In order to help an old friend, Captain Hastings, out of a scrape, he assumes the Captain's identity for four days, and this leads to all sorts of unforeseen consequences. The widow falls in love with him because of his supposed bravery during the march to Pekin. Then he is accused of murdering Jefferson Lorimer. Finally he is called upon to lead a dangerous expedition into the jungle in order to capture a rebel chief.

MISS MARY MANNERING, who recently underwent an operation, has recovered, and will open her second season in A Man's World on the 24th inst.

MISS FRITZI SCHEFF is at present appearing in a revival of The Mikado, and will shortly be seen in a musical version of Trilby.

HERMANN E. DAREWSKI, jun., the well-known composer, and his brother, Max Darewski, known as a musical conductor, and his father, E. Darewski, wish it to be known that they have nothing to do with the case heard at the Brompton County Court this week.

ON the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 15, a series of "Anglo-Spanish Tableaux Vivants" is to be presented at the Court Theatre. The entertainment has been organised by the Spanish circle of the Lyceum Club, of which Mrs. Stuart Erskine is president, in aid of the Queen of Spain's charities.

ACTRESSES' FRANCHISE LEAGUE AT HOME.

The Actresses' Franchise League "At Home," held in the Georgian Room of the Piccadilly Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, was a very successful and interesting meeting, and largely attended by members and friends. Lady Carl Meyer and Mrs. J. B. Fagan were the hostesses, and in the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Madeleine Lucette Ryley, Miss DECIMA MOORE occupied the chair. In opening the proceedings, Miss Moore explained the nature and objects of the League, which aimed at interesting all women of the theatrical, musical, and music hall professions in the work of obtaining the suffrage for women. The League had a broad basis, no particular methods, and no politics. They were out to help all those working for the movement. They were not asking that all women should have votes, but, rather, that the fact that being a woman should not be a disqualification. Miss Moore instanced many laws which worked very hardly and unfairly on women, and they wanted the vote as a safeguard. Later in the afternoon she explained part of a scheme of the A.F.L., the production of propaganda plays, in connection with which a new department had been started, under the direction of Miss Edith Craig. In aid of this work, Miss Moore appealed for funds, and received many promises of help and some donations.

Lady MEYER, who followed, spoke of the splendid work being done for the cause by the actresses, who had brought all the force of their beauty and their intelligence into the struggle. The theatre was the one sphere wherein women were on the same level with men, in that they received equal pay for equal labour. Would that such conditions might be extended to other professions. On the stage there was no sex jealousy, as in other walks of life; all were good comrades. The vote might not banish all hardship from the life of woman, but she claimed that it would make a great difference in her social welfare. Lady Meyer spoke of an article in a recent review by a well-known writer in which he had tried to prove that Shakespeare had a poor idea of women. She herself did not think so; in her opinion many of his heroines had far more commonsense than the heroes, and in support of this instanced Viola in Twelfth Night and Portia in The Merchant of Venice. In the course of a very interesting speech, Lady Meyer also dwelt upon the economic and other aspects of the question.

Mr. FREDERIC WHELEN referred to the good work done nowadays by women in all that concerned the stage. The theatre in England was, he considered, in a most unsatisfactory state; the only satisfactory thing about it was the successful part women were taking in writing plays and in producing and acting them. In speaking of the Répertoire Theatre, he mentioned a repertory theatre in Dusseldorf, managed by a woman, who has produced seven different plays in a week, two of which were by Marlowe and one by Bernard Shaw. Then there was the repertory theatre in Manchester, founded by a woman, Miss Horniman. And a woman was responsible for the only performance of a play by Ibsen in London this year—Miss Rosina Filippi's production of John Gabriel Borkman at the Court on Tuesday afternoon. He also referred to Miss Gertrude Kingston's experiment at the Little Theatre. He had lately seen a play written by a man in which the curtain came down on the spectacle of a woman on her knees, crying: "I am your chattel!" No woman would ever write that! As a man, he was struck by the admirable way in which the Woman Suffrage Movement was being conducted, and he quoted Oliver Wendell Holmes, saying, "Man has his will, but woman has her way."

Mme. YVETTE GUILBERT, who came on from the Coliseum, and received a very cordial greeting, in a delightful little speech remarked that the actress had to keep eternally young, which was extremely difficult; and she had to be very beautiful and to maintain her personal charm as well as the gift of illusion, and that was often very difficult. The wearing of beautiful dresses was a great factor in the success of an actress, and in connection with this subject, Mme. Guilbert said that English actresses were far more fortunate than the majority of her French sisters. She understood that in England the management provided most of the costumes for the run of the play. That was not so in France. There the "star" artists only were supplied; the minor actresses, who only received £7 or £8 a month, had to find costumes for twelve or more plays. The existence of such a state of affairs often led to the minor actress having a male "friend," and on that "friend" she became dependent. Under such conditions the actress was a victim, and nothing else. A great French poet had asked when women would become the sisters of men, and the answer was, "When men become our brothers." She had, with the aid of kind friends, founded an institution in Paris for supplying wardrobes at a small charge to the poorer ladies of the profession. It was easy to sneer at the cry of votes for women, but when women had a hand in ruling the destiny of the world, it would then be at the highest point of civilisation.

"WAY OUT WEST" was produced at the Ayr Gaiety Theatre this week, under the direction of the author, Mr. Junius Booth. Mr. Booth takes the leading part, and fills it with power. Others who make up a good all-round company are Messrs. Millar Anderson and Bannister and Miss Alice West. A new version of Monte Cristo, by the same author, was produced on Friday evening, evening.

"A PAIR OF SPECTACLES" was presented at St. John's Hall, Penzance, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings before appreciative audiences by Mr. Dudley Stuart. The Benjamin Goldfinch of Mr. Arthur Hare was a perfect piece of acting; while Mr. James Harcourt was most successful in the part of Gregory, whose appearance on the stage kept the audience in one long roar of laughter. As Percy and Dick Mr. Ernest Dean and Mr. Guy Vivian were well placed; and Joyce was ably taken by Mr. Alfred Kingston. As the two bootmakers, Messrs. Jack Bertram and Ted Jackson did good work; Miss Carmena Rivers as Marion did full justice to the part; while Miss May de Launey as Lucy was quite fascinating. The character of Lorimer was well portrayed by Mr. Sherwood Martin.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Play, entitled
"THE WHIP."

Of all the Drury Lane successes The Whip has been acclaimed as the greatest, and this week's production at the King's Theatre supports that fact to the utmost. Every part of the house was crowded on Monday evening, and the enthusiasm of the audience was aroused at the sensational scenes and incidents. It would be very difficult to improve upon the elaborate effects placed on the stage of the King's for this play, so realistic are they, exciting wonderment at the smooth and easy working which says much for the ability of the permanent staff of the theatre, so capably controlled by Mr. J. B. Mulholland. Mr. George Dance, who brings the production, has not been at all niggardly in his enterprise, and it is gratifying to see that he will be amply rewarded for his efforts. The cast is a very long one, but care has been shown in the selection, and every character is in good hands. Mr. Frederick Leister, as the Rev. Verner Haslam renders capital service as the weak-minded but repentant clergyman, and gains applause for a very praiseworthy assumption. Tom Lambert, the trainer, gives Mr. Edwin Brett many opportunities for comical acting, and the manner in which the audience receive him shows clearly that he has succeeded. A finished piece of acting is Mr. James Lindsay's Captain Greville Sartorys, the cool and insouciant scoundrel of the piece. The Earl of Brancaster is played by Mr. Dallas Cairns in excellent fashion, and Mr. Ernest A. Douglas as the Marquis of Beverley is as good a member of the nobility as could be desired. Mr. Eric Hudson plays Joe Kelly, the bookmaker, with much ability, and Mr. Colston Mansell as Harry Anson, the Jockey, is decidedly effective. Tom Foster, by Mr. W. Goldman, and Captain Rayner by Mr. Vincent Lawson lend valuable assistance. Mr. Horace Custins as Tomlin is capable, and Lord Clanmore is ably personated by Mr. W. G. Yeldham. An emphatic success is obtained by Miss Simeta Marsden in the part of the Hon. Mrs. Beamish, the audience highly appreciating her talent. The adventuress, Mrs. d'Aquila, in the hands of Miss Vera Beringer, is remarkably well rendered, her aristocratic appearance and elegant costumes lending material support. Very attractive and sweetly sympathetic is Miss Gwendolen Wren as Lady Diana Sartorys. Myrtle Anson is earnestly portrayed by Miss Dora Lane. The numerous minor parts are in very good hands.

THE MARLBOROUGH.
On Monday, Oct. 24,
"THE DAWN OF A TO-MORROW."

Messrs. Wentworth Croke, Milton Bode, and Edward Compton's company are paying a very welcome visit to the Marlborough this week in The Dawn of a To-Morrow, a play full of interest, and holding the attention of the audience throughout. As Sir Oliver Holt Mr. Frederick Victor scores a big success. He has a firm grip of the part, and portrays the character with his accustomed skill. Mr. Charles King is in every way excellent as Oliver Holt, and as Sir Bowling Burford, Dr. Heath, and Dr. Satterley, small but important parts in the first act, Messrs. Chas. E. Dering, Murray Hathorn, and James Williams each display much ability. Mr. Paul Wynter is amusing as Lord Tommy Dartmore, and Mr. Reginald Hunt supplies a finished delineation of the Secretary, Bedell. Mr. William Kershaw interprets the Dandy in a manner that reflects great credit upon him, and Mr. Bertram Burleigh as The Thief sustains his part excellently. Miss Marie Polini acts with a pleasant discrimination as Glad, her performance coming in for cordial expressions of approval. Dolly is fittingly sustained by Miss D. E. Clements, and Miss Alice Dorie shows considerable skill and ability in her delineation of Bet. Miss Iris Rutherford and Miss Doris Digby are well suited as Mimi and Madge Delorme, and Miss Edith Hartley is a conscientious exponent of the part of Feathers. Mr. George West's performance as Powell, the butler, is in all respects excellent, and Mr. Henry Compton finds a congenial rôle in Jim. Mr. Arthur E. Maskell supplies an able delineation of Barney, and Mr. Franklyn Gregory contributes a meritorious performance as The Bat, receiving substantial assistance from Master George Hughes as The Kid. In minor parts Messrs. Chas. Hardy (Inspector Barnes), Tom Fielding (Policeman), and Fred Cater (Footman), each deserve a word of praise.

CORONET THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Comedy, entitled
"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

Mr. James Welch and his company were long ago booked for the Coronet, before its more ambitious programme was inaugurated, so Sister Anne had to depart with the encomiums of her admirers last Saturday night. The humour of When Knights were Bold is by no means dulled by time, and the spontaneity and unflagging zest which Mr. Welch and his clever company put into their work are really remarkable. The result is a continuous ripple of merriment. The scene on the battlements with "ye dream of ye olden tymes" is not only remarkable for its ludicrous anachronism, but is dressed and mounted with beauty, taste, and correctness as to detail; of course, with the notable exception of the central figure, Sir Guy de Vere. As this very modern sprig of nobility, up-to-date in every particular from tip to toe, with his modern slang, and his intense appreciation of modern comforts and conveniences, Mr. James Welch is inimitable, and is absolutely cut out for the part. His unflagging humour and tireless energy in the matter of mirth-moving "business," are beyond praise. Excellent support is rendered by Miss Audrey Ford as Lady Rowena Egginton, the intense and perfervid admirer of all that appertains to the days of old, whose mock-heroic method is admirably adapted to her part. Mr. George F. Tully is excellent as Wittle; and Mr. Gordon Tomkins is excruciatingly funny as the lachrymose Barker. Mr. Arthur Grenville does good service as the Israelite, Isaac Isaacson, and Miss Daisy Cordell as Sarah and Miss Annie Chippendale as Alice are well in the picture. Mr. Henry J. Ford is good as Widdicombe, the jester, with a song; and Mr. Guy Lane as the Dean, Peter Pottlebery, Mr. Cecil Kinnaird, and Misses Maev O'Shea, Hermina Black, Peggy Kennedy, Mabel Younge, and Mr. Leopold Profeit do good work in minor rôles. Mr. Arthur Whittaker is general manager for the company, and Mr. Leonard Buttress, stage manager.

DALSTON THEATRE.

The visit of J. W. Turner's English opera company to the Dalston Theatre this week has proved a great attraction, and the house has been well filled at each performance. As a matter of fact the acting-manager of the house, Mr. W. R. King, has had his ingenuity taxed to find seating accommodation for all the enthusiastic musical patrons of the theatre at this period. The operas produced during the past week have included Faust, Robin Hood, Carmen, Satanella, Lily of Killarney, Il Trovatore, and Maritana. Mr. Turner's name has been associated with the title-rôle in Robin Hood, Myles na Coppaleen in The Lily of Killarney, and Don Cæsar de Bazan in Maritana. The popular singer's vitality is really wonderful, and he is still on wonderful terms of popularity with his audiences, the most noteworthy songs in the operas in which he appears being again and again encored. Miss Sarah Williams is also a decided favourite. Her characters during the present visit of the company to Dalston have been Maid Marion in Robin Hood, Satanella in the opera of that name, and Leonora in Il Trovatore. Miss Williams makes a convincing Leonora, and she is always charming as Satanella, a character which just suits her style. Mr. Tom Griffiths's popular parts are Valentine in Faust, Escamillo in Carmen, Danny Mann in Lily of Killarney, and Don Jose in Maritana. He has been well to the front this week, gaining most flattering plaudits, and being called upon to accede to many encores. Miss Kitty Brownless has appeared in the title-rôle of Carmen and as Eily in the Lily of Killarney, and has proved herself a most capable artist. The rôle of Maritana in Wallace's charming opera of that name has in this instance been entrusted to Miss Christine Gomez. In the same opera Miss Jessie Dennis still represents Lazarillo, and the same artist has appeared with considerable success in Satanella, Robin Hood, and Carmen. Mr. F. J. Hargrave has sustained the title-rôle of Faust, and has also been the Count Rupert in Satanella, and Manrico in Il Trovatore. Others in the company are Mr. Frank Clarke, Mr. William Anderson, Mr. Tom Yates, and Mr. Sidney Appleby. Miss Ella Vane, Miss Grace Parish, Miss Beatrice Hill, Mr. Richard Cummings, Mr. T. Yates, and Mr. Seth Hughes, who plays Don Jose in Carmen.

BRIXTON THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE WOMAN IN THE CASE."

Mr. Clyde Fitch's successful play is this week attracting large audiences, and deservedly so. It is well played by the clever company which Mr. Louis Meyer has around him, and the performance gave every satisfaction to Brixtonians on Monday evening. To Miss Florence Lloyd unqualified praise must be bestowed for her brilliant portrayal of Claire Forster. Throughout the play Miss Lloyd held her audience firmly, and won hearty applause and many "curtains"; Miss Mabel Trevor, a clever actress, was a very engaging and handsome Margaret Rolfe; and Miss Sophie Lingwood distinguished herself as Mrs. Hughes. Miss Madge Russell made a charming Elsie Brewster, and Miss Esther Whitehouse was pleasing and fresh as Dora Miller. Miss Grete Hahn as Louise Mane was very praiseworthy; Mr. Leonard Pagden merited warm eulogiums for his fine acting as Thompson. His sincerity and power carried the audience with him. Mr. Clive Ross did good work as Louis Klauffsky, and Mr. Richard Fielding made an excellent Jimmy O'Neill. Mr. Lambert Plummer did well as Walters; Mr. Reginald Maurice was a typical Police Inspector; and Mr. T. Taylor Vinson made a satisfactory attendant. In the rôle of Julian Rolfe Mr. Clayton Greene was very good, his easy style and aplomb being much appreciated. The play was well mounted and dressed, Mr. Lambert Plummer being an efficient stage-manager for Mr. Louis Meyer, and Mr. F. Clive Ross an excellent general-manager.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE BAD GIRL OF THE FAMILY."

It seems quite like old times again at the "Brit." On Monday evening the house was packed from floor to ceiling. The Melville drama provided this week is proving very popular, and Mr. George Conquest should soon re-establish the "Brit." as a popular and successful drama house. The story of the "bad girl," who is still winking as strongly as ever, is now no doubt too well known to need recapitulation. The name-part is undertaken by Miss Violet Crossley, who, in this capacity is a decided success; her dramatic rendering is particularly effective; Mr. Alexander Bradley undertakes the part of Harry Gordon, and his powerful acting does not fail to evoke the acknowledgment which is always accorded by the gallery to the villain of the piece; Mr. Richard Lane as the hero—Lieutenant Richard Marsh, R.N.—plays in sincere and manly fashion; Miss Daisie Cook is very refined and charming as the heroine, Gladys Erskine, and is the possessor of much natural grace; and Mr. James C. Taylor invests the part of Lord Erskine with all the necessary dignity. The comedy parts are well looked after by Mr. Luke Forster as Barney Gordon and Mr. Tom May as Sammy Snozzle. Miss Mona Hungerford effectively enacts Sally Smithers; Misses Gertrude Wood, Marjorie Green, Louie Smith, and Molly Gustave appear as other shop girls, and render valuable assistance. Miss Dulcie O'Mull Conroy as Honour Moore and Miss Sadie Southern as Mrs. Moore enact their respective rôles in a natural and convincing manner. A word must be said in praise of Mr. George Belmore, who, as Jerry Holmes, makes the most of his opportunities, displaying both humour and pathos. Mr. Edwin Lever effectively undertakes the part of John Moore. The remaining characters are capably sustained by Mr. Charles Eustace as Inspector Lawrence, Mr. Henry Meade as P.C. Harper, Mr. Frank Willing as the Vicar, and Messrs. E. W. Vincent, Fred Carr, James Selwin, Clement Hood, and Joseph Canton. The piece is capitally staged, and the musical arrangements are in the capable hands of Mr. Carlile Vernon.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

The popularity of that fascinating creature, The Merry Widow, was again shown by a full house at Kennington Theatre on Monday. At the hands of the brilliant company which Mr. George Edwardes has selected, the pretty music, romantic story, and melodious songs, are done full justice to. In the title-rôle Miss Gertrude Lester is a charming, graceful, and attractive figure. She acts the part with vivacity, and sings and dances admirably. Mr. Louis Bradfield is a delightful Prince Danilo, investing the character with a liveliness and humour that make him a warm favourite. Mr. Tailleur-Andrews's remarkably fine voice finds ample scope in the spirited lyrics with which the composer has endowed the part of Vicomte Camille de Jolidon, and he plays the French gallant with much vim. As Natalie Miss Maggie May is heard to great advantage, and her duet with Mr. Andrews was encored. An amusing impersonation of Baron Popoff is given by Mr. Eric Thorne, whose versatile humour seems inexhaustible. His efforts were ably seconded by Mr. Fred Kaye, who was mirth-provoking in the rôle of General Novakovitch; while Mr. Robert Nainby made a big hit by the clever fashion in which he delineated the character of Nisch. Miss Vivien Tailleur as Frou-Frou proved herself a skilful and sprightly dancer. Mr. George Miller is very good as the Marquis de Cascada; and Miss Alice Cox is excellent as Olga. Mr. Jocelyn Hope is a picturesque M. Khadja; and Miss Eve Hornsby is duly demure as Sylvaine. Mr. Walter Champney makes a quaint waiter at Maxim's; Mr. Robert Cranny is well placed as M. de St. Brioche; and Miss Hylda Coward deserves praise as Prascovia. The chorus is large and well balanced, and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge, leaves nothing to be desired.

PAVILION THEATRE, E.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama, entitled
"O.H.M.S."

A stirring military drama, entitled O.H.M.S., occupies the boards at the Pavilion Theatre this week, and large audiences have been the rule. One of the most notable features of the play is the firing of a machine gun, which produces a most realistic effect. As Frank Fairway Mr. Wingold Lawrence plays with much skill and ability; Mr. Wilton Richards makes a very capable villain; Geo. Middleton is enacted by Mr. Harold Greaves in a very creditable and natural manner; Mr. E. Rayson Cousens as Will Rawson makes a fine sailor; as General Fairway Mr. Wilfred Lyndon proves himself a talented actor; Mr. Andrew Emm producer and author of the play, wins great applause by his impersonation of Bob Wittles; and he is greatly assisted by Miss Lulu Bowes as Mary Parkins. Praise is due to Mr. Hubert Lindsay, who, as Sergeant Millwards, acts very well indeed. Miss Margherita Gordon scores a success in the rôle of the cunning Lucie Marton, little Miss Mabel Wall captivates the audience as Master Frank Fairway, and Madge Middleton finds a capable impersonatress in Miss Rosa Ralph.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

The F. R. Benson Shakespearean company is sure of a hearty welcome and full houses here, and they enjoyed an excellent send-off on Monday with Shakespeare's ever-popular comedy. Mr. John Cairns gave an appropriate dignity to the part of Baptiste, Katherine's father, and Mr. Charles Warburton made Gremio a fine impersonation of servility; Mr. Duncan Yarrow as Lucentio was quietly effective and attractive; the character of Hortensio was discreetly embodied by Mr. F. Wicksteed; Mr. Henry Herbert as Petruchio was excellent, the brawling manner and hectoring disposition being clearly accentuated, without any suspicion of overacting and a peculiarly attractive voice enhancing his other qualifications for the part; Miss Gladys Vanderzee as Katherina, altogether good, her knitted brow and tiger-like displays of rage being most realistic; Miss Rosalind Grey as Bianca gave a most intelligent rendering; and Miss Mollie Lloyd lent significance to the small part of the Widow; the Tranio of Mr. H. S. Cohen was a careful study and most meritorious, his facial expression being very telling; Biondello was enacted in good low comedy style by Mr. Joseph O'Dowd; and the Grumio of Mr. Andrew Leigh was conceived in the same happy vein; Old Vincentio was well represented by Mr. F. J. Richardson; and Mr. Harry Ballantyne infused much humour into his performance as the Tailor; and the many small parts with which this play abounds were all efficiently filled.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Dramatic Comedy, by James Forbes,
"THE CHORUS LADY."

Mr. William Mollison's company, under the direction of Mr. Harold Neville, in The Chorus Lady, is the attraction here this week. Miss Rita Carlyle is a decided success as the chorus lady, Patrica O'Brien, being highly diverting in the comedy passages, as well as fully realising the dramatic possibilities of the part. As the ingenuous Nora O'Brien Miss Elsie Vron Neville acts naively and engagingly, and looks the part well; Mr. John Sims Woolley plays with buoyancy and ease as the popular Dan Mallory; and Mr Henry Ludlow portrays the blackguardly Dick Crawford in a suave and plausible manner, which is most impressive. Mr. Thomas Howes impersonates the easy-going Patrick O'Brien on sound lines; Mr. Eric Dane is well placed as Rogers; and Mr. R. F. Marshall smartly enacts the Shrimp. Miss Mabel Durrant's fine stage appearance adds to the effectiveness of her performance as Sylvia Simpson; Mrs. Josephine Woodward is a motherly and natural Mrs. O'Brien; the slatternly wardrobe womn Mrs. Cocte is appropriately played by Miss Agnes D'Aragon; the dairymaid Blanche has an able representative in Miss Jeannie FitzGeorge; and the chorus ladies are safely entrusted to Miss Kitty Wickstead (Evelyn Blair), Miss Marjorie Lawton (Millie Sultzer), Miss Hilda Donn (Inez La Rue), Miss Maud Bracewell (Rita Nicholls), and Miss Edie Wallace (Mai Delainey).

As a curtain-raiser, was presented on Monday night, for the first time on any stage, a one-act play, by Gerald Villiers Stuart, entitled
"THE DRUMS OF DOOM."

Judge Delaney .....Mr. Harold Neville
Billy Buckstone .....Mr C. A. R Shun
Dawson .....Mr. Eric Dane
Mrs. Jim Fitzgerald ..Miss Marjorie Lawton

This twenty-minute playlet, the action of which takes place in the private room of an hotel in the principal town of a Western State of America, was very favourably received at its initial performance on Monday night. The wife of Jim Fitzgerald receives private news of the pardon of her husband for a murder committed during a political riot, and is awaiting his release from gaol. The pardoning is very unpopular, and the Governor of the State is likely to be displaced in consequence. Further, if the news leaks out in the vicinity of the prison, the approaching execution will undoubtedly have to be carried out. Discussing the case with her lawyer, Judge Delaney, Mrs. Jim confides that the real reason Jim killed the man was in defence of her honour, and Delaney, in a striking speech, explains how unwise it was to have withheld this fact at the trial, but Mrs. Jim, unfortunately, has a past which her husband was constrained to shield. It is a tempestuous night as they sit in the hotel, peals of thunder being heard frequently. "Drums of joy" Mrs. Jim repeatedly calls them in her excess of happiness at the near reunion to her husband. Champagne is ordered, and she toasts her husband rapturously. As the time of Jim's arrival approaches, a visitor, in Billy Buckstone enters the room, and his blanched face indicates that all is not well. Mrs. Jim's "joy drums" he sorrowfully alludes to as "drums of doom," and aside tells Delaney brokenly that news of the pardon has leaked out through the hotel manager; that the mob are clamouring for the execution and that it will take place. Twelve o'clock, the time of the execution, draws near, and Mrs. Jim vividly pictures in her mind the tragic event, but adds, "Of course, it cannot happen, as Jim is pardoned." The telephone bell rings as the fatal hour strikes, and Mrs. Jim rushes to answer it, as Jim is now overdue. She is met with the awful intelligence of her husband's execution! With a wail she cries that the thunder was indeed the "drums of doom," and the end sees her fall to the ground in a swoon.

The interpretation of the dramatic little play was quite satisfactory. The histrionic and physical demands of the part of Mrs. Jim were very commendably met by Miss Marjorie Lawton, who received adequate support from Mr. Harold Neville as Judge Delaney; and in the two minor parts Mr. C. A. R. Shun as Billy Buckstone and Mr. Eric Dane as the hotel manager were successful.

EALING THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled "SAVED FROM THE SEA."

In the opening scene of Messrs. Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck's drama—a beautiful set with a view of the ocean—we are introduced to Dan and Nancy Ellington (Mr. Frank Stone and Miss H. Vigors). Years before Nancy had been saved from a wreck by Dan, and, growing up to be a lovable lass, became a sailor's bride. She is really a lost heiress, and is being searched for high and low. Her cousin, Richard Fenton (Mr. H. Booth) is engaged in the quest, his idea being either to marry the girl when found and share her money, or by putting her out of the way secure the whole fortune, he being the next heir. He is assisted by Peter Schalcher (Mr. E. Cheston), an enquiry agent, and as great a villain as himself. Jim Weaver, known as Surly Jim (Mr. B. Morley), and himself infatuated with Nancy, is used as an instrument to put Dan under the turf. The plan fails, and Jim is killed by Schalcher, and Dan, wrongfully accused of the crime, is convicted. In the prison yard—a most gruesome scene—we see the unfortunate Dan passing to his death, and here occurs an incident recalling the Babbicome murder of years ago. The instrument of execution fails three times to act, and the convict's sentence is reduced to penal servitude. Dan lingers seven years in prison, then the denouncement comes. Schalcher, in an attempt to escape with Dan, receives a death wound, and, dying, confesses that he—incited thereto by Fenton—is the real culprit. Fenton's arrest follows, Dan is rehabilitated, is rejoined to wife and child (prettily played by Miss Mabel Wall), and a pleasant vista of many happy years to come brings down the curtain. Comic relief from a somewhat gloomy theme is supplied by Snooks and Jenkins (Messrs. H. C. Morton and Tracey), joint pretenders for the affections of saucy Polly Blake (Miss N. Sheffield). Other parts are filled by Miss N. Gillmore as Mrs. Blake (Polly's mother), and Messrs. Griffiths, G. Cranfield, R. Martin, and R. Green. The drama is well played throughout by the company, and received an excellent reception.

FULHAM THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Play, by A. Conan Doyle, entitled
"THE SPECKLED BAND."

Mr. A. Hardy's company is doing well at Fulham and is well worth going to see. The company is good and contains some particularly clever artists. Mr. Bassett Roe's impersonation of Dr. Rylott is a wonderfully powerful study of a malignant personality, and it positively haunts one. Miss Mary Forbes does very well in the highly emotional part of Enid Stoner. Another little triumph is that of Mr. E. H. Brooke, as the rugged and determined Armytage. Mr. Ashton Tonge brings out forcibly the weakness of the character of the old butler Rodgers, and Mr. Vyvyan is good as the Indian Ali. Mr. Herbert Bradford does all that is needful in nice style as Scott Wilson, and Mr. Warmington plays the businesslike and unimaginative coroner to the life. As the four clients of Sherlock Holmes, Mr. A. Wyndham, Miss Lilian Rodgers, Mr. R. Lumley, and Mr. Warmington give well-considered studies of differing types of character. Master Philip Tonge is as bright and alert as usual as Billy, and Mr. Talbot Homewood is an eminently sane and sympathetic impersonator of the famous Dr. Watson. Miss Lilian Brennard plays the housekeeper, Mrs. Staunton, with force and point. Finally we have Mr. O. P. Heggie as the inimitable Sherlock Holmes. He plays with all the coolness, the decision, the quickness of perception, and the resource, and the biting humour that belong to the great character created by Conan Doyle, and realises our conceptions to the life.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Play, entitled
"THE FLAG LIEUTENANT."

Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's capital company is drawing excellent houses here with this highly successful naval play, lavishly staged and handsomely dressed. Mr. Edgar Kent as Richard Lascelles is excellent in every way, both voice and appearance being especially adapted to characters of this kind. Mr. A. V. Bramble gives a fine representation of Major William Thesiger; Mr. George Mallet furnishes an impressive and clever performance of the Vice-Admiral Sir Berkeley Wynne; Mr. Vincent Fletcher is very good as John Penrose; General Gough-Bogle and Mrs. Gough-Bogle are capitally played by Mr. Lionel Isted and Miss Stella Leigh; Mr. John Cross is very good as Christopher Neate, as is Mr. George Percy as Surgeon Crutchley. Messrs. George Robinson and A. J. Harris are amusing as the Two Midshipmen. Other characters are well filled by Messrs. James Coulsden (Charles Penny), Harry Haste (George Blockley), Victor R. C. Moors (Thomas Steele), Gordon Hamilton (Joshua Borlase), John Belton (James Sloggett), Edward Harrison (Colonel McLeod), Gilbert Prentice (Captain Munro), Ian Chassereau (Memeti Salos), John Wheatman (Michael Palliser), and David Wilson (Servant). Miss Clarissa Selwynne gives a fine performance of Mrs. Cameron; Miss Dorothy Ripley is a charming Lady Hermione Wynne; Miss Winifred Valiant is a clever and attractive Viola Hood; and Miss Ada Clarke is decidedly good as Lady Dugdale.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama, entitled
"ALONE IN LONDON."

This play makes the traditionally slack nights busy, and the Lyric patrons do not tire of it or of Miss Nellie Clyde, who continues to sustain the part of Nan with such dignity and pathos. Mr. Charles Gibboy is a capable Dick Redcliffe, and improves steadily the more he throws off restraint. The part of the banker, Mr. Burnaby, is well left in Mr. Gilbert Elvin's hands, and Mr. Herbert Grey conducts himself with ease as Walter Burnaby. John Biddlecombe is ably acted by Mr. John Macready; old Jenkinson meets with sound treatment at the hands of Mr. J. W. Wilkinson; Mr. Walter Dunlop is satisfactory as Spriggine; the part of Charlie Johnson is interpreted with a genial sympathy by Mr. Bruce Lindley; Mr. Robert White is amusing as the pot-boy; to Mr. John F. Cane and Mr. George Vincent respectively fall the rôles of the policeman and the police inspector; Miss Ethel F. Greene is quite effective as Tim Chickweed; Liz Jenkinson is suitably allotted to Miss Carrie Young; Miss Jessie Melville is typically hearty as Mrs. Maloney; and Miss Joan Harcourt is graceful and charming as Ruth Clifton, while Miss Hetty Hornsby as Little Paul is made for the part.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Comedy in Three Acts,
"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH."

Mr. Gaston Mayer's excellent company in the popular Mrs. Wiggs is paying a return visit here. The little lady of "the patch" finds a most able exponent in Miss Lucy Beaumont, ever ready to hear other people's troubles, ease them, and patch them up, and never thinking of her own. Miss Beaumont is undoubtedly a host in herself. The difficult rôle of Miss Hazy is admirably enacted by Miss Armine Grace, and her efforts cause roars of laughter. Misses Sybil Brooke and Violet Vivian as Mrs. Eichorn and Mrs. Schultz respectively are very mirth-provoking. Miss Winifred Murray is charming as Lovey Mary, her histrionic powers being of the highest order. The part of Miss Lucy is sympathetically played by Miss Ethne O'Brien. Little Miss Victoria Holmes is clever as Tommie, being quite at home as a boy, without that touch of artificiality generally associated with these characters. Mr. Fred Forrest makes a fine character study of Mr. Stubbins; he is perhaps at his best in the last act, when he returns home after his journey in a freight car. Mr. Ernest Gray is well placed as the weak, easily led Mr. Wiggs. A clever exponent of Mr. Bob is found in Mr. Robert Neilance. As the Sheriff Mr. Robin Shiells does well. Billy Wiggs and Chris Hazy find smart interpreters in the persons of Messrs. Walter Hick and Bailey Hick. Masters H. Lindsay and H. Jeffries make the most of the boys' parts of Micky and Eddie, and cause a large amount of fun. The remaining rôles are well filled by capable artists. The scenery, dresses, &c., are of the best, and the piece is a huge success and well received.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama entitled
"A LIFE FOR A LIFE."

Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company opened here this week with the strong emotional drama, A Life for a Life, by Walter Beaumont and Stephen Baring. Mr. C. H. Lester figures prominently as Don Fernandez, and makes a capital hero. Mr. Hugh Travers rises to the occasion as the villainous Pedro, throughout the play giving a most convincing performance. Mr. Bert Albert makes the most of his opportunities as Kit Oswald. Of the ladies Miss Beatrice Anderson is the central figure, her perfect delivery and vigorous acting being very commendable. Miss Dorothy Riddell in the somewhat difficult rôle of Kate Evelyn also gives an admirable portrayal. Wee Winnie Warden, who has been specially engaged to play the child's part, Venetta, plays well, and gives a delightful rendering of "Daddy." The comedy is successfully undertaken by Miss Nell Ingram and Mr. Horace Buckley as Nancy and Tim, and is clean, crisp, and without vulgarity. The minor parts are well placed. Well mounted, staged, and dressed, A Life for a Life is a pronounced success.

SADLER'S WELLS THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Chas. H. Longdon and Eric Hudson, entitled "MAN'S ENEMY."

The attraction this week is the drama Man's Enemy, which allows the stock company engaged ample opportunities of displaying their abilities. Mr. Sanderson Moffatt as Harry Stanton gives a very powerful impersonation of the easily-led young man who allows drink to almost deprive him of his senses. The scene in the doss-house kitchen is very effectively carried out, and received warm approval from the audience. Tom Drake is skilfully played by Mr. Hugh Carmichie. Mr. Harry McClelland as Bill Saunders has a character that suits him admirably, and represents the villain's accomplice in a manner which shows him to be an actor of ability. Isaac Barnett as played by Mr. Herbert Lewis is an admirable representation; Mr. Harvey White creates amusement as Adolphe Benbonpoint, and is ably assisted in this respect by Miss Lizzie Chambers as Polly Harris; Mr. Julian Bainbridge is well placed as the Rev. Fred Lisle; Mr. Archibald Grant plays the police-constable quite naturally, and is well adapted for this description of character; Miss Kathleen Doyle is dainty and graceful as Grace Lisle; Sally Banks is cleverly represented by Miss Gabrielle Romero; and Miss Marie Frederick's Mrs. Saunders is a very neat performance. A word of praise must be given to Miss May Maddison for her natural portrayal of Nelly Saunders. The drama was staged in a most elaborate manner, some of the scenes being very effective, the producer being Mr. H. G. Braddon. Some excellent films were shown on the screen by the Bioscope, and the orchestra rendered excellent selections in the intervals. Mr. Chas. Hardly is Mr. Macnaghten's able and courteous manager.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Musical Play, by Geo. Grossmith, jun., and Graham Hill, in Three Acts, entitled "HAVANA."

Musical comedy always has a charm for Kingston playgoers, and, knowing this, Mr. Peter Davey is giving the patrons of the theatre an opportunity of witnessing that amusing and tuneful production Havana. The company is toured by Mr. Alexander Leighton, and it is a strong, numerous, and most capable combination. Chief honours are carried off by Miss Hebe Bliss, who is appearing in the part of Consuelo, which she invests with a charm which makes her many friends in every part of the house. Her fine contralto voice is heard to advantage in many of the principal numbers, particularly in "The Cuban girl" song. Miss Winnie Brown makes a winsome Anita. The part of Isabelita is in the hands of Miss Edith Barwell, who acquits herself well; and as the four Cuban beauties Miss Jeanie Rose, Miss Ena Gordon, Miss Dora Gray, and Miss Connie Emerald win much favour by their concerted singing and dancing. Chief amongst the male members of the company is Mr. Sidney T. Peace, who presents a most amusing picture of the bo'sun of the steam yacht Wasp. Mr. Peace's drolleries as the pneumatic seaman cause great laughter; and he is ably assisted by Mr. Rec. Edwards. Other parts are ably filled by Mr. Oliver Rogers, as Jackson Villiers; by Mr. J. Brian Ridout, as the Hon. Frank Charteris; by Mr. Arthur Wingrove, as Bombito del Campo; by Mr. Cyril R. Percival, as the Don Adolfo; and by Mr. John Sandbrook, as Diego. The chorus is a most capable one all round, the dresses are superb, and the scenery all that could be desired. The play is being produced by Mr. Pascoe Rutter, Mr. Harry Hatfield being assistant stage manager, and Mr. Wilfred Esmond acting-manager. The orchestra and the chorus are under thoe direction of Mr. J. H. Yorke.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Agenda for the Council meeting, held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, Oct. 25, at 2.30 p.m. Present: Mr. R. A. Greene (in the chair), Messrs. C. F. Collings, Cyril Cattley, Basil Dean, Henry Pettitt, Cecil A. Collins, Langford Reed, Fred Annerley, F. J. Arlton, Murri Moncrieff, Edward Morgan, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young, secretary.

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 18th inst., and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed same. The chairman read a letter from Miss Nesta Sandford making a complaint against a member, and the secretary was instructed, on the motion of Mr. Cattley, seconded by Mr. Collings, to send a copy of Miss Nesta Sandford's letter to the member concerned and ask him to favour the Council with an explanation.

The Council interviewed certain members with reference to engagements offered them by Miss Gertrude Kingston. Another member gave the Council particulars of his interview with Mr. Oscar Asche and his manager, and after discussion it was proposed by Mr. Collings, seconded by Miss Chester, that the letter previously drafted be sent to the Press, together with copies of the letters from the complainants, with the distinct understanding that the names of the complainants were not for publication, but merely as evidence of good faith. On being put to the meeting the motion was carried by 10 to 3.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Morgan and adopted. Mr. Cattley reported that, after consultation with the secretary, the Finance Committee recommended that letters be written to the members whose agency fees were overdue, and this was carried on the motion of Mr. Cattley, seconded by Mr. Dean.

Nominations:—Trevor Sylvaine and Stanley H. Groome.

The secretary reported five engagements through the Agency. The Council then considered Mr. Montague Wigan's sketch scheme. Mr. Henry Pettitt submitted the recommendations of the sub-committee thereupon, and after a prolonged discussion, contributed to by the chairman, Messrs. Langford Reed, F. J. Arlton, Cyril Cattley, C. F. Collings, and Misses Joan Pereira, and Beatrice Chester, the secretary was instructed, on the motion of Mr. Cattley, seconded by Mr. Langford Reed, to convey the Council's hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Wigan and the sub-committee for their labours, and to say that the Council regretted they could not see their way to proceed further in the matter.

A Vienna correspondent telegraphs that Herr Felix von Weingartner, Director of the Imperial Opera, has resigned his position, and that Director Gregor, of the Berlin Comic Opera, has been engaged as his successor.

An interesting matinée will be given on Thursday next at the Crystal Palace Theatre, when the Grotesques will appear in their enjoyable entertainment, which is proving successful at the Savoy.

GERMAN NOTES.

The Kaiser and Caruso.

THE birthday of the German Empress on Saturday last was the occasion of a concert given at Potsdam, in the famous jasper gallery of the Imperial Palace, at which both Mme. Geraldine Farrar and Signor Caruso were heard. The former sang the old Irish song "The Bluebell," and, by special request, the Emperor's favourite, "The lass with the delicate air." On Caruso the Kaiser conferred the title of "Königlicher Kammersänger." Another honour was bestowed on the Countess Agnes Minotto, better known by her stage name of Agnes Sorma, already the possessor of many German and foreign decorations, to whom was awarded the medal or Red Cross. Frau Agnes Sorma, who, with the company of the Neues Schauspielhaus, from Berlin, is on tour at Amsterdam, is appearing there as Marie Heink in Das Konzert, one of Hermann Bahr's most successful plays. Meanwhile, the German capital is suffering from a severe attack of Caruso fever. As in Hamburg, so in Berlin, a corner in the best seats has been engineered. The daily papers are full of advertisements offering tickets for the Caruso performances at fabulous prices. Five-shilling seats for Aida, for instance, honoured by the presence of the Emperor, are offered at £5, and three fauteuils adjoining each other in the last row of the stalls are valued at £50. A movement is on foot to follow the example set by the authorities in Bayreuth, and to make the speculative traffic in tickets illegal.

Divers Orders and Honours.

AT a meeting of the Municipal Council of Marienbad, the management of the Stadt Theater, frequently visited by the late King Edward VII. during his numerous stays at the picturesque Bohemian watering-place, has been entrusted for the next five years to the present intendant, Director Julius Laska, who has held this appointment for the past twenty-two years, in addition to acting as director of the Kurtheater in Meran. A number of honours in the theatrical world are announced: The German Emperor has appointed Frau Martha Leffler-Burckhardt, of the Royal Theatre at Wiesbaden, to be "Königliche Kammersängerin"; the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha has conferred the Saxon Ernestine Order on the famous singer Richardi, of the Coburg Opera, in honour of the thirtieth anniversary of his début; Director Julius Heydecker has received from the Prince of Hohenzollern, at Sigmaringen, the Hohenzollern gold medal for art and science bene merenti; and at Schwerin, on the occasion of their retirement from the Court Theatre, the General Intendant, Baron Karl von Ledebur, on behalf of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg, decorated Herr Paul Arendt, leaving after twenty-five years' service, with the Cross of a Knight of the Order of the Griffin, and Herr Reinhard Cabano, who retires at the age of seventy-two, after twenty years' connection with the Grand Ducal stage, with the gold medal pour le mérite.

Mayence and Heligoland.

IN addition to the old-established municipal house, the Stadttheater, which is under the control of Director Max Behrend, well known to London audiences in German plays, the town of Mainz (Mayence) has opened another permanent theatre. This, known as the Neues Theater, under the management of Directors Pangoff and Strecker, is a magnificent new structure, erected on the site of the old Kötherhof Theater, which, in endeavouring to provide variety entertainment, was unable to compete with Director August Landau's Apollo Theater. The opening ceremony commenced with a prologue, spoken by the wife of Director Pangoff, after which a performance of Hohes Spiel (High Play), a drama in three acts, by Ernst Didring, was given. Another new theatre is to be erected on the island of Heligoland in place of the present old structure, which grew out of a large shed used during the period of the Continental blockade by Napoleon I. as a storehouse for British goods in transit for Hamburg. It was under the last British Governor (prior to the cession of the island to Germany), Sir William Maxse, who had married a German actress, that drama took a firm hold on the little rock. Frau Käte Basté, "in recognition of her valuable artistic services for many years past," will retain the post of directress of the new theatres.

The Ninety-first "Francesca."

UNDER the collective title of Panspiele there were produced, for the first time on any stage, at the Schauspielhaus in Cologne, on Saturday, Oct. 22, three plays of one act each, from the pen of Karl Hauptmann. The first two, entitled respectively Frau Nadja Bielen and Der Antiquar, met with but a cool reception, whereas unstinted and well-deserved applause was accorded to the third playlet, Im Goldenen Tempelbuche verzeichnet (Recorded in the Golden Book of the Temple), which is taken from an old Japanese legend, and deals with the flight of two of the Emperor's favourites, and their subsequent adventures disguised as beggar girls. Another première on the same day was a drama in five acts, by Gustav Renner, entitled Francesca, produced at the Royal Wilhelma Theatre in Stuttgart. The story of Francesca Polenta, of her unfortunate marriage with Lanciotto Malatesta da Rimini, and her love for his brother Paolo, apart from Danté's masterly treatment in the fifth canto of his "Inferno," has been dealt with by Boccaccio, d'Annunzio, Ludwig Uhland, Paul Heyse, and Phillips, no fewer than forty-eight plays and forty-two operas dealing with the subject being in existence. Gustav Renner, whose drama Merlin was produced in Berlin at the Royal Theatre four years ago, is a Silesian by birth, and a prolific poet of undoubted strength.

Russian Variety Contracts.

A TIMELY warning has been issued by the International Artists' Lodge, in Berlin, to the effect that artists signing contracts for Russian engagements should be careful to ascertain how many holidays fall into the month or months for which they are being booked. Since every holiday means the loss of a day's salary, and as there are frequently from seven to ten such holidays within the period of one month, this is by no means a trivial matter. The normal contract of the International Artists' Lodge provides a blank space in which should be enumerated all such holidays for which salary can be deducted. The manager, before sending out the contract, is thus obliged to specify the holidays occurring during the period of the engagement. An important point in Russian law is to the effect that any clauses struck out of the body of the contract must be enumerated and specified at the foot of the document, thus: "Paragraphs 3 and 4 are struck out." All contracts, according to Russian law, become null and void whenever a cholera epidemic is declared (by official proclamation of the Government) to be prevalent in a certain district. The Russian calendar, too, is a pitfall. It should be borne in mind that it is thirteen days behind our own. Thus an engagement commencing on Aug. 16, Russian style, begins actually on Aug. 29 of our own calendar. The precise date is generally expressed thus: August 16/29.

Maximilian Harden's Cameos.

PERHAPS these essays on some eighteen of the leading figures in Europe of the past quarter-century are more than vignettes; at any rate, they are limned by the hand of a master, probably the most trenchant of German essayists. The handsome volume under notice, entitled "Köpfe" ("Heads"), is from the pen of Maximilian Harden, known to the world at large as the undaunted exponent in the recent unsavoury Prince Eulenburg scandal. A fair proportion of these character sketches is devoted to the arts, notably the drama.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Oct. 27.—The author has written an unmistakably interesting play. For nervous people, however, the work cannot be recommended. The majority of the audience followed the development of the plot with breathless interest that was almost painful, and the closing scene proved too much for several present. Ramusoff and his wife Nina are a simple-minded old couple, with little or no understanding of the theories of the revolutionist party. Their eldest son, Sasha, whom they think is away in America, is in prison for his principles, inculcated all unknown to the old couple. Fedor and Waspa, his younger brothers—youths of nineteen and twenty-one—are also members of the Terrorists' band, and secret meetings are carried on in the quiet home of the Ramusoffs, under the very nose of the unsuspecting father and mother. Sasha's friends make a bold stroke, and manage to rescue him from jail. He is destined by his party for a terrible deed—that of murdering the Governor, to whose adjutant the young man bears a strong resemblance, a coincidence which fits him better for the mission than another. Sasha, however, disappoints his comrades. In the solitude of his prison-cell he has had time to think over matters, and has become a pessimistic philosopher. Humanity, he declares, is the Moloch that tears itself to pieces in destroying its fellows, and for bombs and infernal machines there is no necessity. Sasha does not express his sentiments very lucidly, although he uses many words, but the fact is apparent that the young man is no longer the bold terrorist he was. After long discussion, he allows himself to be overruled, and consents to carry out the deed, on condition that he may die with his victim. The sacrifice is not made, for the misguided youth falls dead from a bullet fired by the soldiers, who have discovered his whereabouts and made a raid upon Ramusoff's dwelling. The old father, in his horror and astonishment at the course things have taken, loses his reason, and the curtain descends upon a painfully tragic scene. A cordial reception was accorded to the play, which would be improved by cutting. The interpretation was not altogether satisfactory, if we except the renderings of Herr Pfanz and Herr Weigert, which were excellent.

THE topic of the hour is the appointment of Herr Hans Gregor, manager and lessee of the Berlin Komische Oper, to the position of director of the Imperial Opera at Vienna. Herr Gregor will be greatly missed here, but none of his admirers grudge him the change, which is doubtless far more remunerative in these hard and capricious times. The popular manager has signed a ten years' contract with the Viennese Intendantur, and will enter upon his new duties early in the New Year. Who will be his successor at our Komische Oper has not yet been made public, is probably not even yet decided, but I think I am not far wrong in surmising Herr Hermann Gura as the future director. Herr Gregor, by the way, is married to an American singer.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh's Début.

FEW playgoers are aware that it was in a burlesque of Sir Henry Irving's production of Faust, which was running at Toole's Theatre, that Miss Violet Vanbrugh made her first appearance on the stage, but she has told readers of The Sketch so in a most interesting interview. "I was a girl in my early teens at the time," says Miss Vanbrugh, "and was living with Miss Ellen Terry, who was a friend of my mother's. I used often to go with her to the Lyceum. In this way I got to know Mr. Harry Loveday, who was Sir Henry Irving's stage-manager, and through him I met his brother, Mr. George Loveday, who occupied the corresponding position with Mr. Toole.

Her First Chance.

"I HAD told Mr. George Loveday that I wanted to go on the stage, and one morning, quite unexpectedly, Miss Terry got a letter from him saying that if I was still staying with her and wanted to go on the stage, I might get the chance if I was at the theatre at half-past ten. As I had been trying to get an engagement for six months, I was not late for the appointment.

Depending on a Dress.

"WHEN I saw Mr. Loveday he asked me whether I still wanted to go on. I told him I was dying to. 'Well,' he said, 'can you go on to-night?' 'Yes, of course I can,' I replied. 'Well,' he said, 'it will depend on whether you can wear Miss La Capilaine's dress. She has got an engagement at the Gaiety, and if her things can be made to fit you (for she is bigger than you), you shall come on.' He called the housekeeper, and sent me up with her into the dressing-room. I put on the clothes, and, by putting a stitch in here and a pin somewhere else, we got them to fit sufficiently well; so that when I went down to show myself to Mr. Loveday he nodded and said I would do. 'Be here at four o'clock,' he said, 'to go through the parts with the stage-manager,' and he gave me a couple of sheets, bound in brown paper, which represented the long-hoped-for parts. Before I got home I knew the few lines of the choruses of the songs I had to sing.

Miss Terry's Pigtails.

"WHEN I reached home, I was, of course, off my head with excitement. Miss Terry took me down with her to the Lyceum that night, and as the burlesque did not begin until ten o'clock, she made me up herself in her dressing-room and pinned two of her own 'pigtails' on to my hair for my first part. I remember I was frightfully proud of wearing Miss Terry's 'pigtails,' for she had worn them herself as Marguerite, and, so that I might not lose them, I not only pinned them to the cap which covered my own hair, but fastened them to my belt as well.

One of the "Mashers."

"I was sent to Toole's Theatre in Miss Terry's own carriage, which had to wait for me to take me straight back to her after the performance was over. In the second act, as I have said, I was a masher, and, as far as I remember, most of the part consisted of singing, with five other girls, 'We are six mashers, tra, la, la!' I probably did not make much of that chorus that evening. Before I went down to the theatre, however, a most important matter had to be decided—my stage name. We called out all sorts of names, and Miss Edith Craig—Miss Terry's daughter—wrote down thirty or forty of those we liked best. Eventually we chose 'Violet Vanbrugh,' though what made me do so I can't tell. 'Vanbrugh' had somehow always been more or less familiar, and I fancy that it was borne by some distant connections of my father's family."

THE PROGRESS OF ACTING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I hope certain points urged by Mr. H. B. Irving in his Salon lecture at the Adelphi Hotel, reported in your current issue, will not pass altogether without practical result. I refer to his remarks relative to the artistry of acting, to his claim for it as a potent craft of high distinction worthy the more earnest consideration and sympathy of public and critics. He suggests that discerning attention on the part of the critics to the actor's art would raise the general standard of acting, and help and encourage the individual artist in an ever difficult accomplishment. He points the danger to the art, also, in the increased and extraordinary attention which is almost exclusively nowadays centred upon the play; an attention, as I endeavoured to indicate in a letter some time ago, justifiably accruing to the drama as reward of its awakened vitality and truth to modern life. In short, the tenor of Mr. Irving's reference to the subject points generally—the quite discernable fact that acting is an art that has reached a crisis in its development, and must bestir itself actively if it would retain its place as a real and living power.

In June last, in your columns, in this connection I urged that "the Actors' Association might seek to institute lectures and addresses on technique, training, and the fundamentals of capacity and ideals, by eminent members of the profession, by dramatists and critics, and to encourage discussion and a literature on the subject." Mr. Irving's exordium forms the first corroboration that I have met that has emanated from a weighty source. But is it, one may ask, only the critics that we have to reproach with a lack of attention to professional art? Have not the great mass of players some just complaint against their eminent leaders? Mr. Martin Harvey once said some pertinent things on technique which were printed in "'The Stage' Year Book," but for the most part authoritative voices are studiously—perhaps too modestly—silent. The profession needs the leadership of new and more vital working ideals, and these are generated by individuals who have reached a certain eminence, and, on the whole, are alone clearly visualised by such as have achieved this distinction. All will agree with the distinguished actor that the theatre must be organised to "maintain in the public esteem the imperishable greatness of the higher forms of dramatic art." But in what, technically, does the "higher form" of acting consist? The bulk of the profession is almost entirely of mediocre conception on this and other vital points. The impulse of clear, highly aspiring, personal force, is perhaps the only leaven that will spread and revitalise the art. Our leading actors deliver lectures to the public; why not also, more directly, to the workers with whom the only hope for the larger regeneration lies.

It is not only work the aspirant needs. There is plenty of rough and tumble experience to be gained in the provinces—repertory theatres and répertoire companies have arisen in quite remarkable profusion in the last year or two—what is needed is direction for those who have gained a certain ready facility of technique that shall carry them on the right paths towards the higher expression of the art of acting. Cleverness in the provincial ranks is undeniable, but its standards of satisfying accomplishment are cheap and low. The refinements of the art are often, on the one hand, assumed to coincide with lack of strength and ineffectiveness, and on the other, powerful presentation is often taken to denote chiefly a louder noise.

In this connection also—and to bring the matter to date—does not the art of acting require new statement? The technique of yesterday cannot serve for to-day, and less for to-morrow, because the psychology of life changes, and its expression with it. Mr. Shaw has pointed out that the actor—in public at least—feels, not according to himself, but according to stage tradition. The past ages dealt chiefly in tangibilities in physicality, in sound and action, but something of a new atmosphere of soulfulness, mystery, and thoughtfulness to-day envelops all our motions and adventures. What is the new technique that must inevitably arise to express these conditions of modern life? The concrete school was born out of Shakespeare, the master of the concrete world; where is the school who shall follow Maeterlinck into the no less alive realms of silence and spirit? For this is the school that will help to bring back vitality to a profession that suffers, perhaps chiefly through dealing in antiquated forms and through lacking power in the psychological phenomena of the present and imminent ages.

A National Theatre might organise the scattered theatrical forces and perhaps create standards and ideals; but there is in the meantime a field for our distinguished artists who care to give the humbler workers the benefit of their wide experience and personal views.—Yours faithfully,

BREMBER WILLS.

"THE FAMILY."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Family, a domestic drama, in three acts, by Robert H. Davis, was produced at the Comedy Theatre, New York, on the 11th inst. The characters are members of a small New England community, and the story is about a family that could not be divided even when trouble came. The chief incident is the elopement of Madeline Sneed, the daughter, with Paul Churchill, the drum-major of a minstrel troupe, with whom she becomes infatuated during his visit to her home. The young couple put up at an hotel, and there the old folks visit them, supposing them to be married. The minstrel man has failed to keep his promise, however, and after trying to deceive her parents, the girl breaks down and confesses. Her betrayer makes himself scarce, and some time after Madeline has been taken home, the news comes that he has been killed in a railway accident. This seems simple and commonplace enough, but it is characterisation that counts in a play of this kind. Moreover, there are the various incidents supposed to be typical of New England village life, most of them laughable and all of them interesting. Then there is a stirring scene when David Sneed, the brother, learns the truth about his sister and springs to the door, which his mother has locked, declaring that he will kill the drum-major. The mother refuses to give up the key and restrains the boy as he struggles to get out. While this is happening the minstrel troupe passes the hotel, and the strains of the band are heard. The lad breaks away from his mother, and in his impotent rage hurls a heavy inkstand through the window. In the last act another strong scene occurs when David discovers the news of Churchill's death in a newspaper. Incidentally, the slang David uses, his hatred of work, and his love for his dog help to create diversion. The dog is named Roosevelt, which affords occasional opportunity for pointed political allusions. The animal is supposed to be lost in the first act and is not seen until the final moments of the play. His restoration to his master keeps "the family" intact. Finally there is general rejoicing when David reforms and goes to work. Father takes mother in his arms, the sisters embrace, and David hugs the dog. Exceedingly clever and amusing is Mr. John Westley's embodiment of the "tough" sporty youth, whose slangy conversation is as incomprehensible as Greek to his mother. The other characters are well represented by Miss Julie Herne, Miss Mabel Bert, Mr. Sam Edwards, and Mr. Thomas Meighan.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

There is much to commend in The Hour of Temptation, but there is also much that needs alteration ere the play can count upon a successful run. The play, as a whole, is good, but portions of it require judicious pruning, while others need strengthening. Claude Raby, whose intemperance has brought him to the verge of starvation, is living in a Lambeth slum with his wife and child when he receives tidings that he has inherited a large fortune. The letter encloses a bank note for £5; but Raby decides to keep the news from his wife for the present, and, under pretence of seeking work, goes out to spend the money. Violet Raby has found a friend in Olive Webb, a beautiful girl of doubtful reputation and intemperate habits. She is not wholly bad, and ungrudgingly produces her last coin, and goes to buy food for Violet. During her absence, Violet is sought out by her former lover, Ernest Allan, who entreats her to leave the man who has wrecked her life, and make a home with his sister and himself. Violet is, however, staunch to her husband, and Allan departs regretfully. A brawl outside announces Claude Raby's return in a hopelessly intoxicated state and flourishing a loaded revolver, which she endeavours to wrest from him, with the result that it goes off, wounding Raby. Violet believes she has killed her husband; but Olive Webb, on her return, declares he is only slightly wounded. Nevertheless, she takes the distracted girl and her child to her own house until Raby recovers sufficiently to clear his wife of suspicion. At this point Alfred Raby, Claude's brother, appears. He has heard of Claude's accession to fortune, and being next heir, conceives the fiendish idea of strangling the now half-conscious man, leaving suspicion to rest on Violet. Father Baptiste enters in time to witness the conclusion of the struggle; but Claude Raby is beyond human aid, and Alfred, after emptying a small phial, tells the priest he has taken a deadly poison, beseeching him to hear his dying confession and grant him absolution. The ceremony over, Raby informs his confessor that the contents of the phial were harmless, and mockingly reminds him that the vows of the priesthood forbid him to divulge the secret told at confessional. Such an incident, of course, helps the dramatist; but what so obviously insincere a penitent could hope to gain by confession it is difficult to conceive.

The second act opens in Alfred Raby's flat, whither comes Olive Webb, whom he has in former years ruined and deserted. Raby learns that Olive was an unsuspected witness to his confession, and the price of her silence is that he makes her his wife. There is a powerful scene, in which Olive breaks a window to attract the attention of the police, threatening to tell the whole story, and, driven to bay, Raby accedes to her terms. The scene changes to St. Thomas's Hospital, where Ernest Allan is house surgeon and his sister nurse. Violet Raby has sought refuge with them, but she is tracked by Raby, who denounces her as his brother's murderess. Claude Raby's body has been brought to the hospital for post-mortem examination, and Allan's declaration that his death was caused by strangulation puts a temporary check on Violet's persecutor, and with the aid of Algernon Herrick, an empty-headed, but good-natured medical student, she escapes in a nurse's uniform.

The last act opens with a stormy scene between Raby and Olive Webb. Raby has not kept his promises, and Olive, weary of gilded captivity and vainly endeavouring to drown her remorse in drink, begs him to confess his crime and save the innocent girl who is being hunted for it; but Raby points out that her silence has made her an accessory to the murder. Father Baptiste visits the flat and implores Raby to release him from the seal of silence and save Violet, but his appeal is vain, and Raby starts for Scotland Yard to obtain a warrant for her arrest. During his absence Ernest Allan and Herrick, failing to gain an interview with him, enter by the window, and finding Olive in a drunken frenzy, wring the truth from her. In the next scene, Olive, having escaped from Raby's surveillance, comes past the church of St. Francis. She defies Raby, and announces her readiness to meet the consequences of her act. The singing of the choristers comes from within the church, and kneeling, the sinner prays for pardon. The act concludes in the Church of St. Francis, where Violet Raby comes to pray and seek the blessing of Father Baptiste before her life pays forfeit for another's crime. She commits her child to the priest's care, and kneels before the altar. Ernest Allan enters, and implores Father Baptiste to speak before it is too late, but he is closely followed by Raby and an officer holding a warrant for Violet's arrest. The priest battles with the fierce temptation to break his vows and save an innocent woman, and he is about to speak when Olive rushes in and prevents him. Her story, of course, clears Violet, and ensures the arrest of the real murderer, on whom the curtain falls kneeling for mercy.

Mr. Cecil Newton was distinctly successful as the priest, though his opportunities were not numerous; Mr. Howard Brenan played the villain with sinister effect; Mr. Sidney Porter gave a manly rendering of Ernest Allan; Mr. Angus Winter was quite equal to the part of Claude Raby; and Mr. Sydney Palfrey satisfactorily accounted for Algernon Herrick. Miss Florence Tyrrell acted admirably throughout as Olive Webb. No tinge of coarseness marred her portrayal, and the better nature struggling for victory was cleverly delineated. Another excellent performance was Miss Evelyn Carleton's Violet Raby, a creation of intense pathos and marked power. Miss Ethel Lodge was successful in the lighter part of Kate Allan. The last act has a setting of undeniable beauty, with its pealing organ and procession of white-robed choristers. The play was received with considerable favour by a full house.

IN the Court of King's Bench on the 21st inst., Mr. Frank Rothsay, theatrical manager, of Hull, sued Mr. George Augustus Loveridge, landlord of the West London Theatre, Church-street, St. Marylebone, for damages for alleged breach of agreement. Defendant denied that there was any such agreement. Plaintiff contended that on Aug. 25, 1909, defendant agreed, through his solicitors, to let the West London Theatre to witness for a period of twenty weeks, from Sept. 13, at £12 10s. per week. Later defendant refused to carry out the agreement, and consequently plaintiff had sustained damage.

DEFENDANT contended that no agreement was concluded between himself and the plaintiff, as the latter failed to comply with a condition that he should pay the costs of preparing the agreement. After hearing evidence in support of counsel's statements, his lordship said he did not think there was any concluded agreement, and gave judgment for defendant, with costs.

THE MATINEE HAT CASE.

The case of Dann v. Curzon was commenced before his Honour Judge Woodfall in the Westminster County Court on the 17th inst. There were two actions, by Mr. Thomas Lumley Dann, a press agent, of Hind-court, Fleet-street, and his wife, Ethele Lumley Dann, each to recover a sum alleged to have been "verbally agreed to be paid by the defendant, Frank Curzon, for assisting in carrying out, by way of advertisement, at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, a certain matinée hat incident, on April 2, 1910." The husband claimed £100, and the wife £52 10s.

Mr. Patrick Rose-Innes and Mr. Lilley appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. W. G. S. Schwabe for the defendant.

Mr. Lilley, opening the case for the plaintiffs, said Mr. Dann had abandoned £5 of his claim to reduce the amount to £100 and bring it within his honour's jurisdiction. The claim was for services rendered to the defendant, Mr. Frank Curzon, who, amongst other things, was lessee and manager of the Prince of Wales' Theatre, where, in March last, a play called The Balkan Princess was produced, he believed, with Miss Isabel Jay as the leading lady. Mr. Dann, who was acting as press manager at some of the London theatres, was appointed in that capacity at the Prince of Wales' for The Balkan Princess. Miss Isabel Jay wore a hat upon which press comments were favourable, on the ground that it was likely to solve the difficult problem which had troubled theatrical managers for a considerable time. A hope was expressed that ladies would be content to wear such hats at theatres. It occurred to Mr. Dann that a scheme might be devised which would set at rest the vexed question, and the matter was discussed with Mr. Curzon, Mr. Dann outlining a scheme which would have three advantages—calling attention to the seriousness of the matinée hat question, advertising Mr. Curzon, and procuring a decision from a court as to whether a theatre manager could refuse to allow ladies to occupy seats for which they had paid, if their occupancy of the seats obstructed the view of others who had paid for seats behind them. Eventually, it was agreed that the scheme should be adopted, and Mr. Dann was to have a hundred guineas. A lady and gentleman were enlisted to help in the scheme, and Mrs. Dann entered the theatre, with a lady friend, and took seats in the stalls, in front of the seat occupied by a gentleman who was a party to the scheme. The gentleman complained rather forcibly about the size of the ladies' hats, and the ladies refused to remove them because of the brusque manner in which they had been addressed. Mr. Curzon was called, and the ladies complained, in accordance with the parts which had been written out for them. They left their seats, and continued to go through their parts, with Mr. Curzon. They passed through the theatre doors, and Mr. Curzon refused to let them re-enter, placing his hand on Mrs. Dann's shoulder to commit the technical assault for which he was afterwards to be summoned. A summons was issued, the parties appeared at the Bow-street police-court, and a considerable amount of notoriety was secured, Mr. Curtis Bennett, the magistrate, holding that Mr. Curzon was perfectly right in what he did. The whole object of the scheme was attained, and the plaintiff sought to get his remuneration, but he had been unsuccessful.

Mr. Dann and Mrs. Dann having given evidence in support of their claims, Mr. Curzon, in evidence, stated that he thought Dann's scheme good, and consented to it, but he always understood that it was not to be a police court case but an action for damages, and he would get a decision as to whether he was entitled to turn away a lady with a large hat on like these two. It was absolutely untrue that he was to pay 100 guineas or 50 guineas. Nothing was said about payment of any kind, but he naturally paid expenses for anything of a special nature like this. He dismissed the plaintiff, but it was nothing to do with the matinée hat incident. "He said," continued Mr. Curzon, "that he should write to the papers about the Matinée Hat Exhibition, and I forbade him to, and I told him to leave."

Cross-examined: He had employed very few press agents. The plaintiff's scheme was a striking form of advertisement, but he did not want an ending like that arranged by the plaintiff. He wanted a matinée hat action, and not to be a defendant at a police court. He did not think it a very unpleasant thing for anyone to abuse a lady's hat. Some people would be very pleased to do it. (Laughter.) Some other people might think it unpleasant. Had Mr. Dann suggested that he wanted £10 for each person taking part he might have agreed to it, but nothing was said about it.

By the Judge: There was no assault, and he denied touching Mrs. Dann. He denied it at the police-court. It was decided that he could prevent people remaining in the theatre with "these atrocious hats."

His Honour: The advertisement was incidental?

Defendant: Oh, naturally, yes.

His Honour: Was there to be an exhibition of matinée hats?

Defendant: Yes. I withdrew it because I thought it would be a "frost."

Thomas Benjamin Vaughan, general manager of the defendant's theatrical matters, gave evidence bearing out that of the defendant. The incident, he said, was part of the ordinary work of the press agent. Mr. Dann was getting £5 a week from each of two theatres, and something extra was expected from him.

Mr. Houston, the treasurer at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, also gave evidence.

Mr. Lilley, who produced the signed judgment for £104 on the promissory note, said that it was signed in July, and he submitted that it could not be pleaded as a set-off.

On Monday his Honour, in giving judgment, said the plaintiffs allege that the defendant agreed to pay them for their services in carrying out the venture. I am of opinion that the agreement alleged is illegal, being contrary to public policy, and that no action is maintainable upon it. And this for two reasons:—(1) The spectacle of two ladies being peremptorily and brusquely treated might well have aroused interlocution on their behalf and led to a serious breach of the peace. (2) The invocation of a Court of Law to punish an offence which, to the knowledge of the parties had not been, even technically committed, was in the nature of a fraud on the administration of justice. I, therefore, dismiss the two actions, and leave each party to pay his own costs. In case of a successful appeal against this decision, and to save the expense of a second hearing, I will state what otherwise would have been my finding and decision. I find that the defendant did agree to pay the plaintiff, Dann, £105; that the defendant's set-off is valid; and I should have given judgment accordingly for the defendant, with costs. I find the defendant did agree to pay the plaintiff, Mrs. Dann, £32 10s., and I should have given judgment for her, with costs.

"Chaffing" a Dramatist.

MR. MONCKTON HOFFE, author of The Little Damozel, arrived in New York recently and saw the performance of his play at the Naximora Theatre, to which house it was recently transferred from the Comedy Theatre. The newspapers have been poking fun at Mr. Hoffe in a little story supposed to illustrate the average Englishman's ignorance of America. It is said of him that while coming up the bay he asked what a certain stretch of land was, and on being told it was Long Island he replied, "Oh, indeed, and is it inhabited?"

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Herbert Tree, in consequence of the great success of Henry VIII. at His Majesty's Theatre, is obliged to abandon his intention of producing Mr. Alfred Noyes's fantastic play The Forest of Wild Thyme at Christmas, the run of Henry VIII. promising to last till Easter.

Miss Viola Tree has gone to Milan, where she is continuing her studies for the operatic stage under Mme. Arkel.

Mr. H. B. Irving will take the chair at the annual dinner of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, at the Hotel Métropole, on Sunday, Dec. 11. It is close on twenty years since Sir Henry Irving, the first president of the Fund, took the chair at the first annual dinner. "Since that time," as Mr. Irving says, "it has been working with ever-increasing usefulness and success to alleviate the many sad cases of want and suffering which, often through no fault of their own, overtake the less fortunate of our calling."

Mr. Cyril Maude will produce at the Playhouse, on Tuesday, Nov. 8, a new play, in four acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, entitled A Single Man. In the cast will be Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Ernest Mainwaring, Mr. Lyonel Watts, Miss Florence Haydon, Miss Dulcie Greatwich, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, Miss Mary Jerrold, Miss Nancy Price, Miss Dorothy Dayne, Miss Emma Chambers, Miss Vera Coburn, and Miss Diana Sellick. It will be preceded by Between the Soup and the Savoury.

Amongst those who signed their names in the visitors' book at Marlborough House as a mark of their sympathy with King George and Queen Mary on the death of Prince Francis of Teck were Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Sir John Hare, and Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander. Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Sir Herbert and Lady Tree, and Mr. Arthur Bourchier, went down to Windsor on Wednesday for the funeral service in St. George's Chapel.

To a visit of Mr. Arthur Bourchier to his friend the late Prince Francis of Teck, when the latter was in a nursing home, was due the idea of a gala performance to celebrate Coronation year. Prince Francis obtained the approval of the King, and Mr. Bourchier, having secured Sir Herbert Tree's co-operation, a committee was soon formed, and the execution of the project assured.

Mr. Martin Harvey, at the close of the performance of The Breed of the Treshams on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, was called upon for a speech. He said—"Ladies and gentlemen, I must, if you will allow me to keep you for a moment—I must say a word of thanks to you for the splendid welcome you have given us. I am sure all my fellow-workers, Miss de Silva, and I, feel greatly pleased to be so warmly greeted by you. Some of the happiest and some of the most anxious moments in my life recur to my memory as I stand here. On this stage five plays have been produced among you since we first had the honour of appearing here. I am sure that is a record which we, at all events, look back on with very great pride. We don't bring anything new this time—(A voice: "Always welcome")—but I am sure the warm welcome you have given to The Breed of the Treshams leads us to hope that for a short time some of our old pieces will be favourably received. We thank you once again for your very warm and friendly greeting."

Mr. Martin Harvey, who has been playing to crowded houses at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, this week, delivered his lecture in support of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, before a large and distinguished audience. On Thursday afternoon Mr. Justice Madden presided, and was supported by Lord Chief Justice O'Brien, Professor Tyrrell, and an influential committee. Mr. Harvey opened the "Pioneer Carnival," to raise funds for the debt of St. Francis Xavier's Hall. Yesterday afternoon the Abbey Theatre company gave a special complimentary matinée to Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss de Silva, and members of their company. The programme included In the Shadow of the Glen, The Clancy Name, The Gaol Gate, and The Workhouse Ward, all of which were much appreciated.

Mr. Lyn Harding's appearance in Birmingham as Sir Walter Ralegh in Mr. Devereux's drama of that name this week has, in view of the fact that the part was originally played upon the piece's production in Birmingham by Mr. Lewis Waller, created much interest, and the appreciation which Mr. Harding has aroused is a remarkable tribute to the natural grace of his personality and to his gifts as an actor.

Mr. Harding is proceeding with his plans for his production of Much Ado About Nothing, and if he can secure the particular London theatre upon which he has set his heart he will give the first performance of his revival in the Metropolis during the spring. Should he fail to obtain a lease of this playhouse, he has decided to give the first performance either in Birmingham, Bristol, or Cardiff. Mr. Lyn Harding is next week to appear at Bournemouth, where the tour of Sir Walter Ralegh comes to a close.

Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, when they opened their season at the New Theatre with Count Hannibal, hoped to give special Shakespearean matinées twice a week, but the chief parts in the successful drama have so taxed the powers of the actors that for the present the extra matinées are abandoned. Count Hannibal will be given each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Terry, who is this week appearing at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, was present one morning on the Bench of the local Police Court, and heard several cases which came before Bailie Laing. Mr. Terry has long been a magistrate in the county of Surrey, officiating very frequently, and takes a great interest in cases at Petty Sessions and Summary Jurisdiction Courts.

Mr. Charles Frohman's production of The Scarlet Pimpernel at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on Tuesday, with Mr. Fred Terry as Sir Percy Blakeney and Miss Julia Neilson as Lady Blakeney, created demonstrative enthusiasm. Bunches of violets were thrown at Miss Neilson's feet, and at the end of the third act a speech was demanded from Mr. Terry, who was deeply moved by the greeting of the audience. He said: "Miss Neilson and I hoped for a welcome from you, but your reception to-night has simply broken us up. I can only say, 'Thank you.'" The play is a great success in America.

Mr. F. R. Benson and his company can claim credit for converting Mr. W. T. Stead to a more indulgent idea of the stage as a profession. Mr. Stead never went to theatres, and when his daughter, Miss Estelle Stead, wanted to become an actress, he said he would rather see her in her grave than on the stage. After seeing Mr. Benson and his Shakespearean company, Mr. Stead altered his opinion, and consented to his daughter enlisting under Mr. Benson's banner to play "seconds" in the provinces. Mr. Stead now declares that Church and Stage should work together for good.

Mr. Weedon Grossmith began his American tour at the Princess Theatre, Montreal, on the 3rd inst., appearing in Mr. Preedy and the Countess. After a short tour under the direction of Mr. Daniel V. Arthur, Mr. Grossmith will fulfil an engagement in New York.

On Wednesday, Oct. 26, at the Fixby Golf Links, Huddersfield, an interesting foursome was contested. The players were all members of The Merry Widow company, Miss Pounds having Mr. Gordon Allison as her partner, and Miss Gwendoline Brogden Mr. Basil Foster. Unfortunately Mr. Allison found the first bunker, but made amends later by a capital approach shot, while, although Miss Brogden foozled her first drive, an excellent recovery by Mr. Foster placed matters square on the green. Miss Pounds and her partner were leading by "four up" on the "turn," their opponents having been distinctly unlucky throughout the first half. Some capital driving by Mr. Foster enabled them to "half" the tenth and win the eleventh holes, but at the fifteenth hole Miss Pounds and partner won the match by "five up and three to play." Mr. Foster played a splendid game throughout, several of his drives being very long, and although Mr. Allison was not at his best, his mid-field and approach shots were well placed.

Agents and others will find in our advertisement columns a full account of the effect of the provisions of Part V. of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1910, relating to employment agencies in the County of London, which must now be licensed by the Council.

Judge Parry and Mr. Frederick Mouillot are collaborating in a play called The Captain of the School, which will be produced on Nov. 15 at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester. The scenes of the three acts are the cloisters, the class-room, and the dining-hall. Mrs. Mouillot and Miss Dorothy Parry, a daughter of Judge Parry, will appear in important parts. Mr. Lionel Mackinder will enact the Captain of the School, and others in the cast will be Mr. Charles Macdona, Mr. E. F. Mayeur, Mr. T. Gideon Warren, Miss Lucy Edwin, and Master Harry Duff.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Louie René, the principal contralto of D'Oyly Carte's Opera Company, is suffering from rheumatism, and was obliged last week to enter a hospital. Miss Edith Holmes, at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, took up Miss René's parts of Katisha, Dame Carruthers, the Duchess of Plaza-Toro, the Queen of the Fairies, and Lady Jane at short notice, and did remarkably well in each.

At Daly's Theatre on Saturday last, sixty-four stage hands employed at the theatre presented the popular Mr. Joseph Coyne, who is leaving his part of Harry Condor in The Dollar Princess to appear in The Quaker Girl at the Adelphi, with a silver inkstand and an illuminated address, paid for by subscriptions limited to fourpence.

The list of principals in the cast of the new musical play The Quaker Girl, which will be shortly produced at the Adelphi Theatre, includes Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mr. J. Blakeley, Mr. Herbert Ross, Mr. G. Carvey, Mr. D. J. Williams, Mr. H. Kitts, Mr. Joseph Coyne, Miss Gracie Leigh, Miss Elsie Spain, Miss Phyllis Le Grand, Mme. Caumont, Mlle. Palerme, and Miss Gertie Millar.

"The Whip," which was produced on the 19th ult. at Her Majesty's Theatre, Melbourne, proved a great success, Mr. Lionel Atwill scoring well as Brancaster. The Melbourne Age says: "Mr. Lionel Atwill quite justifies the reputation he brings with him from England. It is good, sound acting, clear cut and very intelligent, sympathetic also; and with a pleasant avoidance of staginess in what is a very stagey part."

Mr. Charles Frohman will transfer A Woman's Way from the Comedy Theatre to the Globe Theatre to enable Mr. Arthur Chudleigh to produce Vice Versa at the latter house, and the final performance of A Woman's Way at the Comedy will be given on Friday, November 4.

George Paston's new one-act play, to be produced at the matinée to be given by the Actresses and the Women Writers' Franchise League, on Friday, Nov. 18, at the Aldwych Theatre, is to be entitled Stuffing. The sale of programmes will be under the direction of Miss Lilian Braithwaite, who will be assisted by many prominent actresses.

Mr. J. Wellesley Lynn has been commissioned by Mrs. Gertrude Compton Reade, niece of Charles Reade, to write up his play, The White Witch of Mayfair, and by Mr. R. S. Walker, nephew of Ralph Boldrewood, to reconstruct The Silver Queen, founded on the novel of the same name.

Mr. Walter C. Jordan, of Sanger and Jordan, of New York, has just purchased outright from M. Henry Bernstein, the United States and Canadian rights in that celebrated author's three greatest successes, The Thief, Samson, and Israel, subject only to Mr. Charles Frohman's existing leases and exclusive control over the performing rights of the said plays. This deal constitutes one of the largest cash transactions in play purchasing that has ever been consummated, as M. Bernstein's plays mentioned are very valuable and his terms very high.

Particulars are to hand of the death of Mr. Arthur Edwards, of The Arcadians company, who was drowned at North Harbour, Manly, Sydney, Australia, on Sept. 17. Mr. Edwards had been yachting all the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Shadler and their child, Miss Schroder, and Mr. James Wood, and just before five o'clock anchor was dropped in North Harbour. Messrs. Wood and Edwards then put off in the yacht's 8ft. dinghy to row to the Manly Wharf, and when about 400 yards from the party, opposite Fairlight House, the boat was upset. No immediate assistance was available. Mr. Wood was seen clinging to the dinghy, holding his companion up, but his powers failed him, and Mr. Edwards sank. When help came it was only in time to save the almost unconscious survivor. The water was dragged for the body without success until midnight.

The late Arthur Edwards had only been upon the stage six years, and was only twenty-three years of age. He was born in London, at St. John's Wood, made his stage début in Brighton in Bluebell in Fairyland six years ago, and after provincial experience became a member of Miss Lena Ashwell's company in The Bond of Ninon for a season at the Savoy. He then joined Miss Ada Reeve in Butterflies at the Apollo Theatre for seven months, where he arranged the ballets and played a part, and toured with her for a year after that, when he enlisted in the Rupert Clarke and Meynell management for their Australian tour. In The Arcadians he played cleverly the eccentric character of the "dude," Percy Marsh, and made quite a sensation by his dancing.

Mr. W. W. Kelly was the recipient at the Liverpool Theatrical Licensing Sessions on Tuesday of a compliment, paid in open court by the Head Constable of Liverpool. In common with the other Liverpool theatres and places of amusement the question of the renewal of the licence to Kelly's Theatre came up for consideration, and upon the chairman asking the Head Constable whether he had anything to report adverse to Kelly's Theatre, Mr. Leonard Dunning said that on the contrary he would like to take the opportunity of congratulating the management of the theatre upon the very much improved condition of things which had obtained since Mr. Kelly took up the reins of management, and also upon the superior class of audience now attracted.

"Which Loved Him Best," a drama, in four acts, by H. C. Lomax, was copyrighted at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, on the 21st inst.

Miss Christine Silver, who has been laid up with a severe attack of pleurisy, has resumed her part of Enid Stonor in The Speckled Band at the Globe Theatre.

At the Crystal Palace Theatre next week will be Man to Man, an exciting drama that has had a brilliant career of twenty years. The company includes Mr. Clifford Bown and Mr. Edward Lloyd.

Mr. Cyril Maude asks us to say that the matinée in aid of the Tuberculin Dispensaries, which he had announced to take place on Monday, Nov. 7, has been postponed until next May.

The Grand Theatre, Stonehouse, Plymouth, was reopened on Oct. 3 on lines entirely new to the West of England, i.e., drama twice nightly at popular prices. The experiment has proved entirely satisfactory. The resident-manager is Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward, who came from the Bordesley Palace Theatre, Birmingham (one of Messrs. Stoll's establishments), to reopen the house after a long closure.

Mr. Wyn Weaver, now appearing as Jan and the Figure in Mr. Stanley Cooke's little play, His Living Image, at the Strand Theatre, is acting as sole agent for Mr. H. F. Maltby's plays. This young author has already met with unusual success at the No. 1 provincial theatres, and from the opinion his work has won from the best playgoers in the country, there can be little doubt that West-End audiences would welcome his clever and entertaining plays. The Laughter of Fools and Profit—and the Loss, are Mr. Maltby's latest efforts. The Youngest of Three, which has won golden opinions everywhere, has a great part for a young ingenue actress.

Mr. James Welch pays a return visit to Kennington next week in When Knights Were Bold, which has lost none of its remarkable drawing power.

Miss Maude Stewart Drewry will return to England in February, after an extended tour in India and the Far East with the English Comedy Company, with which she has been appearing with great success in such rôles as Mrs. Dane in Mrs. Dane's Defence, Paula Tanqueray in The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, Gloria in You Never Can Tell, Gwendoline in The Importance of Being Earnest, Kathie in Old Heidelburg, Elsie Brudenell in The Profligate, Jane in The Manœuvres of Jane, Blanche Chilmot in Liberty Hall, Lady Serania in Dr. Wake's Patient, Beatrice in The American Citizen, and Niobe.

"Naughty Marietta," a musical comedy in two acts, book and lyrics by Rida Johnson Young and music by Victor Herbert, was produced for copyright purposes at the Ladbroke Hall on Oct. 24.

Mr. George Stone, the popular resident-manager of Mr. Hugh Robertson's Royalty Theatre and Opera House, Barrow-in-Furness, enters on his seventeenth year of management on Monday, having started his engagement there on his birthday, Oct. 31, 1894. Strange to say he commences his seventeenth year on his birthday again, which is on Monday. We wish him continued success in his charming theatre which is visited by all the best companies on the road, and is now doing record business.

The many friends of Mr. Arthur Shelton will regret to hear that on Sunday, while entraining with his company, Beauty and the Barge, at Brighton, he slipped on the platform and sprained his ankle. The accident will necessitate his resting for at least two weeks.

The Coronet Theatre will be closed on Monday for the final rehearsals of Behind the Veil, and the first night of Mr. Cecil Raleigh's play will be on the following evening.

On Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 3 p.m., a copyright performance of an English version of Alfred Capus' well-known French play, entitled Les Deux Ecoles will be given at Ladbroke Hall, by Joseph Williams, Ltd., under the title of The Two Schools. This well-known firm of music publishers own the sole rights of the play for Great Britain and the Colonies.

Mr. Harry Paulton, Jun., was called upon to undertake the part of Horace Ventimore in The Brass Bottle on Saturday at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and was highly complimented on his performance by the local management, as well as his own. Owing to the serious indisposition of Mr. Langhorne Burton, Mr. Paulton will continue to play the part for two or three weeks. In Aberdeen, where The Brass Bottle is being performed this week, the Daily Journal speaks thus of Mr. Paulton's performance: "Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Horace Ventimore won the unstinted favour of the delighted house by his consistently-effective impersonation."

It will be a regret to the many friends of Mr. Langhorne Burton, who has been playing the principal part in The Brass Bottle on tour, to learn that he has been laid up with an illness, which necessitated an operation, which was successfully performed by Professor Caird in Edinburgh on Sunday. Mr. Burton is in a private nursing home in that city. He is making satisfactory progress, and hopes to be in harness again in a few weeks.

"A Wife for a Day," the new play, in three acts, by W. V. Garrod, will start a lengthy tour at Macclesfield, Feb. 6. The cast will include Mesdames Bertha Kingston, Phyllis Vaughan, and Alice Clarke; Messrs. Scott Leighton, Frank Dallas, Alex. J. Haviland, J. Sutton Pateman, Fred Wilberforce, and W. V. Garrod. The scenery will be by Egerton, Bradford, and the entire production, including a suite of furniture, carpets, electric fittings, draperies, ornaments, &c., will be carried. There will be four companies touring under the management of Mr. W. V. Garrod next autumn.

Mr. W. V. Garrod has again secured from Mr. G. M. Polini the entire rights of Wilson Barrett's drama, The Sledge Hammer, and will send it on tour next autumn. An entirely new plant of pictorials will be provided, and new scenery will be painted by Egerton, of Bradford. Mr. Garrod toured the piece five years ago for fifty-five weeks without a break, and only gave up the tour owing to the printing having run out. After this lengthy rest there should be a very long and prosperous career awaiting The Sledge-Hammer. The late Wilson Barrett once said it was the best piece he had ever written.

Mr. Percy Hutchison's visit to Grimsby last week was a veritable triumph with regard to the number paying for admission to see Brewster's Millions during the six nights' engagement. The aggregate worked out at just over 7,800 people, and on the Friday evening all the dress circle and stalls were taken by the Commercial Travellers' Association, the Mayor of Grimsby being present.

At the invitation of Mr. Curry, a reception was held in the Assembly Rooms, where Mr. Hutchison was introduced to the company assembled and heartily congratulated by the Mayor and everyone present on his great production and his performance as Monty Brewster. Mr. Hutchison made a short speech, in which he thanked them all for their enthusiastic reception, also promising to visit Grimsby next year with his production of Arsène Lupin.

Heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morgan, who on Wednesday next celebrate their silver wedding.

Mr. Arthur Chudleigh and Mr. Hardy have fixed on Thursday, Nov. 10, for the production at the Comedy Theatre of Mr. F. Anstey's enlarged version of his novel "Vice Versa."

"La Jolie Miss" is the title of an opera which will shortly be produced at Milan. The book is a satire on the American "yellow" Press, and the leading character is a Miss Elkins.

Mme. Clara Butt was taken ill at Dundee on Tuesday, and has cancelled all her engagements for the next six months. She intends to leave England shortly for change of scene.

Miss Mabel Hurst played Sonia at the matinée of Mr. George Edwardes's Merry Widow company at the Kennington Theatre on Thursday with such complete success in the absence of Miss Gertrude Leicester, and obtained warm praise from both audience and management.

Mr. Frank B. O'Neill, Mr. Martin Harvey's popular business-manager, whose hobby, as is well known, is the breeding of sheep dogs, was particularly successful last week at the Palace show, his fine dog Bobbie securing two prizes.

At the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, commencing on Nov. 5, will be given a short series of Saturday afternoon popular vocal and instrumental concerts, under the direction of Kopski, the talented musical director of the theatre.

The Operatic Class of the Royal Academy of Music is, under the direction of Mr. Edgardo Lévi, rehearsing Humperdinck's opera Hansel and Gretel, and Schubert's *Der Hasliche*r (the English version by Mr. Claude Aveling) with a view to a performance early in December next.

On Monday evening, after the performance of The Prince and the Beggar Maid, Mr. T. C. Browne, the genial manager of the Miners' Theatre, Ashington, presented Mr. A. C. Moody, the popular lessee of the Blyth and Ashington Theatres, with a beautiful 400-day timepiece, subscribed by the staff, on the occasion of Mr. Moody's birthday.

Mr. Herbert Trench will keep Priscilla Runs Away in the bill at the Haymarket until the middle of December, when The Blue Bird will be revived with a new scene which Maeterlinck has written for Mr. Trench with the title "The Palace of Happiness." This will take the place of the Forest scene.

Miss Violet Ellicott, who has recently been playing the Empress Josephine again in Mr. W. W. Kelly's A Royal Divorce company, will open on Monday at Belfast as Lady Isabel in that popular manager's new East Lynne company. It will be remembered that Miss Ellicott played this part in the summer of 1909, under the same management.

Mr. C. St. John Denton, the well-known musical and dramatic agent, is changing his address, and on Monday next will remove his offices to new and more convenient quarters at 56, Whitcomb-street, Leicester-square, W.C. A new department has been added to his business, Mr. Denton, in conjunction with Mr. F. J. Richardson, now undertaking the booking of first-class companies and theatres.

At the Paris Opera Comique on Thursday evening the performance of Madame Butterfly came near being interrupted. The stage hands came out on strike because the manager declined to sign a collective contract with their union in place of the existing individual contracts. M. Carré replaced the mutineers immediately, and the performance of the opera was continued.

Negotiations are in progress by virtue of which Mr. Alfred Wareing, the director of the Glasgow Citizens' Theatre will transfer the company to Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, during the early part of next spring. Mr. Kelly is also arranging with the management of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, for a similar enterprise, thus realising his promise to use his best endeavours towards the institution of a Liverpool repertory theatre.

An evening gala will be given at the Town Hall, Chiswick, on Thursday, Nov. 10, in aid of the Chiswick Branch of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The programme will include a costume recital from The School for Scandal, with Miss Davies Webster as Lady Teazle and Mr. A. E. Drinkwater as Sir Peter. A classical ballet, "The Wounded Swan," arranged by Miss Aimee Phipps, will also figure in the programme, to which Miss Ruby Helder, Mr. Sivori Levey, and other artists will contribute.

Mr. Laurence Housman, in an article in the Fortnightly Review for November, pleads for a King's Proctor for Plays. "Instead of the Censor with his present power of veto before production," he writes, "there should be an Examiner of Plays, whose functions would be somewhat similar to those of a King's Proctor, and whose duty it would be to consider plays from a strictly legal standpoint. To this official a copy of every play, accompanied by a registration fee, should be submitted a reasonable time—say, three weeks—before production; and wherever he saw good reason for doing so, he should be empowered to issue a warning to the manager, stating that, in his opinion, the play contained matter which would render its production liable to prosecution for an offence against the common law.

"If the Proctor had no objection to put forward, he would enter the play at once upon the official register as having passed its preliminary examination; he would give it, that is to say, a certificate of character, which for all practical purposes would amount to a licence, though subject to reconsideration at any time after the play's production, just as is now the case under the Censorship. The risk of future interference would, in fact, be less than at present, since the Proctor would at all times be guided in his action by more fixed and definite rules than those of mere taste or tradition. After the play had been produced, say, for at least a week in any one place without offence to public decency, the register should receive endorsement to that effect, and the play's position might thenceforth be regarded as fully assured against official interference."

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's next creation is to be that of the character of Judas in a play by an American author, Mr. John de Kay, who deals with the personage in an entirely new and original way, and has conceived a Judas heretofore unknown to literature. The play deals in an entirely original way with New Testament characters in Jerusalem, under the rule of Pontius Pilate. It was written by Mr. John de Kay, a well-known American business man, and the author of several books, and is Mr. de Kay's first drama. It is dedicated to Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, at whose request the French version has been undertaken by M. J. C. de Chassaigne, who is M. J. Coudurier, London correspondent of Le Figaro. Mme. Bernhardt will produce the play in New York, early in January.

The production of Miss Hilda Hatton's new drama, For the Land We Love, will take place at the Lyceum, Stafford, on Friday next, Nov. 4.

Mr. Peter Davey has arranged with Mr. Frank Weathersby to provide a special production of The Shaughraun at the County Theatre, Kingston, for a week, commencing Nov. 7.

Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson are meeting with great success in R. C. Carton's brilliant sporting play Lord and Lady Algy, Press and public being unanimous in their praise of these entertaining personalities, and the play being received everywhere with the greatest enthusiasm.

Mrs. George Edwardes will be the hostess at a meeting under the auspices of the Actresses' Franchise League, which will be held in the Grand Hall of the Criterion Restaurant on Friday, at three o'clock. Mrs. J. B. Fagan will preside, and the speakers will be Lady Constance Lytton, Mrs. Pertwee, Mr. Cecil Chapman, and Mr. Campbell Johnson.

A new one-act play, entitled Protecting Mrs. Moxon, by Arthur Eckersley, author of A Boy's Proposal, The Trap, and other West End successes, was played for the first time on Monday in front of The Naked Truth at the Belfast Opera House, and had an excellent reception. The little play was produced by Mr. Townsend Whitling.

Mr. Edward Terry's latest addition to his extensive répertoire, The Toymaker of Nuremberg (by arrangement with Mr. Chas. Frohman), has been enthusiastically received in the provinces. The eminent comedian's impersonation of the old toymaker is a valuable addition to his long list of artistic stage portraits and character-studies.

Mr. Martin Harvey to-night concludes, at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, his highly successful Irish tour. The Only Way and The Breed of the Treshams, which have not been seen in Ireland for some years, have on their revival at Belfast, Cork, and Dublin proved particularly successful.

The Grotesques, who registered their fiftieth performance at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday, came to London for three weeks only. Their success has been so great that they have stayed eight weeks. During that time, to meet the demand for seats, they have had to put on Wednesday matinées as well as the usual Saturday matinées. Owing to other arrangements being made at the Savoy, they will have to terminate their season on Nov. 5, when they will go on a short tour before going to Manchester for the Christmas season. Amongst the theatres to be visited are Kennington, Fulham, Prince's, Bristol, Brighton, Oxford, &c. We shall expect to see the Grotesques back in town early in the spring. They pay a flying visit to the Crystal Palace Theatre on Thursday next.

Mr. W. H. Pennington, who was present at the Balaclava Dinner at the Holborn Restaurant on Tuesday, began life as a sailor, and after his Crimean experiences became an actor and reciter. His first performance was as Othello at the Royalty in 1862, and he played the part again in 1867 at the Haymarket. Mr. Gladstone thought very highly of Mr. Pennington's acting. At the dinner Mr. Pennington proposed the health of the benefactors and supporters of the Light Brigade.

At the instance of M. Wideman, president of the Société Franco-Anglaise de Cardiff, M. Roubaud's Parisian Company, including M. Duparc, of l'Odeon, and Mlle. Martha Gravil, of the Théâtre Sarah Bernhardt, will present the famous French comedy, Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon, at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, this afternoon. The company are making a special flying visit from Paris for this matinée, under the auspices of the Cardiff Anglo-French Society.

On Tuesday, Nov. 15, a series of "Anglo-Spanish Tableaux Vivants" organised by the Spanish circle of the Lyceum Club, of which Mrs. Steuart Erskine is president, in aid of the Queen of Spain's charities, will be given at the Court Theatre.

The representation of the four episodes from Shakespeare's plays connected with the City of London will assume great importance in the procession on Lord Mayor's Day. In the first episode, depicting Henry V. on his return to London after the battle of Agincourt, the characters will be represented by forty-four persons on foot and forty-seven on horseback; while in the second set, concerning Falstaff and the men of the Boar's Head, in Eastcheap, there will be seven footmen and an equal number of horsemen. The third episode, dealing with the Duke of Gloucester escorting the Princes to the Tower, and in which the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen of the period will be represented, will have eighteen footmen and twenty men on horseback; while there will be thirteen men on foot and fifteen horsemen in the fourth episode, representing Henry VIII. and Wolsey returning from the trial of Queen Catherine.

A new section has been added to the Shakespeare Memorial Exhibition at Whitechapel, which draws quite a separate little audience of its own, consisting of a collection of prints, photographs, or reproductions, illustrative of the history of the dance. The group, which represents fairly completely the later dance history, from the seventeenth century, includes portraits of the Duchesse de Maine (1676-1763), who, at her private theatre at Sceaux, first introduced in modern times the purely mimed or wordless ballet, when, in 1708, the fourth act of Corneille's Horace was danced and acted by two popular stars, Mlle. Prévôt and M. Balon, the music, composed by Mouret, being played by an orchestra.

The Brighton Town Council on Thursday gave consent to the provision of a Winter Garden and other improvements on the Palace Pier at Brighton, conditionally upon the execution of an agreement, embodying such provisions as may be necessary for the protection of the Corporation. An amendment to defer the matter for a month was defeated. The proposed Winter Garden building is 190ft. long, 65ft. wide at the central dome, and 30ft. high at the extreme elevation. It will have a floor space of 900ft. in excess of the largest building in the town, and will provide seating accommodation for 2,000 persons. It will be necessary to increase the width of the pier deck, which will be done by putting additional piles on either side of the existing pier. It is intended that the Winter Garden shall be a resort for those who enjoy high-class music. It is believed that the scheme will involve an expenditure of over £14,000.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

American Audiences.

"One thing I have noticed," writes Miss Billie Burke in the Inter-Ocean, is the difference between audiences in America and in London and Paris. "In America an audience is very apt to take even a bad play, one that bores them horribly, good naturedly. I have attended a first night in New York where, if you judged from the apparent enthusiasm of the audience, the play was a tremendous success. It was a good audience and it was playing its best. That was all. If you listened to what the people around you said as they were going out—and lots of their hands were still red from applauding and they were still laughing—but what they said! Oh, my! There was no need to wait for the papers in the morning to tell you that the piece was one of the worst failures of the season."

Forbes-Robertson Anecdotes.

Mr. Percy Burton has been contributing to the American Green Book Album an interesting article on "The Real Forbes-Robertson." It contains some agreeable anecdotes of the celebrated actor. "It was the multifarious quality of Mr. Robertson's invitations in New York that led him, no doubt, to tell me," says Mr. Burton, "of an old habit of his and his brother's (Norman Forbes) when frequently out visiting years ago in London, that whenever they had been particularly bored by their host and hostess, on leaving the house they would pause discreetly upon the doorstep and hum or whistle, sotto voce, of course, the chorus from a then well-known refrain, entitled 'Never Again!' One night, to their consternation, on hearing a rustle they turned round, and found the door slightly ajar and several footmen, with the butler, and apparently the owner in the background, listening interestedly to this extraordinary proceeding.

A Big Jump.

"Modjeska was the first Juliet to whom he played Romeo, and the greatest he had ever known. He described with what beauty, pathos, and power she invested that difficult rôle, of which it has been truly said that it needs the appearance of a girl, and the experience of a woman. Modjeska was, Robertson said, the most unselfish of actresses, and had a very keen sense of humour. Once, when he was playing Romeo and was about to make his exit from her room, he was staggered to find that the ladder had been taken away, and pointed the fact out to her in a stage whisper. 'You must jump!' she said, with scarcely disguised glee; and, indeed, there was no other way to negotiate the ten or twelve feet between Juliet's bedroom and terra firma. So he had to.

Terriss and Irving.

"Of his old days at the Lyceum, too, with Sir Henry Irving, Forbes-Robertson has many interesting reminiscences to relate, amongst others, of poor William Terriss. 'Irving was very fond of poor Bill Terriss,' said Forbes-Robertson, 'and was mightily amused by the unconscious impertinence with which Terriss treated the dear old chief.' Irving, as is well known, had a dining-room (called the Beef Steak Room) just off the stage near his own dressing room, and one night Terriss smelt the savoury odour of appetising cooking proceeding towards the end of the performance. 'Fine smell that, Guv'nor,' said Terriss to Irving during a wait in the wings. 'Yes, very good,' agreed Irving, who added as a polite afterthought: 'You must come along some time and have supper with me, my boy.' 'Nothing would please me better, Guv'nor,' said Terriss, to which Irving replied: 'Well, when would you like to come?' 'To-night!' responded Terriss promptly. And he did, while Irving was delighted by the businesslike acceptance of his invitation.

"'We were rehearsing John Davidson's beautiful play at the Lyceum,' said Mr. Robertson, 'and Davidson was leaning against the proscenium engrossed in it. Presently a well-known actor, who shall be nameless, came on the stage, waving his arms like a windmill and sawing the air in his desire to illustrate the text. Davidson edged quietly up to me. "That, I suppose, will be a verra well-known actor," he said sotto voce. "Yes," I agreed. "And I presume he will be in receipt of a verra considerable honorarium," he continued. I confessed he was right. "Then why does he wave his arms aboot in that extraordinar. manner?" said Davidson in his broad Scots accent, adding, with a humorous gleam in his eye: "If he did that in Piccadilly he would be arrested!"'

"Mr. Forbes-Robertson, who was a picturesque figure at the Meredith Memorial Service in Westminster Abbey, was in constant touch with the great writer about a score of years ago. Meredith often threatened in jest to write a play, but never kept his promise. Once during the run of Irving's production of Henry VIII., in which Forbes-Robertson acted at the old Lyceum as Buckingham, Meredith met him at the house of a mutual friend and, observing his sunburned appearance after a holiday, hailed him by the rhythmic expression: 'Here comes the—browned Buckingham!'

Arthur Cecil and George Meredith.

"Mr. Robertson recalls another story of an old friend and late fellow-actor, Arthur Cecil, who, when once holiday-making with Meredith in Switzerland, came back to the hotel where the great writer was at work, full of the glories of the sunshine and the scenery of the mountain peaks he had been climbing. Meredith listened to his eulogies for awhile, and then, looking up, rolled off ex tempore the following astounding quatrain:

'The sun shone high upon the crinkled crag,
He clomb it; it left him scarce a rag;
With knees barked blue and bleeding nether bare,
He boasted he'd enjoyed the mountain air.'

"Mr. Forbes-Robertson is proud of the fact that his first bank balance was realised at the age of twenty-nine from his painting of the church scene in Much Ado About Nothing, which was hung in the Royal Academy, and now rests in the Players' Club, in New York, since the sale of Irving's relics. For it was commissioned by Henry Irving, who proposed that Claudio should paint the scene in which he appeared, for £150. Forbes-Robertson at once agreed, but Irving was so delighted with the result that he insisted on doubling the amount, and sent him a cheque for £300. Forbes-Robertson returned it twice, but in vain, Irving was adamant, even in his generosity, and had his way."

Art and Nature.

Mr. Haldane Macfall, in an article on Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in Cassell's Magazine, says: "It happened that a famous musical-comedy star, a handsome creature who was wont to display more of her handsome self than of her mediocre talent, was a counter attraction on one of Sir Herbert's visits to Dublin, and someone said that he could not understand Tree's poor success, as she had played to crowded houses. "Ah," said Tree, "Art cannot compete with Nature."

Precious Hostility.

"To the prosaic, nothing is so embarrassing as the poetic," says Sir Herbert. It follows that he has many enemies. Someone asked him if their pinpricks fretted him as they fretted Whistler. Tree brooded awhile on the problem. "I can imagine a man in lonely middle-age praying: 'O God! give me back my enemies!'" he said.

"MRS. SKEFFINGTON."

An Episode in Cavalry Barracks, in Three Acts, by Cosmo Hamilton, Produced at the Queen's Theatre, on Friday, Oct. 21.

General Sir Gresham Thurlow ..... Mr. Arthur Lewis
Col. Ranulph Thynne ..... Mr. A. Holmes-Gore
Major John Skeffington ..... Mr. Dawson Milward
Captain Cecil Lindsay ..... Mr. Frederic Worlock
Ivo Ward ..... Mr. Charles Vernon
Noel Dacre ..... Mr. H. Robert Averell
Hugh Pellew ..... Mr. Max Leeds
Willoughby Pellew ..... Mr. Arthur G. Onslow
Trooper Beales ..... Mr. Arthur Chesney
Trooper Howe ..... Mr. Richard Haigh
Trooper Saffrey ..... Mr. W. D. Fazan
Lady Thurlow ..... Miss Frances Wetherall
Mrs. Thynne ..... Miss Ellen O'Malley
Effie Thynne ..... Miss Gwladys Gaynor
Hobson ..... Miss Estelle Winwood
Kathleen Lindsay ..... Miss Beryl Faber

Mrs. Skeffington, the heroine of Mr. Cosmo Hamilton's "episode," produced at the Queen's Theatre on Friday last week, has a happy knack of insinuating herself into the affections of everyone with whom she came into contact: she charms, she amuses, she promotes good temper all round. Mrs. Skeffington is a very delightful play, possessing all the attributes which ensure a pleasant and amusing evening. An interesting plot, brilliant dialogue, excellent mounting, and first-class acting combine to create an agreeable impression.

Mrs. Thynne is the flighty little wife of Colonel Ranulph Thynne, commanding officer of the 23rd Dragoons, who is of a very jealous disposition. Disapproving of the friendship between his wife and Major John Skeffington, an officer in his regiment, the Colonel forbids her either to correspond with or to be seen about alone with the Major, a command which Mrs. Thynne ignores. Major Skeffington, unaware of the Colonel's prohibition, invites Mrs. Thynne to visit his racing stables, and together they motor up from London, where Mrs. Thynne has been on a visit. On their way back to the barracks, rather late in the evening, the car unfortunately breaks down at a tiny hamlet, and they are forced to spend the night at the village inn there.

On the impulse of the moment Mrs. Thynne, anxious to avoid scandal, passes herself off to the landlady as Mrs. Skeffington, and on her return home next day tells her husband that she has spent the night with some friends in town. Her husband's suspicions being aroused, he soon discovers that her story is false; and, having proof that she has lied to him, he allows his jealousy to master him, and his wife, to her horror, learns that a detective is to be employed to track her movements on the eventful night. Mrs. Thynne, in imagination, sees herself already in the Divorce Court, and is at the point of complete collapse when help comes from an unexpected quarter. Kathleen Lindsay, sister of Captain Cecil Lindsay, of the 23rd, comes on a flying visit to her brother, whom she has not seen for many years, and, on hearing the facts of the case, has an inspiration. She will pass herself off to the Colonel as Mrs. Skeffington, the mysterious lady of the inn, about whom gossip is already wagging its tongue. This she does chiefly that the career of John Skeffington, with whom she has been in love since the days of her childhood, shall not be ruined; and her plan is at first a complete success. When complications arise she manages to avert catastrophe with so much tact and skill and charm that the heart of the Major is captured, and Kathleen promises to become Mrs. Skeffington in reality.

Miss Beryl Faber is excellently suited in the part of Kathleen Lindsay, and plays with a frank, boyish charm which is very captivating. She makes one realise that Kathleen can be a delightful "pal" to men and women alike, clean and wholesome in mind and body. Miss Faber's scene with the Colonel, when, lies having proved of no further avail, she stakes everything on her trump card, and tells him the truth, and, moreover, forces him to see it through the clear vision of her own sane eyes, is played with a depth and strength which is arresting in its intensity. The name of Miss Ellen O'Malley has hitherto been chiefly associated with parts calling for a display of demureness or of sedate sweetness, which appeared singularly well fitted to the personality of the charming actress; and it is therefore all the more praiseworthy that Miss O'Malley's Mrs. Thynne is such an extremely clever and consistent performance. She depicts with absolute fidelity the typical frivolous, foolish woman, making a molehill into a mountain by her silly lies and ineffectual subterfuges, yet always appealing in her helplessness and femininity. Miss Frances Wetherall is more than efficient as Lady Thurlow, a veritable "grande dame," getting on in years, but still beautiful, sparkling, and gracious. Miss Gwladys Gaynor is winsome and dainty as a "country mouse" on a visit to town; and Miss Estelle Winwood as Hobson expresses with cleverness, by eloquent facial play, her disapproval of her mistress's "goings-on." As the jealous husband, Mr. A. Holmes-Gore has an opportunity for some effective explosions of temper, of which he avails himself to the full. Mr. Dawson Milward is admirable as John Skeffington, whether good-naturedly standing the "chaff" of his brother officers, comforting the hysterical Mrs. Thynne, or making love, in his own peculiarly attractive way, to Kathleen Lindsay. Mr. Frederic Worlock plays with distinction as Captain Cecil Lindsay; and Mr. Arthur Lewis is impressive and soldierly as the General. Mr. Charles Vernon, Mr. Robert Averell, and Mr. Max Leeds are all good as three irresponsible young junior officers. Mr. Arthur Onslow as the only civilian in the piece plays a small part with ability, and Mr. Arthur Chesney, Mr. Richard Haigh, and Mr. W. D. Fazan are satisfactory as three troopers.

Mrs. Skeffington is preceded by a revival of Mr. Frederick Fenn's one-act play of low life, The Convict on the Hearth, which shows the home-coming of George Midden after he has served a sentence of three years penal servitude. At first everything goes wrong. George meets with the animosity and resentment which he had expected; but eventually matters are put on a more satisfactory footing by the intervention of a young parson of sound common sense. There are some fine pieces of individual acting in the performance at the Queen's. To Miss Frances Wetherall high praise must be given for her exceedingly clever performance of the convict's mother. Miss Wetherall makes the poor, patient drudge infinitely pathetic in her apathy. She conveys, with exquisite art, the impression of a woman worn out physically and mentally, yet with the mother-love dominating her. Her by-play is exceptionally interesting; her attitudes as she sits waiting developments are the attitudes of an over-tired woman of the working classes. She embodies a type, even to the wisp of untidy hair which straggles over her forehead. Miss Estelle Winwood contributes valuable help as the tearful Jenny Midden; and Miss Evelyn Weeden is very good as a conscientious district visitor. Miss Molly Preston is competent as the convict's betrothed. The George Midden of Mr. Arthur Chesney shows much power of observation and adaptability; and Mr. Hubert Harben creates a very favourable impression as the Rev. Cartwright Dade. Mr. Richard Haigh plays the father, Thomas Midden, with a pleasant touch of humour; and the Uncle Joseph of Mr. Gerald Merrielees and the Jim Watersmith of Mr. Walter Kingsford are excellent and able impersonations. Percy Kitchen Midden, the enfant terrible, has a capable exponent in Mr. Robert Lawlor.

"THE LIARS" REVIVED.

On Thursday, Oct. 27, at the Criterion Theatre, Revival of the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones.

Colonel Sir Christopher Deering ..... Sir Charles Wyndham
Edward Falkner ..... Mr. Thalberg Corbett
Gilbert Nepean ..... Mr. Norman Trevor
George Nepean ..... Mr. Bertram Steer
Freddie Tatton ..... Mr. Sam Sothern
Archibald Coke ..... Mr. Alfred Bishop
Waiter at "The Star and Garter" ..... Mr. Herbert Dansey
Taplin ..... Mr. Reginald Walter
Gadsby ..... Mr. Lawrence White
Footman at Cadogan-gardens ..... Mr. Richard Neville
Mrs. Crespin ..... Miss Norma Whalley
Beatrice Ebernoe ..... Miss Dorothy Thomas
Dolly Coke ..... Miss Lettice Fairfax
Ferris ..... Miss Frances Vine
Lady Rosamund Tatton ..... Miss Ellis Jeffreys
Lady Jessica Nepean ..... Miss Mary Moore

The success of most of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's plays is due to the fact that he wisely avoids anything of a "thesis" or "problem" character. He appears to have two aims—to tell an amusing story and to give his audience a "slice out of life"; but he rarely aims at pointing a definite moral, or forcing his public to draw a deduction. The Liars, which was revived at the Criterion Theatre on Thursday evening, with very great success, was produced at the same house on Oct. 6, 1897, and ran, omitting the summer vacation, till Nov. 2, 1898. The cast then included, besides Sir Charles Wyndham as Sir Christopher Derring and Miss Mary Moore as Lady Jessica Nepean, Mr. T. B. Thalberg as Edward Falkner, Mr. Herbert Standing as Gilbert Nepean, Miss Cynthia Brooke as Beatrice Ebernoe, and Miss Irene Vanbrugh as Lady Rosamund Tatton. The piece illustrates our contention as to Mr. Jones's methods. As far as it is philosophical, it points the passionate and absolutely reckless and unscrupulous love of an imaginative man for a shallow, frivolous woman of society. Falkner, in his overpowering desire to "possess" Lady Jessica, is prepared to wreck both their lives, and consider "the world well lost." The character is a realistic study of a man whose intelligence and right feeling are entirely overmastered by a sexual infatuation. He would commit social suicide under the influence of temporary insanity. Certainly there is nothing in the character of Lady Jessica, as she is shown to us in the play, to account for, or excuse, Falkner's aberration. She is perfectly unaffected and sincere; she neither poses nor pretends to be higher or deeper than she is. When a man like Falkner asks a woman like Lady Jessica to run away with him and live with him in South Africa, he must have for the time lost his reason. And this enables Mr. Jones to introduce a third character, who is entirely admirable, and is the strong man or hero of the play. Sir Christopher's little lecture in the fourth act is like the "official utterances" alluded to by Sir Joseph Porter in H.M.S. Pinafore, and is unanswerable:—

"You know what we English are, Ned. We're not a bit better than our neighbours, but, thank God! we do pretend we are, and we do make it hot for anybody who disturbs that holy pretence. And take my word for it, my dear Lady Jessica, my dear Ned, it won't work. You know it's not an original experiment you're making; it has been tried before. Have you ever known it to be successful? Lady Jessica, think of the brave pioneers who have gone before you in this enterprise. They've all perished, and their bones whiten the anti-matrimonial shore. . . . Marriage may be disagreeable, it may be unprofitable, it may be ridiculous; but it isn't as bad as that! And do you think the experiment is going to be successful in your case? Not a bit of it! First of all there will be the shabby scandal and dirty business of the Divorce Court. You won't like that. It isn't nice! You won't like it. After the Divorce Court, what is Ned to do with you? Take you to Africa? I do implore you, if you hope for any happiness in that state to which it is pleasing Falkner and Providence to call you, I do implore you, don't go out to Africa with him. You'd never stand the climate and the hardships, and you'd bore each other to death in a week. But if you don't go out to Africa, what are you to do? Stay in England, in society? Everybody will cut you. Take a place in the country? Go abroad? Take any of the other dozen alternatives and find yourself stranded in some shady hole or corner, with the one solitary hope and ambition of somehow wriggling back into respectability."

By this admirably-written speech and by others uttered by the "reasoner," the worldly-wise counsellor of the play, a moral is forcibly extracted, but that does not do away with the fact that the absolutely irresponsible lover, who leaves the husband's rights and his own social obligations entirely out of the question, acts altogether selfishly and madly, and makes, like Antony, "his will lord of his reason," is, as far as all gifts and qualities go, a very fine fellow.

But The Liars should not, perhaps, be "considered so closely." It is a little masterpiece of stage-craft and cleverness. The exigencies of the position—two leading parts fitted to display the best powers of Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore—smartly-drawn minor characters, amusing subsidiary incidents, neat and close construction, and bright and natural dialogue free from any forced epigrams or laboured excrescences, ensure the success of The Liars in actual performance. One of the best things about the piece is the way in which Mr. Jones has supplied the social atmosphere of his comedy. The view taken by all the subordinate personages of the situation which is created by the intrigue which is imminent between Lady Jessica and Falkner at "The Star and Garter, Shepperford," is amusingly, if somewhat cynically, true to life. The toleration which smart society extends to matrimonial liches, its anxiety "not to leave undone, but keep unknown," and its horror of scenes and scandals, are indicated with the pen of a fine satirist. Even Sir Christopher, with all his shrewd sense and eloquence, is calmly cynical in his views. His reprobation of the proposed elopement of Lady Jessica and Falkner is based purely on arguments as to its inexpediency, and not on any idea that the interests of society in general, or of the surly husband, have any claim to consideration. Possibly Mr. Jones's irony is sharpened by the fact that he comes of a sterner stock than the characters in his society plays, and that he views their antics mentally from outside the cage, though, of course, socially he has every opportunity for class study.

But why, after all, analyse a piece so diverting, so various, and so effective as The Liars? Never does it drag, or cease to interest and amuse. The humour of it is genial, at any rate on the surface; and the most admirable personage, the wise and worthy counsellor and friend, is rewarded in the last act by getting the girl he loves, and seeing his influence prevent a catastrophe in the career of the man he likes.

The parts which Mr. Jones has written so cleverly have full justice done to them by their exponents. Sir Charles Wyndham's incomparable performance as Colonel Sir Christopher Deering made an impression in 1897 which the lapse of years has failed to erase; and it is worthy to take a place in his notable gallery of portraits of wise, strong, and kindly men of middle-age. The good-humoured worldliness of Deering's outlook, his shrewd and genial humour, and his alert activity and intelligence are depicted by Sir Charles in the most finished and masterly manner; and the mellow ripeness of his style and his complete command of the required resources are as obvious as ever on renewed acquaintance with his creation. The stronger passages of the rôle made their effect with unabated force, and the balanced ease of Sir Charles's delivery of the monologue in the fourth act was again admired. The part of Edward Falkner is a difficult one, and Mr. Thalberg Corbett may be congratulated on sustaining it satisfactorily, the fervour of his acting being quite consistent with the character. Mr. Norman Trevor emphasises with decision and power the brusque stupidity of Gilbert Nepean, and the solid sincerity of George Nepean is indicated by Mr. Bertram Steer with care, skill, and intelligence. That very droll personage, Freddie Tatton, has a most amusing representative in Mr. Sam Sothern, who gives a clever reading, never marred by caricature or exaggeration, yet quietly and completely comic; and Mr. Alfred Bishop's finished art is employed with great success in the embodiment of the matter-of-fact Archibald Coke. Mr. Herbert Dansey hits off the traits of the French waiter at the riparian hotel very neatly, and Mr. Reginald Walter is satisfactory as Taplin, Mr. Lawrence White and Mr. Richard Neville making excellently aristocratic footmen. The female characters in The Liars are all effective. Miss Lettice Fairfax as the agreeable, frivolous, and airily wilful Dolly Coke employs a light touch and very tactful treatment, and depicts the pretty but shallow trifler admirably. Miss Dorothy Thomas realises the deeper and more serious nature of Beatrice Ebernoe, tenderly indicating the underlying melancholy of the widow, and her sweet gentleness and sympathy, and Miss Ellis Jeffreys puts plenty of life and character into her animated and easy performance as Lady Rosamund Tatton, which could hardly be improved upon. Miss Norma Whalley plays the "cute" and witty Mrs. Crespin very smartly, and the epigrams in the text lose nothing by her capital delivery of them; and Miss Frances Vine's Ferris is a subtly typical "society" servant. As for Miss Mary Moore, she seems to have been born, taught, and trained to play parts like that of Lady Jessica Nepean. Her rendering of them is unapproachable, so favoured is she by nature, in appearance, voice, and manner. Her Lady Jessica is the same exquisite performance that it was thirteen years since. The piece is dressed in perfect style and taste, and the revival had a very friendly—not to say affectionate—reception from the highly-delighted audience.

Richard Strauss has, it is reported, begun a new opera. He has returned to antiquity, and the subject he has chosen is Sewetzow's drama Circe. The latest information from Berlin is to the effect that Der Rosenkavalier will be produced at Dresden early in January.

How Managers Choose Plays.

Several London managers have been giving in Tit-Bits particulars of their methods of judging plays submitted to them.

Mr. Frederick Harrison trusts solely to his own judgment in deciding the merits of a play. "I must be quite alone when I read a play," he says, "secure from interruption, and read it right through at a sitting, and rapidly. If it will not bear rapid reading there is generally something wrong—incoherence of story, clumsiness of dialogue, or something that detracts from the probability of success for the play. One reading tells me all that I want to know, and my mind is made up absolutely. I consider it a fatal error to solicit opinions on a play."

Mr. Kendal's Way.

Mr. W. H. Kendal says: "There is such a dearth of good plays at the present time that if we get one which contains the possibilities of success we try to get over the stile with it by showing the author where, in our judgment, he may improve his work. It is a curious fact that, with the exception of The Squire, no play was ever written specially for us, for even The Elder Miss Blossom, which we have been playing for seven years or more, was sent to us in the ordinary way.

"In estimating the value of a play, I think of it entirely as if I were one of the audience sitting in front and watching its development. If it holds me—if the characters live before me and their story interests me—then, other things being equal, I should call it a good play for our purpose, and produce it. On the other hand, if it were brilliantly written and had no plot, it would not be suitable for our requirements."

Mr. Edwardes's Idea.

"What I primarily look for," says Mr. George Edwardes, "is an idea of a simple character, and then seek to elaborate it through the medium of characters which will give striking opportunities to the actors who are members of my company. As an example of this, I may mention the case of The Cingalee at Daly's. The locale was selected by Mr. Tanner and myself a very long time before the play was produced, and we discussed many different characters before we found that of the Babu lawyer, which was to add another to Mr. Huntley Wright's successes."

Mr. Davies's Definition.

Mr. Tom Davies confesses that the plot is not of supreme importance to a musical play. "At the same time," he says, "one must have a story of some sort. One point on which I always lay great stress, although I cannot always get authors to carry it out, is the immense value to the piece if the low comedian can be woven into the plot so that his character is indispensable to the development of the story, instead of having him merely brought on as an incidental comic character."

Two Managers' Methods.

Both Mr. Fred Terry and Mr. Cyril Maude like to hear a play read to them before deciding upon its acceptance or non-acceptance. "If a play appeals to me," says Mr. Maude, "or if I think it will be successful, I like to hear it read aloud, or even to read it aloud myself, in order to judge the effect it will make on my ear, or see whether my own voice bores me.

"Outside judgment does not influence me in this respect. I have known people criticise adversely a play when they have read it, though I have been pleased with it, and have seen my judgment endorsed by the public. On the other hand, the reverse sometimes happens, and others think well of a play while I do not. Under these conditions I still adhere to my own opinion, though it is quite possible I may, on some occasion, by following that plan, occasionally miss a play destined to turn out a money-maker."

Mr. Curzon's Criterion.

Mr. Frank Curzon says: "If a play hits me hard enough, I produce it. That is always the point—that it should hit me hard enough. By this I mean that it should interest me and hold my attention from the beginning to the end if it is a serious work, or that it should make me laugh if it is of a light or farcical nature. If a play conforms to these rules, I buy it. Not laying down any conditions, I never analyse a play, and, once I have made up my mind to produce a given work, all the arguments in the world will not turn me aside from my determination. I have produced some failures, but this much I can say—I have never refused a play which has made money for anybody else. One season I refused six plays which were produced by other people, and were failures."

De Valmont ..... M. Jacques Feraudy
Pierre Vareine ..... M. Alexandre
Fernande de Monclars ..... Mlle. Pierat
Baronne Durieu ..... Mme. Fayolle
Madame de Valmont ..... Mlle. Maille
Madame de Jussy ..... Mlle. Robinne
Madame de Lancey ..... Mlle. Provost
Madame Briey ..... Mlle. Jane Faber

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday, Oct. 27.—M. Pierre Wolff's new comedy is not pleasing, owing to the fact that the transformation which he makes his personages undergo are too sudden, with the result that these personages are not true to life, and fail to convince us. The plot is as follows. Roger de Monclars, heartless and brutal in all his love affairs, has squandered his money. His mother is very rich, and she is quite willing to help him out of his financial difficulties, but on condition that he marries Fernande, the niece of her old neighbour, M. de Fernay. Roger consents, and in the opening act we find the young couple in their splendid mansion in Paris. Fernande simply adores her young husband, but he hates her for having assisted his mother in pitchforking him into matrimony. Everything in Fernande gets on his nerves: her countrified manners, her puritan way of dressing, her piety, her very demonstrations of love. He insults her; he cynically tells her that he loathes the very sight of her, and leaves Paris for Switzerland, where he will meet his former flame, Mme. de Jussy. On the night of his return he does not even attempt to see her, but, having dressed, goes straight to a soirée given by his friend Nizerolles. There a surprise awaits him. He has not been there half an hour when Mme. de Monclars is announced, and Roger sees a beautiful woman enter, magnificently dressed in a gown that moulds all her forms, and outrageously décolletée. Roger stares at her open-mouthed, and can hardly believe his eyes. Yet it is his wife, the gawky Fernande, who, during her husband's three weeks' absence, has blossomed into a sparkling beauty with the manners of a cocotte! But whereas the husband is thunderstruck, we, who are in the secret, know that this transformation is done with the object of gaining Roger's love à tout prix! In Fernande's attitude there is also something of the coquetry that lurks in every woman; and she does not see why, young and pretty, with money at her command, she should not "glitter" like other women who do not possess her fascinations. For all that, we cannot understand her persistency in loving her abject husband, and the trouble she takes to bring him to her feet. We understand this all the less as Pierre Vareine loves her, with a love based on respect, and we see her moved when he declares his passion to her. Roger, attracted by his wife's charms, wants to embrace her brutally, but she keeps him at a distance, and her seemingly cold attitude makes him jealous. In the fourth act things come to a climax. Fernande and Roger have given a Venetian fête, and after the guests are gone Roger overhears a conversation at the telephone between his wife and Vareine. Mad with baffled desire and jealousy, Roger threatens to strangle her; and after he has returned to his own apartment Fernande whispers to her old uncle, "Now he loves me." Nor is she mistaken. Convinced that Fernande has been unfaithful to him, he resolves to leave her, but the love he now feels for her is too violent. He throws himself at her feet, and Fernande makes him happy by clasping him in her arms; but she wisely refrains from telling him that she has never been unfaithful to him. She knows her man! The acting was excellent throughout.

I am very sorry to have to chronicle the death of Mme. Berthe Legrand, who passed away at the age of sixty-eight, in the Actors' Home at Pont-aux-Dames. With her disappears one of the last of the famous Variétés company that comprised Dupuis, Baron, Kopp, etc. She made her début in 1865 in Lulli ou les petits Violons de Mademoiselle, wherein she scored a marked success, but she might perhaps never have come to the fore had it not been for the memorable dispute between Hortense Schneider and Silly, at a performance of La Belle Hélène. Schneider, very domineering, had insulted Silly, who then refused to play that evening unless Schneider apologised. This the latter declined to do, whereupon Berthe Legrand at once replaced Silly, and from that moment she appeared only in principal rôles. Her name figures on the programmes of La Vie Parisienne, Barbe-Bleue, La Grande Duchesse, La Périchole, and Les Brigands. She was in the original cast of La Mascotte, and one of the favourites of the public. She was young, pretty, and fascinating. But things underwent a change. In 1899 she was engaged at the Palais-Royal, but she then impersonated an elderly lady. She made her last bow to the public last year at the Théatre Michel in M. Tristan Bernard's Le Poulailler. A little while later a benefit performance was given for her, and she then withdrew in the home at Pont-aux-Dames. Kind-hearted and amiable, Berthe Legrand will be regretted by many, inside and outside the profession, who had the pleasure of knowing her.

"Vive Paris!" is the title of a capital revue brought out at Olympia. It is a gorgeous spectacle, and MM. de Cottens and Marinelli may be complimented on having brought together so many genuine attractions. Miss Bessie Clayton, an American danseuse, is decidedly clever, and made a hit. In a long number of notable numbers should be mentioned Mlle. Giverny, the diabolical pianist; the clever Fender troupe of giants from Drury Lane; the Blossom Girls; and the very laughable couple who give a droll imitation of the Jeffries-Johnson match on roller skates.

M. Maurice Bernhardt, manager of the Sarah Bernhardt Théatre, has accepted a play called Gugusse, by M. Albert Acremant, for which M. Charpentier has written the incidental music. L'Homme Mystérieux is the title of a play by MM. de Lorde and Binet that will be produced at the above house on the 3rd of next month.

The next novelty at the Ambigu will be Le Train de 8 heures 47, by M. Léo Marchès, founded on Courteline's well-known novel.

Signor Caruso commenced his short season at the New Royal Opera House, Berlin, on Monday with Aïda. The house was crowded in every part, and the tickets had been sold at fancy prices. The arrangements for the sale of tickets to the public on an occasion like this could not well be worse, and it must be remembered that more than half of the seats are disposed of by the Crown to the Court officials (many of whom do not know or care anything about music) and to Government servants and officers. Consequently, the hundreds of persons who stood patiently for six or seven hours and longer never got near the ticket-office until all the tickets were sold. The Kaiser and his daughter were present, just before leaving Berlin for Brussels, with a numerous suite. Caruso sang at the palace with Miss Geraldine Farrer a few nights previously, and his Majesty told him he did not intend to miss Aïda even if it made his train late in starting. It must be confessed that the great tenor was not in good voice; only towards the end of the performance did he do himself anything like justice. Miss Florence Easton (Mrs. Maclennan) had been selected for the name-part.

AMERICAN NOTES.

HERE, THERE, AND EVERYWHERE.

The Seguin Tour.

English artists desirous of exploring new regions should note that at the end of the week Mr. Tolomei will be over here, taking up his quarters at 12, Henrietta-street, W.C. Mr. Tolomei does the sole bookings for the Casinos and Palaces of the Seguin Tour in South America. Recently the tour was a solid one of two months, but is now to be extended to four. The cities to be played in are Buenos Ayres, Monte Video, Rio de Janeiro, and Rosario.

"Chimes."

Chimes, the musical butcher, has recently returned from these places, and says he has had the time of his life. He tells some stories of wonder. Among other items in his show is a string of musical sausages, and during the so-called revolution in Monte Video he was carrying them over his arm to his hotel. Much looting had been going on, and consequently everyone was under suspicion. Walking along the Plaza he heard four distinct "coo-ees," the vocal police alarm, and found himself in a moment surrounded by police, and without a word of explanation he was very forcibly conducted to the Chief Police Department. It took him just three hours to get released and prove he had not stolen his own goods from the theatre.

Lily Lena.

Lily Lena, America's top-liner wherever she goes, is still holding them on the other side. Lily is fortunate in having a husband and manager in one. English folk will remember him as Willy Newhouse, the trick cyclist, with his partner Ward, who is also a black and white artist of great promise. Newhouse is the inventor of the highest or tallest "bike" in the world. It is 10ft. up, and he uses it for advertising purposes.

The Skycycle.

It is reported that recently he took his clever wife for a ride down Broadway on it by way of a parade advertisement. Imagine Lily on Willy's shoulders 10ft. up, cruising in and around the trolley cars, motors, and general traffic on Broadway! Still, he's daring enough for anything. He's the only man who can steer the famous unicycle, on which there are ten seats. It is built like an ordinary safety machine, and used in a store over in New York as an attraction in the "bike" department.

Stoll's Bar.

American artists over here are not particularly struck with the new contract forms for Stoll's new time. The location of the new houses and the geography of London, together with an intelligent knowledge of the administration of the Metropolitan Police area, wants a bit of finding out. It isn't like a provincial tour, with a station close to each hall. It looks as if they'd have to get here two weeks ahead and "lay off," so as to give themselves time to educate up to it all.

New Vaudeville House.

News comes from New York that Harry B. Harris and Jesse Lasky are going to put up in that city a new vaudeville house, to be called the Folies Begere. So!

Zona Vevey.

The American papers have been slamming Zona Vevey right up with praise. One journal says, from Chicago, where she played two weeks, "If Zona has a répertoire of twenty to thirty songs she must be cheating us out of seventeen, for she repeated her old favourites by request the second week." Her partner, Max Erard, while in America, has been getting together a great spectacular and vocal act with a view to its production when they open on the Moss time at the London Hippodrome early next year. When they opened at the Roof Garden, New York City, the management employed a fine motor car for her to get around in—even to shop, with her Scotch piper with her all the time. They do it well over the other side in the way of "stunts."

Wilson and Waring.

These artists are filling in a week at the Hippodrome, and Wilson is looking fit and well both on the applause and the whisky-and-soda he asks for so often in the show, but doesn't get. It's a great gag, and amuses the audience in fine style.

The Happy Hooligans.

Billy Howard and Kitty Harris, America's Happy Hooligans, are in such demand since their appearance at the Empire, Edinburgh, that they have had to cancel all their American engagements. Agents Somers and Warner have booked them up here until 1914.

The Zeiguners.

This quartette opened on the Morris time on the 17th under a ten weeks' engagement, and were offered further time, but they are wanted over this side until the fall of 1914.

Popular Minstrels.

The Three Dumond Minstrels report that they have a full book with Moss and Stoll circuit right up to the end of 1912. This all looks well for American turns. Why complain, fellows?

Green and Wood.

Managers on this side have been trying hard to secure Green and Wood for England. They do a comedy tumbling act on the lines of Humpsti Bumpsti. By cable comes the message that they don't expect to come over until they've finished work altogether. They've not a minute to spare for the rest of their days.

"The Lazy Frolics."

The Brothers Huxter, including the dude, have recently played the Morris time, and report the good news that they were much appreciated. Over the other side they were known as The Fullers, and played their screamer with the subtitle of "The Lazy Frolics." Who says they are foreign to real circus business?

"1915."

Why, well! What's the matter with this? Daley Cooper and Mabel Lait have been offered full time on two American circuits for 1915 and 1916. This is surely the limit.

The Male Patti.

There's something wrong when an American artist says he can't stand the vaudeville business on the other side, but is coming over here to try his luck. Well, there's plenty of room for Stuart, the Male Patti, if he's first class. A male Patti is a bit of a novelty, anyway, though there's not a great market for falsetto singers. They've got to be good.

Sam Elton.

"The man who made the Shah laugh," is making his home permanently over here. Though he hasn't said so, we believe since he entered into a tight contract with a member of the Leopold family this is his decision. In a few days he sails for Australia for the winter, under a very favourable engagement.

Velanche.

Velanche, with his football dogs and circling fox "Nellie," leaves for a world's tour in December, starting from London for Australia on the Rickards tour, thence to Africa, and after to America, beginning at San Francisco and ending up in New York City.

The Georgia Magnet.

News comes to hand that Annie Abbott, the little Georgia Magnet, is drawing great audiences in the provinces, especially at Birmingham. It has taken Annie a long time to convince everybody that she is the real identical little lady who made such a big hit eighteen years or so back at the London Alhambra. This comes of letting the act sleep so long; yet, on the other hand, as you say over here, it's woke up considerably, and is just as puzzling now as it was then. It stayed many weeks at the London Pavilion.

RINKING GOSSIP.

"Merry Martha" at Ramsgate.

Long announced, Merry Martha made her début at the Ramsgate County Rink last week. She gave a really delightful exhibition of trick and fancy skating, skipping, and dancing on rollers. Her performance showed what can be accomplished by a really clever skater. Merry Martha, in performing intricate figures on the rink, was grace personified.

Jersweat Session at Sunderland Rink.

The first "Jersweat" session of the season was held at the Whitehall Rink, Holmeside, on the 21st inst., and proved a great success. The chief feature was the various races, which were keenly contested and provided much entertainment to the spectators. There were hobble-skirt and picture-building competitions for ladies, and for gentlemen a card-castle building race and a chariot race. The last-mentioned was, perhaps, the most exciting, and after a keen contest Messrs. Boucher and White were the winners. The rink skate boys created much entertainment in an obstacle race, arranged by Mr. G. Bryan, the lads being attired in comic costumes. The last half-hour was given up to a confetti battle, which waged in good-humoured fun till eleven o'clock. Altogether the evening was very enjoyable, and Mr. Walton, the manager, received many congratulations upon the novel nature of the races.

Carnival at Waterford Rink.

The directors of the Waterford Rink have announced that the first carnival will be held on Nov. 15. They are offering very handsome prizes for best costumes. The three sessions still continue to draw a good attendance.

Cycle v. Skates at South Wigston Rink.

The Clarence Rink at South Wigston is doing splendid business, and Mr. T. Moody, the manager, is to be congratulated on the many attractions he puts before his patrons. On Saturday last a cycle v. skate race took place, in which Mr. Moody, who rode the cycle, was beaten by a yard by Mr. H. Green on skates. Mr. Moody, besides being an expert in the art of fancy skating, is also a clever trick cyclist, an exhibition of which he gave on Saturday last on an ordinary road machine.

Rinking at Limerick.

The Limerick Skating Rink continues to attract the patrons of this exhilarating pastime, and nightly crowds have availed themselves of the spin on the wheels. The carefully arranged hockey matches are a great attraction. The next event will be the children's carnival, and success has already been assured by the number of applications for tickets.

Carnival at Norwich Rink.

The first carnival of the season was held at the Rinkeries, Rose-lane, on Tuesday, and there was a large attendance. Some capital racing and other competitions for ladies as well as gentlemen took place, all of which were keenly contested. Able assistance was rendered by Mr. F. W. Fitt and by Messrs. B. J. Seabrook, A. Murray, Hubbard, and others, and the occasion proved a great success.

COLONIAL GOSSIP.

Julius Knight's Popularity.

Julius Knight is very popular in West Australia, and his farewell season brought forth some tangible evidences of the fact. In Kalgoorlie he was the recipient of a beautiful solid silver bowl, while in Perth he was presented with a very handsome set of gold-mounted smoking requisites.

Amy Castles in Grand Opera.

Owing to the illness of Signorina Pampari, Amy Castles stepped into the part of Mimi, in La Bohème, at a moment's notice in Melbourne, and achieved a notable success. The Victorian singer has improved out of all knowledge as an actress since she went to New Zealand, according to the Sydney Town and County Journal. So pleased is the Australian cantatrice with her initial effort in grand opera that she has quite made up her mind to continue the career which she has started so successfully under the J. C. Williamson management. She is only waiting till the present season finishes to get away to Italy and settle down to study in real earnest. There seems little doubt about her ultimate success.

Miss Maie Sydney's Advice.

Miss Maie Sydney, who recently returned to Sydney after five years' experience abroad, and particularly in London, has, says the Canterbury Times (New Zealand), written a letter of warning to ambitious Australians who would seek fame and fortune on the stage in London. Emphasising the necessity for talent and thorough training in acting and singing when allied to self-confidence and ambition, she points out that there must be some financial preparedness for a long wait before the looked-for engagements eventuate. Much disappointment may be experienced before the aspirant for popular favour on the stage achieves success. She adds that unless one knows London, and the way to expend money to the best advantage, living expenses there will absorb a good deal of capital. Miss Sydney states that she has received many letters asking for her advice from stage aspirants, and, while she does not wish to advise all to seek fame and fortune abroad, she recognises that the Australian girl with the necessary courage, ability, and money may always try her luck in London, with good prospects of success.

"The Dollar Princess" in Toronto.

Charles Frohman's company, in The Dollar Princess, recently opened a week's engagement at the Princess Theatre, Toronto. In addition to the English cast, the company comprises the famous "beauty chorus," selected by popular vote by the readers of the New York World. The Dollar Princess went direct from a ten months' run at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York City. No expense has been spared to make the production the same in every detail as it was during its New York engagement. It is staged in a most gorgeous manner, the company travelling three carloads of new and beautiful scenery.

Mr. Langford Kirby's Success.

Mr. Langford Kirby, who has been appearing with great success in The Orchid at Her Majesty's Theatre, Sydney, is one of the Boucicault family. His mother was the reigning beauty of Rockhampton (Queensland) as a girl, being known as one of the beautiful Miss Boucicaults. Her son is an exceptionally versatile comedian, with a born stage manner. He has become very popular as a member of J. C. Williamson's Royal Comic Opera Company. Mr. Kirby's career in Australia has been an unusual one. Engaged by Mr. J. C. Williamson from Mr. George Edwardes for musical comedy, he was first cast as Young Ryder, in The Lion and the Mouse, in which he scored a distinct hit. His dramatic experience in England, included in which was three years at Drury Lane Theatre, stood him in good stead in this rôle. Next he stepped into the part of Joachim, in The Waltz Dream. His performance was on eccentric lines, and distinctly amusing.

Hugh J. Ward's Good Work.

The Children's Hospital scheme, in Wellington, New Zealand, has been boomed through the assistance given it by Mr. Hugh J. Ward, and in the course of a week Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Wilford, the Mayor and Mayoress of Wellington, collected the fine sum of £3,600. Mr. Ward's generous offer started the ball rolling, and, thanks mainly to his initiative, a new children's hospital is a certainty for Wellington. There are very many people who will in the future bless the day that Hugh Ward brought The Girl from Rector's to Wellington, for it marks one of the finest efforts ever made in the cause of charity in New Zealand.

"HER LADYSHIP'S GUEST."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Harry M. Vernon, Produced, for the First Time in London, at the Coliseum, on Monday, Oct. 24.

Lady Arlington .....Miss Mary Griffiths
Gibbs .....Mr. W. F. Stirling
Tricky Dugan .....Mr. C. M. Brune

The above sketch was produced in July last at the Leeds Hippodrome, and its principal purpose at the Coliseum seems to be the introduction of Mr. C. M. Brune as the American "crook," Tricky Dugan, a smart New York burglar. He has come across Cyril, the self-exiled heir of the noble house of Arlington, who has left home because of the brutality of his father to his mother. Chance had thrown Cyril into his way, and being deeply impressed by the youth's manly, upright character, the burglar reforms, and comes to England to seek the boy's relations. He intrudes on the privacy of Lady Arlington, Cyril's grandmother, to whom he discloses all he knows, and influences her ladyship to seek the return of her grandson. Scotland Yard, however, is on Dugan's track, and a detective calls to arrest him on suspicion, but he is saved by Lady Arlington informing the 'tec through her butler that the "gentleman" is "her ladyship's guest."

Miss Mary Griffiths was authoritative, dignified, and pathetic as the aristocratic Lady Arlington, and played the part with much impressiveness. Mr. C. M. Brune's speech was too hurried on Monday afternoon to allow those at any distance to catch the New York slang which is so plentifully sprinkled in his lines; but Mr. W. F. Stirling made an excellent butler.

Miss Mina Green has been going great guns at the Bedford and Crouch End during the week with two new songs, "In the land of the Cingalee" and "Star of the Nile." J. F. Lambe and Alf. J. Lawrence, the author-composers, have supplied Miss Green with another number entitled "Take me back to Mexico."

Ebrington Rink, Plymouth.

The floor is now in prime condition, and the weekly handicaps that have been arranged materially add to the attractiveness of the ordinary evenings, and are responsible for much increased support. Last week's carnival proved so successful that another, coupled with a Cinderella, is to be arranged at an early date.

Sports Carnival at Rochdale.

A sports carnival was held at the Palace Roller Rink, Rochdale, on Tuesday night, and attracted a large number of competitors. A silver challenge cup was offered to amateurs racing for a distance of half a mile, the winner being Mr. T. Burgess. There were several other competitions. A confetti battle was afterwards held. There were a good number of spectators.

AN OPERATIC HORSE.

"During my visit to Munich, while arranging a leave of absence for Therese and Arthur Vogl in view of our Berlin engagement," writes Angelo Neumann in his "Personal Recollections of Wagner," "I attended a rehearsal of the Götterdämmerung, and in the final act investigated the details of Brunhilda's celebrated ride into the flames. The horse she used had once been a favourite charger of the Emperor Maximilian, and now in its old age fulfilled this last and only duty with a marvellous intelligence and an almost uncanny instinct for the rôle. It knew its cues perfectly, for the moment that Brunhilda advanced, saying, 'Heya Grane, grüsse den Freund,' it grew restless, champed the bit, and pawed; then at her final call, 'Siegfried, selig gilt dir mein Gruss,' it wheeled rapidly, and, galloping straight across the stage, dashed at the blazing funeral pyre. Brunhilda, grasping the mane at the start, leaped to its back on the keen run, and so they rode—apparently into the very heart of the flames! It was wonderfully carried out, and the effect on the audience was simply overwhelming.

"I expressed my awe and admiration to Therese Vogl, who assured me that, though she was a skilled rider, she could never carry out that leap with any other mount, for the creature's intelligence was nothing short of marvellous. 'You might almost say,' she added, 'that the animal has an ear for music!' For at each performance of the Götterdämmerung, precisely at the same bar, without a sign from her and not waiting for her to mount, the horse started on that wild dramatic plunge across the stage.

"As this final act of Götterdämmerung was of the keenest importance both to myself and to all the artists concerned, I resolved with the Vogls to petition his Majesty Ludwig II., well known for his gracious and enlightened patronage of the arts, to allow us to take this horse to Berlin for our coming Nibelungen cycle. This request was most courteously granted on condition that he should be suitably lodged in the Royal stables in Berlin. Naturally that could only be arranged by application to his Majesty the Emperor of Germany. Kaiser William I.—always kindly and generous—immediately gave his consent, and arrangements were made for the careful handling and housing of the horse in the royal stables.

"In the midst of our rehearsals, however, just as we were preparing for his shipment from Munich, came the news of his illness, and finally of his death. Then the problem was to secure another tractable horse for the part. Where could we find a Grane to play that difficult rôle both in The Valkyrie and the Götterdämmerung? Day after day I hunted through Berlin, but all in vain. As a last resort I was recommended to apply to the Equerry of the Imperial stables (at that time Count Pückler), who received me most graciously, but refused my request most emphatically. He escorted me over the palace, and spared no pains to make up by urbanity for his point-blank refusal. When, finally, quite in despair, I appealed to him naïvely, asking him who could give me permission to borrow one of the royal horses—without which our performance must inevitably fall through—he answered with a calm candour that I shall never forget, 'The only person who could let you have it would be the Kaiser. But I may as well tell you now that, even if he gave his consent, I should certainly refuse mine.' Then he ushered me to the door and bowed me out."

"My joy and surprise, then, may be imagined when a royal lackey was ushered in some two days later and handed me a note from Count Pückler, saying, 'I shall expect you and Madame Vogl this morning between eleven and twelve at the riding-school of the royal stables. We can then pick out a suitable mount.'

The writer then explains that the Crown Prince, hearing of the difficulty, had interested himself.

"Promptly at the given hour I arrived at the riding school with the Vogls—both excellent riders—and found the court equerry waiting for us. Here the prima donna tried twelve or fifteen horses without being able to find one with whom she could manage that daring leap into the flames. However, we might still count ourselves fortunate to find a horse that was suitable in other respects. So the Berliners had to thank the quick wits and the genial readiness of their Crown Prince (later the Emperor Frederick) for their enjoyment of the Nibelungen cycle."

Large audiences still attend both houses at the Ayr Picture Palace. A new feature is added this week in "The Pathé Gazette"—a chronicle of topical events. The Revolution in Portugal evoked considerable interest. The programme also includes The Phœnix, As the Bells Rang Out, and others.

Some time since Mr. Mark Melford slipped out of the whirl of life to find relief, perchance, in "a shrine of utter quietude." He just as quietly returned to the stage on Monday at the Bedford in his famous sketch My Wife Won't Let Me, which has recently been published, with other productions from his pen, in the form of a handy little volume, price one shilling net, by Samuel French, Ltd., Southampton-street, Strand, W.C.

Miss Maggie Duggan has given permission to Miss Renee Grahame to sing her popular song, "The happiest chappie of the day," during her coming American tour. Renee Grahame's latest winner, "Cheer up, girls," is by Chas. Levey, of the Lyric, Liverpool.

Mr. Aubrey Dennistoun has been engaged by Mr. Harold Nuttall for the part of the Doctor in The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, by W. W. Jacobs, which is booked for a round of the halls preparatory to a tour of the States. This will be Mr. Dennistoun's first appearance on the variety stage.

A New York correspondent states that the band at the aviation meeting at Belmont Park played practically one lilting air all one afternoon. It is called "Every little movement has a meaning of its own," is from Madame Sherry, and has already been christened "the aviation melody."

A well-informed contemporary states that the largest salary ever offered in vaudeville was recently made to Miss Marie Tempest for a short engagement in a musical sketch. The writer states also that Miss Tempest says that she has no intention of ever returning to the music hall stage, in any circumstances.

The committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., beg most gratefully to thank Mr. Walter Inge (donation), 10s. (per Mrs. George Gilbey); Miss Ronna Shanara (collection), 8s. 10d.; Miss Lottie Albert, babies' new clothing; Miss Kate Toole, pair babies' new leather shoes. We have some very nice fancy dress costumes for sale. No reasonable offer refused.

Owing to the officials of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild having to attend the Old Bailey, the general meeting is unavoidably postponed until Thursday, Nov. 3, at 1 o'clock, at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane, Strand.

The Five Musical Palmers are this week playing a return visit to the Kino Hall, Clay Cross, where they beat all records on their last visit in Good Friday week. They follow on with Messrs. Broadhead at Manchester for the next four weeks, opening at the Queen's Park Hippodrome.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (London), solicitor. Third edition.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Mr. A. A. Strong, LL.B., has reached a third edition, and gives in simple language such parts of the law as relate to subjects with which the profession is concerned.—The Financier.

Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable work "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at The Era Office, Tavistock-street, has reached its third edition. The author has made every effort to bring the book right up to date.—Referee.

Price 5s., post free 5s. 4d. Published at The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Frank Fox, at the Walthamstow Palace, produced a new song, entitled "I'd rather have the moonshine," written and composed by Harry Carlton. The song was an immediate success, and is already in great demand for pantomime, being an ideal song for principal boy.

The first of a series of operatic concerts, to be given by the Municipal Orchestra during the winter, took place at the Brighton Dome on Wednesday evening, Gounod's Faust being the work selected. The festival choir supplied the chorus. The solo vocalists included Miss Lilian Tree, Miss Mary Leighton, Mr. Wilfred Virgo, and Mr. George Baker. Mr. Joseph Sainton conducted.

"An Unwedded Wife" is the attraction at the Hippodrome, Neath. Miss Crissie Dunbar proves herself a talented actress as Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Will Casey in their respective parts of Napoleon B. Boomer and Carraway Crumpet are very funny; Little Doris Spense, who plays Reggie, is a clever child actress; as Philip Blackstone Mr. H. Oxtaby gives an excellent portrayal; Mr. L. Ernest is admirable as John Hawthorne; as Frank Armstrong Mr. Arthur Cheeves distinguishes himself; Mr. Dicky Bird is good as Christopher Leanox; Mr. W. Fisher is an acceptable David Drummond; the constabulary are well represented by Messrs. Robert Young, Frank Masters, and H. Hammerton; and Miss Ethel Spense is a charming Elsie Langham.

GOODRICH RUBBER

Seeing that there is such a great difference in tyre values, the motorist who wishes to get the best must learn to discriminate between that which is good and that which is—not so good. Quite a lot of "rubber" gets into motor tyres which is only fit for "ink erasers" in elementary schools, and being out of its element is promptly "erased" by the road. Every atom of a Goodrich cover is buoyantly alive, and automatically capable of instant compression and recoil. To these essentials is added a quality of toughness ensuring the maximum resistance to the cutting and grinding attacks of the road. These are the reasons for "the Goodrich average." This is the combination of speed and durability which has earned it the title of

THE IDEAL TOURING TYRE.

SHAKESPEARE'S CONSTRUCTION.

"It is reasonable to believe," says Mr. William H. Fleming in "Shakespeare's Plots," that Shakespeare did recognise the fact that plot is the primal element in a drama. The perfection of his own plots proves this. His plays, with the exception of some written in his tentative, his playwright period, are the perfection of symmetry; they balance around a common centre. 'The key to every man is his thought.' The key to every drama is the plot, which is simply the poet's originating, constructing thought. The recognition of this fact is one fruit of the study of the plays according to the method here advocated.

"The study of a drama after this manner is similar, in every stage, to Shakespeare's method of constructing it. The student is thereby brought into intellectual and imaginative sympathy with the dramatist. As a consequence he is able to judge accurately, to appreciate fully, the perfection and beauty of the drama. Shakespeare's method was first analytic, then synthetic. He analysed a romance or history, selecting some, rejecting other incidents. Then, using those selected, and adding to them others of his own invention, out of them, as raw material, he created a drama. This operation is followed step by step, by the student. The details are seen to be perfect in themselves. Further, that each one is essential, for in a perfect drama there is no lay figure, not a needless word or action. Then, passing from specials to generals, the growth of each division of the drama is traced. Finally the drama is perceived to be organic. Each and every part is seen to be vital, and to be in living connection with every other part, and all together constitute a perfect work of dramatic art.

"By this method of study the scholar follows the natural order of intellectual growth, which is from the concrete to the abstract. He rises, like Shakespeare himself, to the region of the imagination, and

'. . . . apprehends
More than cool reason ever comprehends.'

While there is, as Coleridge has stated, an antithesis between science and poetry, this antithesis is not great in degree or inherent in character. Essentially, science and poetry are alike, both being expressions of truth. As in character, so in method are they similar. 'The highest reach of science,' says Matthew Arnold, 'is, we may say an inventive power, a faculty of divination akin to the highest power exercised in poetry.' And again, 'without poetry our science will appear incomplete. . . . For finely and truly does Wordsworth call poetry "the impassioned expression which is in the countenance of all science."' The critical study, therefore, of poetry as of science is the joint work of reason and of imagination; of the imaginative reason. This is true of Science. 'Bounded and conditioned by co-operant reason, imagination becomes the mightiest instrument of the physical discoverer,' says Tyndall. The scientific method of studying the Shakespearean drama equally demands the use both of reason and imagination. It is by means of both that the still and mental parts of the drama, the hidden but vital connection of all the factors of the play, and the artistic result of that connection, are perceived. By means of both the student apprehends not only what is really in the play, but also what is potentially there. The production of that beauty, both that which is real and that which is potential, and the perception of it as well, are the result of the concurrent action of a highly trained intellect and a most refined and disciplined imagination. The method of study here advocated necessitates the exercise of both. Hence it is in accord with Shakespeare's method of construction, and, better than any other, will enable the student to appreciate the Shakespeare plays."

Miss Mary Moore, in The Liars at the Criterion, appears in the first act in a white satin dress heavily embroidered with white bugles and white silk embroidery, and finished with bugle fringe. The bodice, which is lightly high-waisted, is treated in the same style, but its characteristic feature is a wide ceinture of pale blue satin worn under the transparent chiffon, and carried round to the back, whence fall two long flat stole ends almost to the hem of the skirt, richly embroidered with silver. The effect of the dress was still further enhanced by ornaments of turquoise and pearl.

In the second act Miss Moore wears a gown of very fine white cloth. The bodice is of the Magyar or sans'eve type, with elbow sleeves. The skirt is made with a short tunic of the same cloth, which is gathered into the high waistband. A novel effect in the bodice is produced by crossing bretelles of the cloth, and these are continued at the back in fashionable flat stole-ends. Touches of blue and black appear at the neck and sleeves of the gown, and are repeated in the buttons, while the toilette is completed by a huge black picture hat with sweeping white ostrich feathers.

Miss Moore's gown in the last act is composed of transparent silk ninon of a very soft dull grey over a silk foundation of the same shade. The ninon overdress is finished with a very wide border of embroidery in dull gold, and is adorned with gold bugle fringe. Above this border appears through the ninon a wide band of lace which adorns the underdress. The bodice is also richly embroidered, and is finished by a very wide waistband of old rose silk partially veiled by the ninon and finished at the back with two long ends. The picture hat is of pink with a wide brim lined with black velvet and trimmed with large black ostrich feathers. A very graceful white satin gown is worn by Miss Ellis Jeffreys, and Miss Dorothy Thomas appears in a frock of purple chiffon over white.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

The British Empire Shakespeare Society's performances of As You Like It concluded at the Royal Court Theatre on Saturday last. In acknowledging the enthusiastic applause, Mr. Acton Bond said:—"I am glad to say that our members and their friends, the public, have not found our Forest of Arden a 'desert inaccessible,' for you will be pleased to hear that these fourth annual performances have been a success, both artistically and financially. On behalf of the B.E.S.S. I wish to publicly thank all those who have helped towards this gratifying result. Without doubt, the fact that we were able on the previous three occasions to hold our annual performances at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, has enabled us to bring the first London festival to a successful issue. Thanks to the co-operation of the Governors of the Memorial Theatre—headed by their chairman, Mr. A. D. Flower—and of many prominent Stratford-on-Avon citizens, we were given the use of the theatre, and were thus enabled to hold the performances under the happiest conditions.

"The Shakespearean cause," continued Mr. Bond, "must be making great strides when men and women of position give up their leisure for rehearsals and a week's performances. The casts have not only been composed of London members, but of many members from the provincial cities. We have no intention of crowding the stage, but of spreading the love of Shakespeare, by insisting on the vital and dramatic side of the poet's work as against the 'dry-as-dust' treatment, which obtained till recently. The thanks of the society are due to Mr. Drinkwater for his none too easy task of rehearsing four different casts of ladies, in addition to the usual two casts of gentlemen. I also wish to thank Miss Carter, who helped us last year at Stratford, for again arranging the dances. Then we must not forget the Arion String Quartette, who have once more given us a programme of mostly traditional music. A final word of thanks is due to the staff of the theatre, both in front and behind. It has been to all of us one of the great pleasures of this week to see so many school children in our audiences, and to hear their cheery laughter and applause. One of our 'objects' is to help children to love Shakespeare's works."

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.

For Sustaining the Voice.
Invaluable for ACTORS and SINGERS.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Gentlemen,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), Marie Rose Mapleson.

QUICK CRITICISM.

A discussion at a recent meeting of the Institute of Journalists of the difficulties of dramatic criticism revived several suggestions which have been made again and again, but have always been allowed to drop eventually. It has long been perceived that the time given to the critic to write his notice after the conclusion of a theatrical performance and before the paper going to press militated against any very high literary standard being attained, and against the criticisms produced being worth reading for themselves alone; and various alternatives have been suggested, the most feasible of which is a dress rehearsal to which the critics should be invited. At many London theatres such a dress rehearsal of a play is given on the day before the performance.

We were rather surprised to see that the debaters did not deal with the difference between the personal and the impersonal, the intellectual and the common-sense, styles of criticism, and the desirability of cultivating more examples of the former than we have at present. We can certainly use both kinds of treatment with advantage.

English dramatic criticism must necessarily be for the most part reportorial and commonplace, from want of material. A very large proportion of the plays produced are only worthy of description and estimation on the rather low plane on which they exist. And even in the case of worthier dramas there is often little to be written which is witty or thoughtful or valuable on its own merits. The critic, therefore, who aims at being helpful to the dramatist, and not at adding to his own personal reputation by writing brilliant essays, must be content to pen much that is prosaic. The analysis of an ordinary play can only be made to read amusingly by an effort. If a witty or intellectual critic conscientiously deals with every piece that is produced, he must often find himself baffled in the effort to produce essays and not estimates. The critic who is really useful, the Sarcey who is steadily serious, practical, considerate, and conscientious, is always appreciated by the playwrights and actors, but earns a kind of half-contemptuous toleration from the literary reader. The critic who cultivates a personality and who makes his notices "brilliant" is the favourite of the latter, and with reason. For the literary reader only seeks to be amused. The dogged digging-away at play after play—intelligent dissection, in fact—is more useful than the essayist's style, but it is decidedly less ornamental. For the brilliant critic has a horror of the commonplace and the well worn; and in the case of the majority of plays careful commonplace is the only spirit in which they can be treated. Dramatic criticism, indeed, like playwriting, has in it a large element of drudgery. The average daily paper reader wants first of all to know what a new play is about, and, secondly, to be supplied with an estimate of its peculiarities and merits.

Now, apart from the time required to write a certain number of words down on paper—a mere matter of manual dexterity—most critics could not form a more correct opinion of the average play in a couple of days than they could in a couple of hours. There used to be a saying amongst the R.A.s that you could tell a good picture from across a street; and the trained mind of the critic is made up completely at the fall of the curtain. It is only the élite of critics who can produce, at such short notice, a smart literary essay which will bear the test of reading for its style, its wit, and its symmetry. And even these gifted writers cannot always rise to their highest standard. When they publish their notices in book form they are compelled to make "selections," and they are often driven to write scenarios in despair of their material.

It used to be said of a distinguished critic who wrote for a weekly paper that he was in the habit of reading all the daily paper notices and then collectively opposing them in his own essay. There is certainly a temptation in this direction to the writer who aspires to literary fame as a critic, and who consequently signs his articles. When Canning sent home a diplomatic report in the form of an operatic lyric, he was rebelling against the customary and the obvious. When Charles Lamb invented his paradox about the unreality of the characters in comedy, he was absolutely wrong; but he produced an immortal essay, while Macaulay's sound refutation of Lamb's theory is comparatively unknown. It is the eccentric which attracts attention. Common-sense is apt to be obvious. Mr. A. B. Walkley, in one of his articles, made some pithy remarks on this point. "It has to be remembered," he said, "that good plays often make bad copy. A play that presents no variation of type may be interesting enough in itself, but vexes the critic, to whom it presents no 'purchase.' . . . The critic is generally tempted to describe a melodrama by the ironic method—which is unfair."

Anything, therefore, which is calculated to reduce the number of personal critics, and keep up the supply of steady-going, sympathetic estimators, is to be encouraged; and our present system is undoubtedly calculated to do this. Valuation must always depend on the state of the market. To approach the task of judging English plays with an Ibsen standard or an advanced Parisian standard inevitably tends to a certain antagonistic tone and temper. The attitude required of the helpful critic is that of the ordinary playgoer plus knowledge and experience. That individual can be influenced for good only by degrees. He can be induced to prefer the less vulgar form of entertainment to the more vulgar only by a preacher who does not ask of him too much at once. The drama is, for the most part, inevitably banal, because the people to whom it makes its appeal are banal. As Mr. Clayton Hamilton says: "Both in its sentiments and in its opinions, the crowd is hugely commonplace. It is incapable of original thought and of any but inherited emotion. It has no speculation in its eyes. What it feels was felt before the Flood; and what it thinks, its fathers thought before it. The most effective moments in the theatre are those that appeal to commonplace emotions—love of woman, love of home, love of country, love of right, anger, jealousy, revenge, ambition, lust, and treachery."

But even in the case of the commonplace notice mercy should be shown to the critic, who should be allowed reasonable time to write his notice, if not time enough to embellish it with witty remarks, apt quotations, and euphonious turns of phrase. As it is, the excellent average quality of our dramatic criticism is a marvel, considering the rapidity with which it is necessarily written; and any increase in the time given to the critic to do his work should be welcomed in a spirit of mere humanity.

At the concert at Covent Garden on Sunday night Mr. Vernon Warner plays the solo part in Delius's Concerto in C, and the singers are Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mme. La Palme, Miss Booker, Miss Edna Thornton, and Mr. Frederic Austin.

Miss Annie Hughes' Debut.

"I had never seen the front of a theatre from the stage," says Miss Annie Hughes in an article in the Sketch, "and when the opportunity came of 'walking on' at a Gaiety matinée before going on tour it was taken advantage of for me. Among the things I was given to do was to carry on a tea-tray in one part of the play and two candlesticks with lighted candles in another. I was very angry because of that tray and those candlesticks. I thought that if that was what acting meant the sooner I was allowed to leave it alone and retire into private life the better it would suit me. Mrs. (now Lady) Beerbohm Tree very kindly lent me one of her dresses for the part. It was the first time I had ever had on a long dress. When I came to my entrance with the two candles I got as far as the centre of the stage, and at the next step I trod on my dress and fell prostrate on the floor. Of course, the audience roared with laughter. It was the first laugh I ever got on the stage, though, happily, it has not been the last. To add to the absurdity of the situation, the stage was in darkness until I took the candles on. Then all the lights went up. When I fell down, however, the candles went out, but the lights remained up, though the source of the illumination was withdrawn. My first steps on the stage were like those of a baby—fatal ones.

No Make-up.

"It was in the Town Hall at Ealing that I spoke for the first time on the stage. I had not seen the Gaiety Theatre during the rehearsals, for the curtain was down, and, naturally, I did not notice anything at the performance. When I saw the Town Hall I was as disappointed as a famous dramatist was with the Atlantic. I knew nothing about the stage, and when I arrived at night and dressed, someone said to me, 'Aren't you going to make up?'

Praise from the Press.

"I had nothing to make up with, and I did not know that make-up was necessary. My début, therefore, was made without any paint on my face at all, and it was some time before I did 'make up.' My lack of artificial colour was noticed by a newspaper when I played my first original part in London in The Man with Three Wives, at the Criterion, for its critics said, 'At last we have an actress who has no intention of making up, which is such a relief. English actresses make up too much, but not to such an extent as the French."

MISS ROSINA FILIPPI'S MATINEES.

Miss Rosina Filippi and her pupils, with some professional assistance, delighted a large audience at the Court Theatre on Friday afternoon, Oct. 21, with a capital all-round performance of Sir A. W. Pinero's witty farce, The Cabinet Minister, which was originally produced at the theatre some twenty years since. In the arduous rôle of Lady Twombley, created by Mrs. John Wood, Miss Filippi—who in the first Court representation played Mrs. Gaylustre—is to be congratulated on a complete success, the actress cleverly depicting the mental torture the financially embarrassed Countess goes through as the result of getting into the clutches of the money-lender Lebanon. Altogether her portrayal of the fond mother who has "outrun the constable" was a very humorous and convincing one, the many humorous lines of the Countess never failing to arouse merriment. Miss Eileen Allen was a natural and lovable Imogen, her scenes with Valentine White being capitally handled, and her enactment throughout an admirable one. The Dowager Countess of Drumdurris as undertaken by Miss Esmé Hubbard could not have been improved upon; Miss Emily Luck as Lady M'Phail supplied an admirable portraiture; Miss Amy Ravenscroft as the scheming Mrs. Gaylustre gave a finished and clever enactment; and Miss Cathleen Nesbitt as Angèle, Miss Ruby Carson as Miss Munkittrick, Miss Mary Ann Prest as the Countess of Drumdurris, and Mrs. Noel Mackern as Lady Euphemia Vibart all contributed creditable performances. Mr. Egerton Hubbard as Sir Julian Twombley skilfully suggested the weariness and perplexity of the distressed Home Secretary, whose one real interest in life appears to be playing the flute; Mr. Harold Hawkins as his worldly son Brooke was excellent; Mr. Charles Adair as the Earl of Drumdurris and Mr. Mervin Rintoul as Valentine White both submitted effective portrayals; Mr. Dennis Atherton as the sheepish Macphail of Ballocheevin contributed a quietly humorous caricature that is deserving of much commendation; and Mr. Eliot Makeham as the vulgar and snobbish little Jew, Joseph Lebanon, was responsible for a comical portrayal, particularly laughable being the concluding episode, the scenes with Lady Twombley being very drolly enacted by Mr. Makeham and Miss Filippi. Mr. Gerald Jerome as Mr. Melton, Mr. William Butler as the Munkittrick, and Mr. James Gelderd as Probyn were all quite satisfactory. The large audience, including Sir Charles Wyndham and other well-known actors and actresses, thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon's entertainment, and were loud in their appreciation at its conclusion.

On Tuesday afternoon Miss Filippi and her clever little company, going from lively to severe, presented, again before a large and appreciative audience, Ibsen's gloomy but impressive play, John Gabriel Borkman, and the presentation was a praiseworthy one throughout. In the part of the unhappy and unforgiving Mrs. Borkham Miss Filippi gave a portrayal of wonderful strength and conviction, and her scenes with her twin sister Ella, and her bitter disappointment when she discovers that her boy—the only person for whom she apparently has any affection, and of whom she hopes so much—is determined to enjoy life, and leave home with the fascinating Mrs. Wilton, were splendidly handled. The gentle, grave Ella Rentheim was admirably played by Miss Emily Luck, her depiction of the suffering, heart-broken woman, thrown over by Borkman to further his ambitious schemes, being a very finished and effective one; and the worldly, ironical Mrs. Wilton of Miss Amy Ravenscroft was an easy, judicious, and refined enactment of a thankless part, and one on which the actress can be cordially complimented. Miss Cathleen Nesbitt was a bright and natural Freda; and the impertinent and lazy maid Melina was satisfactorily undertaken by Miss Joan Carson. Mr. Franklin Dyall as the ambitious, broken bank-director, Borkman, gave a vivid and powerful portrayal, looking the part exactly and acting throughout with exceptional ability; and Mr. Donald Calthrop as the rebellious Erhart played with feeling and naturalness, skilfully realising the infatuation of the impressionable youth for the siren who evidently fully realises that he will soon tire of her, and is quite prepared for any eventualities. Foldal, the gentle, down-trodden friend of Borkman's, was cleverly enacted by Mr. Campbell Cargill. John Gabriel Borkman was followed by a new one-act fantasy, by W. Oliphant Down, with music by Beatrice Pattenden and Richard Harris, entitled

"A MAKER OF DREAMS."

Pierrot .....Mr. Eliot Makeham
Pierrette .....Miss Gwendolen Logan
The Manufacturer .....Mr. Franklin Dyall

Pierrot and Pierrette are in partnership, and apparently business is bad. Pierrette, at the rising of the curtain, is busily engaged in preparing tea for Pierrot, but when he comes in he complains of the cold, has no relish for the meal, and eventually goes in search of a handsome, dark lady he has seen at the show. It should be mentioned that Pierrette silently loves Pierrot, but the latter only regards her as a business partner. When he has departed, the girl breaks down, and there enters an elderly gentleman in the costume of a century ago—the Manufacturer. He finds out that Pierrette has been crying, and the reason; and, Cupid in disguise—the Maker of Dreams—he will soon bring Pierrot to his senses. When the latter returns he starts writing an article for the Press, in which it is necessary to describe Pierrette; and as she gives him particulars it gradually dawns upon him that she is the girl he desires—the girl of his dreams, imparted by the Manufacturer. This quaint and pretty trifle is interspersed with a number of little verses, spoken by Pierrot, and is accompanied throughout by sympathetic music. Miss Gwendolen Logan was a dainty and sincere Pierrette; the irresponsible Pierrot was capitally played by Mr. Eliot Makeham; and Mr. Franklin Dyall as the Manufacturer gave a quietly humorous and altogether admirable portrayal.

THE COMPANY OF MUSICIANS.

The Worshipful Company of Musicians held their annual banquet at Stationers' Hall on Tuesday, the chairman being Mr. T. Les Southgate. Silver medals for the year were presented to Wm. Malcolm Robinson, L.R.A.M., 1st Border Regiment, of the Royal Military School of Music; Mr. M. Gordon Burgess, of the Guildhall School of Music; and Bandmaster H. G. Cornfoot, of the Royal Naval School of Music, who has been selected as bandsman to accompany the Duke of Connaught to South Africa. His medal was received on his behalf by Major Hobbs.

Mr. J. B. Pakeman proposed the toast of "The Company of Musicians." He said the company was founded in 1469, and received a charter from James I. in 1604. It had wide powers over musicians within its jurisdiction, and the right to impose heavy fines for such offences as that of a non-member making music within the jurisdiction. These powers had completely passed away, and sometimes he regretted that the company's jurisdiction no longer extended over the streets of London. The usefulness of the company, however, continued, and by their medals and in other ways they promoted the cause of music. Mr. Southgate, in reply, said that among the new schemes of the company was the offer of prizes, for which money was presented by a member, Mr. Cobbett, for composition in the Old English fantasy form. They had also decided to conduct a competition for a new Coronation March, in which he hoped young composers would take part. The ceremony followed of swearing in the new Master, Mr. A. H. Littleton, and the new Wardens.

TOURING AND RESIDENT MANAGERS.

MR. PAYNE SEDDON'S OPINIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

I read Mr. George Dance's article, recently published in your pages, but I am afraid I cannot "illumine the resident manager's side of the shield." I am inclined to agree with a great deal of what Mr. Dance says. He is certainly quite right about the lack of illumination in a great many theatres and their managers. The fault, I think, is that there are so few resident managers who can be legitimately called theatrical managers. By legitimate theatrical managers I mean men who devote themselves entirely to their own business. Of course, there are many such, and most of them have the control of several theatres and touring companies; but in the provinces, of which I speak in particular, you will find theatres in the hands of limited companies, syndicates, or private individuals, and managed by men who have never been actors or touring managers, or earned their living in any branch of stage work. They have not mastered its details, and have little sympathy with the business they conduct.

One manager is a good business man; he runs two theatres, both of which do fairly well, but he has no theatrical experience outside managing his own two theatres. A second is a legitimate theatrical manager who controls a dozen theatres. A third is a brewer by trade; he leaves the management of the theatre to a lad of about twenty-five years of age, assisted by the carpenter—who is a practical man, and assists with the bookings. Yet another is a tweed merchant, a splendid old fellow, but he does not call himself a theatrical manager—the theatre is a little hobby of his. I have visited him regularly for fifteen years; and he produces the same little bottle from his office cupboard when setting up which he used the first year.

One theatre is owned by the Corporation, and can be booked by any company which likes to pay two-thirds of the rent in advance—they make sure of that amount and trust to Providence for the balance. The scenery, if there is any, is not allowed to leave the theatre until the balance is paid. This manager runs his theatre in very cheap lines—I believe it pays him, but the legitimate touring manager only works it as a "fill in." The manager keeps going with the cheapest drama companies, and is a general dealer in the daytime. Another is the son of his father, who left him the theatre when he died. It is like a mechanical toy to him; he does not understand the mechanism, but keeps it going with frequent breakdowns. This theatre belongs to the wife of an old theatrical manager, who left it to her. The management is in the hands of her son; if he does not make any money he does not pay any rent, so he cannot lose much; but he is ruining the playhouse in what might be a good town. Another theatre is leased by an old theatrical manager who wished to settle down. He took it over from the liquidators of the former amateur manager, and it has done well since it came into his hands. This house and two others in the neighbourhood were built about five years ago and paid for by the unfortunate shareholders of various limited companies, promoted by an energetic theatrical speculator. I do not think he speculates himself much, beyond drawing his fees as managing director. The shareholders have not received any dividend, and one of them, I think, is in the hands of the Official Receiver. These two places were splendid one-night towns six years ago. The receipts at the Town Halls, as far as my experience goes, averaged £50 for a one-night visit per week, with any good company; now they do not average that amount per week. The population has not increased; and what was ten years ago a good fit-up town is now a "weak week" town. They neither pay the shareholders nor the visiting companies.

Towns vary; but very few towns can stand a regular theatrical programme with a smaller population than 50,000. A theatre which has a double licence and can run three nights with drama and three with variety stands a better chance; but the majority of English theatrical managers in the small towns won't—or can't—run variety and drama. They stick to the old lines—six nights or nothing—no matter whether the population be 100,000 or 20,000.

In America we heard of Sir Henry Irving, and, later, of London managers, doing one-night stands and travelling 300 or 400 miles between each town with their entire London production. It appears to be a regular thing there; but you cannot get the English touring managers to do two towns per week with a journey of fifty miles between them. They say: "I can't do split weeks with my production; the fares and the printing are so heavy." The local manager agrees, and keeps his bars open. They comfort each other by discussing the bad season or the decay of the drama. It is the local manager who profits most by keeping the theatre open whether the business justifies it or not. His theatre is a fixture; he cannot move it to another town—although many would like to. He did not consider the population when he built it, or, rather, persuaded the local shareholders to do it for him. He called their attention to the dividend paid by Moss' Empires, Howard and Wyndham, and other going concerns in towns with a population of 100,000 to 300,000, and persuaded them to expend, say, £20,000 on a building in a town of about 30,000 population; and then, hey presto! the excellent fit-up town which had hitherto been amply supplied with dramatic companies for one night each week is expected to fill the £20,000 theatre for about forty full weeks per annum.

To some extent supply creates a demand; but presuming that the advantages of a comfortable theatre doubles the number of theatre-goers—or the number of attendances—it does not create a new theatre-going population. In a provincial town there is so much money waiting for a recognised London success or piece which the population knows; and it can be taken for one night, three nights, or six. If the attraction be announced for six nights it will probably play to a smaller gross than for one. The public get into the habit of waiting to hear the opinion of others. On the Monday night the audience is spread all over the building. The play consequently goes badly. The opinion is seldom unanimous; one person likes it, another does not, and no matter what their verdict on the play may be, no one is enthusiastic. A bad opening generally means a bad week.

Touring managers consent to book the smaller towns for six nights simply from habit; they can't help it. Their date books are printed for week towns. They would sooner book six nights in each town than do more than one town, or, at the outside, two per week. They would take more money in these small towns in three nights than in six; but its too much trouble.

I'll give you an instance—that of a London star. Mr.—— (you had better not mention his name, as I have not his permission to publish his receipts) visited me every season at Whitby and Bridlington for three nights at each place. His average receipts were £50 per night. Last season I offered him a certainty equivalent to 75 per cent. of his usual gross receipts if he would let me book him at these and one other town for one night each. His receipts varied from £106 to £148 per night. He sees my point now. The next season he has agreed to my booking him a week of one nights, and neither of the six towns has a population of over 20,000.

His gross per night will thus be considerably over treble his former average; and yet managers in towns of this size will insist upon keeping open six nights per week and having no play for less than three. The managers of theatrical companies visiting these places insist upon booking full weeks.

I work all my theatres on this principle as far as I am able. The difficulty is to get touring managers to see it from my point of view. Some of them do. All my theatres have double licences for playing three nights drama and three nights variety, or three nights once nightly and three nights twice nightly each week. One, with a population of 50,000, has been open for forty weeks this season; but only three companies—répertoire and pantomime—played full weeks. The result is that since I took the theatre, over three years ago, the annual receipts have been doubled. Does it not stand to reason that if a play visits Glasgow or Birmingham for six nights that same play should remain in a town one-twelfth the size one or two nights at the outside?

Further, if there are 25,000 people in a town of 50,000 (that is, half the population) waiting to see The Merry Widow or The Arcadians, there will be only 10,000 waiting for a comedy, or 5,000 for a Bernard Shaw play. Yet these plays will all visit the same theatres for the same number of nights, and the resident and touring managers may blame each other, or the poor old drama if the results are not the same in each case.

If I had my way, in revising the Licensing Act I would license one building only in a town of under 50,000 population to open three days or six, according to the audited results shown, refusing to renew the licence of any building which could not justify its existence; and I would allow no theatre to be kept open for the sake of the bars, the advertisements on the curtain and the programmes, or for the amusement of the local manager. I am convinced that it is the old-fashioned habits of many managers of theatres and touring companies that are what is "wrong with the drama" rather than the relationship between the resident and touring managers which are alluded to by Mr. Dance.—Yours faithfully,

W. PAYNE SEDDON.

Londonderry, Oct. 26, 1910.

SHAKESPEARE SCENES IN SEQUENCE.

The dainty Little Theatre was well filled by an expectant gathering on Tuesday, when Miss Estelle Stead gave a matinée of selections from The Merchant of Venice and Macbeth. The former piece was represented by Scene 2 of Act I, the Casket Scene, the bargaining between Shylock and Antonio, and the Court scene, and the latter by the letter scene, the interview between Macbeth and Lady Macbeth, the former's soliloquy, Donald's murder, and the sleep-walking scene. The episodes in each play were arranged in such a way as to preserve the continuity of the story, and were given on a draped stage.

Whether Miss Stead took to play-acting as recently as her respected father took to playgoing we know not; but she has obviously much to learn in the technique of the stage and in the management of the voice. She made a good appearance as Portia and was commendably free from any straining after-effect. The delivery of her lines, however, was not all that could be desired, and there was a constant clipping of words, due possibly to the effect of nervousness on the voice. In her share of the casket scene she displayed tenderness, but her delivery of the mercy speech was sadly lacking in feeling, and she rattled off the latter part at an alarming rate. Miss Stead's bent is clearly that of tragedy rather than comedy, and there was a decided improvement in her impersonation of Lady Macbeth. Real intensity was displayed in Lady Macbeth's railling against the weakening Thane, and the sleep-walking scene, the lines delivered in a somewhat guttural but effective monotone, created quite an impression.

Miss Stead had surrounded herself with competent support. Mr. Clarence Derwent gave a really fine study of Shylock, the cunning and ferocity of the Jew being portrayed with the skill of an experienced artist. Mr. J. Henry Twyford was a buoyant and spirited Bassanio, though his fine voice proved a little too robust for the acoustics of the bijou house. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury gave a finished impersonation of Antonio, marked by much pathos, and Mr. Rathmell Wilson was a distinct and sympathetic Duke of Venice. Miss Renée De Vaux was a refined and graceful Nerissa, Mr. Alfred A. Harris a forceful Gratiano, Miss Dorothea Moss a pleasing Balthazar; and Mr. Allan Jeayes a typical Clerk of the Court. In Macbeth Miss Stead was equally well served. Mr. Arthur Whitby was a sturdy Scotsman with a deep-toned voice that sounded the tragic note completely. His performance was artistic throughout and commanded general admiration. Miss Eve Tame spoke the lines of the Gentlewoman with skilful emphasis, Mr. Allan Jeayes was a ferocious Messenger, and Mr. H. Harding Steerman played the Doctor, and was responsible for the stage-management of the selections. The performance won cordial commendation from a well-disposed audience, which included Sir Herbert Tree, who was in a box with Mr. Stead, and many members of the profession.

Happy Endings.

"Nothing but fear of accidental error," wrote Mr. Hall Caine in a recent article on "Happy Endings" in the Sunday Chronicle, "restrains me from an attempt to illustrate by further examples the sure fact that English novelists, as well as English dramatists, have nearly always had to yield obedience to the unwritten commandment of the English public, which says, 'Thou shalt not leave us unhappy at the end.'

"For my own part, I have (like every other writer to whom the public has granted any sort of popular acceptance) been compelled to make my choice. Utterly to wrong my subject as I saw it by bringing round a serious entanglement to anything equivalent to 'marriage bells,' I have never at any time allowed myself to do; but I have always known that even if I elected to direct my story to what seemed to be a sad issue in point of mere outward circumstance I had to give my readers at the same time the equivalent of spiritual compensation.

"Fortunately this has been agreeable to my view of life, which tells me that victory may be the worst vanquishment, that success may be the worst failure, and that it is better to die in a good cause than to live for an evil one. So it has not been hard for me as a novelist to reconcile my artistic sense to my ever-present consciousness of the craving of the public for a spiritual satisfaction that is equivalent to a happy ending.

"But as a dramatist I have been compelled to go farther. Apparently the public will not accept in the theatre the spiritual compensation which seems sufficient in the library. Under the glare of the footlights it demands the reality of worldly compensation as well. You may make it weep as much as you will during the course of your play, but you must dry its eyes at the end. So it has been necessary for me, as for nearly everybody else in England practising the same art, to submit to the unwritten law of the public heart, which requires that to be popular the climax of a play must please, and I can only hope that in submitting to this law in the cases of the two plays which I have written I have at least done no great wrong to the ethical intention with which I began to write them. That would be an unpardonable offence, which no writer with any sense of moral responsibility would allow himself to commit at the temptation of any reward whatsoever."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Oswald Stoll's project of building a new house at Fulham is likely to meet with local opposition, and we hear of a petition that is being signed by the patrons of the Granville, Walham Green, against the granting of a licence to the new house.

The appeal, which is prominently displayed by the management at the Walham Green house, reads as follows:—"Important.—You are earnestly requested to sign the petition which is on these premises against the granting of a music and dancing licence to the proposed Fulham Empire, the site of which is close to this hall, and which, if granted, might have the effect of closing up your old favourite, the Granville." At any rate, there is refreshing frankness about this statement, though many similar cases might be cited where nothing of the sort has happened.

Sir Edward Moss and Mr. Oswald Stoll again will apply for the removal of the restriction attaching to the licences of the London Hippodrome and the London Coliseum, that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed on the premises. Most of the new applications, to be heard at Clerkenwell on Nov. 11, are in respect of "picture palaces."

At the London Hippodrome the Christmas entertainment will consist of a travesty of Edmond Rostand's Chantecler, that much-postponed play. The novelty is to bear the name of Chicks in the Wood. Mr. Walter Passmore has been specially engaged for the part of the Cock, and the Hen Pheasant will be presented by dainty and charming Miss Agnes Fraser, who has been too long absent from the London stage.

"The Price of Peace," the sketch founded by Mr. Cecil Raleigh on his piece produced at Drury Lane Theatre on Sept. 20, 1900, is to be played for the first ime in the West End on Monday at the Oxford. Mr. Walter Gay will be starring in the production, which will be under Mr. H. P. Selwyn's management.

Mr. Mark Sheridan, now become one of the chief funny men of London, is to be at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, at Christmas, in Mr. Robert Arthur's production of The Forty Thieves, the subject of the famous burlesque written by the members of the Savage Club, and produced in 1860. Mr. Malcolm Scott and Miss Fanny Fields are to be other contributors to the fun. Miss Bessie Butt will be principal boy—an excellent choice.

Mr. Forbes Robertson has been giving his views to an American correspondent concerning the alleged decadence of the drama: "It is idle to say that the decadence of the drama is shown by the enormous popularity of the music-hall entertainment and the musical comedies, for these things have nothing at all to do with the question.

Musical comedy is not the drama. And why should not musical comedy have its appeal? At the halls is found a light entertainment; the people can go in, smoke, spend half an hour or so, and hear or see something more or less funny, and then come out and go into another similar place.

"This form of entertainment has nothing to do with drama. It is as far removed from drama as chalk is from cheese. There will always be a great number of people who will go to that sort of entertainment. It appeals to them, just as I suppose a flaring chromo would appeal to a person without culture more than a Botticelli.

"It is folly to say that the drama is declining because the circuses and music halls are becoming more numerous and are better frequented than the playhouses."

Mr. Seymour Hicks is to revive Scrooge on Monday at the Coliseum, and Miss Ellaline Terriss will come to the Hippodrome on the same date in a shortened version of Bluebell, which has been recently seen at Croydon. Later, Mr. Hicks will produce the battle scene from Richard the Third, in which he will play the crook-backed tyrant. The Coliseum stage affords exceptional facilities for the tramp of armoured men, and for alarums and excursions.

Charles Collette and the popular boy impersonator, Joan Derry, were billed to appear in Pyjamas at the Hippodrome, Richmond, during the week, but owing to the unfortunate indisposition of the lady, the piece was not played, and Mr. Charles Collette substituted some of his songs, and again proved his right to the title of "Patter-master-General." We are glad to know that Miss Joan Derry has completely recovered.

The cast of Ship Ahoy! the new divertissement written by C. Wilhelm and composed by Cuthbert Clarke, will include all the favourites of the Empire Theatre. Mlle. Lydia Kyasht, besides her great performance in The Faun, will be the première danseuse, and play the principal rôle, whilst Mr. Fred Farren, who is responsible for the production, will undertake the chief male rôle.

Miss Phyllis Bedells and Miss Beatrice Collier have also good work to do, and two new engagements of great interest have been made by the directors of the Empire Theatre, namely, Miss Unity More, who made so great a success in Round the World at this house last year, and M. Zalewsky, the principal dancer of the Russian Imperial Ballet of Warsaw.

"The Little Stowaway" in November will have completed its third year with Messrs. Moss and Stoll, but though it takes its farewell of that tour its author, Mr. Fred Bowyer, is in treaty with another firm for a continuance of its run. It should be long ere the British public should tire of a sketch with so touching a story, such appealing humanity, and such an interesting and splendid environment. In the part of the waif the genius of the lamented Jenny Hill shone with its greatest lustre.

When in the neighbourhood of the Strand, the tired and thirsty soul in search of repose and refreshment should call in at the Coal Hole, in Savoy Building. Here, in comfortable surroundings, all his wants will be supplied, and he may rely on everything being of the finest quality. The present "Coal Hole" is quite close to the site of the Coal Hole Tavern, where Edmund Kean formed his Wolf Club, and where the actors of that day gathered round the head of their profession.

The notorious Renton Nicholson, better known to fame as the Lord Chief-Baron Nicholson, a scurrilous journalist, "a rooker of the rich and the soul of good nature to the poor," attained immense publicity as Chief Baron of the Judge and Jury at the Coal Hole Tavern. The old place had many historic and interesting associations. The present Coal Hole is, of course, in striking contrast to its predecessor of 1815, being exceedingly comfortable and tastefully decorated, and where only the very best of all kinds of refreshments are purveyed.

The booking of the Hippodrome, Birkenhead, will be done in future by Mr. Ernest Dottridge, of the Oldham theatres. It is being run as a twice-nightly drama house, and meeting with very great success.

The Blackpool Tower Company, in its report, shows an increased profit, notwithstanding the bad weather of the past summer, but the company has had the advantage of an additional attraction in the form of a new theatre. The dividend is unchanged at 6 per cent., but the carry-forward is raised from £1,100 to £2,200.

At the Hippodrome, Buxton, this week, quite a sensation is being caused by Miss Maude May Murray, who is appearing in her aerial dance act. Nothing finer has ever been seen at this hall, where her clever dancing, in a veritable blaze of light, has evoked considerable astonishment. Next week Miss Murray reappears at the Empress Theatre, Brixton.

At the Islington Empire next Sunday Mr. Ernest Meads, the eminent elocutionist, is performing for the first time Sarga's new dramatic scena Nero, with Roman music, composed and played by the author, who has been honoured by no less than five European monarchs. Mr. Robert Loraine, the actor-aviator, writes:—"The splendidly vivid sketch Nero, by Sarga."

Mr. Harry Bawn, the popular managing-director of the Edmonton Empire, displayed characteristic enterpise in exhibiting on Wednesday evening last an Urban film of the funeral of the late Prince Francis of Teck. Considerable local interest was also centred upon Sam Mayo's singing competition. The management presented three handsome prizes for the best imitations of the "immobile one." Up till Wednesday night no less than 135 entries were received. The final heats took place last (Friday) evening.

There is at present much distress in West Hartlepool owing to the shipyard lockout, and on Sunday last a sacred concert was given in aid of those not receiving lock-out pay. The Empire Theatre was very willingly lent by Mr. Richard Thornton and the directors for the occasion, and it was packed to its utmost capacity. A splendid programme was given by a number of talented artists. Mr. George Thompson, the resident manager, assisted the promoters in every way possible. As a result of the concert, a sum of about £50 was handed over to the relief fund.

Mr. Albert Whiteman, or, to give him the name by which everyone knows him, "Tich" Whiteman, is the newly-appointed manager at Mr. Fred Wood's cosy hall, the Varieties at Leeds. He first made his appearance at the early age of six as a dancer in the pantomime Dick Whittington, at Pontefract, his native place, and his brother, Mr. Johnny Whiteman, the genial licensee of the Pack Horse, Briggate, Leeds—a favourite resort of the profession—also appeared in the same production. When Mr. Johnny Whiteman became identified with the Varieties, "Tich" took up his brother's work as a comedian on the concert platform, and was a big success.

The appointment should be extremely popular with the profession, for Mr. Whiteman has been in touch with the Queen's and the Varieties for a long time. He is a golfer of some repute, having won the Leatham Bowl at Pontefract four years ago, and is a keen football enthusiast. Mr. Bernard Armstrong, who is also highly appreciated at the Varieties, holds the position of assistant-manager.

The death occurred at his residence, 5, Sapphire-street, Blackburn, on Sunday night, of Mr. John Anelay, acting-manager and treasurer at the Palace Theatre, Blackburn, to which position he succeeded last April. Mr. Anelay, who was only twenty-six, and unmarried, had lately been in failing health, and confined to the house for a week. He was well known to patrons of the Palace, and held in high esteem there and amongst his many personal friends. He had been in the employ of Mr. Frank Macnaghten for ten years as clerk and secretary until his appointment as acting-manager.

The Brighton Town Council on Thursday night approved by a large majority the scheme for the erection of a winter garden on the Palace Pier. The scheme was opposed by Councillor Yates, chairman of the Aquarium Committee, and other members, who took the view that to allow competition with the adjacent Aquarium and the municipal orchestra which plays there would be suicidal. They advocated alterations to the Aquarium, in order to give the orchestra a permanent home.

Alderman Reeves, chairman of the General Purposes Committee, stated, however, that the Local Government Board had said that they would not allow the Corporation to borrow any more money for the Aquarium. He declared that the entertainments at the Aquarium had been a "ghastly financial failure."

The numerous friends of Charles Osborne, the well-known song-writer, will regret to hear that he is hors-de-combat, having slipped down on Sunday last on the polished granite pavement at the Tufnell Park Tube station and put his left knee out. He is going on as well as can be expected, and his chief concern is that he cannot deliver certain promised ditties to clients at the time arranged for.

For membership of the Terriers' Association Messrs. Frederick Barnard, Edward H. Lucas, E. Morrisey, Phil Ray, and Harry Russell have successfully passed the ballot. Applications for membership of the Association have been received from Messrs. Tom Kelso, Sam Vincent, Jack Austin, Sid Doody, Joe Archer, and Harry Bland. In future a photograph of the candidate must be forwarded with the nomination form if he is not very well known in the profession.

Mr. John Lawson will sail from New York on Nov. 2 per the Oceanic for England. His stay in London, however, will not be long, as he is under contract to Mr. Morris to open at the American, New York, with Humanity, and he will stay there for some seven weeks and then tour. Mr. Lawson leaves his Monkey's Paw scenery at New York, and takes out with him the productions for Humanity, Sally in Our Alley, and another of his works. He will probably play two weeks each town he visits in the States.

There is a report current that the Edinburgh Town Council has been invited to take over the Marine Gardens, Portobello, which for the past season have been run at a loss of £2,664 10s. 2d. The first year's profits (1909) were £3,019 5s. 3d., thus showing a net decrease this season of £5,683 15s. 5d. Last year, however, the profits had to be allotted to meet extra initial outlay, and, in addition, the capital had to be considerably increased. An appeal is now made to shareholders for £5,000 to meet outstanding liabilities. If this be not forthcoming, the company will be forced to liquidate. There is a report current that the Town Council of Edinburgh has been approached in the matter of taking over the gardens.

Mr. Joe Elvin (its president) will take the chair at 7.30 p.m. on Sunday next at the annual meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, at the Bedford Head, Maiden-lane, Strand, W.C. All members in town are requested to attend.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Annie Glover, the mother of Mr. John A. Glover-Kind, the song-writer, who passed away on Sunday last at her residence at Clapham, and was interred at Streatham on Wednesday.

The Camberwell Empire is under the personal management of Miss Cissie Lawson, who has written to us to point out an erroneous statement in a contemporary in connection with the control of that house.

Mr. Walter Graham, the human marionette, is now at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, where he is taking three and four calls nightly. The New York revenue authorities made Graham pay £15 duty on his fit-up and dolls. He has received an offer to extend his stay in America, but has had to refuse, owing to his London engagements on the Gibbons' Circuit.

The famous partnership known as the McNaughtons has been dissolved by the retirement of Mr. Fred McNaughton, who is now in England. He intends doubling up with Mr. Gus Le Clerq.

Miss Louie Tracy, "the dapper dandy boy," has arrived, after a most successful engagement, from South Africa per R.M.S. Walmer Castle, and opens at the Palace Theatre, Blackburn, on Monday next.

Mr. John Lawson, who has been interviewed on the "other side," considers that "the day is gone of the old stage manager. What is necessary now to a successful production, be it sketch or play, is correctness, realism, attention to every detail. I have always endeavoured to make my patrons feel that they were looking upon an actual happening in real life, and to that I trace the fact that my efforts have always been successful."

John confesses that he had a great deal of difficulty in getting that grim little play, The Monkey's Paw, for the halls; but Mr. Cyril Maude gave every encouragement, even to making the "Belasco of Vaudeville" a present of his own beard and wig to play the part. This was really nice of Cyril.

Lovers of golf in the variety profession are invited to join the Vaudeville Golf Club. An arrangement has been made to affiliate with the Honor Oak Golf Club. Applications, enclosing the sum of £1, should be made to Mr. Gus Garrick, the hon. secretary pro tem., at the Vaudeville Club, 98, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

Mr. Herbert Sleath will be responsible for the production in the London district next Monday of two sketches. The first is The Third Degree, to be presented at the Euston Palace, after a career of success in the provinces, with Mr. Gerald Valentine in the title-rôle of Casey. The second is Mull, with Miss Mabel Garden in the title-rôle. This playlet is being produced, for the first time on any stage, at the Croydon Empire.

The Grand Order of Water Rats, as our readers are aware, distributes during the year a large amount in charity among the needy of the profession. The fund for this purpose, therefore, is in constant need of replenishment, and the annual charity matinée given by the fraternity on its behalf has such a successful record that it has become one of the chief sources of revenue for the relief of the "poor, distrest" among artists.

As in former years, the entertainment to be given on the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 21, at the Oxford, is to be brightened by an original skit. This time The Bad Girl of the Family naturally suggests itself as a subject for a skit, which is to be presented by, among others, Messrs. Wilkie Bard, Harry Tate, Percy Honri, Will Poluski, Fred McNaughton, and Charles Austin. Another skit will be on the Russian dancers, and there will be an impromptu Colonial Quintette.

"The Bad Girl of the Family," of which a skit has already been given at the Empire, is the attraction this week at the Britannia, Hoxton, and we understand that it will be given in its entirety at the Alhambra, Brighton, where a season of drama is to be tried shortly.

The George Fuller Golden Fund amounts to 2,287 dollars, including 136 dollars 36 cents from the Grand Order of Water Rats. Nat M. Wills, in forwarding his subscription from London, wrote:—"I am playing here at his (Golden's) old stamping ground, the Palace, where he was the pioneer of American monologism, and made the path easy for those of us who have followed him. They love him here."

Golden's monologues were certainly the talk of London, and no American entertainer has ever had such a hold on Palace audiences as he, though many, we are ready to admit, have run him very close. Mr. Gus Elen has contributed five dollars, and a grand star programme is being arranged for the benefit entertainment to be given at the New York Hippodrome on Nov. 20. Contributions from this side of the pond can be sent via the V.A.F., 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

Mlle. Adeline Genée began her farewell engagement in America at the Chestnut-street Opera House, Philadelphia, on Oct. 4, appearing in a two-act musical comedy, called The Bachelor Belles, the book and lyrics of which are by Harry B. Smith and the music by Raymond Hubbell. The story deals with an association of young women whose object is to bring about the complete independence of the female sex. Mlle. Genée, who introduced two new character dances and a ballet entitled Roses and Butterflies, received a warm welcome, and her graceful exposition of the "poetry of motion" delighted the audience exceedingly.

"The London music halls," says Mr. Seymour Hicks in his volume of autobiography, "are the greatest pleasure to appear in. The audiences are of the very smartest, and the house is always crammed full. I would rather play a powerful character part like Scrooge to the Coliseum than at any theatre I have ever acted in in my life. The talent about one is extraordinary on the halls, and one is amazed where it all comes from. . . . I have made many staunch friends among my new comrades, and the invariable kindness and help I have received from artists who might not unreasonably resented me as an intruder have placed me in the debt of this big-hearted and generous community."

Mr. Benj. Woodger, secretary of the Music Hall Home, on behalf of the committee, thanks the following managers for pence box collections:—J. J. Kelly (Empire Theatre, Bradford), £3 15s. 9d.; Geo. Manners (Empire Theatre, Liverpool), 16s. 2d.; Nelson Barry (per A. Trussell, Hippodrome, Manchester), 15s.; Frank D. Todd (Pavilion, Newcastle-on-Tyne), 14s. 4d.; H. Yardley (Hippodrome, Southampton), £1 5s.; Lewis de Burgh (Hippodrome, Southend), £1 4s. 9d.; H. Raymond (Regent, Salford), £2 1s.; William Payne (South London), donations from his pence box, £1 1s. Parcel of books have been received from Houdini and from Mr. Burt, Camberwell.

Mr. Frank Coyle would like to draw the attention of proprietors, managers, artists, &c., to the new telegraphic address for his agency, which in future will be Alarm, Beeston, Yorks.

"The Summing Up," which we noticed last week on its production at the Balham, first saw the footlights at Woolwich on July 20 last.

The Kendalls, a new duo, appeared at the Empress, Brixton, on Wednesday evening last with great success. They were immediately engaged to star on Monday next at Collins's, through the agency of Messrs. Neiman and Benn.

Beatie and Bass, those popular young favourites, return to town for one week (Oct. 31st) to play the Holborn Empire and Olympia, Shoreditch, after which they resume their provincial engagements, coming back to town for Christmas. They are also busily preparing a new sketch by the author of A Pavement Rehearsal.

The Baroness de Merlincourt, a pupil of Sarasate, made her English music-hall début at the Coliseum on Monday. The Baroness, who has youthfulness and charm, started nervously, but later played with an excellent command of "harmonics" a solo of considerable difficulty. Being enthusiastically recalled after her second number, she replied with a charming melody, played with muted strings.

A notice issued on Monday night by the Clerk of the London County Council intimates that since the issue of the printed list of applications for music and dancing licences, an application has been received from Mr. Arthur Soden Markwell for a music licence for Terry's Theatre, Strand. The application will come before the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council at Clerkenwell Sessions.

Mr. Registrar Giffard heard an application at Bankruptcy Building on Wednesday, on behalf of Mr. Frederic Baugh for approval to a scheme under which the applicant's creditors will receive 20s. in the £. The liabilities are £2,000, of which £915 have been proved. The scheme submitted by Mr. Martin O'Connor for the debtor provided for the payment of £50 per month, and the only question at issue was whether, where there was no tangible property, an offer to pay from salary was security within section 3 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890. The Registrar held that the offer made of payment from salary amounted to a reasonable security, and approved the scheme.

Mr. H. Waterson, the head of the Ted Snyder Music Publishing Company, who has been on a visit to this country and the Continent, left for America yesterday by the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, together with Mr. Irving Berlin, one of his song writers.

Mr. J. H. Squire, the Ted Snyder Company's representative in this country, had promised to go to Southampton to see Mr. Waterson off. Moreover, he invited Mr. Bennett Scott (of the Star Music Publishing Company) to go with him. While Messrs. Squire and Scott were talking to Mr. Waterson and Mr. Berlin, the tender left the side of the ship without them knowing it, and by the time they got up on deck they found that the liner was already steaming towards Cherbourg.

There was no help for it, they had to go with the boat. Both gentlemen, however, had important engagements in London, and these had to be cancelled or postponed; so, perhaps, for the first time in the history of English music publishing, the wireless was called into service, and both Mr. Squire's and Mr. Scott's messages were soon floating on the aerial waves towards London.

After an eventful trip they arrived at Cherbourg, and found that the only boat to be got was one of the London and South-Western Railway's cargo boats, which had accommodation for a few first-class passengers only. So they decided to travel by her, and were fortunate enough to secure a sleeping compartment to themselves. But their troubles were far from ended. Having had a long and exciting day, they were naturally quite ready and wanted to sleep; but no sooner was the boat (which was only a very small one) outside the mouth of the harbour than she ran into the teeth of a gale that was blowing down Channel. A donkey engine outside the cabin was banging all night, and the spray was continually rushing through the unprotected windows.

What with these inconveniences, and the rolling and pitching of the boat, our two friends passed a rather unhappy night, finding it impossible, however hard they tried, to get a wink of sleep. They landed at half-past six at Southampton, and got back to London just before ten o'clock, sadder and wiser men. Mr. Squire had a hard day in front of him, and on Friday he had to take a journey to Liverpool about some pantomime arrangement for a new song entitled "I'm a happy married man."

At the Marylebone County Court last week an action for damages was heard against the London Theatre of Varieties Co., Ltd., brought by William Hebbins, of Priory-road, Kilburn, who claimed £20 in respect of injury sustained through being forcibly ejected from the Kilburn Empire.

The plaintiff's story was that on Aug. 2 he went with his wife and a friend to the Kilburn Empire. During the performance he leaned forward to his wife and remarked that one of the turns reminded him of his young days when he used to play "see-saw" on the trunk of a tree. His friend observed that he thought that it would take both of them to lift his (plaintiff's) wife, she being somewhat stout, and upon this there was some laughter, his wife remarking, "I am not the biggest woman in the world."

One of the theatre attendants called for order. When the turn was ended the plaintiff went to the attendant and asked him what he meant by threatening to "chuck him out." There was an altercation, and plaintiff was pushed violently through the door. He was severely bruised on the arm, back, and hip, and he also suffered considerably from shock. He was attended by a doctor for a fortnight. He denied that he was drunk or had used offensive expressions when the comedienne was on the stage.

The plaintiff's wife and William Mayo, a solicitor's clerk, who was at the theatre with them on the night of the trouble, gave corroborative evidence. One of the audience and an attendant said the plaintiff certainly used offensive expressions whilst one of the comediennes was on the stage. Other evidence was given that no violence was used in ejecting the plaintiff. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, assessing damages at £5, and judgment was entered for that amount with costs.

Mr. Robert W. Duck, at the Granville, Walham Green, on the night of the 21st inst., took a complimentary benefit, and was enabled, by the kind assistance of his friends, the artists, to keep a packed house amused and interested for five hours. The benefit was under the patronage of the Mayor and other prominent local people, and many well-known in the profession acted as stewards. Mr. Ernest Aplin (of Hyman's Agency) had the direction of the stage. In the course of the evening the beneficiaire was presented with a cheque, and was cheered to the echo when he returned thanks. There were no fewer than thirty-two turns, among them being Chirgwin.

The 681st meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Fred Herbert was in the chair. Others present included Messrs. Chas. Coborn (vice-president), Chris Van Bern, Tom Packer, T. C. Callaghan, E. H. Lucas, J. W. Cragg (trustee), and Fred W. Mills (vice-president).

Upon the motion of the chairman, the meeting passed a vote of condolence with Mr. Harry Blake upon the death of his wife. It was decided to send a wreath on behalf of the Association, and a deputation, consisting of Messrs. Fred Herbert, F. W. Mills, Charles Coborn, T. C. Callaghan, and Douglas Stuart, was appointed to attend the funeral as representatives of the committee.

Miss Della Ray deputised last Thursday at the Hippodrome, Woolwich, and Poplar for Miss Dora Lyric, and did well, her natty figure being much admired. She goes to Edmonton on Monday.

"Selfridge's Bargain Day," from the pen of Mr. Paul Rubens, has been introduced into the revels of that bright little company, the Grotesques, at the Savoy. We are introduced to the manager, in the person of Mr. Cecil Cook, who interviews a number of customers—country and suburban. There is a giddy old lady with the coming on disposition, who ogles the boss, and invites him to tea. She must have strayed from some French farce of a character best understood at the Palais Royal. We are on surer and more legitimate ground with a really amusing and natural Cockney domestic, who has been sent by Mrs. 'Opkins to change a piece of music. This is an extremely funny impersonation.

A girl with an immense hat strolls into "where the milliner officious pours of hats and caps her ready stores"—especially of hats. But the astounded shopman confesses his inability to provide anything of a larger circumference. Reference is very naturally made to the hat incident at the Prince of Wales's. At present the humour is somewhat laboured. It should be quite easy to supply better opportunities for character-sketches and comic business to so clever a company, which still finds its strongest item in a burlesque of a village concert.

Mr. Maurice Besly is quite a humorist at the piano, and his skilful weaving of a number of airs into his amusing skit, "Don't sing Yip-i-addy," is one of the best things in a programme, which has other humorous and interesting numbers in "The Belle and the Beaux," by the lamented founder of the troupe, Mr. Vere Smith; "Mr. Jollyboy," rendered with much cleverness by Mr. James Watts; and the "Street Cries," a musical portion of the entertainment which might be added to with advantage, even if room has to be made for such an alteration by the deletion of one of the burlesques of a famous concert singer.

In the matter of the proposed Coliseum at Kilburn the Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported as follows at the L.C.C. meeting on Tuesday:—"We have considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing a music hall to be known at the Kilburn Coliseum, and to be erected in High-road, Kilburn. We understand that application will be made to the Council under Part II. of the London Building Act, 1894, for sanction to the formation of a new street to lead out of High-road, Kilburn, on the south-eastern side of the site of the music-hall.

"Subject to the formation of this street, we consider that the site will be suitable for the erection of a music hall. The premises will have accommodation for about 2,800 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being complied with, the arrangements appear to be satisfactory. The Committee accordingly recommend the Council to grant a certificate to the owner of the premises on being satisfied that the new street shown to lead out of High-road, Kilburn, has been satisfactorily formed, that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawings referred to, and that stated conditions have been complied with." The recommendation was agreed to.

Miss Harriett Vernon made a decided success in a new song-scena, written by Richard Elton (Adelene Harrison) and composed by Denham Harrison, at the Camberwell Empire on Monday night. The scene represents an old baronial hall. A beautiful worldly woman enters from the ball-room. She is tired of modern life. She longs for the days of old and envies her ancestress, whose picture hangs on the wall before her. Men in those days were bold and fought to win their lady's love. Life was all excitement and worth living. She falls asleep as the stage darkens.

Next the picture comes to life, and Miss Vernon, dressed exactly as her ancestress, renders a dramatic song, "For the King," with excellent effect. The song describes how a loved husband gave his life for the King, and was brought home dead at her feet. Finally she awakens to realise that the olden days were a little too exciting, and that the modern times suit her best, after all. Altogether an artistic and effective production, and all concerned are to be heartily congratulated.

Mr. Clarence Sounes, the proprietor of that beautiful house, the Empire, Kingston-on-Thames, has been telling an interviewer of a thrilling experience of his when travelling in Ireland. He said: "We were playing at a hall in Killarney and went one night after the performance for a moonlight row on one of the lakes—five or six of us—all men—accompanied by a boatman. When about half-way across a strong wind arose, heavy rain began to fall, and soon a fierce storm was raging. Unless I had experienced it I would never have believed a lake could have become so rough; it was like being on the sea in a gale. We dare not turn back, so were obliged to row before the wind, at the caprice of the storm. We pulled for dear life, and eventually landed on a beach, we knew not where, but our boatman had an idea it was somewhere near the Gap of Dunloe (which is one of the scenes in The Colleen Bawn). Accordingly out we stepped, thankful to be once more on terra firma. We were wet through, of course.

"We started at once to walk to the nearest habitation, and after about an hour's tramping, we came upon a house which proved to be Kate Kearney's cottage. We knocked up the inmates and requisitioned all the 'potheen' (or whisky) and milk they had on the premises, and, lighting a peat fire on the earthen floor, regaled ourselves with hot milk (goats' milk, I think it was), and some victuals, till morning broke. Ponies were then hired, and we rode round the lake to Killarney—it was still too rough to row back—by which time it was about five o'clock in the afternoon of the day after we set out.

"The people genuinely rejoiced to see us back, and proved their joy in a practical manner by packing the house that night. My landlady recognised my return safe and sound by presenting me on leaving for Cork with a live chicken, which, she said, would do for my dinner on arrival there. When I got to the station and during the railway journey this unusual gift was the source of much amusement. The chicken was duly executed next day and prepared for my dinner, but I could not touch it. I never can eat anything I have previously seen alive, so I, in turn, presented it to my landlady in Cork, and so got rid of the 'souvenir' of my visit to Killarney."

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A RECORD number of applications for copies of Messrs. Francis and Day's pantomime books have been received by every post during the week, and the vast piles have been daily depleted and replaced by fresh stocks. A noteworthy feature that has evoked spontaneous praise is that full pianoforte accompaniments are furnished to all the fifty picked songs that go to make up these two eagerly-sought volumes, one for principal boy and girl, the other for comedian and dame. Artists engaged in pantomime must, in applying for the tomes, enclose the sum of one shilling, if the two are required, or sixpence should only one book be needed.

THAT dashing artist Miss Zona Vevey, at the Canterbury Music Hall, has met with enormous success with the song, "My Mary," a publication of Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by Harry Brown (of "Is everybody happy?" fame), and that brilliant musician and pianist Max Erard.

A PRIME factor for coming festivities is now in the press, and lovers of dancing will hail with glee the news that Karl Kap's new quadrilles, entitled "Welcome Home!" will shortly be available. The well-known musician and bandmaster, who recently finished a highly successful season at Torquay (to which fashionable resort he returns with his band next year), has made use of the following favourite airs in the quadrilles, which are assured of a great vogue:—"Come up in my balloon," "She'll be seventeen on Sunday," "If you want a ray of sunshine," "You want a sweetheart," "Good bye, everybody's girlie," "I'm waiting here for Kate," "The Navy Two-step," "Take me back to Pompeii," "Shine on, harvest moon," "Hi! Hi! Mister McKie!" "Sweet Caroline," "Blue Feather" Intermezzo, "Flanagan," "Pride of the Prairie," "On the silvery sands," and "I've got rings on my fingers." Messrs. Francis and Day will issue the quadrilles forthwith.

MR. GEORGE H. ELLIOTT has been receiving nightly at each of the halls at which he has appeared—the Canterbury, the Holborn Empire, and the Granville—thunderous plaudits for his two great songs, "Mister Owl" and "There's a little black Cupid in the moon." This fine artist was never in better fettle, and his audiences have been loth to lose him. Both items are in much request for pantomime, and are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

GREAT inquiry has taken place latterly for that amusing song of Mr. Wilkie Bard's, "Will you sing this glee with me?" ("Hail, smiling morn"), and it will be heard in many Christmas annuals. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

No pantomime will be considered complete that does not comprise that great chorus song, "On the silvery sands," and the applications from artists engaged in pantomime for this fine number of Miss Madge Temple's are legion. By A. C. Findon and Herman E. Darewski, it is published by Mr. David Day's firm, and principal boys are on it to a man.

MANY a scenic artist is by this time busy on special gorgeous settings for that beautiful song, "In cherry blossom time in Japan," by Leonard Cooke and Henry E. Pether. Not since the same composer's "Rainbow" has the firm of Messrs. Francis and Day had a pantomime number which lends itself so admirably to give both the painter and electrician their chances, and many are availing themselves of the opportunity within their reach.

MR. ROWLAND HILL'S amusing song, "Why did Mrs. Flanagan want to go to the Isle of Man?" is being much sought after; and a like happy fate has befallen Miss Ella Retford's "Hi! Hi! Mister McKie!"; while "There are nice girls everywhere" and "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," and "You want to go to Tokio," have each scores of admirers for pantomimes, and one and all are in steady request. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

IT goes without saying that "Flanagan" is bound to be included in all the pantomimes, and, like Miss Florrie Forde's two prior gigantic song rages, "Oh! Oh! Antonio!" and "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" it will be in the mouths of everybody everywhere in these islands. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

THOSE who like sterling songs of sentiment are voting for Mr. Tom Costello's great chorus number, "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland" and "You taught me how to love you, now teach me to forget," so tastefully sung by Miss Clara Beck; and yet another fine song, which is in great demand for pantomime, is "'Tis a faded picture," so admirably rendered on the variety stage by Mr. Frank Cass. All three are issued by Messrs. Francis and Day.

A NEW song has been acquired by Messrs. Francis and Day for publication, entitled "Toast those who're absent." With it are associated the names of Fred J. Barnes, Charles Collins, and Will Godwin.

THAT dashing march song, "Take your girlie where the band is playing," is more and more in demand for pantomime as the weeks slip by, and that rollicking riot of fun, "Come with me down Regent-street," has also whole hosts of admirers, and many seekers after each have gone away delighted during the week now ending, after securing rights from Messrs. Francis and Day.

HUNTLEY TREVOR AND T. W. THURBAN have supplied Tom Barrasford's Juvenile Minstrels with special songs and a striking opening chorus.

FRED WARWICK AND ALFRED GLOVER have collaborated in a fine specimen of that rara avis a comic song. They have named it "Something always happens when it shouldn't." Mr. George Robey has acquired the number.

THAT fine soprano Miss Bianca Brina has made a profound impression at all her recent engagements with the national Sunday League, through her delightful rendering of "If I had the world to give you," Hayden Clarendon's masterpiece of ballad-writing. The foremost artists in pantomime have secured this number, which is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, with band parts, in three keys.

BALACLAVA HEROES AT THE ALHAMBRA.

The fourteenth annual Balaclava matinée, the whole of the proceeds of which will be given to Mr. T. H. Roberts's Light Brigade Charge Survivors' Relief Fund, took place at the Alhambra on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, the fine house being crowded in every part. Although the entertainment throughout was of a most attractive nature, chief interest, of course, centred in the appearance on the stage of the ten survivors of the Charge, who, towards the finish of the programme, were seen seated facing the audience, with the Coldstream Guards behind them and the buglers of the London Rifle Brigade on either side. After Mr. Peter Dawson had given a spirited rendering of "The Boys of the Old Brigade," the trumpeters of the Coldstream Guards sounded the charge, the bugles rang out, and Mrs. Clement Scott recited Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade." Some of the fine old fellows straightened themselves out and came to the salute; some were visibly affected; and the scene was a very impressive one. Mr. T. H. Roberts, the founder of the fund and organiser of the benefit, in an excellent speech, expressed his thanks to the proprietors of the Alhambra for placing the theatre at his disposal, and to all those, including the staff, who had so generously given their services. In appealing for funds to help the veterans in their few remaining years, he said that glory was all very well in its way, but it didn't keep them; the glory was no good without the grub. There were still twenty-one of the twenty-eight surviving heroes to be provided for, and he was urgently in need of funds.

The novelty of the programme was the production of a patriotic playlet by Major W. P. Drury, part author of The Flag Lieutenant, entitled

"THE ADMIRAL SPEAKS."

Francis Egerton .....MR. TALBOT HOMEWOOD
Violet Egerton .....MISS JOAN CHALONER
Prentice .....MISS LENA SHIRLEY
The Figurehead .....MR. O. P. HEGGIE

The action of this interesting one-act piece takes place on the evening of Trafalgar Day, and the scene is the drawing-room of the Egertons' cottage at Porchester, and in the garden, just outside, is to be seen a figure-head of Nelson. Egerton, a naval lieutenant, on that day, it appears, has decided to send in his papers of resignation, but seems scarcely enthusiastic at the prospect. He tells his young wife Violet of some rumour he has heard of the mobilisation of the fleets, and of England's threatened danger from a foreign power, but she says it is all scare talk, reminds him that there is sufficient money for them to have a comfortable time without him endangering his life, and he finally decides to send in his resignation then and there. A telegram arrives from a friend just placed in command of a boat offering him a good post, but Violet tells him there are many others who would be glad of the opportunity; she wants him at home, and he somewhat reluctantly agrees to refuse the offer. When he has gone out to write the letter, the wife sinks in a chair, and after blaming Nelson for all this talk of duty and so forth, apparently dozes. Then the figure of Nelson comes through the curtains, and tells her that England expects as much of her sons to-day as of old, and that her daughters also must make some sacrifice. When she awakes and her husband returns, she tells him he must not leave the service, but he is now as determined to resign as he was before disinclined. How can he leave her and the child that is to come? Then the spirit of Nelson again appears, and points the path of duty, and as the curtain falls it is evident that the Admiral's words have not fallen on deaf ears. The play was admirably acted throughout. Mr. Talbot Homewood was a breezy and natural Lieutenant Frank Egerton; Miss Joan Chaloner played Violet with feeling and conviction; Mr. O. P. Heggie as the figurehead of Nelson spoke his lines with dignity and was an impressive figure; and Miss Lena Shirley was excellent as the parlourmaid, who decided to forgo her night off in fear of encountering the Admiral's ghost in her walks abroad. The playlet was given a very attentive hearing, and there were loud curtain calls at its conclusion.

Miss Nellie Hodson and company supplied the comedy sketch An Old Maid's Baby, by Harry and Edward Paulton, and the amusing trifle was played to plenty of laughs, Miss Hodson, Miss Emmie Grey, Mr. Bruno Holmes, and Mr. Charles Fancourt, all giving capital impersonations. Mooney and Holbein contributed a varied and always entertaining comedy singing act, the male of the duo being responsible for some clever eccentric dancing; and Miss Yolande Noble scored decidedly in her rendering of a comedy number "Swank." An attractive interlude of vocalism, dancing, and music was given by the Debutantes, a quartette of accomplished young ladies; and Merlin did some wonderful card tricks, &c., and was loudly acclaimed.

Mr. Wilkie Bard as the hobble-skirted lady of uncertain age who decides to take Signor Caruso's advice and go in for opera, was, of course, greeted with enthusiasm, and this immensely funny number—one of the best things Mr. Bard has ever done—proved one long laugh from beginning to end; and Miss Edris Coombs, Miss Violet Essex, Miss Valerie Farr, Miss Alice Hollander, Miss Carrie Lanceley, Miss Helene Vallance, and Carmen Turia all vocalised charmingly and with complete success. The fine band of the Coldstream Guards in selections were also greatly appreciated.

"DICKY'S MOTHER."

A Sketch of Human Interest, in Two Scenes, Adapted by Miss Dorothy Mullord from Miss Wylie's Story, "The Other Woman," and Produced at the Foresters' on Monday, Oct. 24.

Richard Angus .....MR. WILLIAM BOULTON
Count André .....MR. DAVID WATSON
Dicky .....MASTER NEVILLE
Señora Veroni .....MISS VIOLET LEWIS
Nina Angus .....MISS DOROTHY MULLORD

This adaptation has been cleverly effected. The first scene represents the home of blind Richard Angus and his son Dicky, who anxiously await the arrival of the wife, Nina, who is away attending a voice trial. She eventually enters, and is delighted with her success and the reception accorded to her, but unfortunately there is some opposition in the form of Señora Veroni, an accomplished operatic singer, who also possesses culture and beauty. Nina is to compete with her on the following day at the final rehearsal, and all depends on the former obtaining an engagement, for she is now the bread-winner, since the husband has lost his sight. By an extraordinary coincidence the rival is no other than the divorced wife of Richard Angus, and Dicky's mother. The adventuress, for so she turns out to be, calls upon Nina and endeavours to dishearten her with crushing remarks, finally making an offer not to sing in her best form if she will only give up the boy. This Nina refuses to do, as the trio have all lived quite happily together, so with bitter curses Veroni leaves the room. The next scene is the dressing-room of the Señora, who is preparing for the final trial. She has a friend, Count André, and during their conversation she vows that she will do her utmost to beat her opponent, so that she can have her revenge, for she is sure the boy has been brought up to hate her. A visitor is announced, viz., Richard Angus, and she prepares to have much fun with the caller, who, however, turns out to be the boy Dicky, and a splendid scene is here witnessed.

Señora Veroni, his mother, has always been under the impression that the lad had been told bad things about her, but she learns from him that he has been taught to love her, for she was such a good mother, but she had died when he was quite a baby. The boy's loving solicitude completely changes Veroni's manner, and when she hears from him that the object of his visit is to ask her not to sing in her best manner, so that his mother may be chosen, her better nature comes out, for she promises that his wish shall be gratified. The Count has listened to the conversation and asks what she proposes to do. She requests him to tell the manager that she refuses to sing, for she intends going abroad. She will try to live up to the part of the good mother.

Miss Violet Lewis played delightfully throughout, her emotional change from the pompous singer to the loving woman being charmingly suggested. She received able assistance from Master Neville as Dicky. Miss Dorothy Mullord gave a particularly interesting performance as Nina, her clear enunciation and emotional power being features of her delineation. Mr. William Boulton was quite natural as the husband, and Mr. David Watson made an excellent Count. The playlet is certainly one of the finest productions that have been seen at this hall.

"FAKESTON BLACKE, DETECTIVE."

Lady Flutterbuck .....MISS JOAN DUDLEY
Flash Harry .....
Clinker .....} MR. LESLIE HAROLD
Fakeston Blacke .....MR. CHARLES KAY

This trifle met with roars of laughter on Monday. Lady Flutterbuck seeks a divorce, and falls in love with Blacke, eventually proposing to him when he obtains the "decree nicey." Blacke who has sworn to be a bachelor, succumbs to her cry "I have three millions." MR. CHARLES KAY, who has a fine stage appearance and an excellent delivery, is very amusing as Blacke, and his office scene with the lady causes great amusement. Miss Dudley makes a good Lady Flutterbuck, and Mr. Leslie Harold successfully doubles the parts of Flash Harry and Clinker, and gives clever imitations.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Great a song as Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. know their bonne bouche "Beautiful garden of roses" to be, even they have been astounded at the stupendous demand for copies and pantomime permissions that has reached headquarters in an ever-increasing continuous wave. Every post literally brings scores of letters, containing requests for this song in particular, and during the current week the Arthur-street professional staff have been kept busy attending to the many producers, principal boys, girls, and others desirous of making "Beautiful garden of roses" their own for pantomime purposes.

It is indeed a fortunate firm that is enabled to acquire as late in the season as this a number that is so instantaneous a music-hall success that everybody interested in pantomime production is clamouring for permission to use it; therefore Feldmans are indeed to be felicitated on the possession of so sterling a new song-hit as Mr. Mark Sheridan's "By the sea," which the genial comedian produced, for the first time, at the Chelsea Palace on Wednesday week with such unequivocal success that he will, on his return visit to the Oxford and Tivoli, two weeks hence, make this song the staple item of his entertainment. A special scene has been written for the express purpose of introducing Mr. Sheridan in this song at the Court Theatre, Liverpool. This is undoubtedly the song of the year, from a principal boy's standpoint, and bids fair to eclipse the same firm and singer's last year's triumph, "I do like to be beside the seaside."

What the finest judges in the world of popular songdom emphatically declare to be the best Irish song these islands have seen for many moons is Feldman's new number "Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town," a delightfully lilting ditty that should loom large in every pantomime throughout the kingdom. Miss Dora Poole is producing this song at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, shortly, as a special song-scena, supported by several auxiliaries; and Miss Stella Stahl will open on the Stoll tour, at the Empire, Sheffield, with the same fascinating number. Principal boys and others desirous of singing another "Molly O'Morgan" should be expeditious in their applications for permission to sing "Maggie Ryan."

Dainty Miss Ella Retford still continues to score all along the line at the Oxford and her other London turns with that delightful "7,000 dollar song," as "By the light of the silvery moon" is termed in the States, where Messrs. Remick and Co., the well-known American song publishers, paid this stupendous sum to Messrs. Madden and Edwards for the publishing rights. The acumen of the American publishers has already been more than vindicated in America, where the song was the rage of its season, and, judging by the pantomime demands that keep pouring in on Messrs. Feldman, the song's success in the land of its birth will be more than duplicated in this country at panomime time—and after.

That debonair comedian and vocalist Mr. Fred Barnes is singing two Feldman numbers just now at all his engagements, entitled "What's the matter with father?" and "Let's have a little bit of sunshine," both of which offer surpassing opportunities to light comedians, principal boys, and others engaged in this year's pantomimes. Early application is recommended to the Arthur-street firm for permissions to sing these already-popular numbers.

That delightful song which Miss Mabel Green has been rendering so charmingly at the Tivoli and other London houses, "In the sunny Engadine," and which has been awarded such a teeming measure of success by all auditors, bids fair to become one of Feldman and Co.'s best pantomime numbers this season, as it is being much asked about just now, and all producers and performers who have been privileged to hear this eminently tuneful and most original "locality" song have been unanimous in expressing their delight with it, and desire to include it in their Christmas offerings.

Principal girls who last year "featured" that great success "Little girl from nowhere" in pantomime should certainly make it their business to hear Miss Josie Delaine in her most artistic rendering of this song's legitimate successor, "Little Miss Importance," with which she has been 'witching all ears and hearers at the Oxford and elsewhere during the current week, and a great pantomime vogue may confidently be predicted for this delightfully fresh and piquant song-hit.

That incomparable comedienne Miss Clarice Mayne, who, aided and abetted by "that fellow at the piano," has been rejoicing all hearts at the Oxford and her other turns this week with her deliciously humorous rendering of her refined répertoire, has, as a special concession to the universal demand for her two great song-hits, "Longing for someone to love me" and "Georgie took me walking in the park," for pantomime purposes, consented to allow the publishers of these two songs (Messrs. Feldman) to give permission for same to be sung in this year's "annuals" by approved artists.

A "duo" that comedians engaged in pantomime all over the country are eagerly acquiring permission for is Damerell and Rutland's really great number, "Sing, sing, sing." For double turns this is undoubtedly the pick of the season, and any who have heard the original singers, at the Syndicate and other halls, in this irresistible number will certainly not be slow to embrace the opportunity of working a number so brimful of opportunities for comedy business as this unquestionably affords. Permission to sing in pantomime may be obtained on application to Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., the publishers.

The Holborn Empire has long been noted as an ideal house for purveyors of the popular type of chorus song, but we doubt if ever in the annals even of the Holborn has any chorus been so heartily taken up and sung to the echo as Mr. Joe O'Gorman's delightfully naïve number, "Any little girl that's a nice little girl is the right little girl for me." It goes without saying that so easily-learnt and tuneful a number is destined to achieve pantomime prosperity of the highest, and Messrs. Feldman are certainly to be congratulated on both song and singer.

At pantomime time there is often considerable difficulty in fitting dame and principal boy or principal comedian with a suitable comedy duet admitting of comic business and a spirited dance to finish. To all such, therefore, with confidence may be recommended that ideal number for the purpose indicated "The barber's ball," with which the Two Bobs scored so heavily at the Tivoli recently—a success which they are repeating just now at the Oxford and other Metropolitan turns. Feldman and Co. are the publishers.

That clever light comedian Mr. Harry Simms will, on Monday next, at the Empire, Edinburgh, and throughout his Stoll tour, specially "feature" a new "girl" number, published by Feldmans, entitled "Lead me towards the girls," which bids fair, in his accomplished hands, to become yet another Feldman rage of the near future. The same singer has several other songs published by the Arthur-street firm in active preparation for early production during this tour, and in London later.

The Romps still continue to "bring down the house" at the London Pavilion with Feldman's spirited number, "Oh, boys, I've seen you there," the pantomime demands for which during the last few days have been simply prodigious; and at the Empire, Camberwell, this week the same talented troupe are also "making good" in most unmistakable fashion with this catchy number.

Miss Helen McGregor, of the McGregors, has made a huge success at the Palace, Partick, Glasgow, with Feldman's ubiquitous ballad "Beautiful garden of roses," which she will also make the pièce de resistance of the McGregors' programme of good things at the Hippodrome, Paisley, next week.

Miss Lillie Le Main, at the Winter Gardens, Liverpool, this week, has charmed all hearers with her finished rendering of Feldman's big "costume" number, "Marie Louise," which pantomime producers on the look-out for a character number out of the beaten track should lose no time in securing for their productions, both in town and country.

That clever burlesque actress and favourite pantomime boy Miss Dorothy Ward has been making a sensational success in Manchester with Feldman's big new Charles K. Harris's ballad "Yesterday," which will doubtless be extensively featured in pantomime during the coming season by artists who favour numbers at once pathetic and ear-arresting in quality.

Messrs. Price and Reynolds anticipate a record pantomime season. The songs in request for principal boys are Miss Hetty King's "Follow the tram lines" and "I've got the time, I've got the place"; Miss Harriett Vernon's "The sun can't be always shining"; Glover Kind's "Cheer up, be merry and bright."

Principal girls will find the following songs very useful numbers: "Gwennie from Abergavenny," "The Lily of Zamora," "Walking out with Schneider," "Good morning, Mr. Sunshine," "The greedy gosling," and "Won't you come over the stile."

Fairy queens in search of good, taking ballads are requested to give the undermentioned special attention: "Yet, if I said forgive," "If I had a thousand lives to live," "If the world were mine to give."

Comedians have plenty of variety in Price and Reynolds latest, viz., "In 1999," "The sifted thistle," "D'ye ken, Mr. Kennedy?" "Father started out to work," "Ask the band to play an English tune," and Fred Poplar's famous song, "The Parliamentary Smoking Concert."

Mr. J. H. Squire, the Ted Snyder Company's representative in this country, informs us that he has a number just brought over from America in his catalogue, entitled "Kiss me," which has one of the most haunting and plaintive choruses that he has ever seen in a song. It will be sung on the concert stage by Mr. Maurice Farkoa, and in all probability will be put on at the Tivoli next Monday week by Miss Queenie Leighton, who will also take the song to South Africa with her. Up to the present nine people have heard the song, and nine people have secured it for pantomime, to be done in the form of a duet.

Mr. Squire furthermore informs us that Mr. Irving Berlin played him over the choruses of two songs which he was writing for Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and these will be in the Ted Snyder Company's London offices within three weeks.

All principal boys should make a special feature of Miss Jessie Templeton's beautiful march ballad, entitled "When the bloom is on the heather"; while "dames" who do not secure Maidie Scott's latest song, entitled "If the managers only thought the same as mother," will indeed miss a winner.

The Ted Snyder Company have just got out their latest song, entitled "I'm a happy married man," the sole rights of which have been secured by George French, who will produce the number in a week or two.

Miss Edie Veno produced her new song, "Come back, Bill," at the Hippodrome, Peckham, on Tuesday last, and made an instantaneous hit, being compelled to repeat the chorus no fewer than four times. J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban are the author-composers.

Chas. Sheard and Co. are receiving applications daily for pantomime permissions to introduce the exquisite number "Queen of the Land of Pearl and Gold." Already most of the principal towns are booked. The charming ear-haunting melody is the work of the joint authors and composers of "Queen of Old Lamara" and "Won't you go with me to Go-Go?" This is in itself a guarantee of success.

STUART'S RAILWAY FARE BOOK.

Compiled and edited by Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, the eighth edition of this valuable little railway fare book and artists' travelling guide has just been issued. In the tables will be found nearly 7,000 fares between towns in which there are now variety theatres. The full fare is given first for those members of the M.H.A.R.A. when the requisite number of five cannot be made up from one town to another, then the reduced fare for members travelling in a party of five or over. Amongst a deal of other useful information may be mentioned a list of provincial agents of the M.H.A.R.A., times of rehearsals at the London and provincial variety houses, a list of professional apartments recommended by artists who have stayed at addresses named, steamboat lines that grant the reduction to M.H.A.R.A. members, stage phrases in French and German, &c.

Published at the very moderate price of 6d. (post free 8d.), by C. Douglas Stuart, at 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C., this little handbook is invaluable to all variety performers, and should command a large sale. And as a further recommendation it may be mentioned that every copy sold will benefit the Music Hall Benevolent Institution to the extent of 2d.

There was a pleasant little gathering on Wednesday evening at Masini's Restaurant, the occasion being the opening of the new grill room, inaugurated by an old friend of the theatrical vaudeville profession, Mr. Louis Roux, who will be well remembered at Earl's Court as manager of the Quadrant Restaurant, at Blanchard's, and latterly at the Queen's Hotel. A few notabilities were invited to sample the "good old English fare," among whom were Messrs. Horace Lennard, F. H. Pedgrift, L. Godfrey Turner, Chris Davis, Wilfred Sayers, A. J. Daniels, Harry Garrick, Vaughan Evans, and H. Petrie. The chairman, in proposing the health of Mr. Roux and success to the undertaking, remarked that the idea was to establish an eating department on old-fashioned English lines, with fare of the best, and at a most reasonable figure. He was sure the company and their friends would not rue (Roux) the day they made both the acquaintance of the homely and wholesome food, and the provider thereof. He wished the undertaking a brilliant success, to which the host responded with thanks.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

SLOWLY but surely the all-important pantomime season draws nearer. Week by week the record of splendid success attained at the variety theatres by the Star Music Co.'s batch of pantomime songs becomes more and more emphatic. Artists in various parts of the United Kingdom have tried these numbers, and the result is a long list of triumphs that any publishing house may well feel proud of. This indisputable evidence of success is having its due effect on theatrical managers and artists engaged for pantomime. The sequel is seen is the phenomenal demand and requests for permission to introduce them in Christmas productions.

DURING the past week the following artists have scored hits with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's beautiful chorus ballad, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes":—Miss Maud Mortimer, at Hamilton; Miss Ethel Ra Leslie, at Pentre; Park's Eton Boys and Girls, at the Stratford Empire; and Miss Florrie Cooper, at the Hackney Empire. One and all report the glorious success of this Star Co. winner.

G. H. ELLIOTT returned to London on Monday, and at the Canterbury and other halls was welcomed with salvos of applause. His special number was undoubtedly that quaint and melodious song by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "Loo Sue Mary Dinah," which concerns a sweet chocolate coloured girl boasting a string of no less than nine different Christian names. This number caught on at once, and was sung by the entire audience with great gusto. Those who are anxious to hear Mr. Elliott's newest song, "Here comes the chocolate soldier," must possess their souls in patience until next week, the preparation for this song being somewhat exceptional. Meantime the Star Music Co. are arranging with their printers for a huge edition of this big song to be struck off in record time.

CHARLES WHITTLE, whose faculty for picking out the big song hits each year is commented upon by all as being little short of marvellous, has undoubtedly beaten all his records of success with "Fall in and follow me," the new song written for him by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. Such an impression has this song made that its fame has travelled in advance even to towns where it cannot have been sung. Principal boys engaged for forthcoming pantomimes have practically without exception decided to make "Fall in and follow me" their "stand-by," and jolly good judges, too. The Star Music Co. publish this great winner.

MISS CHUMMIE LA MARA, the charming comedienne, who has been associated with the introduction of more than one popular Irish song on the halls, is just now featuring with exceptional success A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's tricky little Irish ditty, "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy." A peculiarity about the number is the unexpected little turns the melody takes. Altogether a most charming song. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

LLOYD MORGAN, that favourite light comedian, has secured from Harrington and Lane an up-to-date chorus number on the subject of aeroplaning entitled "There's a pretty little cot in Dover," which is published by the Star Music Co.

MISS ELLA RETFORD continues to win genuine appreciation for her delightful arch rendering of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's catchy Irish song, "Mary, you don't come from Spain." At the Empress, Brixton, and other halls during the past week the song has caught on most emphatically. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

MISS DAISY WOOD, who is just now in splendid form, has established herself a firm favourite at the London Pavilion. Her two songs (by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott), "Take me on the wiggle woggle" and "The lady burglar," give her plenty of opportunity to display the wealth of wit and humour she possesses. The "Wiggle woggle" song is published by the Star Music Co.

HARRY BANCROFT, the favourite singer of descriptive songs, continues to win all hearts by his really artistic rendering of Charles Ridgewell's pretty song, "'Tis years and years ago since our wedding day." Mr. Bancroft is at present on tour, and this number has been a trump card. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

AT the Alhambra this week, Miss Edris Coombs, who is fulfilling a second engagement there within as many months, introduced a new waltz-song by Edward St. Quintin, entitled "Everywhere." This charming artist scored a decided success with this ear haunting number, and has decided to specialise it in her forthcoming engagement in the pantomime—Red Riding Hood—at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth. Messrs. Sheard immediately secured the song for publication, and it is already in the press.

UNDOUBTEDLY one of the best comedy songs of the season is "T-r-o-u-b-l-e" ("Those wedding bells are ringing"). It is the work of those two clever song-writers, Mr. Chas. Collins and Mr. Fred Terry, and is being sung on the music-hall stage by Mr. Joe Archer. Our advertisement columns announce that a limited number of pantomime permissions can be obtained from Messrs. Chas. Sheard and Co., the publishers, and lucky will be the comediennes who secure the song for their pantomime engagements.

MESSRS. SHEARD inform us that their advertisement in our columns of Messrs. W. H. Petrie's new songs, "A thousand fathoms deep" and Roses tell me of you," and Stanley Gordon's bass songs, "Neptune" (Lord of the sea am I) and "The volcano," has called forth a host of applications for those special numbers, which has kept their mailing clerks exceedingly busy.

MR. SAX ROHMER, the laugh-maker extraordinary, has just placed with Little Tich a number which shows every promise of rivalling Mr. Rohmer's other contribution to the répertoire of the famous comedian, "The gas inspector." The title of the latest scream is "Tally Ho! the tallyman." Even for the writer of Little Tich's "Bargee," George Robey's "Mrs. Blobbs," "Charles II.," "Mignon," the unforgettable "Village blacksmith," and many other big comedy hits, this latest Tich item is a great number.

MESSRS. CHAS. SHEARD AND CO. have secured this "riot," for their catalogue, and also announce for early publication "The gas inspector," with which Mr. Tich has been paralysing London Pavilion patrons, and with which he has arranged to re-open in town. The music is by T. W. Thurban.

GOOD news comes from South Africa respecting the hit Mr. Will Norrie has made there with Edward St. Quintin's artistic love ballad and chorus, "What would my life be without you?" It is a song for deep expression and tender sentiment. It presents no vocal difficulty, but has a powerful climax. Messrs. Sheard and Co. invite all pantomime artists to call at their establishment and hear this beautiful number before deciding what to sing, and have their names connected with this exceptional success.

"BLUE BIRD" WALTZ CASE.

The above action, which was commenced before the Long Vacation, and was brought by Messrs. Elkin and Co., Ltd., music publishers, Beak-street, against Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, music publishers, Charing Cross-road, was resumed on the 19th inst. in the Chancery Division before Mr. Justice Eve. The plaintiffs sought to restrain defendants from the publication of a waltz which had been put upon the market, and which, plaintiffs said, deceived purchasers into the belief that they were buying music from the well-known play The Blue Bird.

Mr. P. O. Lawrence, K.C., and Mr. H. Houston (instructed by Mr. Percy H. Becher) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. E. Clayton, K.C., and Mr. Owen Thompson (instructed by Mr. P. J. Rutland) were for the defence.

It was explained by Mr. Lawrence that Mr. Charles Coote was the composer of the waltz published by defendants. It contained an illustration of what defendants called an American blue jay flying. The Blue Bird, written by Maeterlinck, was first performed in Moscow in 1908. The first performance in England took place at the Haymarket on Dec. 8 last, but announcements had appeared in the Press beginning on April 29, 1909, when they first appeared in the Daily Telegraph. The play was advertised by blue birds in flight, and it has been a great success. Mr. Norman O'Neill, a co-plaintiff, had composed the music for the play, and the music itself was an integral part of the performance. There were songs and dances, four of the latter being "The Dance of the Hours," "The Dance of the Maids of the Mist," "The Dance of Fire and Water," and "The Dance of the Stars." Those four dances were published separately on Jan. 18 this year by the plaintiffs, who had the musical rights. "The Dance of Fire and Water" was a waltz dance. On Feb. 4 of this year defendants' waltz was published, but, said counsel, it was not the same class of music as that published by plaintiffs. Plaintiffs said that the publication of defendants' music would do harm to their musical rights; it would prevent people going to the play and buying the music. Defendants had pleaded that the title was suggested in August, 1909, long before the play was produced, and that the pictorial representation was designed on Dec. 8, 1909. Plaintiffs did not suggest their design had been copied or that their music had been taken. It was purely a question of passing off.

Mr. Norman O'Neill described the music in the play, and was cross-examined with reference to "The Blue Bird Waltz."

Mr. Clayton asked that his junior, Mr. Thompson, should be allowed to put questions to the witness relating to the compositions.

Mr. Lawrence suggested that a piano might be brought into Court.

His lordship thought this would tend to confuse matters.

Mr. Thompson then questioned witness with reference to the music in "The Blue Bird Waltz," and Mr. O'Neill said it was almost the same as the first section of the "Fire and Water" dance.

Counsel asked questions dealing with bars, sharps, and semi-tones, and remarked, "I don't know whether it is clear to your lordship?"

His Lordship: Not at all. (Laughter.) Which are the two bars you refer to—are they the two little compartments? (Laughter.)

Mr. Thompson: They are the two compartments at the end of the third line.

His Lordship: We are associated with bars sometimes. (Laughter.) I see there is one note between lines and the next note is on the line.

Mr. Thompson: They are what the witness calls "C" and "B."

His Lordship: What is that scratching; is it a sharp or a flat?

Witness: I suppose that is a sharp.

Counsel next proceeded to discuss with witness the use of triplets in the music, and expressed his regret to his lordship that musical terms lent themselves to misapplication.

Mr. Paul A. Rubens, the next witness, said he was an author and a composer of music, and had written several musical plays. Waltzes called by the play name had been published in connection with them. He thought the picture of the blue bird and the title "L'Oiseau Blue" would lead the public to believe that the waltz referred to was founded on melodies in The Blue Bird.

Mr. Trench, managing-director of the Haymarket Theatre, said the production of The Blue Bird was a great success. The music was essential to that success.

The hearing was adjourned till the 21st inst., when Mr. D. G. Day, music publisher, of Charing-cross-road, in giving evidence, said he was the sole surviving partner of the defendant firm, Francis, Day, and Hunter. They had taken a prominent part in endeavouring to suppress musical piracy.

Mr. Thompson: Was there any intention to lead the public to believe, by using the name "L'Oiseau Bleu," that there was any connection between Mr. Coote's waltz and the play called The Blue Bird?—Certainly not.

Do you claim the right to apply the words "L'Oiseau Bleu" to any publication of your own?—Certainly.

Witness described how Mr. Coote called upon him with compositions and suggested "L'Oiseau Bleu," or "Joys of Life," for the waltz, and added that he selected the former as the title. Mr. Coote suggested a design for the cover. Witness had no idea then that the play The Blue Bird was to be produced in London.

On Tuesday last Mr. Charles Coote, the composer of the waltz, went into the box and explained that when Mr. Day asked him to suggest a name he mentioned "The Joys of Life," or "L'Oiseau Bleu." He composed the music two years before he offered it to Mr. Day. He would have preferred "The Joys of Life," but Mr. Day liked the other title, and as he was going to publish it, he allowed the question of the name to remain there. At that time he had not seen any announcement with reference to The Blue Bird play at the Haymarket Theatre. He certainly had no intention of conveying the impression that his music was from the Haymarket Theatre. The title, "L'Oiseau Bleu," had been familiar to him for years.

Mr. C. Mudie, secretary to Mr. A. Boosey, of Messrs. Boosey and Co., defined a musical play as one containing dialogue, songs, choruses, duets, and dances. Incidental music was that which suggested the atmosphere and the action taking place on the stage—not absolutely necessary, but increasing the effect of the action.

On Wednesday, counsel having addressed the Court, his Lordship, in giving judgment, said:

"I want to say that the defendants repudiated, and I do not think unnaturally repudiated, any charge of fraud, and they desired, as far as they could, to meet the views of the plaintiffs, provided always that any suggestion of fraud in the inception of the matter was withdrawn. If there was any copying (and I do not think there was, or it may have been to some extent unconscious copying), it was a copying for which the defendants were not in this case primarily responsible. . . . Now this much is due to the defendants to say, that when the sales were small the matter was brought, at an early stage, to Messrs. Elkin's attention, and when Messrs. Elkin complained, I have it from Mr. Day's evidence, which I accept, that pending the litigation, pending the ascertainment of the respective rights of the parties, he suspended the further sales of this work. That, I think, shows that, so far as he was concerned, he only desired to do that which was right and honourable as between two opposing publishers, and he put himself in this position, that if ultimately it turned out, as I am about to hold it turned out, the defendants were in the wrong, he could, at any rate, say this: 'As soon as it was suggested I was in the wrong I did not adopt the course of conduct which would inflict any further damage on the plaintiffs.'"

His Lordship granted an injunction restraining the defendants from publishing their waltz in this particular cover, or any cover calculated to lead to the impression that the music was taken from the play. He ordered defendants to pay the costs, and granted plaintiffs an inquiry as to damages.

"A SOLDIER'S LOVE STORY."

Domestic Military Episode, by Mr. Alexander Loftus, Produced at Olympia, Liverpool, on Thursday, Oct. 27.

Capt. Gerald Pierpoint.. MR. ALEXANDER LOFTUS
Lieut. Courtney ..... MR. WALTER HENTY
Colonel L'Estrange .... MR. LINCOLN CALTHORPE
Rose ..... MISS LINA NAZEBY
Tom Kennedy ..... MR. CHAS. ADESON
Earl of Barasco ..... MR. GEORGE FOX
General Holmes ..... MR. FRANCIS EGERTON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This is a neat little sketch, with a sustained interest which opens at an early stage. Although requiring only thirty minutes to present, it is full of action, episode following episode in rapid succession, and maintaining the attention of the audience to the close. Judging by the manner in which it was received by a large audience on Thursday afternoon, the work should prove successful wherever given.

The scene is laid in the Kingdom of Muretania, where Captain Pierpoint's battalion are about to be attacked by a horde of rebels headed by his father-in-law, General Holmes. Despatches detailing the strength of Pierpoint's forces are left at home by him, and these are stolen by Holmes, who gains admission to the house through the treachery of Colonel L'Estrange, who is in love with Mrs. Pierpoint, and desires to remove the husband. The loss of the documents is followed by Pierpoint being arrested and condemned to be shot, but when the execution is about to take place his innocence is established, and the guilty ones punished.

The company did every justice to the sketch, Mr. Alexander Loftus playing the heroic part in most effective manner; the military rôles, as sustained by Messrs. Henty, Calthorpe, and Egerton, reflected credit upon all three actors; Miss Lina Nazeby did everything necessary as the distressed wife; and Mr. Charles Adeson amused as the faithful servant.

IN order to avoid paying £100 additional licence duty under the Budget, a Dover music hall has closed its public bars.

A GOOD selection of pictures is presented at the Neath Palace this week to large audiences. The special attraction in the variety part of the programme is Mahatma, Queen of Second-sight, assisted by Prof. C. N. Steen, who give a remarkable performance. Healey and Spencer in a comedy duo successfully contribute towards a good entertainment.

FRANK TRAVIS, VENTRILOQUIST.

HIS RETURN FROM AUSTRALIA.

"Life's panorama spreads a view of fancies unfulfilled," once wrote an erudite contributor to these columns. We might express the idea more strongly, and say that the chronicle of life is a catalogue of ambitions unattained. This cannot be said of the subject of our interview, whose young face and alert figure belie the assertion that he has been on the stage—well, never mind how long! When just out of his teens he had it in his mind to become a public entertainer, and as, according to Robert Browning, "youth is the only time to think and decide on a great course," young Travis determined to become a polyphonist.

He possessed already the "voice of aspiration, the voice of high hope"; he probably read the thrilling pages of Henry Cockton's "Valentine Vox"; and, in view of his future career, took the sensible course of going on the stage. As an aspirant for fame behind the footlights, he came under the kindly influence of Sarah Thorne, of the Kent Circuit, who shaped the destinies of so many of our leading actors and actresses, and with that excellent stage director, producer, and actress he played all sorts of parts. He was a nimble, supple, and even an imaginative harlequin in a pantomime at Ramsgate, and with months of general utility work the rough corners were knocked off, he learnt stage technique, and, most valuable of all lessons, he had to make himself heard in the remotest corner of the gallery. This clearness of utterance was always insisted upon in the old stock days, and its virtues were additionally emphasised when Travis became associated with that fine actor Charles Dillon.

He who "picnics on Parnassus need not look for cakes and ale," and what is true of the poet applies even more truly to the utility actor. Plenty of work at a small salary was all very well; but the youngster felt it incumbent upon him to make a move; and the world of variety, which at that time, even as now, took so many of its principal performers from the legitimate stage, spread an alluring prospect before the ambitious youth. He practised his art assiduously, and like so many of his contemporaries, made his début as a ventriloquist in the provinces—the Pavilion, Sheffield, to wit, a house that stood next to where the Theatre Royal now rears its head. From this time Travis, who had become Lieutenant Travis, never looked back, and has been a familiar ventriloquial star for years.

He has travelled in every nook and corner of the Continent, has visited America twice, and has just returned from his second trip to Australia, where he has fulfilled a most successful engagement on the what may well be termed the Harry Rickards Circuit, securing his greatest triumph perhaps at the Tivoli, Sydney. The papers were unanimous in praise of the tramp ventriloquist—a gentleman of birth and education, who has come down in the world, not an ignorant, loose mannered loafer. Says one writer: "Got up in the manner of a forlorn, dusty, and penniless tramp, Travis casts his bundle down before a roadside inn, and introduces as travelling companions a pert puppet in the uniform of an ex-soldier and a wheezy old man in a smock. Many puzzling feats of ventriloquism are shown in the highly diverting dialogue, especially when the tramp, with the lower part of his countenance buried in a frothy tankard, is rallied briskly by the ex-soldier. Later on the Lieutenant introduces a very human-looking and decidedly 'advanced' little girl, who sings with acceptable pathos and expression the ballad 'Daddy,' while the man behind the doll apparently puffs complacently at his pipe."

When voyaging back from the Commonwealth Travis landed at Marseilles, and in travelling overland found himself hampered by the railway strike in France, and his luggage was held up at the Gare du Nord. After his arrival home his belongings were forwarded to London, and his fears of the loss of stage properties, which would have been a very serious one, vanished. He had a delightful return trip on board the Mooltan. Like many another star performer, Travis has suffered from copyists, but his new act is licensed by the Lord Chamberlain and the title registered, and he should therefore be immune from plagiarism. As an incidental in his act, Travis introduces Miss Marjorie Dean, whose lithe and lissom dancing fairly astounded the "Cornstalks."

His longest engagement was with the late Charles Morton at the Palace Theatre, at the beginning of the régime of the "Father of the halls." The ventriloquist's time was continually extended, until at the end of sixteen weeks he had to give in his notice in order to take up provincial contracts. The Australians have undoubtedly taken very kindly to Lieutenant Travis, and he records with much gratification the warm and generous hospitality always extended to artists from the "Old Country." Besides broadening and deepening his artistic reputation, he has had a most delightful time and has reached home in the best of health, and with vocal power as resonant as ever.

ALMOST as soon as the doors of the Japan-British Exhibition close to-day an army of men will be busy removing the exhibits and packing them for return to the palaces of the Emperor and the mansions of Japanese noblemen.

MANY exhibits, however, are to be left behind as mementoes of the exhibition. For instance, the model of the mausoleum at the second Tokugawa Shogun is to go to Buckingham Palace. It is a beautiful reproduction from the City of Tokyo. The splendid model of Tokyo City has been left to the City of London, and two miniature gardens to the London County Council.

THE model of the post office exhibited by the Japanese Department of Communication will be placed in the museum of the General Post Office, and all the exhibits of the Fishery Bureau will be sent to the Official Fishery Museum at Hull; while the Japanese Government's exhibits of Japanese rural life, which are composed entirely of tableaux, will be given to the British Department of Agriculture and Fisheries.

As already announced, the model of the historic Kyoto Gate is to be re-erected in Kew Gardens, and the Japanese model summer-house, exhibited by the Forestry Department of the Japanese Government, has been presented to Prince Arthur of Connaught, and will be re-erected in the gardens of the Duke of Connaught.

So pronounced is the success of John Lawson's visit to America, that William Morris has engaged him for a further eight weeks, with an option to extend. According to present arrangements Mr. Lawson will produce Humanity in New York on Nov. 28 with a full cast of London artists, who will sail on Nov. 16 to join him. He will also produce Sally in Our Alley later on.

THE syndicate formed to acquire part of the island site of the Strand, whereon to erect a French Palace of Arts and Industries, on Monday paid the London County Council the extra £2,500 demanded at their last meeting. The syndicate thus have the option until Dec. 1. M. Ernest Gerard, the architect, is bringing his plans immediately for the Council's final approval.

THE Earl's Court, Ltd., have now completed the transfer of the Earl's Court Exhibition Grounds from the London Exhibitions, Ltd., and are now in possession. The work of arranging the various amusements for next year has actively commenced.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

The newest votary of Terpsichore and the latest Continental novelty are associated at the Palace, where Mlle. Hippolita D'Hellas is presenting "The Silhouette Dance." The shadow pantomime, of course, is among the treasured memories of our youth, but in the Silhouette Dance the principle is elaborated in a picturesque way, the scenes presented having variously tinted backgrounds against which the performer is realistically outlined. On Monday Miss D'Hellas began with a classical study, in which an Athenian young lady is seen, with much ceremony, laying a tribute at the feet of a Grecian god. The second represented a seashore, with a view of gently undulating water, the dancer, assisted by two others, indicating the various emotions of The Awakening from Sleep, of Butterfly Catching, and of Rapture. At the end came a Moorish dance, the performer going through a series of frenzied evolutions, in which a couple of daggers figure, to the accompaniment of barbaric music. Miss D'Hellas has a lithe and graceful figure, and is an accomplished dancer. There is an element of quaintness about the act which adds to its effect, and it leaves a most agreeable impression.

The well-assorted programme has recently undergone changes in other respects. Les Trombettas, who have been renewing their popularity at the Palace with their diverting ducts, presented on Monday a new musical sketch by Herman Finck and Eustace Eayres, in which the clever comedian poses as "Tommy Atkins in the Park," and makes love to a coy maiden. The interlude is delightfully funny, M. Trombetta's broken English added to his air of braggadocio as the diminutive Tommy, and the affectations of his fair partner, keeping the audience convulsed. Mr. Finck has written some effective music with quite a martial strain for the song which accompanies the scena. M. Trombetta's whistling and imitations still remain successful features of his entertainment. That great artist Mr. Ben Davies demonstrates the purity and power of his sweet tenor voice in three of his choicest selections. The evergreen "When other lips," aroused so much applause that Mr. Davies was obliged to concede an encore, rendering the pretty little ballad, "I know of two bright eyes," with exquisite expression.

A hilarious act is that of "General" Edward La Vine, who, habited in American uniform, with embellishments, juggles with three rubber balls in whimsical fashion. He does wonders with cigar and hat, bringing both from the foot, the former to his mouth and the latter on to the cigar, and manipulates with extraordinary ease a sledge-hammer, a cannon-ball, and a paper pellet. The instrumental effects are cleverly managed, and the marine scene at the back furnishes a constant succession of comic surprises. Mr. Harold Montague entertains humorously at the piano and does some clever burlesque conjuring, and as trick billiardists the Brunins excel, the gentleman by means of a cannon off the cush firing a pistol held in the mouth of his partner, who is careering round the stage on a bicycle. The drollery of Mr. George Graves in Koffo, of Bond-street, has become more irresistible than ever; Mr. Jack Lorimer once again diverts with the eccentricity of his Scotch songs and dances, and also included in the bill are the Willuhn Trio, comic gymnasts; Miss Violet Loraine, comedienne; Sidney James and company, in a musical pot-pourri; and Bert Marsden, mimetic comedian. The Palace Bioscope portrays all that is most interesting in pictures, including views of Portugal during its recent stressful period; and not the least appreciated items of Mr. Alfred Butt's attractive bill are the selections by Mr. Herman Finck's superb orchestra.

THE TIVOLI.

Mr. Joseph Wilson's latest novelty at the Tivoli is a sketch without a plot, from the joint pens of Mr. Lennox Pawle, the popular comedian, and Mr. P. J. Wodehouse. It is entitled The Dumb (?) Waiter, the ironical significance of the adjective of the title being marked by a note of interrogation. In a restaurant scene a deaf-and-dumb gentleman and a Hebrew of uncultivated manners are dining. The Jew, after addressing several observations to the deaf mute, appropriates his evening newspaper, which is promptly snatched back by the silent one. After one or two little skirmishes the waiter arrives on the scene. He is quite a greasy specimen of his class, but his clatter of speech is prodigious. Like Gratiano, he speaks an infinite deal of nothing. His deaf-and-dumb customer has, he thinks, a sympathetic soul, and when he pours his family history into his ear, with incidental references to the doings and love-troubles of a kindly-hearted innkeeper, he has no idea that his talk flows "in one ear and out of the other." The old gentleman at last understands that he is being spoken to, and taking a small scrap of paper, he scribbles thereon: "Any statement of importance you have to make you must put it in writing. I am deaf and dumb." The sketch has the merit of giving a droll comedian a real chance as a humorist, and its chief recommendation is that it introduces to the London variety stage Mr. John Humphries, of whom too little is seen in the West End. Such a capital comedian should be permanently established in the metropolis. The music halls, at any rate, can do with him, for his waiter is a joyous optimist, and a refreshing exponent of a Cockney type as amusing as it is lifelike. Mr. Humphries may be said to have "found himself" in the halls. He should remain there.

Mr. Wilson has an all-star programme. Mr. Mark Sheridan is at the top of his form, and keeps the house laughing at his well-timed gags. Mr. Wilkie Bard has done nothing better than his "I want to sing in opera," a number that shows musicianly qualities. The business introduced is in "the Bard's" best manner. A bright and interesting show is furnished by Lottie Bellman and Bay Russell, who make a welcome return in "Bits of Vaudeville," which includes a capital burlesque of The Merry Widow Waltz. A plantation melody sung in the style of the Southern negro is another feature, and Miss Bellman dresses with great taste. Versatility and vim are the distinguishing marks of this accomplished duo. Mr. Harry Lauder sings to a crowded house three of his old songs, his favourite, "I love a lassie" being quite an irresistible lilt. Miss Venie Clements is responsible for some clever sketches and anecdotes of children; Kitty Colyer is a dancer of remarkable agility and energy; Ernest Shand is as unctuous as ever in "We spent a most delightful evening"; and Rinaldo, who plays the fiddle with vigorous unrestraint, becomes quite a humorist with a composition of his own.

Miss Marie Lloyd, who vanquished London just a few years since when she "winked the other eye," is quite her vivacious self in "Do you like my style just a little bit?" She has also a number quite after her own heart in her comic description of the Cockney lady who ignored the blandishments of a pasha of many wives, and went straight home to Bill. Miss Addie Dorina's versatility and quick changes are agreeably apparent in her entertainment, "Dr. Spot's Patients"; Miss Ruth Lytton wears the kilts gracefully; and Phil Ray, having discovered that abbreviation is the soul of his wit, evokes a deal of laughter by lopping syllables. Ruffell's Bioscope presents some good pictures.

THE METROPOLITAN.

An interesting and scientific novelty in Mr. William Bailey's varied and attractive programme this week is the sailing over the auditorium of a fully rigged airship under wireless electric control. On Monday evening, at the first house, the demonstration was completely successful, the inventor, operating from the stage, having perfect command over the vessel, which gracefully sailed round the auditorium, rising, dipping, and turning at the will of the operator in marvellous fashion, especially when the limited space available is considered. Once or twice it appeared impossible for the airship to escape colliding with the balcony or electric light brackets, but it was always manœuvred to a nicety, and eventually gently glided safely into port on the stage, to the enthusiastic applause of the astonished audience. Certainly a wonderfully clever and novel exhibition.

Miss Clarice Mayne, the charming comedienne and mimic, demurely sings of a certain fascinating Nursie who had a most interesting patient in Percy. Of course, Percy nurses Nursie ere his convalescence is completed, and one can readily understand in the circumstance that his illness is of a lingering nature. Miss Mayne, looking very dainty in white, gives a capital rendering of the number, and receives valuable assistance from the gentleman at the piano—an unobtrusive comedian whose facial expression and funny asides greatly enhance the effect of the number. The popular and clever artist also gave another attractive number, and her reception at the conclusion was most gratifying. Miss Lottie Bellman, in "Bits of vaudeville," proves her undoubted versatility by her mimicry of a child, an imitation of a coon song as sung in the Southern States of American, a coster impersonation, and some clever dancing, particularly a "Merry Widow" waltz; and Mr. Ray Russell, who assists her, is also an accomplished dancer, the hard-working couple being loudly acclaimed for their smartly-worked interlude. W. Foot-Gers, the well-known French comedian, submitted some humorous and clever impersonations of Mr. Harry Fragson and Mr. G. H. Elliott, his Apache dance being especially droll; and Ajax and George, in their novel gymnastic act, contribute an exhibition of skill and strength that appeals to all parts of the house,

Back again after a short absence is Harry Champion, who has a rousing welcome. He rattles off three of his quick-fire songs, to the amusement of all. Maude Miller has a pretty number in "The Harvest Moon," which goes well, and Harry Lawson causes mirth with his cleverly-compiled medley song. An exhibition of dancing is given by Bertha Winder, who holds several medals to mark her accomplishments. She dances beautifully, and makes a big hit. Peter Birmingham, a clever Scotch comedian, scores with his funny stories and song, and our only regret is that in such a short turn he is hardly allowed to do justice to himself. Harry Pleon is always certain to raise laughter, but his present skit on a popular drama sends his audience into shrieks, for his continual flow of clever gags and witticisms are most diverting. The Brothers Horne are still playing The Biter Bit with all the old success. The Eight Frolics, a dashing set of young ladies, dance well and provide a bright turn. They deserve better material than they have at present.

A dramatic sketch played by Lois Du Cane and company is entitled The Heathen and the Christian, and it deals with the Boxer rising in China. It is beautifully staged, and Miss Du Cane acts with her accustomed skill and makes a big success in the part of the wife of the missionary. The Bioscope concludes.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

The usual large and delighted audience was present in this handsome hall on the night of our visit. Mr. James, the highly popular acting-manager, was in his accustomed place looking after the comfort of patrons. The fine orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Forbes Russell, gave a brilliant rendering of the overture to The Bohemian Girl, after which Barton and Ashley presented a diverting item, entitled Adam the Second, in which Mr. J. B. Barton as Adam consisting, among others, of Perseus and Andromeda, Three Graces, Ida and Swan, Una and the Lion, Harvest, Venus di Milo, and Hebe, in all of which she was warmly applauded. La Milo was assisted by Cruickshank's clever freehand pictures. The American Bioscope exhibited some interesting subjects, and the entire programme was thoroughly enjoyable. The stage is in the safe hands of Mr. Walter Smith, and Mr. Will Horsfield is assistant-acting-manager.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

Excellent is the entertainment usually provided at this popular and well-patronised hall, and this week's programme proves itself no exception to the rule. A sketch, set in a very pretty exterior and entitled The Undesired, written by Leonard Mortimer, is played by a capable company, who bring out the various points of the melodrametta to the full satisfaction of the audience. The story of a father's crime and the similar fault of his grown-up son, leading finally to the repentance of both, with the prospect of future happiness, is most interesting. Mr. Horace Denton enacts the part of the erring parent with much force; Mr. Osmond Reece as the guilty son obtains the proper contrast; Mr. Leonard Mortimer ably sustains the sympathetic part of the illegitimate brother; and Miss Aletha Vyse is a pretty little heroine, whose affections naturally incline to the despised and, as the programme describes him, "undesired" offspring of the baronet. Miss Katherine Clarke and Miss Ailsa Lorne suitably fill the remaining parts. The piece is received with much favour.

The Three O'Connors, a pretty trio of Irish colleens, give a delightful musical and singing act very much to the taste of the audience, one of the trio proving herself a vocalist of no little merit in a tuneful song. Jack Vann, described as a "Dutch comedy vocalist," is responsible for an imitation of Swiss jödel; a particularly graceful acrobatic bar act, in which the lady and includes many feats which we have never before seen accomplished.

Kelly and Agnes present an amusing speciality turn in which the comedian of the duo employs numberless droll devices for the creation of mirth, and also dances and tumbles in a remarkable fashion. The lady excels as a dancer, and the happily-associated couple are responsible for an entertaining quarter-of-an-hour. Mr. Peter Kelly has a funny comic song in "That won't do," and his mock descriptive ballad is capitally rendered; and the humour of Mr. Phil Ray, the popular abbreviating comedian, is relished by the entire audience, who accord him a hearty welcome. Miss Josie Delaine, who is paying a return visit to the "Met." after only a few weeks' absence, sings her one song "Little Miss Importance" with much point and expression, and scores with her neat and attractive dance; Roma and Romani, classical musicians, play a number of instruments admirably, and are greatly appreciated; and Ber. Errol, a clever female impersonator; Lil Elfrida, comedienne; Miss Mary Mayfren's company in the thrilling and capitally acted sketch, The Yellow Fang; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope complete the alluring entertainment.

CAMDEN HIPPODROME.

As usual on visiting this fine hall, we found a good programme, and the courteous manager, Mr. Charles Beresford, surveying a full house. Mr. Harry Barford and his company are presenting that clever sketch, Cottage or Palace, which has made a great success, and the little drama—so delightfully told and well acted—is much appreciated. As Stephen Armitage Mr. Albert Ward finds a character which suits him admirably, and he embodies it with his accustomed skill. Miss Etta Delamere as the wife plays most sympathetically. Walker and Miss Annie Ashley as Anita (the girl who sees a man for the first time) won well-deserved applause. Lily Burnand, looking charming in her hobble dress, had a warm welcome; her songs, "I smile" and "I'm going to be a musical comedy star," were well sung and cleverly worked. Charles Vincent sang a capital medley, and was loudly applauded at the finish of his excellent turn. Johnny Walker was also a decided favourite, and sang an amusing song, entitled "I'm not such a josser as I look," supplemented by really funny patter and business.

Miss Maggie Neill and company appeared in a sketch, entitled What Women do for Men. The scene is laid in a cottage in Peruda, Sicily, and the story is prettily and cleverly told. Miss Maggie Neill is a charming Rose Drummond; Mr. Charles Cameron is an excellent General Jacquimint; Mr. George Buchanan is very good as Joseph Fenan; Mr. Frederick Hunter is a capital Giuseppe; and Mr. A. G. Jewell is well placed as the Soldier. The production was cordially received. Luis Alvarez, the Spanish tenor, sang very sweetly an operatic selection and "Violets," his efforts being enthusiastically applauded. The Three Laurels made a hit in a clever acrobatic turn, their work being exceptionally smart. Henry Coutts and Gwladys Soman appeared in Outflanked, a clever protean entertainment. Miss Soman, who played Kitty Benson, a barmaid, and a Red Cross nurse, sang "Star of my life" most effectively; while Mr. Henry Coutts appeared with equal success as Sergeant Tom Willoughby, Claude Duval, a Tramp with Aristocratic Ideas, Sandy Macpherson, Sarah Blobbs, Miss Birdie Gusher, and Britannia.

The bright particular star of the evening was La Milo, in an entirely new repertoire of poses, especially distinguishes herself, is given by Lavil and Bodie, who receive well-merited applause; the Brothers Devlin, the singing newsboys, with placards of evening papers strictly up to date, sing together excellently; and Jack Mavis is a singer and dancer of an energetic type.

Marie Jones, in her comedy The Correspondence, sustains no less than seven distinct characters, in each of which she is very clever, the rapidity of her changes being remarkable. She appears, firstly, as a wife, next as an office boy, and subsequently as a clergyman, a suffragette, a Chelsea pensioner, a society lady, and a housemaid. In all of these characters she gives excellent representations. Josephine Crook, with illustrated songs, quickly persuades the audience to join her in her choruses; Stan and Stella Atkins give an entertaining turn of song and dance; and the Palace Perfection Pictures conclude.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The programme, which is being presented here this week, has certainly been very well chosen. The top liner is Consul, the "almost man." He eats, drinks, smokes, rides a bicycle, besides doing many other things, and whilst on the stage he fairly holds the house. Additional interest is added to his performance by the fact that in Mr. Harold L. Hilliard he has a most capable showman, whose explanation and little humourisms are very appropriate.

That popular comedienne, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, is again visiting this hall and repeating her former triumphs. Her number, "None of them can sing a song like me," earns her deafening applause, and so great is the demand for an encore that she is forced to reappear. She then gives a humorous recitation, entitled "Forsaken," with suitable music by the orchestra, which, needless to say, causes boundless laughter. Seaner and Fridkin's Imperial Russian troupe of singers and dancers provide a most interesting turn. After singing a song in their own tongue, they are responsible for some wonderful dancing, the male members especially showing extraordinary ability in this art. One of the features of this item is the vivacity of the performers. Miss Mat Fayre sings tunefully a couple of songs, entitled "Mr. Man, Man, Man," and "It's all very well on paper"; and Frank Lindo gives some capital impersonations, including the late Sir Henry Irving and Wilson Barrett. The Three Dixons score heavily in a singing and dancing scena, their ability in the terpsichorean art fairly bringing down the house. Woodhouse and Wells are responsible for some smart crosstalk and patter, which has the additional charm of being original. They conclude with some clever dancing. Arthur Slater demonstrates his ability as a sifflеur, and Fred Neiman, with some ventriloquial minstrels, amuses all during his occupation of the stage.

The Bartholomew Girls are heard to advantage in "Quaint little girls" and "All the girls are after McAllister," the former number especially being much to the liking of the house. They bring their turn to a conclusion with some neat and dainty dancing. The Melroses—lady and gentleman—contribute some clever dancing, and the Five X-Rays prove themselves to be acrobats of no mean ability. Max Martini, who has the assistance of a very charming young lady (Miss Anna Gorney), is a decided success, their dancing especially being of a high order. One of the most popular items on the programme is Miss Ella Retford who sings "Mary, you don't come from Spain" and "By the light of the silvery moon." Kelly and Agnes are highly popular, and Ruffell's Bioscope is responsible for a series of entertaining films.

BOW PALACE.

Headed by such favourites as Coram and Miss Louisa Peach, this week's bill is more than usually attractive, a fact to which crowded houses at each performance bear ample testimony. Miss Louisa Peach and company present a powerful episode in The Mystery. In defending his wife's honour Eric Sutherland kills a fellow clubman. He seeks refuge in a secret passage of his old house, but sounds have been heard by an old servant, who imagines them to be caused by the clandestine visits of one of the female servant's friends. He imparts his discovery to Baron Rochford, and the hunted man is discovered. Lesbia, Eric's wife, pleads for her husband, but the Baron will only keep silence on condition that Lesbia becomes his mistress. Such a proposition is refused by the wife, who cheats the law by killing her husband, and then turning the knife upon herself. The sketch gained the immediate appreciation of the audience, Miss Louisa Peach as Lesbia furnishing a remarkable piece of dramatic acting. A very pleasing and natural sketch of the old servant, Jacques, was given by Mr. Charles Daly; and Mr. Edwin Lesterre and Mr. E. H. Dobell gave able support.

Coram, as a ventriloquist, is widely popular, the rapidity of his "cross-talk," the humorous dialogue, his ready wit, the well-controlled voice, all tending to mark his performance an exceptionally clever one. He was in particularly fine form on the evening of our visit. Tom Lee has the advantage of a good style. Both of his songs, "Seaside swank" and "It's no use taking a girl there," have tuneful airs, in addition to being cleverly written. Elsie and Bob are seen to advantage in difficult feats of head and hand balancing. The Five St. Clairs present a pot-pourri of singing and dancing in excellent fashion. The song "Hello!" given by the pianist of the troupe, has a rollicking chorus, whilst two cleverly-written numbers, in "Someone to love and cheer you" and "In the silvery moonlight," gain much in the rendition.

Thomas Barrasford's Nine Minstrel Boys work hard and appear to thoroughly enjoy it. A solo step dance given by a member of the troupe gains much applause, as also does a laughing song and "Only a flower by the wayside," the latter of which is well rendered by a youngster with a high soprano voice. Dollie and Rosie are a cheery couple, and infuse plenty of life into their dancing, which earns for them well-merited applause. The lengthy bill also includes Lincoln Taylor, comedian; Jack Lumley, comedian; and Valmour Shain and company in The Bank Clerk's Temptation. Mr. Gordon Harman, happy at being so busy, continues to attend to the managerial duties with his accustomed courtesy and tact.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

Since the present management assumed control of the Crouch End Hippodrome this cosy little theatre has lost none of its local popularity. Full and appreciative houses are the rule. Striking testimony to the success of the existing régime was given the other evening on the occasion of the first anniversary performance, when there was a large attendance of friends of Mr. Frederick Phelps, the resident manager. The entertainment this week is up to the usual high standard of excellence, and on Tuesday evening an enthusiastic audience showed its appreciation of the good "fare" provided in no unmistakable manner. Lovers of the Terpsichorean art find agreeable diversion in the mazy gyrations of La Valti and her group of lady dancers. With the aid of the cinematograph, they gave a realistic representation of sea-bathing, the foaming billows in the pictures making a very effective background for the dancers. No less pleasing is the exhibition of fire-dancing, produced by limelight effects. Another group of dancers who have been appearing this week are the Damascus Girls. Their turn is most attractive, and combines both singing and dancing. Those in search of sensation find plenty in the racing sketch produced by Edward Cranston and company, entitled Terry; or, True to His Trust. The story is replete from beginning to end with exciting episodes, and deals with the unscrupulous efforts of a villainous Major to dispose of "the favourite" by foul means.

Another sketch, having all the attractive qualities of the detective story, is that produced by Carlotta de Yonson and company, entitled The Case of the Red Triangle, the plot of which is founded upon the adventures of Sexton Blake. It is well acted, and has proved one of the main attractions of the week. Marie Kendall has proved a great favourite. Not the least amusing of her various impersonations is that in which the 'Oliday 'Arriet, in all her finery, is portrayed with singular realism. Some good singing is provided by Mina Greene. A vocalist of winsome manner, she speedily wins the hearts of her audience, and in the song "Cingalee" her voice is heard to great advantage. Arnold and Baxter, capital vocalists, are responsible for another agreeable turn, in which they sing of the charms of gipsy life. Agnes Aldra, Dolly Denton, and Ella Lyons, together with Steve McCarthy and Tom Isherwood, help to swell the list of the current week's attractions, and a number of animated pictures are also comprised in the programme. The two-houses-a-night system is found to work well, and there is no likelihood of the present policy being departed from.

The Railway Guards' Universal Friendly Society will give a concert on Wednesday evening next at the Crystal Palace, in aid of the Widows and Orphans of Permanently Disabled Members Fund of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway. Many popular artists have promised to appear, including Miss Alice Matterway, Miss Carrie Herwin, Mr. Samuel Masters, Mr. Randell Jackson, Miss Nina Gordon (at the piano), Mr. Will Edwards, Mr. Fred Hastings, and Mr. Bertram Banks. The Crystal Palace Military Band will play, under the conductorship of Herbert Godfrey.

FALL IN, ROOKIES!

A Play, in Two Scenes, by Henry Arthur Jones. Produced at the Alhambra, on Monday, Oct. 24.

Nat Drake .....Mr. Farren Soutar
Mrs. Drake .....Miss Mabel Knowles
Sergeant Higlett .....Mr. Walner Gregory
Alfy Jennings .....Mr. R. Vallis
Cherry Gedge .....Mrs. Leslie Faber

Lord Roberts, who was present in a private box at the Alhambra on Monday evening, must have been gratified at the practical illustration of his theory that universal military training for the Britisher is in the best interests of the Empire. To quote the words of Lord Tennyson, if we are to have "men with strength and will to right the wrong'd, of power to lay the sudden heads of violence flat," then the males of the Empire must be drilled from early youth and taught to bear arms and to use them. The practical value of the famous field-marshal's pleadings is expounded dramatically by no less a playwright than Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, who, in his latest production, Fall in, Rookies! has written what may be called a pièce de circonstance with considerable skill.

The lesson taught by the dramatist is tersely summed up in the vigorous speech of Nat Drake, Mr. Jones's hero, on his return from the Boer war: "I've seen a bit of fighting, and I don't want to see any more. Them as knows what war is don't go about jingoing and blustering to bring it on! No! It ain't the fighting, it's the regular drill and discipline as our youngsters want. Three years ago I was a lazy, loafing, drunken, good-for-nothing, and I should have ended up in the work'us or in a ditch, or God knows where! But I took to soldiering, and there's this about soldiering: it either makes a man or it breaks him. And them as it breaks, they was good for nothing but to be broke. And them, as it makes, it makes men of 'em for all their life."

"The Drakes were never any good, and you Nat Drake are as bad as the rest of 'em." This is the opinion of the poor old mother of her son, who in the first scene of Fall in, Rookies! is the drunken, ne'er-do-well of the village. He is found outside the Duke of Wellington public-house at Aldchester in colloquy with a recruiting sergeant. He has been impressed, in his sober moments by the charm and domestic virtues of Cherry Gedge, the innkeeper's daughter, and now in his state of alcoholism insists on kissing her. After a deal of persuasion she induces a mean-spirited weakling to take up her cause, with the result that he soon gets the worst of it, being thrown into the nearest horse-pond by Nat, who enlists. The second scene shows Nat's return from the Boer war, with a medal. Cherry is, of course, his, and the mother is happy once more. Nat, we should add, has no patience with the Little Englander, who, in the person of a sanctimonious parson, presents him with a petition against the fostering of the military spirit in England. Tearing the paper up, Nat throws the pieces in the holy man's face.

The incidental march past of a company of soldiers with fife and drum band makes for spectacular effect, and the conversations are well in keeping with the characters of the little piece, which has its streak of boisterous humour well brought out by Mr. Farren Soutar as the village wastrel. But there is plenty of sentiment for Nat Drake, and when he falls to thinking over his mother's warning, the actor makes his speech quite impressive. Mrs. Leslie Faber as the village lass Cherry, who is kissed against her will, looks engaging and pretty, even when losing her temper, as she very naturally does. Mr. Walner Gregory, who has produced the piece so well, is quite the smart, military man as the recruiting sergeant, and Miss Mabel Knowles cuts quite a pathetic figure as Mrs. Drake, and the old woman's plaint is admirably delivered. Mr. R. Vallis as the timorous but talkative Alfy Jennings makes the character as contemptible as the author intended. There was a great reception for the little piece on Monday night, but the author did not appear.

SEEING LONDON.

By Tom Craven.

I am a countryman by birth. Some people call me lots of other things. I have spent most of my life in a tiny, little island, not far from Weymouth. It's a busy little place, that island. Nobody can be idle. Hard labour is the order of the day. I had led such a busy, hard-working life that I'd never had time to see London. I did once visit the Old Bailey, but I drove to and fro in a closed carriage, had a friendly chat with one judge, a few barristers, and a dozen evilly-disposed citizens of London, and I really had no time for gadding about. However, when I left Portland—I mean Weymouth—I let my hair grow, because I have always had an artistic temperament. My affairs were slightly involved, and I was at my wits' end how to secure the necessary filthy lucre to aid me in my passionate desire to see London. I am ever of an exceedingly resourceful turn of mind, so I borrowed from a comrade a small article of virtue known to aristocrats of my profession as a knuckleduster. Ornamented by this I interviewed a wealthy and bejewelled gentleman in a quiet country lane, and in the politest possible old-time manner persuaded him to bestow upon me certain rings, scarf-pins, and pencil-cases, which realised for me, after considerable discussion, a paltry sum of ready money not exceeding fifty pounds. Then I sought an old and valued friend, who had always led me to believe he knew London backwards. But when I put him to the test his knowledge of the great Metropolis was purely suburban. His bump of locality did not seem to go beyond Brixton, Bow-street, and Holloway. However, for a certain consideration he generously offered to show me over London, and as he seemed fairly well acquainted with inns, ancient and modern, we didn't have half a bad time. He showed me Scotland Yard in the distance, and, by aid of a pair of field-glasses, I recognised several old acquaintances passing in and out. He next took me to view a large building east of Ludgate-hill. This, he informed me, was the Tower of London, but I have since learned that it was, in reality, St. Paul's Cathedral. Our next visit took us to the Surrey side of the Thames. He pointed out a high chimney with the words L I P T O N in electrically illuminated letters displayed up its side. This chimney he informed me was Cleopatra's Needle. He then introduced me to the Bank of England, but this turned out to be the Westminster Swimming Bath. Buckingham Palace came next on our round, but here again my gentle guide got slightly mixed—it wasn't the King's residence at all, it was the Hammersmith Workhouse. The Hotel Cecil turned out to be the "Angel" at Islington, the Army and Navy Stores the Bon Marché at Brixton, Kensington Gardens eventually revealed itself as Kennington Park, and the Elephant and Castle Theatre as Drury Lane. The Times newspaper office he glibly relegated to the editor of the Winning Post, and a Punch and Judy performance he emphatically declared to be the White City. The Gladstone memorial turned out to be a bust of the late Dan Leno, and Spurgeon's Tabernacle Westminster Abbey. It was altogether an uninstructive, vexing way of seeing London, but it had its advantages. I picked up during our peregrinations several valuable pieces of jewellery, which have placed me on a financial footing to seek rest in some country where extradition warrants are of no avail.

BERT FELDMAN CHATS ABOUT PANTOMIME SONGS.

In his palatial premises in Arthur-street the genial Bert Feldman is literally "up to his eyes" in business connected with The Chocolate Soldier, the sole English selling rights of the music having being acquired by his firm.

"Pantomime?" rejoined Mr. Feldman, with twinkling eyes, in response to a pertinent query. "Yes; I think I may with safety assert that I possess the strongest hand of ready-made successes for this year's forthcoming annuals that I have had during my career as a publisher of popular songs. First and foremost, of course, comes that really exquisite ballad 'Beautiful garden of roses,' originally produced in this country at the London Pavilion by that fine tenor vocalist Mr. Arthur Aldridge with a success that has been duplicated at every hall where he has since sung it.

"One of the greatest successes ever scored with a ballad in the annals of Douglas, Isle of Man, fell to the lot of Miss Florrie Forde, when she sang 'Beautiful garden of roses' this year at Derby Castle. The mellifluous strains of this irresistible song were a day or two later to be heard in every corner of the island, on the lips of "trippers" and natives alike. I feel the utmost confidence in predicting that managers throughout the kingdom will avail themselves of the opportunity of featuring this number in pantomime, as it is certain to equal, if not to transcend, last year's greatest winner, 'Somewhere,' also supplied by my firm. Many managers are having special rose-garden scenes painted, with a view to giving this song an appropriate setting.

"A particularly brilliant number, conceived in quite a new vein of comedy and with a lilting chorus that is certain to carry far, is 'Mister Pat O'Hare,' which that clever vocal comedian Mr. George Lashwood has made so important a feature of his répertoire all round the Stoll Tour. This number should certainly be in very great demand among singers who like a bright, stirring number, full of action and vim.

"This year we have one of the finest 'moon' songs that have ever been penned in our big winner 'By the light of the silvery moon,' which dainty

MR. BERT FELDMAN.

Miss Ella Retford is nightly singing at the Oxford and her other London 'turns' with phenomenal success. Pantomime producers and performers might with advantage pay the Oxford a visit one night and hear Miss Retford's delightful rendering of this charming song.

"Last year, as you will remember, we were able to offer a great pantomime winner in Mr. Mark Sheridan's 'I do like to be beside the seaside.' This year, I am pleased to be in a position to state that we have another great 'seaside' number, from the same pen, also being sung by Mr. Sheridan, entitled 'By the sea,' which bids fair to outrival its predecessor in pantomime popularity.

"Yet another instance in which history repeats itself. Last year pantomime artists showed remarkable unanimity in singing our famous Irish song 'Molly O'Morgan.' This year we are offering a new Irish chorus number that bids fair to eclipse the popularity of our last year's number, entitled 'Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town.' This captivating Hibernian ditty will shortly be exploited in the West End, and the best judges confidently prophesy that it will prove a success.

"Miss Mabel Green just now is making a very great hit at the Tivoli and her other engagements with our dainty new number 'In the sunny Engadine'; while the Romps, at the London Pavilion, nightly bring the house down with that dashing chorus number of ours, 'Oh, boys, I've seen you there!' which has already been booked by so many managers and performers for pantomime. In addition to those already referred to, Miss Ada Reeve's beautiful song of sentiment, so popular all round the Stoll Tour, 'Nobody knows, nobody cares'—one of the finest songs that ever emanated from the author of 'Somewhere'—is certain to be extensively used for pantomime purposes.

"Another special favourite will be Miss Gertie Gitana's greatest success, that beautiful pastoral idyll, 'You were coming through the corn, Molly dear.' The staging possibilities of this song speak for themselves, and the chorus is certain to be picked up with avidity by pantomime first-nighters all over the country.

"That dainty story of the loves of a little French laundress and an amorous tourist, 'Marie Louise,' which Miss Venie Clements has sung in the West End with such pronounced success, teeming as it does with opportunities for local colour and costuming of a picturesque and appropriate character, should prove a most decided pantomime hit; while 'Little Miss Importance,' from the same pens that gave us last year's enormous pantomime success, 'Pretty little girl from Nowhere,' already finds a host of professional admirers. A particularly happy 'locality' song is 'Take me back to Yorkshire,' which is certain to have a big pantomime vogue in the North, and 'Silver Bell' is an 'Out West' number which certainly should enjoy no less popularity than our famous song 'Redwing' did a couple of years ago.

"Then, again, for comedians, we have such great songs as George Formby's 'Playing the game in the West,' Jack Pleasants' latest 'riot,' 'Liza had hold of my hand,' Jack Smiles's 'Fish sauce,' and many others of like excellence. In addition to those already referred to may be mentioned such tried and proven successes as Joe O'Gorman's 'Any little girl that's a nice little girl,' 'Mary, you're a big girl now,' 'It's just like being at home,' 'I'd rather be by the fireside' (Fred Barnes's big hit), 'Santa Fe,' 'I wonder who's kissing her now?' (Miss Lilian Herlein's song craze), 'I'll make a ring around Rosie,' and others.

"A BLACK MARK."

Farcical Comedietta, Produced at the Kilburn Empire, on Monday, Oct. 24.

Colonel Talbot .....Mr. Percy Francis
Captain Charles Talbot ....Mr. Charles Esdale
Miss Dora Talbot .....Miss Decima Moore

The plot of the above playlet, produced for the first time here on Monday, is very slight, but the idea is a humorous one, and serves to make a half-hour pass pleasantly. Colonel Talbot's ward, Dora, is in love with his nephew, Captain Charles Talbot, who is returning from service abroad. Under Dora's persuasion the uncle consents to her marriage within a week, if she will refrain from kissing Charles during that time. The conditions are very, very harsh, but she agrees. But how is the Colonel to know that the conditions are being adhered to? A good idea, he will mark Dora's face with black paint across the lips, so that if she kisses Charles the mark will be partly obliterated. Dora accordingly shuts her eyes, and the uncle pretends to draw the stick of paint across her mouth. Charles next appears, and in spite of his sweetheart's protestations he kisses her. She informs him what her uncle has done, and the two guilty ones proceed to restore the mark, the face being this time painted in reality. They kiss again, and of course both their faces are now marked, with the consequence that the Colonel discovers what they have been doing. However, Charles and Dora soon bring him round to their way of thinking, and he consents to the wedding shortly taking place.

As we have said, the sketch is slight, but causes plenty of laughter. Miss Decima Moore's acting as Dora was both piquant and charming, and she is to be congratulated on a successful appearance. Able support was given by Mr. Percy Francis as Colonel Talbot, and Mr. Charles Esdale as Captain Charles Talbot.

The remaining portion of the bill at the Kilburn Empire is a very varied one, and crowded houses have been the rule. Unfortunately, on Monday evening the popular comedian, Mr. George Robey, was indisposed and unable to appear, causing grievous disappointment to his numerous admirers. The Gotham Quartette made a welcome deputy and caused much merriment by their quaint antics. Ling and Long (the latter a very lengthy comedian) gave a bright performance with the Indian clubs, the lady, we presume, singing most pleasantly; Miss Daisy Morell is an excellent coon singer, not disdaining to open her mouth wide, to give full expression to the nigger peculiarities in that direction, and incidentally showing a good set of teeth. The Violet Shelley Trio, in The Idea Woman, are extremely good. The wife, newly married, overhears her author-husband repeating his opinion for a magazine publication of what his ideal woman is. As she possesses none of the qualities described, she at once makes things warm, with the result that her husband eventually confesses that his opinion was only for publication.

An exceedingly interesting turn is the Venetians, consisting of living representations of famous statuary and paintings, and singing by well-trained vocalists. The two songs contributed by Mr. Ernest Shand are very welcome and amusing being "Send for me" and "A most delightful evening." Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, in their bicycle act, is one that can be seen over and over again, so clever is it. Miss Dora Lyric's singing of "Give us a grip of your hand," with its swinging chorus, is much applauded, and the Sisters Storm indulge in some sprightly dancing.

A performance of great delight is D'Arc's wonderful marionettes presenting representations of all the stars, most excellently realised. The Scotch fisher girl, Bessie Mackenzie, sings "Loch Lomond" in fine style. The excellent orchestra so ably controlled by Mr. H. Sheldon, is a great feature at the Empire, and Mr. C. Foster Marner, at the head of affairs, is the right man.

PRESTON'S NEW EMPIRE LICENCE.

There was a large attendance of Justices at a special licensing sessions held at the Police Court Preston, on Wednesday, under the chairmanship of Mr. Wm. P. Park, when Mr. J. Parker made application for a licence for the performance of stage plays for the new Empire Theatre, Church-street.

Mr. Smith intimated that he opposed on behalf of the police, Mr. Oakey objected on behalf of the Prince's Theatre, Preston, Mr. Blackhurst offered opposition on behalf of the Theatre Royal, Preston, and Mr. P. H. Edelston also opposed.

Mr. Parker, in outlining the application, said that on May 13, 1907, notice was served of a similar application with regard to a theatre then to be built. Application was duly made on May 29 for a similar licence, and though, by law, he was not really entitled to make it, it enabled him to come before the Bench, and in that way to present plans which were referred to a sub-committee.

The magistrates would recall that at an earlier period an application had been made respecting the rebuilding of the Fleece Inn, which was in fact part of the theatre buildings, although there were no internal communication. However, the Fleece Inn appeared on the plan referred to, and when the theatre plans were before the Bench there were also shown upon them a beer cellar and four saloons—one each for the pit, stalls, dress circle, and gallery, with a lift communicating from the beer cellar to the various saloons. The obvious inference to be drawn from the fact that a beer cellar had been provided was that it was the intention to sell intoxicating liquor.

He did not think there could possibly be any misunderstanding as to the reason for which it was put in that place. The building itself was a very large one, and it was estimated that the provision which was being made for the sale of intoxicating liquor had cost at least from £3,000 to £4,000—a fact which he asked the Court to bear in mind.

The Chairman: You have not told us on whose behalf you appear.

Mr. Parker: The applicant is Edwin Bush, who is the architect for the building. I may say that negotiations have been entered into for the sale of the whole block of buildings, Theatre Hotel and Fleece Inn, but unless this licence is granted there is an end of those negotiations. I cannot say more than that, but that is the present position. My application, therefore, is that this licence be granted unfettered, and without any restriction in regard to the sale of intoxicating liquors in the theatre.

Mr. Edwin Bush, architect, said the theatre had been built in accordance with the plans, and suggestions made from time to time by the committee had been carried out. Certain conditions required by the committee were considered and explained by witness, and suggestions made by the Chief Constable as to precautions against fire were agreed to or left to the committee.

Witness said that many of the modern buildings of the Moss' Empires, on the two-houses-a-night principle, held full dramatic licences. A local instance of such a licence was the Blackburn Palace. They were a great convenience and attraction to the house. Without a licence they would need men at all the doors to give pass-out checks. They could not compel people to stop in, and unless they could come back they would not come again. He had attended many meetings of the committee, and no objection had ever been made to the provision made for saloons.

After hearing counsel the Bench retired to consider their decision. On returning, the Chairman said:—"After carefully considering this important case, the Bench has overruled the technical objection raised, and we grant the full dramatic licence, subject to the usual rules and regulations."

DEATH OF FLORA BLAKE.

Members of the profession at home and abroad will learn with the sincerest regret of the death of Flora Blake (Mrs. Harry Blake), who, with her husband, became widely known as the Two Bees. Mrs. Blake retired from the stage nearly three years ago owing to failing health, and passed away on Tuesday last after much suffering, death being due to chronic gastritis and syncope. Added pathos is given to Mrs. Blake's demise by the fact that in December next the couple would have celebrated their silver wedding.

Born at Weybridge, Surrey, Flora Blake was reared in America. Her professional career was of course bound up with that of her husband, and her success was his. They were married in 1886 at a very early age, and started entertaining in the States under the style and title of the Two Bees—a name which Mr. Blake had the precaution to have registered. Mrs. Blake in those days made a speciality of "waif" parts, and was a capital Oliver Twist. She was also a fine Sam Willoughby, and it was the custom of managers in the older vaudeville houses in the States to engage Mr. and Mrs. Blake for their duets for one week in order that they might prepare for the following week's drama, which usually concluded the programme.

The Two Bees came to England sixteen years ago, and immediately secured popularity with comedy duets, humorously satirising topics of the day and harmonising at intervals. One of their chief successes was the singing contest in which the audience was invited to act as judges, Mrs. Blake rendering a sentimental verse, and her partner coming in with an apt parody. Mrs. Blake had a deep contralto voice with a remarkable range, and if one shut one's eyes it was difficult to tell whether it was a man or a woman who was singing. She was the first to popularise the much-tried "Sweet Marie" in this country, and a favourite song of hers, as well as of the public, was "Who'll buy my toys?" which had a taking refrain, and included the distribution of toys among the audience. Another effective number was "Just tell them that you saw me," which Mr. Blake parodied in his usual cheery style, and so fond of the item was one well-known manager that he used to give the couple twelve dates at a time on the express condition that the selection was included in the turn.

In 1896 a visit was paid to South Africa, with the most gratifying results, and a year later saw the clever pair back again in London, renewing their old successes. In 1903 they returned to America for the purposes of health, and here Mr. Blake obtained the sole singing rights of Great Britain and Ireland of Hiawatha, a musical setting of Longfellow's poem, which he brought to England and produced at the New Cross Empire, with himself as the intrepid brave and his wife as Minnehaha. Later came the sequel, Hiawatha Wedded, with Mrs. Blake as an Indian squaw. Both scenas were prettily mounted, the effects being very picturesque. The last scene in which the lamented artist figured was that of The Man in the Moon, a serio-comic episode, which on his wife's retirement Mr. Blake worked as a single turn. He is now winning success as a patter comedian.

Mr. Blake is anxious to express his deep gratitude to Mrs. Winstone, the mother of Miss Ruby Dahl, and to Mrs. Heath mother of the once famous danseuse, Ida Heath, who attended with the utmost devotion during the last days and nights of Mrs. Blake's illness. The funeral will take place at the Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting, on Monday, the cortège leaving the deceased's residence, 50, Grove-road, Clapham Park, at 1.15 and reaching the cemetery at two o'clock. The societies associated with the variety profession will be well represented, including the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, in which Mrs. Blake took a keen, though, unhappily, not an active, interest, the Water Rats, the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, the Variety Artists' Federation, and other institutions in which Mr. Blake is so hard and consistent a worker. We add our sincere condolences to those of the profession at large on Mr. Blake's severe bereavement.

MASONS AT WORK.

The closing meeting of the Chelsea Lodge 3098, held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on the 21st inst., was marked by a very large attendance of members. The W.M., Mr. Harry Bawn, was supported by Mr. W. H. Hitch, I.P.M., Mr. W. F. K. Walton, S.W., Geo. Dyball, J.W., Wolfe S. Lyon, L.R., A.G.P., Treasurer, C. J. Doughty, Secretary, Frank Hardie, acting S.D., E. T. R. Lester, J.D., A. E. Nicklen, I.G., Angelo Asher, organist, G. H. Hill, Albert Felino, Stewards, and J. H. McNaughton, Tyler. The W.M. having advanced Messrs. Seims, Amandus, Coram, and Tom Finglass, vacated the chair in favour of Mr. W. H. Hitch, who completed the full ceremony with Mr. Harry Clifford. Mr. Gus Sellers was elected as a joining member. A letter was read from Mr. L. G. Sharpe, in which he stated that, owing to engagements abroad, he was reluctantly compelled to resign his office as S.D., upon which it was proposed and unanimously carried that he should hold the same position upon his return. Amongst the members present were Messrs. Douglas White, Bertie Ralland, Fred Neiman, Fred Camp, Willie Benn, Amandus, Harry Clifford, Bert Marsden, John Grant Siems, C. H. Burton, T. S. Burnetti, W. J. Mackay, Tom Finglass, Ernest Dillon, Ed. E. Ford, Andie Caine, Gus Le Clerq, Coram, &c.; and as visitors Messrs. Frank Kelly, Vincent Adams, Sidney Doolcy, Leo Sterling, Fred Wildon, C. D. Carlisle, C. A. Carlile, Harry Claff, and W. O'Connor. At the conclusion of the business the members and visitors adjourned to the Six Bells Hotel for refreshments.

KINGSTON EMPIRE OPENED.

This new place of entertainment in Kingston-on-Thames, which has been erected in a central position, near the railway station, and is one of the most up-to-date halls in the neighbourhood of London, opened its doors to the public on Monday, and judging by the way the people of the riverside town flocked to it during the week, it promises to have a most successful future.

So great was the crush that the police had to be requisitioned to regulate the traffic. It was a compliment to the enterprise of Mr. Clarence Sounes, the proprietor, who has spent many days and nights in superintending the details of the building. Many well-known residents of the ancient and royal borough were present, and amongst them was Alderman Dr. W. E. St. Lawrence Finny, J.P., a former Mayor, who attended in the place of the Mayor (Councillor G. Huckle), and in the course of the evening referred to Mr. Sounes' enterprize in providing for Kingstonians such a well-equipped place of amusement, which, he said, was deserving of the utmost success. Dr. Finny said he was assured that the entertainments to be provided at the Kingston Empire would always be of an inoffensive character, so that husbands could bring their wives and families to see them without the slightest hesitation.

Dr. Finny then introduced to the audience Mr. Sounes, who on coming forward was accorded a most cordial reception. Mr. Sounes appropriately expressed his thanks for the reception accorded to him, and in the course of a few remarks, which were loudly applauded, he said, though he was a stranger to Kingston, he hoped soon to make many friends in the ancient borough, and to see them again and again. When Mr. Sounes had finished speaking three rousing cheers were given for him at the instigation of the ex-Mayor, and the big audience then settled down to the enjoyment of the capital list of turns provided.

The chief item in the programme—and it was a most attractive one all through—was the performance of Raymond, the wonder-worker, who was a revelation to the people of Kingston. Mr. Raymond's posters had led them to expect great things, and they were not disappointed. The new Kingston Empire is at present giving a variety entertainment twice nightly. Mr. Raymond not only appears at both, but gives two shows at each, and each of these lasts over twenty minutes. There were many old people in the audience on Monday night who honestly believed there was something uncanny about this wonderful man. To mention only a few items in his programme, Mr. Raymond takes an ordinary moth-catching net, and swinging it about the stage catches a live pigeon every time. He places a small wooden scout boy doll in a small box, draws a curtain round it for only a few seconds, and when the box is opened a live scout boy of twenty years of age is disclosed. He fills three tankards with confetti, which by some mysterious means turn into hot coffee, milk, and sugar, and a cup of steaming liquor is suddenly transformed into the confetti again.

Not the least important section of Mr. Raymond's interesting performance was entitled "Noah's Ark," a large empty box, the sides of which were all opened and tested. Out of this he brought forth, one by one, about twenty live pigeons, a dog, several cats, one or two rabbits, a parrot, about a dozen large geese, a monkey, and a goat, until the stage looked like a farmyard or a small zoological gardens, and when the sides were lifted again, three human beings stepped forth. But the greatest feat of all, the one which is said to have puzzled Edison, was one in which a young lady is handcuffed in a sack and locked and roped in a box. This is placed behind a screen for only a few seconds, and almost in the twinkling of an eye the young lady steps forth free from her tramme's, and when the box is opened, Raymond, who was standing beside it free only a moment before, is found tied up in the sack, handcuffed, and wearing a coat the young lady had worn. Mr. Raymond was vociferously applauded at each of his performances. The remainder of the programme comprised songs by Little Sunbeam ("Marie Lloyd in miniature"), Tom Clare, the pianist and vocalist; Ryde and Beeman, two funny acrobatic comedians; Luella Cross, an American vocalist and comedienne; Joan Deering, speciality vocalist and violinist; Miss Dorothy Ward, a musical comedy artist; the Comedy Meisters; and Mr. Arthur Gill, the original yokel with many voices. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope was shown at each performance, and the programme was enhanced by the fine music discoused by a full band, under the direction of Mr. A. W. Ketelbey. Mr. Sounes' acting-manager is Mr. F. E. Thorne.

THE TERRIERS' ASSOCIATION.

A special general meeting of the Terriers' Association was held at the Three Stags Hotel on Sunday last, the President, Terrier Griff, in the chair. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the valuer's report of the first quinquennial valuation of the assets and liabilities of the Association. Owing to the great progress made by the Association during the past year, and the consequent increase in its prospective liabilities, it was deemed necessary to review the financial position.

Terrier Ted E. Box submitted the following proposals, which were passed for the consideration of the committee, with a view to their being brought before the members at the next special general meeting:

1. On and after Jan. 1, 1911, the entrance fee to be raised from £2 2s. to £3 3s. for active members, and 10s. 6d. to £1 1s. in the case of honorary members. The annual subscription for new honorary members to be £1 1s.
2. To reduce the age limit of active members at admission: First benefits, from 40 years of age to 35; second benefits, from 45 years of age to 40.
3. To inflict a fine of one shilling a month, or portion of a month, upon active members who are over thirteen weeks in arrears with their subscriptions, to commence upon the first day of the fourteenth week.
4. To instruct the Medical Officer of the Association, to make a stricter examination of candidates for membership, and upon lines usually adopted by life insurance companies.
5. A fine of 2s. 6d. to be inflicted upon honorary members whose subscription is over six months in arrear.
6. Abolition of special grants from the Benefit Fund.

These proposals will be considered by the committee at the earliest opportunity. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Terrier Ted E. Box for bringing them before the meeting.

At the ordinary meeting that followed, Terrier Bert Marsden acted as W.D. and Terrier Syd Walker as Y.B. A hearty welcome was accorded to the President, Terrier Griff, and his health toasted with musical honours.

Terriers Harry Barnard, Fred Neiman, Jack Harris, George Cooper, G. Skipper, T. Burnetti, Julian Mack, Russell Brandow, Jock Miller, E. Gibbs, H. Cee Mee, S. W. Wyndham, Fred Hughes, and Ernest A. Stebbing were also welcomed upon their reappearance in the kennel.

Terrier Parend Jansen is requested to communicate with the Secretary. A letter of great importance is awaiting him.

Houdini paid a visit to the Music Hall Home on Monday, and found the old boys happy and comfortable. They desire to thank him for his kindness in presenting them each with tobacco.

Showman as Hospital Governor.

"Captain" Rowland, the proprietor of a travelling "Empire" and Bioscope entertainment, is to be made a life governor of the Yeatman Hospital, at Sherborne, in recognition of the financial assistance which he has rendered to the institution for several years by means of his "benefit nights." Visiting Sherborne each year on the occasion of the annual "Pack Monday" Fair, which lasts a week, it has been his practice to devote the proceeds of his show for one night to the hospital. Previous to this year's fair £95 had been received by the hospital through his agency, but the showman's latest "benefit" realised 21 guineas, bringing the total to £116.

Roundabout Music.

W. Irvin, a steam roundabout proprietor, in occupation of some land at the rear of Nos. 1 to 11, Peckham-rye, was summoned by Mr. C. W. Tagg, Town Clerk of Camberwell, for making or causing or suffering to be made a loud and continuous noise by means of an organ, to the annoyance or disturbance of the residents of the surrounding district. Mr. G. W. Marsden, solicitor to the Camberwell Borough Council, appeared in support of the proceedings, which were taken under a by-law made by the Council in March last. Mr. W. Godfrey, street-keeper to the Council, spoke to having, on the 15th inst., when the defendant "opened" on the ground, handed him a copy of the by-law; and two residents spoke to the annoyance caused to them by the playing of the organ. The defendant said he was not aware, when he went on the ground, that the by-law was in existence. Since then he had deadened the organ, so that it could only be heard on the ground. Mr. Baggallay.—Putting the soft pedal on doesn't stop the organ, you know. The Defendant.—It is my livelihood, sir. Mr. Baggallay.—It may be your livelihood, but you mustn't get your livelihood in such a way as to be a nuisance to others. The defendant was ordered to pay a penalty of 20s. and £2 2s. costs.

Guild Subscriptions, 1910.

Per Mr. Hawkey, Hon. Sec. for Cleethorpes Branch:—John Hawkey, 10s.; J. R. Oliver, 5s.; F. Sheardown, 5s.; Mark Woolmark, 5s.; C. H. Horton, 5s.; Messrs. Allard, 5s.; Brown, 5s.; Oust, 5s.; Hancock, 5s.

Kingsclere Fair.

Kingsclere is situated nine miles from Basingstoke and seven miles from Newbury. This pleasure fair is held the first Tuesday after Oct. 11, and forms a halting place between the two towns mentioned above. The fair was held this year Oct. 18 and 19. The old familiar face of W. Mathews, proprietor of roundabouts, swings, &c., was once more present; but Mr. Deakin, who has had a stall for gingerbreads, toys, &c., here on Fair day for over forty-four years, without once being away, has died during the past year, his widow being present this year, and much sympathy was felt with her in the loss of one who had been a favourite of the children and the grownups. Hoop-la was a great attraction; also the shooting galleries were much patronised in spite of the wet weather.

Lifeboat Field, Salisbury.

Mr. Jacob Studt's Electric Picture Palace and variety combination is located at the above ground for a short season, in addition to his splendid electric motor track. A host of stalls, etc., are provided by W. H. Freeman. A very fine illumination of electric light is seen nightly.

SHOWMEN' GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

PRESIDENT: PATRICK COLLINS.

OBJECTS OF THE GUILD.

1. To conserve the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers and entertainers, whether menaced by faddist legislation or by public bodies.

2. To vindicate the character and the avocation in life of the showman whenever unjustly maligned or attacked.

3. To defend the fairs and holidays of the people wherever threatened, and to encourage all wise efforts to improve the entertainments of the people.

A Most Urgent Case of Need.

We understand from Mr. Irvin (who is interesting himself as a friend in the matter) that Mr. and Mrs. Chittock are in necessitous circumstances. We have known for some time past that dear old Chittock, as we love to call him, has been in failing health. Mrs. Chittock, with the bravery and perseverance that mark showwomen, has done her best to keep the show going and to maintain the family. The task has been manifestly too much for her. An attempt was made in the summer to sell the show, Mr. Tom Norman, out of sheer kindness, doing his best to dispose of it as a going concern. This well-meant effort failed. Since then the family has made a precarious living on various private pitches in the suburbs of London. In these days of keen competition from permanent picture palaces at every street corner, picture shows on vacant land in back streets make little money. Anyhow, the Chittocks are, through ill-health and continued misfortune, in real distress. Mr. Irvin kindly lent them his traction engine, and gave his personal help to move the show to a new pitch last week, and he informs us that it is a case needing immediate help. We shall be glad to receive subscriptions, however small, and will acknowledge them week by week in The Era. Mr. Pedgrift will act as treasurer to the fund, and the Rev. T. Horne will see that the money goes to Mrs. Chittock for their pressing wants.

Ilkeston Fair.

The Fair was held on the 20th, 21st, and 22nd inst. The most noteworthy shows were Collins' roundabouts, "Teddy Bears," motors, and horses; the joy wheel, and the cinematograph; Crighton's Pictures, showing the "fight" film, also Captain Payne's show of moving pictures. The helter-skelter, &c., &c., were also here.

Midland Notes.

Sedgwick's Menagerie will visit Redditch on Nov. 5. This grand collection will stand on the Royal Hotel yard.

Mr. Thomas Clarke gave a benefit for Stratford-on-Avon Hospital, and the handsome sum of £20 9s. 6d. was collected.

No portable theatre has visited Astwood Bank for some time.

Mr. C. Herbert's amusements have been visiting Claverdon, near Warwick.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

THE GUILD CHAPLAIN'S REPORT, 1910.

Fourth Article.

Guild Service at Mitcham Fair.

A special feature of the fair was the Guild Service held in Ball's Show (kindly lent for the occasion by the proprietor) on the Sunday night. It was timed to commence at 8.20, after evensong at the Church of St. Mark's (the show being in St. Mark's parish). The curate (the Rev. Lough Fargan) read the lesson, and at the close of the service, at the request of the Guild Chaplain, addressed a few earnest words of exhortation to the congregation. The Rev. T. Horne conducted the service, and preached. The show was well filled. A large number of showpeople were present, and great satisfaction was expressed with the service, both by showpeople and their friends and neighbours for the fairtime at Mitcham. Mr. Lough Fargan was invited to become hon. local chaplain to the Guild.

The Guild Work in Suffolk.

A notable advance in guild work has been made this year in the diocese of Norwich. Until two years ago the only possible centre for the Guild was King's Lynn. Lynn Mart Fair, about the middle of the month of February being a great opportunity for the Chaplain to get in touch with the East Anglian showfolk, and the Chaplain always took full advantage of it, the Guild annual meeting at the mart and the service on the fairground being notable events.

Two years ago Miss Anita Welton, of Farlingay Hall, Woodbridge, Suffolk, locally esteemed as taking a deep interest in the shows and showpeople when at Woodbridge, thought it possible to widen the sphere of her kindness, and after consultation with the Chaplain, became hon. diocesan secretary for Norwich. The idea was to develop guild work on diocesan lines, beginning, as all good works do, at home. Miss Welton secured the co-operation of the Woodbridge clergy, then going further afield, enlisted the good offices of the clergy at Ipswich, Yarmouth, and Aldeburgh. The Chaplain's report for 1909 tells the story in full of this endeavour. This year's report is the record of the spread of the work in the diocese of Norwich and the growing interest of the showmen and the church in the work of the Guild. The Chaplain was able this year to visit and preach at Woodbridge, Ufford, Ipswich, and Aldeburgh.

Guild Work at Aldeburgh Fair.

Despite a deterrent storm of wind and rain the spacious show pavilion of Mr. Charles Thurston was well filled for the Guild service at 8.15 on the Sunday evening of the fair. The hon. local chaplain, the Rev. S. W. Goldsmith (Vicar of Aldeburgh) intoned the service, which was sung throughout by the church choir and mission band of the local detachment of the Church Army. Miss Allen, the organist of the parish church, was at the harmonium. The service was most hearty and devout. The Guild Chaplain preached on the theme suggested by the collect for the day, "Faith, Hope, and Charity." (Prior to the service in the show booth, the chaplain was the special preacher at the parish church.) After the departure of the general congregation, the Vicar, in response to a vote of thanks, told the showpeople how gladly he co-operated in the good work of the Guild, and how proud he was of the honour they had done him in making him one of their hon. chaplains. At their fair he would readily help them all that was in his power. He referred to the great pleasure it had been to himself and his ready helpers in the matter, to turn the church house into a showmen's hostel for the days of the fair. For the two married couples and the eighteen or twenty young men, mostly the employees of the fair, who could not find lodgings in the usual way, he had done his best to provide temporary lodgings at the church house. That, and all else within his powers, he did gladly for them. For that he needed no vote of thanks. He concluded with a short and exceedingly telling exhortation to so live their lives that each year made them better for the work attempted, the work in God's grace done. He hoped that the Chaplain would visit Aldeburgh again. He and his people would gladly welcome him, and all that they could do to help the work of the Guild would be readily done.

Guild Work in Scotland.

Both at Greenock Fair in July and Ayr in September, excellent work is done in Scotland. The Chaplain hopes next year to open out other centres in Scotland. This can only be done as the work becomes more self-contained through its honorary local chaplaincies in England, and thus liberating the organising chaplain for pioneer work in parts of the United Kingdom hitherto untouched. The steady increase in the number of hon. local chaplains and the linking up of the Guild with the special agencies of the parishes where fairs occur will make pioneer work the chief endeavour of the Chaplain in the future. Owing to local circumstances the Guild Service cannot be given at Greenock Fair. With the earnest goodwill of Mr. John Wilmot and family, the lessees of the fair, a good temperance work has been carried on at Greenock fair time for many years past. The Guild Chaplain finding this really excellent temperance mission in existence on his visit to the fair, felt it his duty to co-operate with it and not to attempt a guild service; that might seem a rival endeavour to attract the show-people.

Temperance Work at Greenock Fair.

The Guild meeting on the Sunday afternoon was held in the British Women's Temperance Associatiestion tent, by kind permission of the local committee of the Society. The ladies of the local committee of the B.W.T.A., with their usual kindness, provided a tea for the young people of the fairground. This took place immediately after the Guild meeting, and was followed by a highly-successful temperance meeting.

At this meeting the Rev. T. Horne was an invited speaker, and several of the local clergy took part in the proceedings. A pleasing feature was the way in which the showpeople co-operated with the ladies' committee in making the gathering a success. Messrs. W. Wilmot and J. R. Styles made excellent speeches, and Miss Strand sang a temperance solo with great acceptance. The tent was crowded to its utmost capacity by the showpeople and their Greenock friends.

Guild Service at Ayr Fair.

On the Sunday morning, at the invitation of the Vicar, the Guild Chaplain was the special preacher at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Ayr. The Rev. J. Vavasour Hammond, the Vicar, is the Hon. Local Chaplain of the Guild, and he takes a great interest in the showpeople when they visit Ayr. The Guild service in the evening was held in Green's spacious show pavilion. Nearly a thousand people were in the booth, and hundreds went away unable to obtain admission. The choir from Newton Parish Church led the singing and Miss Rainie from the Manse, a great friend of the showpeople, was the organist. The hymns and the canticle were heartily sung by the vast congregation. The Guild Chaplain took the service and preached, taking for his theme "compassion." He brought to his hearers by many striking illustrations the need for more sympathy, tenderer and quicker compassion on our fellow sufferers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond and Miss Rainie held an informal reception of the showpeople at the close of the service. 1910 Fair at Ayr will mark a great forward step in the appreciation and acceptance of the Guild and its work.

The Guild at Gloucester Fair.

For several years past the corporation of Gloucester has given civic recognition to the work of the Showmen's Guild, the Mayor, the City Sheriff, and the Town Clerk, with the members of the City Council, have attended the annual public meeting of the Guild, held in Mr. Jacob Studt's show on the fairground.

The Citizen, the leading local paper, commenting on the meeting, said: "One of the most pleasing features of Gloucester Fair is the glimpse which one may get on the Sunday of the good work done by the Showmen's Guild. For several years past the Rev. T. Horne has entirely devoted himself to its work, and, indeed, he was largely instrumental in its formation twenty-one years ago."

The usual afternoon meeting was held on Sunday, in Mr. Jacob Studt's show, when the Mayor (Alderman F. Hannam-Clark) presided, supported by Councillors J. Crofts, C. G. Clark, the Town Clerk (Mr. G. Sheffield Blakeway), Mr. S. Aitken, and Mr. Matthews.

The Mayor expressed the pleasure it gave him to follow the example set by many of his predecessors in office to preside at that meeting. He had known that a Showmen's Guild existed, but not until a few days ago had he known the basis upon which it worked. In the first place it was, and quite rightly so, a trade protection society, for every honourable trade had a right to protect itself against vexatious legislation and other things. There was also an educational side to its work, and he was sure it gave a general levelling-up of the whole tone of the showman's business. He personally could remember the great change which had taken place in Barton Fair since fifty years ago. There was also the religious side to the Guild, and it was quite right that where a large number of showmen were together they should have the opportunity of attending at least one service on the Sunday. Amongst the objections which some people had brought against the life of the showpeople was that their children were not getting proper education. Well he was assured that nine-tenths of the showpeople had a permanent home somewhere, and there they left their children, where they could attend the schools and receive the necessary education. He was sure that if such were not the case the school attendance officers in the various towns would soon be inquiring about the children of a school age, and he thought that fact sompletely answered the case. He wished to congratulate the showmen present upon the new site of the Gloucester Fair. The Corporation—of course the Corporation always did the right thing!—had been very wise when they closed Barton-street to the fair. The Corporation were very glad that the affair had got into the hands of one man like Mr. Jacob Studt, for he arranged everything and the Corporation had had absolutely no complaints from other showmen that they had been unfairly treated by him. He wished them all fine weather for the rest of their stay in Gloucester.

Mr. Aitkin (ex-Mayor) proposed votes of thanks to the Guild Chaplain and to the Mayor, and in doing so remarked that for several years past he had attended the Guild meetings on the fairground, and upon each occasion with increased interest. He had upon a former occasion ventured to name the Guild Chaplain as the Bishop of the Fairground, with a diocese greater than an Archbishop's and a parish as big as that claimed by the famous John Wesley.

As indicating the strong personality and the power exercised by the chaplain, he informed the meeting that upon reaching the fairground that afternoon the chaplain had immediately demanded that he (the speaker) should attend the Guild service at night, and, as upon former occasions, accompany the hymns of the service upon the piano of the show. Most readily he complied with the chaplain's demand, and if he, an ex-Mayor of that ancient cathedral city, could be so quickly captured by the showmen's Bishop, it was no wonder that the people to whom Mr. Horne had devoted his life should rally round and work with him in his good endeavour.

For more than fifty years he had attended Barton Fair, and he could corroborate everything that the chaplain and the Mayor had said with regard to the upward progress and improvement of the entertainments at the fair. As a member of the Corporation he gladly identified himself with the good work that Mr. Jacob Studt and other leading showmen had done ever since the fair had been removed from the street to its present spacious ground. He, therefore, gladly proposed the votes of thanks to both the Mayor and the speaker.

Councillor C. G. Clark, in seconding the vote heartily identified himself with the commendatory remarks of Councillor Aitkin. He, too, claimed to have been a constant patron of Gloucester Fair, both when it was held in the street and since its happy removal to its present site. He considered that the excellent and judicious words of His Worship the Mayor were exactly the weighty testimony to the worth of a good movement that deserved the recognition of all public bodies, and of all those who were interested in the uplifting of the people's amusements. It had been a great pleasure to him to hear the eloquent and persuasive lecture that Mr. Horne had given them. Without doubt, the Guild Chaplain was a thorough master of his subject, and it was no exaggeration to say that he had won his position as the leader and pastor of his people by sheer ability and force of character. He gladly seconded the vote of thanks, and put the resolution to the meeting.

The Guild Service at Night.

After taking part in Evensong at the Parish Church of the fairground, St. Nicholas, whose vicar—the Rev. J. J. Luce—is hon. local Guild chaplain for Gloucester, the Organising Chaplain conducted a most successful service of the Guild in the same show pavilion. The choir, as on former occasions, was entirely made up of young showpeople, Mrs. Studt's troupe of dancers and the Misses Studt forming the principal members of the choir. Mr. S. Aitkin (ex-Mayor) was at the piano, and accompanied the hymns and canticle. The reverent and devout way in which the service was rendered was most impressive. The lesson was read by Mr. Aitken, and the sermon was by the Guild Chaplain.

Amusements at Bath.

Marshall and Ernest Hill's Fun City is lodged on the Broad Quay, Bath, this week, and attracts large crowds.

Payne's Portable Theatre.

The above theatre, which has been located at Wigston, a goodly-sized town near Leicester, for some time now, and has just been granted a further licence by the county magistrates, has been doing enormous business, and has become exceedingly popular. Mr. Frank Payne is popular in the district, as in his younger days he was a well-known amateur athlete, and has had many a hard race over hurdles and on the flat with Mr. G. O. P. Jarvis, our Leicester correspondent. His success in the theatrical line is well-deserved, as he puts on his plays in a most creditable style, and has a capable company. This week he is playing Firematch the Trooper, Only A Vagabond, All that Glitters is not Gold, and The Streets of London, which are preceded by a laughable farce.

"Humorous and Tragic Stories of Showman Life." Told by the Rev. Thomas Horne, Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild. Price 6d., post free 7½d. Address: The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE AUCTIONEERS' LEAGUE AND THE HOME OFFICE.

In reply to the letters of the League to the Home Secretary, the text of which appeared in our issue of last week, the hon. secretary of the League, Mr. Fred M. Barber, has received the following official reply:—

"Home Office.

"Oct. 22, 1910.

"Re Shops (No. 2) Bill.

"Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th inst., and to say that the same shall receive due attention.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"Edward Troup.

"F. M. Barber, Esq."

The Executive Committee of the League is now busily engaged in preparing the case for trade defence to be submitted at the proposed interview (if the League is successful in obtaining one). We have every hope and expectation that the Home Secretary (busy man as we know him to be) will afford the organised travelling auctioneers a full opportunity of submitting their claim for an exemption under the Act.

The following subscriptions are acknowledged by the hon. treasurers:—Harley Jones, Fenton, £5 5s.; Frank Wood, Sheffield, £5 5s.; Stossell Gertha, Berlin, 10s.; and J. Rogan, Manchester, 10s.

Some Queer Notions on the Subject.

We have received two or three remarkable letters on this question—remarkable as coming from business men (wholesale supply agents and firms). The idea of these advisers is that to take action will be to rouse still greater opposition to the travelling auction mart business and enterprise. We are advised by these would-be friends to emulate the conduct of the ostrich—the foolish bird that, when pursued, buries its head in the sand and fatuously believes that its enemies will blindly pass it by. We seriously warn all who have a real interest in the travelling auctioneers' business to read the Bill, particularly the—"Application of Part II.

"10. Subject to any provisions contained in a closing order it shall not be lawful in any locality to carry on in any place not being a shop, retail trade or business of any class, on any day or at any time when it would be unlawful in that locality to keep a shop open for the purposes of retail trade or business of that class, and this Act shall apply as if the person who carried on such trade or business were the occupier of a shop:

"Provided that—

"(a) this prohibition shall not apply where the retail trade or business is carried on in a place, not being a shop, merely as auxiliary or incidental to some other business (not being retail trade or business) and does not form a substantial part of that business; and

"(b) nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a barber or hairdresser from attending a customer in the customer's residence, or the holding of an auction sale in a private dwelling-house.

"11. Where a shop is exempted from any of the provisions of this part of this Act or a closing order made thereunder on the ground that it is a shop in which a trade or business mentioned in the second schedule to this Act is carried on, and other trades or businesses to which the exemption does not apply are carried on in the same shop, the exemption shall not extend to such other trades and businesses, and shall be subject to such conditions as may be imposed by regulations made by the Secretary of State or by the closing order."

If the Bill goes through as printed, with no exemption for portable auction marts and no modification of the death-dealing clauses set out above, an ancient and honourable profession, and all its allied interests for labour and manufacture, will be legally killed at one fell stroke. Ostrich hunters rejoice at the fatuity of the bird when it is found with its head buried in the sand. Travelling auctioneers have trade rivals who would rejoice if they were foolish enough to remain a ready and passive prey for their enemies.

"He is thrice armed who hath his cause just."

The whole of the commerce and trade of the Empire has grown up with travelling auctioneers plying their lawful trade in the land. To secure better conditions of labour for shop assistants it is surely not necessary to destroy a perfectly just and honourable business and avocation in life.

MITCHAM FAIR RIGHTS AND THE BOARD OF CONSERVATORS.

The actual transfer of the Fair Rights to the Board of Mitcham Common Conservators is now an accomplished fact. The one public body that could deal in an open and straightforward way with the question of the removal of the Fair to a better site is now in possession of the only remaining vested interest, the Manorial Franchise of the Fair (that up to 1905 was in the possession of the Bailey Family, of London show and roundabout celebrity). For the past four years the Franchise of the Fair has been held by four Mitcham gentlemen, who up to the present year did not surrender their trust to the Board. This unfortunate delay nullified all the strenuous efforts of the friends of the people's fair to bring about a wise settlement of the question at issue between the abolitionists and the showmen and the people of Mitcham.

A Better Outlook.

A great deal of nonsense has been talked about Mitcham Fair. Again and again we have pointed out in these columns the real facts of the situation, yet the enemies of the people's Fair have gone on in their usual style, talking and writing as though no such person existed as the Home Secretary, or that Fairs could be abolished without the operation of the Abolition of Fairs Act, and against the wishes of the people. Repeatedly have we set out the governing factors in the matter, only to find that our efforts have been in vain with regard to the abolitionists. One encouraging result has been that the people who love their fair have roused themselves in the defence of their fair rights—yes, the rights of the people, properly theirs by long usage, and protected by Act of Parliament—have come out of all this agitation to maintain the fair. We shall return to this subject next week and endeavour to show the urgency of a wise and statesmanlike solution of the question. We notice with the utmost satisfaction that at the last meeting on Thursday at Croydon, Alderman Allen gave notice "That at the next meeting of the Board he would move that Mr. Malleby Deeley be asked to open up negotiations with the Home Secretary and the Showmen's Guild with regard to Mitcham Fair, to see if the differences could not be amicably settled."

This important item of news reaches us as we go to press. We rejoice that at last, out of all the mists of ambiguity and uncertainty there will be a clear issue. The people of Mitcham and the showmen will gladly support the wise proposal of leaving the matter in the hands of Mr. Malleby Deeley, M.P., who throughout the various vexatious delays of the past three or four years has pursued a truly wise, public-spirited policy. As we have already indicated, we shall go thoroughly into the question next week.

FILM GOSSIP.

Not Granted.

THE L.C.C. on Nov. 2 last decided not to grant a certificate in respect of the cinematograph hall on the ground floor at the Casino de Paris, 291a, Oxford-street. The premises have since been licensed under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, and the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, at the meeting of the Council on Tuesday, reported that application has again been made by Mr. A. S. Markwell for a certificate with a view to obtaining at the forthcoming licensing meeting a music licence for the premises. Some slight improvements have been made in the premises since the previous application was made, but the premises are still far from complying with the regulations of the Council relating to places to be licensed for music. The Committee recommended that the application be not granted. Agreed to.

Kensington Picture Theatre.

A PROGRAMME of films quite up to the usual high standard associated with this popular picture house is screened this week, including The Kid's Kite (Cosmopolitan), The Poacher (Pathé), The Jealous Cavalier (Clarendon), The Flag of Company "H" (Pathé), Affectionate Pets (Pathé), What the Daisy Said (A. B.), The Marriage of Muggins, V.C. (C. and M.), a stirring military story, full of exciting situations, and showing how the gallant hero captured a fair bride; and Funeral of Prince Francis of Teck (B. and C.).

Holloway Empire.

THE work of installing a motor generator at the Holloway Empire has just been completed in strict accordance with the requirements of the L.C.C. and the Islington Borough Council Electricity Department. It is fixed in what is known as the "front intake room" on a cast-iron bedplate, and motor and generator are coupled together with a rigid coupling. The work has been completed to the satisfaction of Mr. A. D. James, the electrical engineer for Moss' Empires, Ltd. The most important result of the installation of the motor generator is the greatly-improved lighting of the pictures. Under the new conditions every film will be marked by a clearness and an absence of flickering hitherto unattainable.

Ayr Pavilion.

THE charms of roller-skating have, for the time being, at any rate, been exhausted, and the spacious pavilion was opened this week as an electric theatre. The programme lasts from 7.30 to 10 p.m., and, as the admission is only 2d., 4d., and 6d., patrons are assured of quantity. The Continental refreshment-tables are an innovation. Among the pictures on view this week are The Romance of a Jockey, Cowboy's Stratagem, Poor-luck Buys Furniture, A Bolt from the Blue, and the special for the last three nights of the week is The Funeral of Prince Francis of Teck.

Picture Programme for the Benefit of Widows and Orphans.

A SPECIAL benefit performance in aid of the Widows and Orphans' Fund of the Professional Fire Brigade Officers' Association was given at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham, on Thursday evening, when Mr. Waller Jeffs arranged a special programme of pictures. A large and appreciative audience assembled, and the entertainment was in every way a success. By kind permission of the Chief Constable (Mr. C. H. Rafter), the Birmingham Police Band contributed to the entertainment.

New-street Picture House, Birmingham.

THIS attractive theatre is in the enjoyment of a very successful season, and there is every prospect of a continuance of the heavy patronage. The bright interior and the excellence of the picture programmes make a very favourable impression upon first visitors. Pathé's Gazette illustrates current events, and the dramatic and comic pictures are new and exhibited in attractive style.

Opening of Pavilion, Bishop Auckland.

THERE were large attendances at the opening of the Pavilion, Bishop Auckland, on Monday. The hall is splendidly fitted, the seating accommodation being for 400 persons, and no effort has been spared for the comfort of the patrons. The programme of pictures is attractive, and a successful season is anticipated.

THE great success which has attended the animated picture shows in the Royal Victoria Rooms, is still continued, and Mr. Charles Palmer, the manager for the Corporation, is always placing something new and attractive before his patrons. The series of the celebrated "AB" pictures are always well received, and the steadiness with which the pictures are shown by the Gaumont de luxe machine adds greatly to the enjoyment of the large audiences which are drawn nightly to the rooms, an added attraction being the appropriate music rendered in a masterly manner by the musical director, Mr. A. J. G. Fox. The massive gilt frame which surrounds the screen is also a wonderful improvement in showing the pictures to the best advantage.

Pictures at Brighouse.

ON Monday evening Mr. Sydney Carter's pictures drew a crowded audience to the Albert Theatre, Brighouse, some exceedingly good films being shown, both humorous and dramatic, viz., The Bandit's Wife, Foolshead and the Lions, Forest Rangers' Daughter, The Biter Bit, The Plans of the Fortress, The Impalement, His New Appointment, Off for the Holidays, Seal Catching off Tasmania, The Embarrassing Legacy, Coco as Policeman.

Brighton's Picture Palaces.

AN excellent series of animated pictures is exhibited at the Court Theatre, Brighton, this week. Drama is splendidly exemplified by The Attack on the Mill, Through the Darkness, and Between Love and Honour; A Visit to Benares is a fine topical film; and those of a comic character include Calino Buys a Dog, Cambodian Dance, and How Bumptious Papered the Parlour. The following recent events are pictorially illustrated:—Crowds Outside the Court during the Crippen Case, Scenes in Lisbon after the Revolution, Football Flashes (Rugby and Association Games), Paris to London (airship flights), King and Queen of Spain at the Seaside, and Boy Scouts at Finchley.

Attractive Programme at the Theatre de Luxe.

THE animated pictures at the Theatre de Luxe, Brighton, are changed each Monday and Thursday, and continue to attract good houses. Dramatic stories are conveyed by The Consequences of an Imprudent Act and Alain de Serigny; the Pathé Gazette depicts recent events; Road to Happiness is interesting; Athens is a picturesque film; and great fun is provided by Lazy Farmer Brown, The Plumber, and An Advertisement Answered.

The Duke of York's Increasing Popularity.

THE Duke of York's Picture Theatre in Brighton continues to increase in popularity. Excellence and variety characterise the pictures. The Attack on the Mill represents a stirring episode in the Franco-Prussian War; Chivalry on a Ranch and the Cowboy's Stratagem are delightful stories; Feeding Seals at Catalina Island is interesting; Muggsy becomes a Hero is entertaining; and The Bobby's Dream is very comic. There is an entire change of programme twice weekly.

Eastbourne's Gallery of Illustration.

MESSRS. MURRAY KING AND CLARK on Monday last made an excellent start with their new Gallery of Illustration at Eastbourne. Situated in the principal thoroughfare, Terminus-road, the new building is now a comfortable, well-ventilated, and refined place of amusement. The place will cater for the better class of people, and the prices of admission range from 6d. to 1s. 6d. During the week excellent films are screened, and local pictures of the unveiling of the late Duke of Devonshire's statue by the Duke of Norfolk are now being shown at every performance.

New Picture Palace at Dudley.

MR. J. MAURICE CLEMENT, proprietor and manager of the Dudley Opera House, encouraged by the immense audiences which assembled for his experimental run of pictures during the summer season, is building a fine hall, to be called the Colosseum Picture Palace. The building is rapidly approaching completion, and will be opened in December. The hall has a total length of 120ft. and a proportionate width, and will seat 1,000 persons. The architects are Messrs. Gammage and Dickenson and the contractors Messrs. Oakley and Coulson, both firms of the town. The new hall is in a central position, being close to the Opera House and the L. and N.W. and G.W. Railway Stations, and also tramway terminus.

B.B. Pictures at Dundee.

THE B.B. Pictures are going strong in Dundee, their success being an eloquent testimony to the capable management of the hustling district manager, Mr. Tom Lunn. The programme presented at the Palace Theatre this week is a very attractive one, and includes, amongst others, the following fine films:—The Flag of Company H, Twa Hieland Lads, Wilful Peggie, Tontolin's Discovery, and What the Parrot Saw. At the Gaiety Theatre a capital film depicting The Geisha, a play performed in Japan by Japanese players, unfolds a weird story of vengeance. The film is richly coloured, and proves a very attractive item in a programme which also includes A Sailor's Lass, A Selfish Man's Lesson, A Live Teddy Bear, &c. At the Empire Theatre Acting-Manager Mr. R. W. Austin nightly beams on two packed and thoroughly delighted houses, who are loud in their praise of the delectable fare offered them. The B.B. Pictures are undoubtedly a feature of the amusement world in Dundee, and they well deserve to be so.

Cinema Theatre, Dundee.

MR. P. FEATHERS' new Cinema Theatre, Dundee, opened its second week on Monday evening with an exceptionally fine programme, which included a popular film, A Boarding School Romance. Other pictures are The Heavenly Message, The Patent Fire Extinguisher, Killing the Lady Killer, &c., while two illustrated songs, "By the fountain" and "Comin' through the rye," are well received.

"Hiawatha" at Keighley Picture Palace.

Vint's Palace, Salisbury.

VINT'S PALACE (late County Hall), Salisbury, opens on Monday, Dec. 5, with pictures and varieties on the two-houses-a-night system.

Queen's Picture Palace, Stoke.

SOME excellent films are thrown on the sheet this week, and prove very popular with the patrons. In the list The Plans of the Fortress as a piece of realistic and dramatic work stands out prominently. Also shown are The Red Girl's Romance, Our New Mamma, the Hunting Whip, &c. Charlie Chard is an amusing and versatile comedian; Wee Baby Violet dances pleasingly, and Annie Casey is popular in her pantomime numbers.

Daylight Moving Pictures in New York.

BY means of a new invention, called the "mirror screen," moving pictures can be made visible in broad daylight. The invention consists of a glass screen backed with a chemical preparation. It will be shown for the first time in the roof garden of the Victoria Theatre, New York, where a moving picture exhibition is to be the staple attraction through the winter.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE demand for tickets for the Employees' Benevolent Fund concert on Sunday, Nov. 20, at the London Coliseum, is very great. All tickets below 2s. 6d. in price have been disposed of, and a large number ordered cannot be supplied. The following additions to the list of artists already announced in this column have been made: Miss Evie Greene, Mr. Phil Ray, the Two Bobs, the Meister Glee Singers, Mr. John Phillips, Mr. Gurney Russell, The Romps, Mr. Walter Williams, Mr. Charles Pond. Miss Ruth Vincent, writing to Mr. Pedgrift, regrets that she cannot appear, and offers to take tickets. Miss Margaret Cooper regrets that she cannot appear, as she will be on tour on the date of the concert.

A SUB-COMMITTEE of the Operators' Association will meet on Wednesday at 29, Wellington-street, to go through the numerous papers sent in for examination. The final examination will then be arranged. A general meeting of members will be held on Tuesday at the Musicians' Club, 9, Great Newport-street, at 11 a.m. All members of the N.A.C.O. in London are urged to attend this meeting.

THE friends of Mr. William Johnson, general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, will be grieved to learn that his wife died on Thursday evening, the 20th inst. Since Sept. 8 Mrs. Johnson had been in a nursing home attached to the Bolingbroke Hospital, Wandsworth Common, where an operation to remove a cancerous growth from the breast was performed. The operation was successful, and it was thought Mrs. Johnson would shortly be able to leave; but during the third week blood poisoning was discovered, and since that time to the hour of her death it was a constant struggle, one day better, the next day worse. Hope was never relinquished, but it was realised that the heart, under the constant strain, might fail any moment. Thus it happened, death resulting after a severe fit of coughing. The funeral took place on Monday at Brookwood, where Mrs. Johnson is buried with her only boy and her father. Mrs. Johnson was passionately fond of flowers, and in accordance with her known wishes that flowers should not be given to wither on the ground, many friends who intended to send wreaths kindly refrained from doing so. Only the near relatives attended the funeral. Mr. Johnson desires to thank those many friends who have expressed their sympathy with him, and to say also that he greatly appreciates the similar resolutions sent to him by various meetings of employees and committees.

Gymkhana at West Stanley.

A VERY successful gymkhana was held at the West Stanley Skating Rink on Wednesday last week, nearly 2,000 persons being present. The various events—obstacle race, ladies' hoop race balloon race, half-mile amateur race, musical chairs, &c.—were all well contested, several valuable prizes being given.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Professor Moritz Clarke and Dainty Lillian.

PROF. MORITZ CLARKE (the skating Apollo) and Dainty Lillian (the Queen of the Wheels), famous international figure and trick skaters, who have appeared at the principal London and Continental rinks, are making a great success on their tour. Their clever and varied programme includes selections from the International Championship figures, star and other artistic figures, fancy skating; waltzing, including "Merry Widow," "Drop Three," "Amelia," Butterfly and Jump, Veleta, barn dance, &c.; two-step, cut-off, spread-eagle, &c.; pair skating, candle and knife maze, trick skating, pirouettes, &c.; and is altogether a very attractive exhibition.

Master Eric Batterworth's Clever Exhibition.

AT the Continental Carnival held on the 20th inst. at Olympia Rink, Pentre, Rhondda, Master Eric, the clever son of Prof. Tom Butterworth, the manager, gave a clever exhibition of fancy and skate dancing which met with much enthusiasm from the crowded onlookers. He was also successful in breaking his last winter's record for half a mile, made at West Hartlepool. His time at West Hartlepool was 3min. 15sec., but last Thursday he covered the distance in 2min. 58 1-5sec. Mr. Butterworth offers a challenge to the world for skating distances of a quarter and half mile at the same age. Eric is only five years and four months old.

New Skating Rink at Woolwich.

AT the meeting of the L.C.C. on Tuesday, the Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Mr. W. A. Cornell, showing a skating rink proposed to be erected on a site between Plumstead-road and Spray-street, Woolwich. Application will be made for a music and dancing licence for the premises. The rink will have accommodation for about 680 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being complied with, the premises appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The committee accordingly recommended the Council to grant a certificate provided that certain stated conditions had been complied with.—Agreed to.

Westover Rink, Bournemouth.

A CHALLENGE CUP of the value of £12 is to be put up for competition between hockey teams, the matches to be played at the Westover Rink, Bournemouth, and any team winning the cup two years in succession wins it outright. Silver medals will be given to the winning team and bronze medals to the losers in the finals. The matches must be played at the Westover Rink on dates to be arranged, and any team entering for the cup will be liable to be scratched if not able to play on the date fixed. A gentleman has put up a purse of £15 for a race between Powell and any floor manager or instructor in England, £10 to go to the winner and £5 to the loser. If there is more than one challenger, the right to race against Powell will be decided by heats, the winner to meet Powell.

Confetti Battle and Carnival at Derby.

THE Alexandra Rink, Derby, continues to maintain its great popularity, and the carnival organised last Wednesday evening attracted patrons in costumes of charming and novel variety. Prizes for various events were competed for with great zest, whilst a confetti battle terminated an enjoyable night. Mr. W. H. Innes, the courteous manager, is untiring in his efforts to please.

Rinking Popular in Dundee.

THE Dundee West End Rink is being well attended just now, and rinkers are enjoying the graceful art on as fine a floor as one could wish for. By special request, the sports night has been altered to every Wednesday instead of Thursday as formerly. The Olympia Skating Palace is always well attended. Manager Mr. Jas. F. Allan announced a grand sports carnival for Thursday evening, Oct. 27—anniversary night.

Leicester Boulevard Rink Carnival.

MR. T. P. BLAKESLEY, the one-time champion skater of England, and now the popular manager of the Leicester Boulevard Rink, one of the largest, handsomest, and best-equipped rinks in England, is to be highly praised for the immense success obtained at the carnival held there on the 20th inst. Almost every conceivable character and nation had its representatives on the surface, and the rink was literally packed with admiring onlookers. The whole of the arrangements were carried out in a manner that reflected great credit on all concerned, and the handsome and numerous prizes offered for competition secured an immense number of entries.

The Prize-Winners.

THE prize-winners were as follows:—Most original costume, Mr. P. Bree (snowman) and Mrs. P. Bree (fountain); best historical, Mr. H. Angrave (Henry VII.) and Miss Ellis (Mocassin); best fancy dress, Mrs. Wheat (Cleopatra) and Miss Prince (Prince Charming); best evening dress, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Hunter; consolation prize, Mr. A. Cain; best two alike, Messrs. Bowles and Robinson; best flower-girl, Miss E. Angrave; best cimic, Mr. Kendale (ballet girl); trade mark, Mr. Boulter; best soldier, sailor, or policeman, Mr. Hollis 1, Mr. H. Glover consolation; juvenile class, Master Hyslop (Indian Prince) and Miss Hope (Topsy). During the evening an exhibition of waltzing, two-step, and fancy skating was given by Messrs. Firth and Blakesley, jun., which was greatly appreciated, some of the feats performed being particularly clever. Mr. P. Robineon, with Miss "Billy" Whitfield as a partner, won the waltzing competition, and Master and Miss Wilson were awarded the verdict in the two-step.

JOHN LAWSON

IN "THE MONKEY'S PAW." AMERICA.

[Photo by White.

Sam M'Kee, in the Morning Telegraph, Oct. 5, says:—

"In The Monkey's Paw William Morris is giving his patrons the most tensely holding serious story ever presented on any stage. Moreover, the acting of John Lawson, for sincerity of detail and convincing strength, has never been surpassed. . . . The dread of what might happen next so possesses the audience that towards the finish of the act, when a door is opened in response to a loud knocking, many of the women present are afraid to look. At the Monday matinée one man was carried out in a dead faint. . . ."

The New York American, Oct. 6, says:—

". . . There is a dramatic playlet at the American Music Hall this week that even people who are not steady patrons of variety are going to talk about. They are already discussing a new actor, John Lawson, who is the central character in The Monkey's Paw. The reception of the act shows that an original theme, well worded and excellently interpreted, is welcome to vaudeville audiences as it is to persons who believe that the legitimate stage is the only place where real art can find a welcome boon. Lawson is a firm believer in detail. He is like David Belasco in his staging of this playlet from over the sea . . . the setting is perfect. Credit should be given to William Morris for bringing the playlet to this country and introducing such a sterling actor as Mr. Lawson to American theatregoers."

The Evening Mail, New York, Oct. 4.

". . . . An extraordinarily intense work which is thrilling capacity houses at the American. . . . The setting is the most perfect yet seen in vaudeville. . . ."

The New York World, Oct. 4.

". . . The Monkey's Paw held the large audience spellbound and is without doubt the most intense little playlet yet presented in vaudeville. Mr. Lawson's acting as the old Devonshire man was most excellent. . . ."

PLEASE NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

Special provision has been made at each theatre for the exhibition of loose photographs. Artistes are requested to supply these to the Manager on reaching the theatre, and they will be returned in good condition at the end of the week.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

COUNTY OF LONDON.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES.

The London County Council, in pursuance of Section 27 of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1910, hereby gives notice that the effect of the provisions of Part V. of the said Act is as follows:—

From and after the first day of January, One thousand nine hundred and eleven, no person shall carry on an employment agency in the County of London, exclusive of the City of London, without a licence from the Council.

An employment agency means any agency or registry in the County for or in connection with the employment of persons in any capacity, but does not include:—

(a) Any employment agency conducted by or under the direction and supervision of the Board of Trade under the Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, or any other Act of Parliament; or

(b) Any employment agency which is carried on exclusively for the purpose of obtaining employment for (i.) persons formerly members of His Majesty's Naval or Military forces, or (ii.) persons released from a prison or Borstal Institution, or from a reformatory or industrial school, and which is certified at the commencement of this Part of this Act and annually thereafter by the Admiralty or the Army Council or by the Secretary of State for the Home Department (as the case may be) to be properly conducted; or

(c) Any employment agency conducted by a metropolitan borough council under the Labour Bureaux (London) Act, 1902, by a central body or distress committee under the Unemployed Workmen Act, 1905, or by the Port of London Authority under the Port of London Act, 1908.

A person requiring a licence or the renewal of a licence shall make application in writing to the Council under his own name and shall state the trade name under which he carries on or proposes to carry on the employment agency, the nature and address of such Agency and whether he is interested in any other employment agency, and if so, to what extent.

Every application for a licence to carry on an employment agency in existence on Aug. 3, 1910, must be made within one month from the publication of this notice.

The Council shall grant or renew a licence to the applicant to carry on an employment agency of the description and in the name and at the address specified in the application, provided that the Council may refuse to grant or renew a licence to (a) any person under the age of 21 years or (b) upon the ground that the applicant is an unsuitable person to hold such licence or (c) that the premises on which it is proposed to carry on the employment agency are unsuitable for the purpose, or (d) that an employment agency has been or is being improperly conducted by the applicant.

On the applicant receiving a notice from the Council that objections have been, or will be taken to the renewal of the licence, an opportunity of being heard against the refusal of the licence shall be afforded to the applicant on a written application made to the Council within three days after the receipt of such notice.

The Council shall deliver, if required by the applicant, particulars in writing of the grounds upon which the grant or renewal of a licence is refused.

Any person who deems himself aggrieved by the refusal of the Council to grant or renew a licence may appeal to a Metropolitan Police Magistrate, within 14 days from the date of such refusal and not less than 4 days' notice of such Appeal is to be sent to the Council.

Any such person aggrieved by any decision of a Magistrate may appeal therefrom to a Court of Quarter Sessions.

The undermentioned fees shall be paid to the Council:—

(a) In respect of the grant of a licence to carry on an agency bona-fide carried on by the applicant within the county continuously for five years before Jan. 1, 1911	£1 1 0
(b) In respect of the grant of a licence for an agency not being such an agency aforesaid	£2 2 0
(c) For the renewal of a licence	£1 1 0

Licences shall expire on Dec. 31 in each year unless previously revoked.

The Council may make by-laws relating to the conduct and business of an employment agency and for regulating the premises.

A copy of such by-laws shall be exhibited in the premises in a suitable place to be approved by the Council.

Authorised officers of the Council may enter and inspect premises specified in any licence or application or any premises used for the purposes or in connection with the business of an employment agency and also inspect documents kept in connection with the agency.

Penalties are provided in the Act as follows:—

Offence.	Penalty.
Carrying on an employment agency without a licence or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of a licence or obtaining a licence by wilful misrepresentation.	Not exceeding £50 and a daily penalty not exceeding £20.
Refusing to permit an authorised officer of the Council to enter or inspect any premises or to inspect the entries required to be kept in the records of the agency or obstructing the officer in the discharge of his duty.	Not exceeding £5 and a daily penalty not exceeding £2.
Contravening any by-law or any provision of this Act for the contravention of which no penalty is specifically provided.	Ditto.

The Court may, in lieu of or in addition to imposing any penalty, make an Order revoking the licence, but any person feeling aggrieved by such Order may appeal therefrom to a Court of Quarter Sessions.

Where any company registered under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1907, or under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any Act amending the same, commits any offence for which a penalty is provided by Part V. of the above-mentioned Act, the Council may take proceedings in respect of such offence against all or any of the Directors and Managers of such Company as well as or instead of against the Company, and each such Director and Manager shall be liable on conviction to the like penalty as if he or they were the person or persons committing the offence.

Dated this 22nd day of October, 1910.
G. L. Gomme,
Clerk of the London County Council.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Proprietors, The Aberdare Public Hall, Theatre, and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here, in From Mill Girl to Millionaires. Mr. J. A. Hybert is successful as Matthew Marsh; Mr. Arthur Plummer is seen to advantage as Laurence Langdale; Mr. Charles Vivian makes an effective Dr. Lace Levallie; and Miss Isla Garnet-Vane played sympathetically the part of Lina Lee; whilst Miss Yhoa Moore's acting as Muriel Marsh is praiseworthy. Miss Lizzie Lennon is well placed as Tilly Tyndesley; and Mr. Victor G. Vayne as Tommy Turnbull provides a humorous element.

New Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Manager, Mr. Arthur Norton.—Gladys and Alber, in their funniosities, come in for a good reception; Irene Meldon, a chic comedienne and speciality dancer, is popular; Stanley Waller, on the piano, is clever; Howey and Jesson, in their singing and speciality dancing act, are well liked; and the usual series of high-class Bioscope pictures are shown.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Hall Caine's plays have a special place in the theatrical world, and command a special class of theatre-goers. This week the novelist's famous drama, The Bishop's Son, is being produced, alternated by The Eternal Question. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine takes the part of Dan, the Bishop's son, in the former, and of the no less important part of David Rosse in the latter. He acts the two parts with fidelity and impressiveness, and may reasonably be expected to yet go far in the theatrical world. Mr. Creagh Henry, Mr. Julian Cross, and Mr. J. Burton are able and experienced exponents of the Manxian customs and conditions, whilst Miss Helena Millais and Miss Pem Wheeler represent the well-known and attractive female characters with charming grace and ability.

Palace Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—Mr. Arthur Roberts, the well-known comedian, heads a popular list of attractions this week with a mirth-provoking sketch, The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife. Mr. Roberts is well supported by Mr. Harry J. Worth as Major Thunder, Miss Ruby Celeste as Mrs. Thunder, Miss B. Hobson as Mrs. Green, Miss Ida Furneaux as Kitty, Miss Lizzie Primmer as Martha, and Mr. T. Johnson as Sammy. In addition to this attractive playlet, Mr. J. P. Ling gives an entertaining display of mimicry and drollery; the Spanish Juanitos are acrobats of original and daring characters; Wyotti is a skilful conversational juggler; Earle and Godfrey are clever comedians; Charles Rowen displays comical eccentricities; Moon and Morris play and dance with novel effect; and Webb and Branston are vocalists of more than ordinary ability.

The Tivoli.—Proprietors, The Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Middleton and Spellmyer have the place of honour this week in a bright American sketch, entitled A Texas Wooing. A series of wild Western scenes is depicted, and stirring episodes and dare-devil adventures follow each other in rapid succession; Tennyson and Wallis are Irish comedians of bright and original cast; Mr. Ben Lewin is an elocutionist of power and ability; Gicardo is a juggler of unusual smartness; George Norton gives a burlesque representation of amusing variety; Alf. Brooks sings and dances with appreciative grace; Palles and Cussick give an amusing sketch of The Funny Side of Life; Miss Leonie Dixon dances well; and Miss Rose Cambry sings with melodious charm.

ABERTILLERY.—New Metropolitan Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Seaborn and Evans; Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. P. Evans.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company presented the picturesque domestic play The Eve of Her Wedding to a crowded house on Monday. Mr. Louis Lingard was an excellent George Tremain (afterwards known as Nemo); Squire Leverton was capably played by Mr. Ben Carr; Mr. Charles Digby was very clever as Dick Leverton (who took the wrong turning); Mr. Jay Kay caused roars of laughter as Rudolph Earle; Mr. Sydney P. Clewlow was good as Giovanni (secret agent of the Italian Government); Dean Clifton was played with much power by Mr. A. E. Pringle, his cunning and villainous ways being great; Mr. G. Davies acted Paul Cavisham and Hiram F. Younger (American swell) with accurate judgment; Mr. Herbert Hastings as Jack Herne, a cripple, was excellent in that pathetic part; Miss Mona Gray made an admirable Renie de Telle, an adventuress; Miss Nancy Roberts acts with charm as Mavis Leverton; and Gwendoline Younger is well played by Miss Emilie Mayhew.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The Alpha Amateur Dramatic Society is presenting Our Boys here in aid of the local charities. Capital houses have been the rule.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The Four Mexican Lasso Wonders top the bill, and give a smart and picturesque speciality; Ralph and Nellie Haword, in Military Mad, please immensely; that old pantomime favourite, Leo Fields, has a reception that is cordial in the extreme; the Landix Trio, operatic vocalists, are worthy of high commendation; Billy French gives an accomplished dancing exhibition; Alonso Sylvano performs clever feats of equilibrism; Dan Conroy is a comedian of merit, and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Lovers of the grand opera have an opportunity this week of hearing an excellent répertoire given by the Moody-Manners Opera Company. On Monday Faust was presented in a faultless manner, the leading rôles being in the hands of Mr. Frank Christian (Faust), Miss Rose O'Farrell (Marguerite), Mr. Harry Brindle (Mephistopheles), Mr. Graham Marr (Valentine), Mr. Kushell (Wagner), and Misses Bessie Weir and Alexander. On Tuesday Samson and Delilah received a fine interpretation, those taking part as principals being Mr. Albert Bowyer (Samson), Miss Helen Culver (Delilah), and Messrs. William Farmer, Graham Marr, Harry Brindle, Davies, Home, and R. Woolard. Carmen, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, and Maritana are also in the week's bill. Mr. Harrison Frewin is chef d'orchestre.

Wide World Pictures.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Sloman.—A series of local military pictures is a feature of the programme here, and comic and dramatic subjects make up an interesting entertainment.

ARBROATH.—Public Hall.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Abner Joiner.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company opened here in The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Tearle invested Shylock with dramatic vigour and cunning; Antonio was in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Lodge; Bassanio was capably portrayed by Mr. Leons Courtville; Portia as played by Miss Kate Clinton was a finished performance. The other parts were in the hands of competent artists. The Three Musketeers, Jeanie Deans, East Lynne, Macbeth, and It's Never Too Late to Mend are also in the week's bill.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Miss Horniman's company from the Independent Repertory Theatre, Manchester, is in occupation here. On Monday Mr. Bernard Shaw's Candida was performed to a good house. Mr. Ian Maclaren gave a masterly interpretation of the Rev. James Mavor Morell; as Eugene Marchbanks Mr Leonard Mudie won the close attention and approval of the audience; Mr. Edward Landor as Mr. Burgess, the contractor, scored; as did also Mr. Ernest C. Cassel as the Rev. Alex. Hill. Miss Rosalind Ivan realised the sweet and sympathetic Candida perfectly; and the Proserpine of Miss Louise Holbrook was excellent. The play was preceded by The Troth, in which Miss Dorothy West-Symes and Mr. Jos. A. Keogh distinguished themselves. On Tuesday Mr. A. Bennett's Cupid and Commonsense was acted, Miss Rosalind Ivan as Edna Beach, Miss Louise Holbrook as Mrs. Copestick, Miss Dorothy West-Symes as Miranda Finney, Miss Hilda Davies as Emily Boothroyd, and Miss Marie Leonhard as Alice Boothroyd doing excellent work. Mr. Ivan Maclaren as Ralph Emery displayed a power of analysis and a force of character which was very impressive; Mr. E. Landor as Eli Boothroyd and Mr. Leonard Mudie as Willie Beach submitted excellent studies; and Miss Rhoda Marshall did well as a servant.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—A romantic play, The Love of the Princess, by Mr. C. Watson Mill, is being played here for the week, Miss Maisie Hanbury is a central figure in the

COPY OF TESTIMONIAL.

27th October, 1910.

To T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll Street, W.

Dear Mr. Harris,—

I am very pleased with the cleaning of the Pantomime Wardrobe you have just sent back. It may interest you to know that some of the Costumes were made six years ago. They look almost as good as the first time they were used.

Yours truly, J. A. HARRISON,

play as Princess Idalia, and the actress maintains with appropriate dignity the character of a Royal personage as well as the courage and the womanly traits of character well approved. Mr. Frank Harvey scores as Prince Conrad, and the villainous interpretation of Count Nicholas, the traitor, is ably simulated. Good work in the delineation of foreign personages is also given by Messrs. John Burton, Charles O'Connor, John Worth, D. Lawrence Doyle, W. Palliser Acock, and E. Morgan, and by Misses Maud Steeple and Josephine Lee in the characters of Lady Irene and Constantia, a sister of mercy.

AYR.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—During the first three nights of this week Mr. Marcus Draper presented The Christian. Miss Elizabeth Risdon impersonated Glory Quayle in a capable manner; and Mr. Marcus Draper gave an admirable representation of John Storm. Lord Ure was represented by Mr. Benson North; and Father Lamplugh by Mr. Edwin Ling. The company also included Misses Rosa Burgess and Winifred Palmer, Messrs. Burton Yaldwin, W. Burgess Barratt, Walter Watford, Percy Carlingford, and others. For the last three nights Mr. W. W. Kelly presents A Royal Divorce. Miss Edith Cole plays her favourite part, the Empress Josephine; and Mr. Frank Bradley is responsible for a good study of the Emperor Napoleon. On Friday evening a complimentary benefit was given to Miss Edith Cole.

Picture Palace.—"The Animated Chronicle" is a great success, and it is to be continued weekly. Among the other pictures are Love of a Chrysanthemum, Italian Cuirassiers, and Out of the Night.

Pavilion.—The most attractive films shown this week are Dottynob's Courtship, The Rock Climbers, Ah Sing and the Greasers, Central American Romance, The Closed Door, and Mother Driven from Home.

BACUP.—Court Theatre.—Manager, Mr. John Walters.—Mr. Harry Foxwell and company, in the domestic drama Mother, are here. Mr. Harding Thomas is a success as Duncan Fairweather; Mr. A. J. Haviland plays Frank Rodney well; Miss Fannie M. Wellesley shows distinction in the part of Nellie Fairweather; Miss Thorne Hallam is worthy of mention; a clever actor is Mr. Will Beasley as Jasper Rawden.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Barnsley Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Hand that Rocks the Cradle. Mr. Gerald Jordan as Lieut. Philip Marchant portrays the part excellently; as Derek Mason Mr. Guy Hastings is admirable; Lieut. Arthur Barclay is well played by Mr. Stanley Vine; as Jerry Dale and Nanoya Mr. Finn Doyle and Miss Babs Stuart make a good comedy pair; and Miss G. Goddart is a sympathetic Audrey Melrose.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Barnsley Empire Palace Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—A good bill is headed by the Martinecks, French comedians, in the absurdity A Rag Doll; the Mars Trio present some good gymnastic tricks; Maud Clifton sings in excellent style; Cummin and Seaham are a clever and droll pair of acrobatic comedians; the Mano Aldex Troupe are an excellent musical turn; the Kiers and Tom Drew are also on the bill. Two good pictures are shown on the Palacescope.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—This theatre has recently been fitted out to meet modern requirements, and the Picturedrome Company, under the management of Messrs. Lionel Prichard and Francis A. Osborne, are providing a variety entertainment throughout the winter in conjunction with moving pictures. This week the programme includes Jack Toler with his wonderful dog, Lady; Mlle. Ponky Blundell, a vivacious comedienne and dancer; and Mr. Sid Clarke, in some clever tumbling. Amongst many interesting pictures, that of Life in the Next Century provides great fun.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Miss Annie Saker and Walter Howard's company in The Boy King is here. Mr. Walter Howard is an accomplished Ragged Prince, and Miss Annie Saker makes a charming Camilla. Mr. Charles Weir is a capital Duke of Savernac; Mr. F. G. Clifton is an acceptable King; Mr. Claude Allingham is good as Captain Fabian; and Miss Grey Logan a refined Elaine.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—A costume concert party, "The Cigarettes," is here, consisting of Miss Nellie Schrader, a pleasing vocalist; Miss Annie Bebb, with pleasing items; Mr. Reginald Crowe and Mr. Leo Roy, with plenty of variety; Mr. Ernest Crampton, with a good choice of songs; and Miss Ida Stanley, a good pianist.

Tivoli.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—A capital all-round programme is presented here. The premier turn is a dramatic episode, by Alan Holt's company, entitled A Society Woman; Hampton and Bauman are popular with their songs; Beattie Foster is a pleasing comedienne; Wallace Whitney has some taking songs; Daisy Sloan's Scotch songs are much appreciated; the Sisters Caselli receive much applause for some clever dancing; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes.

BARRY DOCKS.—New Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Hamilton Warden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Dure.—A crowded house welcomed Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company with The Merry Widow on Monday evening. Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter established himself a favourite as Baron Popoff; Mr. Robert Needham scored a success as Prince Danilo; Mr. Ronald Pomeroy was heard to advantage as Jolidon; Mr. Harry Emeric scored as Nisch; Mr. Tom H. David played well as the Marquis de Cascada; the efforts of Miss Dorothy Arliss as Sonia were praiseworthy; Natalie was excellently portrayed by Miss Mabel Hope.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. W. W. Minto.—Mahatma is billed here as the queen of second sight; the Danbys, comedians, and pictures, are other attarctions.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Smith is here this week. Mr. Montagu Love is excellent as Tom Freeman; Miss Jessica Thorne handles the title-rôle with admirable reserve, her scenes with Mr. Love being taken in the spirit of true comedy. Miss Eleanor Delaporte portrays Mrs. Dallas Baker capitally; Mr. Vivian Gilbert enacts Algie Peppercorn with an air of unruffled calmness; Miss Kathryn Collier brings out the better nature of Emily Chapman cleverly; and Miss Eileen Atherley is the Mrs. Otto Rosenberg. Mr. Cecil Brooking undertakes the easy-going Mr. Dallas Baker satisfactorily, and Mr. George Child plays the smart part of Fletcher amusingly.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schuberth.—Chung Ling Soo is paying a third welcome visit to Bath this week, and again attracts crowded houses to witness his wonderful tricks and illusions. In the first part of the programme turns are given by Ernest Montefiore and company in The Little Colonel. The Society Quartette once again demonstrate their position as speciality dancers of the front rank. Others who also give enjoyable items are Dorothy Dacey, comedienne; Chas. Erard, pianist and also a smart mimic; and Milner and Storey, comedy artists. The pictures include an effective film, The Squire's Romance, which is loudly applauded.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Old Heidelberg is again seen here, the company being that of Mr. Ernest Benham. Mr. Owen Nares admirably portrays Prince Karl, and Miss Kitty Ricimer, who plays Kathie, brings out the bright Bohemian side of the character with fine abandon, and is naturally emotional at times. Mr. Sydney is seen to advantage as Lutz, and Mr. Frank Powell is a hard, incisive Von Haugh. As the old tutor, Dr. Jütner, Mr. Ernest Bodkin is admirable; and Mr. Ian Ogilvie Will causes much amusement as Kellermann. Von Wedell is ably represented by Mr. C. Derwent Grenville, and Mr. Percy Crawford is decidedly good as Rüder.

BELFAST.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company opened here on Monday with the well-known famous play New East Lynne. In the rôle of Lady Isabel, the charming, emotional actress, Miss Violet Ellicott, achieved a noteworthy success, her acting being worthy of very high praise indeed. Honours were also achieved by Mr. Frederick Victor, whose impersonation of Archibald Carlyle was certainly faultless; Mr. Charles Levey's impersonation of the despicable Francis Levison (alias Captain Thorne) reflected no little credit on the able actor; and the rôle of Justice Hare was excellently portrayed by Mr. George Bishop; Miss Alice Dorie and Miss Sophy Shenton filled the rôles of Barbara Hare and Cornelia Carlyle with no little satisfaction; and much humour was infused into the rôle of Murty O'Flynn by the capable Irish comedian Mr. Paddy Dupres; Mr. James Cole appeared as Lord Mountsevern, and Mr. Byron Douglas filled the rôle of Richard Hare to advantage. Other rôles were effectively portrayed by Miss Dorothy Douglas (especially good as Willie Carlyle), Miss Gwladys Veevers, Miss Rose Bright, and Messrs. M. Talbot, F. McFarlane, and V. Barker.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here is the fine drama Geoffrey Langdon's Wife, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company. The leading rôle of Mary was sustained with skill by Miss Kathleen Magee; Mr. Wilson Coleman cleverly delineated the part of the unprincipled Felix Beverley; Miss Leila Drummond admirably sustained the rôle of the Hon. Mrs. Sands; and one could not desire a better representative of the rôle of Colonel Milla than Mr. Cyril Grier; an effective impersonation of Jack Stirling was furnished by Mr. Reginald Brown; the humorous element was sustained by Miss Minnie Goepel, a vivacious sweet Nancy; and Messrs. Joe Redfern and Alfred G. T. Raymond, who were undoubtedly most amusing as Thomas and Charles; Mr. W. Annesley appeared to advantage as Arthur Bellairs; and Mr. Francis Leslie appeared with no little success as Geoffrey Langdon. Other rôles were sustained by Messrs. Harland Brookes and Hubert Rufus.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The star here is the accomplished comedienne, Miss Dorothy Ward, whose local pantomime triumphs are not easily forgotten, and who, on this occasion, gains an enviable success; Mr. Jock Mills is a droll Scotch comedian with good songs; and Drew and Alders, described as "Two Valiant Coastguardsmen," furnish a very clever act, which meets with much approval; Miss Gladys Hooley appears in her scena, "Fiddle and I," her violin selections being capably rendered; Miss Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop," is paying a return visit with satisfactory results; and the same remarks apply to Kisbey, a realistic mimic; Bugler Carr, equilibrist; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Among the many interesting films presented here may be mentioned Trailed to the Hills, District Attorney's Triumph, Peg Woffington, &c. The variety element is sustained by Newco and Sullo, comedians; and Elliott and Lane, Scotch comedians.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Some attractive films have been shown here, including 'Mid the Cannon's Roar, The Eleventh Hour, The Marked Time-table, &c. Miss Heather Belle, Scotch character vocalist, appears at each performance with gratifying success.

BILSTON.—Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—This week's company includes Sylvene, assisted by Miss Florence, equilibrist; Will Hay, popular comedian; and Little Violet, in a variety of pretty dances.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—A visit from Miss Florence Baines and her No. 1 company, in the musical farce Miss Lancashire, Limited, is keenly enjoyed by large audiences. The fine impersonation of Mary Ellen Thompson by Miss Florence Baines, both vocally and histrionically, is worthy of the highest commendation; Mr. Burt Burton enacts Moses Goldberg with unctuous humour; Mr. Payne Fletcher gives a capital interpretation of Farmer Thompson; Mr W. E. Brereton is excellent as the Lawyer; Mr David Donaldson is a good John Higgins; and Mr. Eric Vivian works hard and with success as Harry Higgins. Miss Molly Shine is a bewitching Eva Lancashire, and possesses excellent vocal abilities; and a capital cast includes Miss Mary Collier, Miss Maud Locker, Mr. Henry Lloyd, and Mr. Hubert Mitchell.

Hippodrome.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is here in The Sins of a City. Miss Maude wins much popularity in the rôle of Nora Gillmore; and the eccentricities of Isaac Levi are admirably reproduced by Mr. Victor Du Cane. The rascalities of Ralph Blackwater are vividly illustrated by Mr. Arthur L. Read; and conspicuous in the cast are also Mr. Harold Heath, Mr. William Vane, and Miss Gipsy Alexander. The performances are given twice nightly, and good business results

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. George Dance's company present the highly successful melodrama, The Whip, for the first time to Midland audiences, and they are accorded a warm greeting by crowded audiences. The elaborate nature of the staging of the piece emphasises the thrilling incidents with which the play abounds, and the piece fully merits the support it has. There are two outstanding characters—Captain Sartorys, represented by Mr. James Lindsey, and Mrs. Beamish, played by Miss Simeta Marsden. Those persons are responsible for exceptionally clever acting. They are well supported by a strong company, including Miss Vera Beringer as Mrs. D'Aquila, Miss Gwendolen Wren as Lady Diana, Mr. Dallas Cairns as the Earl, Mr. Edwin Brett as the trainer, Tom Lambert, Miss Dora Lane as Myrtle Anson, and Mr. Eric Hudson as Joe Kelly.

Prince of Wales's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Mr. H. B. Irving is presenting The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Hyde to large and interested audiences. It is a powerful production, and the acting is above the ordinary type. It is a triumph for Mr. Irving, and the piece should have a long and successful run. It is splendidly staged, and the sketchiness of Stevenson's story is largely expanded in the play, and numerous characters are added. Mr. Irving assumes the dual character, and he is assisted by a strong company. Miss Dorothea Baird gives a pathetic study as the blind wife of Jekyll; and others who deserve special mention are Mr. Henry Vibart as Lawyer Utterson, Mr. Charles Sugden as Sir Danvers Carew, Miss Eille Norwood as Lanyon, Mr. Frank Tyars as Poole, the butler, Miss Grace Croft as Lady Carew, Miss Irene Brown as Lady Hilda, and Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem as Hyde's landlady. The play is preceded by a bright one-act piece entitled A Maid of Honour.

Alexandra.—General-Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo.—Patrons are thoroughly enjoying the performance of the melodrama Facing the World Alone, admirably undertaken by Miss Ethel van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company. Miss Ethel van Praagh as the Duchess of Pimlico displays considerable ability; the heroine is safely entrusted to Miss Nellie Garside; Mr. Whitty is a powerful villain, and gives a very effective performance; Mr. Edward Ouston appears as Caleb Valentine, Mr. Harold Forde as James Sudbury, and Miss Flora Hastings as the heroine's mother.

Bordesley Palace.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Miss Hilda Beverley and company present a weird mixture of love, hate, and revenge in the melodrama A Woman of Two Lives. Miss Beverley undertakes the chief work in impersonating the dual rôle of Ogarita and Angela Fenton, and is a big success; Miss Mary Brammer makes a handsome and evil witch; Mr. Herbert Pearson is prominent as the hero; and the comedy element is in the capable hands of Miss Marie E. Robertson and Mr. E. Hall Eldon. Other characters are ably sustained.

Metropole.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Unusual interest attaches to the appearance of the American scout, Young Buffalo, who is supported by his American company in the romantic drama, King of the Wild West. A realistic setting is provided by the inclusion of several genuine American Indians in the cast, and the principal characters are exceedingly well drawn. In the title-rôle Young Buffalo is the heart and soul of the piece. He is perfectly at home in every situation, and well deserves the applause bestowed upon him. Miss Caroline May Blaney is a typical wild Western girl; and other parts are cleverly filled by Miss Agnes McCarthy, Miss Lucy Murray, Mr. Ernest Foster, Mr. Edwin J. Collins, Mr. Edward Rich, Mr. Antoine Provost, Mr. G. W. Cockburn, &c.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis M. Chapman.—A Criminal's Bride is enjoying a week of great success, presented by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Elizabeth Dundas scores a triumph in the character of Lavender Loseby, who is under the evil influence of Austin Deepdale, a difficult, heavy part, capably filled by Mr. Annesley Hely; Mr. Frank Robertson is seen to advantage as Sir Harry Felstead; Mr. Grayson Bancroft has many admirers as David Loseby, and other characters are in capable hands.

Carlton Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The drama Driven from Home has lost none of its popularity, judging by its reception here this week. The piece is enjoyed each evening by crowded houses, and the thrilling scene in the sawmill causes a great sensation. Miss Violet Forbes undertakes the dual rôle of Laura Raybrook, the outcast, and Walter Hatherleigh, her son, with marked ability, and her characterisation is warmly applauded. Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes is conspicuous as the adventurer, Geoffrey Waring; and Mr. Harry Leyton as Willie, the half-witted outcast, is a popular figure. Miss S. Beaven and Mr. Fred C. Imbert portrays the humorous characters very effectively; and the other characters are well chosen.

The Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Darracq's sensational motor-car act is proving a good attraction; Bella and Bijou are big favourites here, and the suffragist sketch is as attractive as ever; Miss Ethel Newman appears in an amusing sketch Her Wedding Day; the Falcons are smart comedy acrobats; the Smythsons keep the audience in merry mood with The Lie Alarm; J. W. Rowley is a smart entertainer; H. Squire Day is a lively comedian; and Carl and Carr are an excellent comedy couple.

The Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas. A warm welcome is accorded Gertie Gitana, the young lady with the sweet, attractive voice and novel dances; a brightly-conceived duologue, Dick's Sister, affords an opportunity for the advantageous display of graceful light comedy acting of Miss Adrienne Augarde, ably assisted by Mr. Victor Huntley; Ernie Garner is a genuine comedian, and his monologue in local dialect is well received; a ladder performance by Les Silvas is a remarkable acrobatic achievement; Witty Watty Walton gives a diverting performance; Walter Bellonini is an extremely clever juggler; Tom E. Conover is a character comedian; and the Royal Scots are responsible for a delightful musical act.

Gaiety.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—At the head of an acceptable programme is the popular comedian, George Gilbey; The Pirate's Cave is the title of a tabloid pantomime, effectively presented by the Five Oxos; Russell Brandow is a smart coloured dancer; and the Croisit Trio, French acrobats, are responsible for a remarkable athletic exhibition; Rosie Everette, comedienne and dancer; Winifred Norman, in a quaint Dutch character; James Basnett, a popular Birmingham vocalist; and the McKinleys, duettists and dancers, also provide enjoyable items.

Hippodrome.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—A novel and sparkling act is that presented by Montgomery and Moore two Americans who should go far in this country; as patter comedians, Friend and Downing would be hard to beat; Herbert Sleath's company appear in the stirring sketch Her Ladyship's Guest; the Zanosis are accomplished jugglers; Rosie Lloyd is a vivacious comedienne; Bertie Herron displays marked ability and originality; a comedy act is given by the Crisps; Will E. Fall is rightly styled "the eccentric fellow"; Hazel Glade is a chic comedienne; Tom Franks is a pleasing ventriloquist; and the Zenary Brothers perform clever acrobatic feats in their act, "A Meeting at the Club."

Aston Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—At the head of the list is Harry Roxbury's great success The Cowboy Millionaire, presented by Tubby Edlin; in the character of William Wiggs Mr. Edlin has ample opportunities for displaying his mirth-making talents, and the sketch is loudly applauded; Tom Gott, the confiding comedian, makes many hits in the Yorkshire dialect; and Rob Wilton's quaint style provokes much humour; Kioto and Esa present a daring equilibristic act; the Rangers perform difficult feats on cycles; Gibbon and Bell score in a dancing speciality; Joe Belmont is an entertaining siffleur; Lambert and Hands are applauded in a vocal scena; and the Hipposcope effectively winds up the programme.

Curzon Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—The pictures shown this week represent all that is newest and best in animated photography. Great interest centres in the travel series throwing light upon Darkest Africa, and depicting the beautiful scenery of the Zambesi and Victoria Falls. The Geisha is the title of a pretty Eastern story told in colourgraphy, and an excellent reproduction is given of the celebrated story of The Lyons Mail. Pathé's Animated Gazette, as usual, ranks high in public favour, and amongst the remaining pictures An Adventure of Lieut. Rose and Over the Garden Wall are well worthy of mention. M. Georges Dollin, a popular impersonator, appears successfully in several selections from an extensive répertoire.

Picture House, New-street.—Proprietors, The Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Quill.—The entertainments at this hall are receiving undiminished patronage and the programmes are kept entirely fresh

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. W. V. Garrod and company are reappearing here in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Garrod again plays the rôle of Tom Godley in a charcteristic manner, and a clever Enoch Jaggins is Mr. Ernest Vaughan; the Ben Jaggins of Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh is very effective; Mr. Owen Remonde is a success as Phil Drive, and Miss Madge Dougles portrays Gretchen von Craus delightfully; Miss Bertha Kingston is a winning Fern Godley, her singing being admired. The scenic effects are good.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Boswell's Circus is very popular; Cassie Walmer is a clever eccentric vocalist and dancer; the Three Tree children give a bright musical scena; and Ray, Miles, and Ray are a smart juggling trio. Jack Sheridan cleverly understudies his father, Mr. Mark Sheridan, and Harris Coonie is a good singer and dancer; Craig, Roze, and Craig give a clever gymnastic turn, and good films are shown by the Hipposcope.

BLACKBURN.—New Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Resident Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reg. Yorke.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company is presenting The Geisha and A Greek Slave. In the former play Miss Aimee Grey as O Mimosa San scored both in singing and acting; Miss Adela Crispin was a delightful Molly Seymour; Mr. Edward Carlton was well placed as Wun-Hi, missing few opportunities; Mr. Colin Coop was good as the Marquis Imari; Mr. Herbert Uzielli as the Captain of the Guard sang very nicely; Reginald Fairfax had an able exponent in Mr. Edmund Sherras; and the rest of the characters were in good hands.

The Palace.—Sole Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Mr. Fred Lindsay does wonderful things with a whip; a capital turn is given by Bert Woodward, the steeple-chasing cyclist; Mr. John Donald, the Scottish baritone, sings in fine style; Reg Beauchamp is a good comedian, and scores well; Miss Louie Tracey, the "dapper dandy boy," gives a smart turn; Tamamoto, Japanese rope performer, has few equals in his line; a very amusing scena is given by the Arthur Gallimore Trio; Carl and Mary Ohms's animal circus is greatly enjoyed; and two very interesting pictures complete.

New Princess.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Manageress, Mrs. C. Clarkson.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in For Love and the King was well received by a good house on Monday. The part of Gerald Meredith was admirably played by Mr. Watson Mill; and Miss Joan Ellis did well as Natila. Mr. Alfred Maurice in the part of the miser gave a clever study; and Mr. Beckitt Bould was good as Prince Uros. The humorous portion of the drama was well placed in the hands of Mr. Oscar Tower as Carl Oppenheimer. Mr. John C. Carlyle played well as Vladimir Obrenovic; and other characters were in good hands. Careful attention has been paid to the dresses and scenic effects.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Annie Hughes and company are here this week with Miss Tommy. In the title-rôle Miss Hughes has a part to which her style is exactly suited, and, of course, she is the life and soul of the play; Mr. Mayne Lynton acts well as Peter Hope; and Mr. Henry Deas contributes a very clever study of Dick Danvers. An ideal Flipp is found in Mr. Ernest Hendrick; whilst Mr. Fred A. Marston carefully portrays William Clodd. Miss Vera Pole as Honour and Miss Elinor Foster as "Mr. Morrison" complete the cast.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company is in possession here with The Private Secretary. Mr. W. Hargreaves repeats his clever and amusing representation of Mr. Cattermole; and Mr. James Hussey is seen to advantage as the Rev. Robert Spalding. Mr. William Carriden makes an excellent Mr. Marsland; whilst Edith Marsland is charmingly played by Miss Mary Mellalieu. Mr. Kendal Chalmers as Gibson is also a capable actor. The other parts were also carefully played.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Frank Lister, in a sketch, entitled The Sundowner, is well received here this week. Other turns of merit are supplied by Charburn's Young Stars, in a vocal scena; Four Faribonis, classical dancers; George Campbell, a very amusing patter comedian; Hettie Lee, a smart comedienne; Vere and Neldon, comedians; Frank Legay Trio, the remarkable whirlwind dancers; and Fayre and Manning, a couple of good comedians.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Charles Gibbon's company is here with Alone in London. Miss Nellie Clyde acts artistically as Nan; the Misses Joan Harcourt (Ruth Clifton), Hettie Hornsby (Little Paul), Ethel G. Greene (Tom Chickweed), and Carrie Young (Liz Jenkinson) all get the most out of their respective parts; Mr. Charles Gibbon proves himself a capable stage villain as Dick Redcliffe; Mr. William Macready is a fine John Biddlecombe; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson acquits himself well as Old Jenkinson; and Messrs. Gilbert Elvin (as Burnaby), Robert Grey (as Walter Burnaby), and Walter Dunlop (as Spriggins) all do good work.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Heading an attractive programme here are J. Tysoe Smith's famous Eighteen Lancashire Singers, who are delighting large audiences with their part-singing. The Reays, gymnasts and equilibrists; the Bros. Milford, comedians and dancers; St. George Silvesta, wizard and entertainer, assisted by Miss Eva de Courtney; Harry Russon, actor-comedian; Miss Raie Walters, a dainty comedienne; the Bros. Miller, gymnastic comedians and burlesque wrestlers; Harry Shirley and May Ransome, in a pleasing episode of East-end life, Jim's Pal; the Orchids, a smart vocal comedy duo; the Saxonys, singers and wooden shoe dancers; and the Hadji-Mohamed Troupe of Arab acrobats and tumblers, are other attractions.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The premier position is occupied by M. Gaston Chevalier and Mlle. Etoile le Noir, who appear in a novel terpsichorean scena, entitled The Rat. Other turns are given by the Two McNaughtons (Fred and Gus), cross-talk comedians; Miss Daisy James, comedienne; Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane, in a new and original skit, The Girl in the Hobble Skirt; Arthur Croxton, in burlesque impersonations; Lew Lake presents the Six Buster-Browns in an American vaudeville singing and dancing act; Madge Osmond, "the ideal dandy"; Harry Radford and Mlle. Valentine, in their comedy juggling act; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOOTLE.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—Mr. Bobbie Allandale's company, in the popular comedy The Gay River, is proving a strong attraction here. The company includes many clever singers.

Muncaster Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Pennington Estates Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred D. Adams.—The Octoroon is being played here this week Miss Nina Vaughton and Mr. Stanley Gordon are popular.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome, Ltd.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece.—The Kellinos are clever acrobats; the Wilton Heriot Trio are highly amusing in Father's Footsteps; Stevens and Brett, as burlesque entertainers, are successful; Hillman and Russell obtain hearty applause for their vocal comedy scena, The Scarecrow and the Star. Tod Lowen, eccentric comedian; Helen Martin, vocalist; and Carl Muller, dancer, are also well received. The Hippodrome pictures conclude.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Speckled Band is played here to large audiences. So realistic and convincing is Mr. C. W. Somerset's impersonation of the hateful Dr. Grimesby Rylott that he is greeted with groans of contempt, a fine compliment to his ability; with much skill Mr. Julian Royce portrays Detective Sherlock Holmes; and Mr. Bellenden Clarke is good as his friend, Dr. Watson. There is much charm and pathos in Miss Alice Leigh's acting as Enid Stonor; Miss Adelaide Grace makes the most of her chances as the objectionable Mrs. Staunton; Rodgers is a capital character study by Mr. Herbert Vyvyan; Mr. E. H. Paterson is really excellent as Mr. Armitage; and the many other characters are in capable hands.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Mr. Lewis Gilbert is presenting, for the first time here, his excellent drama A Daughter of the Sea. As Mark Glensdale, the octogenarian villain of the story, Mr. Gilbert acts with skill and effect; and the young heroine Sunshine is very charmingly represented by Miss Florrie Green. In his impersonation of a retired sea captain Mr. H. C. Lanceley is good; humour in the drama is in the safe hands of Miss Alice Williams and Mr. Joe Monkhouse; and Mr. Leon Courtville and Mr. Gordon Blyth lend able support in minor parts. The play is well staged.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—A brilliant reception is accorded Miss Vesta Tilley, and, bright and artistic as ever, she delights her audience. There are two excellent exponents of comic vocalism in Bert Harrow and W. J. Churchill; Ellis Barrieton sings well in character; Rosa Loader is amusing as the slavey at the piano; the McConnell Trio are entertaining in a vocal comedy sketch, The Invalid; Elly Adair is a dainty Irish comedienne and dancer; the Korries blend comedy and music in their excellent turn; with fine trick cycling of a humorous type and clever acrobatic dancing the Villions win hearty applause; and some amusing pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Miss Zerlini Harrington displays fine emotional power in a well-acted Russian Nihilist sketch, Olga's Oath; Cash and Clair, American singers and dancers, are clever; as a coon delineator J. H. Wakefield is very good; a novel musical scena by the Two Lees wins merited favour; Dolly and Rosie are smart and attractive comediennes; the Lomas Duo gives with success their speciality The Birthday Teddy Bear; Cissie Thompson, comedienne, sings with much acceptance; with song, story, and parody, Happy Attwood is diverting; with their comedy sketch Making a Man of Her, the Oakes Duo are humorous and original; and the Perfection pictures are entertaining.

BRIGHOUSE.—Albert Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, sen.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, jun.—Sydney Carter's pictures are again the attraction this week, and continue to draw crowded houses, the pictures shown being both dramatic and humorous: Convict 796, with musical and vocal effect, The Stolen Plans of Carthage, The Majesty of the Law, Buffalo Bill, Picturesque Rome, The Clown and Donkey, Which of the Two? That Typist, and others.

gives an admirable portrayal of Joe Mayfield; Miss O'Neill submits a charming impersonation of Belle Gordon; Miss Tina Langlois as Maggie Mason and Mr. Charles C. Calvert as Reggie Harwood are well placed, and contribute pleasing songs and dances; Mr. Charles E. Johnson's Martin Mason is an excellent embodiment; Mr. J. C. Cuthbertson's Manuel Averax merits praise; Mr. Wilfred Jessop makes a picturesque Wahketah; Miss Agnes Verity is distinctly effective as Dynamite Ann; and Mr. Harry Benson affords much fun as Ben White.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Gilbert Heron and company achieve great success in the tabloid drama Saved by Wireless; the Three Flying Winskills are very dashing and clever gymnasts; Bruno Pitrot, the originator of the mobil-bar, gives a smart turn; De Lilo and Metz, comedy juggler and rubber ball dancer, are a very entertaining pair; Lily Farrar is as captivating as ever in her song scena Bubbles; Marie Rey contributes pleasing songs; Walton and Williams are capital comedians and dancers; Gee Gordon is a good patter comedian; Allsop and Beckwith are a pleasing comedy duo; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and diverting.

BARRASFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Resident Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Dr. Wilmar's spirit paintings, presented by Mr. P. T. Selbit, are interesting and wonderful; William Mollison and company win enthusiastic applause for their representation of The Touch of the Child; clever dancing was submitted in the Indian ballet scene Les Idolatres, in which Espinosa is especially effective; Eadie and Ramsden are very humorous in Charlie's Visit; Les Tombettas are a versatile and popular couple; A. and A. W. Asra are very clever jugglers; the Hovyns are smart acrobats; J. H. Greener, the singing pit-boy, is well received; and Belrose and De Velin are pleasing duettists.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is here this week with Charley's Aunt. Mr. Hugh Wakefield affords unbounded fun by his clever impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley; Mr. Francis Drake as Jack Cheney and Mr. Robert Burnett as Charles Wykeham are well placed; Mr. Sidney Compton submits an admirable character-sketch as Brassett; Miss Ruth Henton as Kitty Verdun and Miss Phyllis Back as Amy Spettigue give charming representations.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Edward Compton and his company are here for the week. On Monday evening Davy Garrick was performed. Mr. Compton scored his usual success in the title-rôle; Miss Rita Sponti acted charmingly as Violet Gresham; Mr. Henry Crocker was amusing and effective as Alderman Gresham; and the remaining parts were all carefully taken. The performance commenced with Tom Noddy's Secret, in which Miss Nell Compton, Mr. Frank Royde, Mr. J. W. Austin, Mr. Charles Stone, and Miss Vivien Marriott distinguished themselves. She Stoops to Conquer, A Reformed Rake, The Rivals, School for Scandal, Used Up, and Cool as a Cucumber are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—The Bad Girl of the Family is attracting a large attendance here. Miss Florrie Kelsey acts admirably in the title-rôle, Bess Moore; Miss Alice Esther Belmore is very pleasing as Gladys Erskine; Mr. R. M. St. John is a fine, manly, and convincing Lieut. Richard Marsh; Mr. Percy Baverstock displays dignity as Lord Erskine; Mr. Sydney Lynn makes the most of Harry Gordon; Mr. Barnett Lando presents a good study of Barney Gordon; and the comic parts of Sammy Snozzle and Sally Smithers have smart exponents in Mr. George H. Asquin and Miss Nellie James.

PALACE. — Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. J. V. Welchman.—Reano and his band of about thirty performers are here for the week, and are proving attractive; Rapolio presents an artistic and sensational juggling act; Stuart and Evans, comedians, are successful; the Sisters Du Cane are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Arthur Aiston, comedian, has some good songs; the Zanpellas do a clever equilibristic act; Jean Wallace, comedian and dancer, is fully appreciated; and animated pictures conclude.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Annie Abbott, "the woman with the mysterious power," heads the programme very successfully. Many strong men try to lift and shift her. A pair of dray horses are announced to try on Friday evening, and a local brewery tug-of-war team of sixteen men will try their luck on Thursday. La Valdi and assistant present a very pretty spectacular and dancing turn, entitled The Spirits of the Foam; Six Lancashire Lasses are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Percy Thomas is an expert dancer; Payne and Errol amuse with their episode, Three a.m.; August, September, and May do well with their comedy skit; K. Scott Barry and assistants present a song and dance speciality, The Chantecleres; Arnold and Baxter, two ladies in Gipsy costume, are very charming and artistic vocalists; Ethel Campbell is a pleasing comedienne; and R. Cardigan and company please with their musical sketch The Distinguished Visitor. Animated pictures are also included in the entertainment.

BROUGHTON. — VICTORIA THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. J. P. Moore and Montague Beaudyn; General-Manager, Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Collingwood.—Lady Godiva, with Miss Irene Munroe in the title-rôle, is presented here this week. Mr. Montague Beaudyn makes a fitting Peeping Tom; the Black Earl is capably portrayed by Mr. Chas. D. Pitt; Mr. A. A. Tomlin (Robin Shadbolt) and Miss Phyllis Rae (Elfrida) furnish most of the comedy business; Mr. William Melvyn (Leofric), Mr. Geo. Overs (Unwolf), Mr. Geo. E. Dunstan (Edgar), and Miss Cora Paley (Lady Aldyth) give good studies of their several parts; and the scenery is good.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Dairymaids appears here this week, and is a great success. Mr. Edwin Dodds is a comedian of high powers, who plays Joe Mivens; and a great share of the fun is provided by Miss Edie Martin as 'Liza. Miss Ethel Callanan is a sweet Peggy; and Miss Marjorie Manners makes a pleasing Winnie. Mr. William Spray capitally plays Lieut. Sam Brudenell; and the remaining parts are in capable hands. The chorus is a good one, and worthy of special praise.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A programme of considerable merit is before the patrons here this week, including the Brothers Griffiths, who create roars of laughter with smart patter and burlesque wrestling; Wm. Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads also create a good impression with dancing and singing; and Woods and Walsh are a pair of jumpers with remarkable ability. Gladys Re Vell is a chorus singer with a winning way; and another good turn is provided by Archie Graham, swell comedian. Maurice and Macie, in a military vocal scena, and the pictures by the Empire Theatrescope complete the bill.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rentoul.—A refined programme is submitted here, with Nelson Jackson well to the front both with a piano and without; a well-worked comedietta is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene, entitled My Lady's Chamber; the Fuji Japanese Troupe are a set of clever equilibrists; and Gene Morell's instrumental music is enjoyable. Julia Reeve, comedienne, is well received; and Little Doris Druce is an acceptable juvenile mimic. Ernest Rees provides a catchy turn, and the Palace pictures conclude with a funny film.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. De Hague Body.—A hearty welcome is accorded to Arthur Hart and Leslie Moreton's company, in The Arcadians. Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson as Simplicitas keeps the audience in a merry mood; the lugubrious jockey is a capital sketch by Mr. Alfred Beers; Mr. Arthur S. Macdonald (Jack Meadows) sings and acts extremely well; as do also Mr. Cyril Lane, Mr. Wallace G. Court, Mr. John Montague, and Miss Noah Cameron. The cultured voice of Miss Sybil Tancredi is heard to great advantage in the songs allotted to Sombra, of which character she is an ideal exponent. The Mrs. Smith of Gertrude Aylward is inimitable in its sparkling humour; and Miss Molly McIntyre is eminently successful as Eileen Cavanagh. The play is admirably staged.

BURY (Lancs).—ROYAL.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Happy-go-lucky O'Lyn, presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's company, is proving a big success. As Bryan O'Lyn Mr. John Child is heard to advantage; Mr. Reginald Adair is excellent as Frank Fentiman; Miss Anna Hickish and Mme. Marie Alexander undertake the parts of Kathleen O'Lyn and Aunt Charlotte respectively, and here again some beautiful singing is heard.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson. Harry Drew, Welsh Basco, and Mlle. Benita, operatic vocalist, provide the variety turns this week, and the bill is completed with entertaining films.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—J. W. Hall is a popular comedian here, and meets with a flattering reception; an entertaining and amusing scena is presented by the Haylors; Dolly Ross is a sprightly comedienne; L. W. Harris, light comedian, shines with excellently-rendered songs; and Cara Kyasya appears in art poses. Seims, card and coin manipulator; Will Sullivan, comedian; and Karp and Kooney, in a smart comedy act, conclude the programme.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL — Lessee, Miss Florence Glossop-Harris; General-Manager, Mr. Max Jerome; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Maron.—The Love Birds is played by Miss Lois Esmond's company. Leading rôles are sustained by Miss Esmond, Mr. Edward Neville, Mr. F. Dale, and Miss Maisie Bramley. Miss Blanche Courtenay acts and dances daintily; and the Misses Wignall, Robertson, Ross, and Byrne are a very expert troupe of dancers.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Messrs. Murray King and Clark's company paid a return visit here on Monday with Our Flat. Mr. Murray King is naturally humorous, and as Nathaniel Glover was thoroughly at home; Mr. McCullum was well rendered by Mr. Ardenne Linden; Reginald Sylvester was excellently played by Mr. Warburton Gamble; Miss Louie Tinsley made the most of Bella; Mr. C. Ireland Thring (Vane) was good; and Miss Florence Radcliffe (Marjory) was very safe. The minor parts were all capably represented.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. George Dance's company in the musical comedy Our Miss Gibbs was welcomed by a large and appreciative audience on Monday. Miss Jessie Lonnen is seen in the title-rôle, her dainty manner and graceful style making her portrayal one of exquisite charm. Mr. Theodore Leonard as Timothy Gibbs is responsible for a remarkably amusing and clever performance; Mr. Eustace Burnaby as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint does his full share in provoking merriment; Mr. Hugh Weybrance sings well and acts cleverly in the rôle of Lord Eynsford; and the Earl of St. Ives is impersonated by Mr. Ernest Darrell in a dignified and thoroughly aristocratic manner. Lady Elizabeth is delineated by Miss Lilian Birtles in a delightfully sweet style; the Duchess of Minster is given just prominence by Miss Helen Langton; Mme. Jeanne has an attractive exponent in Miss Ellaline Thorne; and Miss Emily Stevens as Mrs. Farquhar is admirably suited. Mr. John Leopold, jun., wins full credit as Slithers; and a pleasing rendition of Mr. Toplady is given by Mr. Campbell Browne. The chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Fred Kitchen is appearing once again in Herbert Darnley's sketch Private Potts, and is making as big a hit as ever. Tom Leamore, popular comedian, treats his audiences to a couple of side-splitting songs rendered in this artist's best style; Leslie Harris is decidedly entertaining at the piano; Duncan's royal Scotch collies do marvellous tricks; Merlin, card manipulator, manages completely to baffle his audiences; the McGregors are expert musicians; Sybil St. Elmo renders two songs in a sweet voice; Will Musgrave is a humorous comedian; and fine Pictures complete the programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. E. Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Windsor Stevenson.—Driving a Girl to Destruction is produced by Mr. Morton Powell's company. Miss Marie Robson as Ruth Wright wins universal commendation by her admirable representation of an arduous rôle; Miss Maud M. Powell as the much-wronged Ruby Wright gives an artistic rendering of a difficult part; Mr. Harry Wood is a manly Robert Ray; the villainies of Lucas List find a powerful impersonator in Mr. Frank Stacey; Mr. Henry Scatchard as Octavius Screwe justified his selection by his clever representation; Miss Kate Froude proves herself an actress of undaunted ability as Mme. de Meral; Miss Effie Macintosh gives a refreshing portrayal of Bessie Betts; and Mr. H. Arnold Allen is also effective as Freddy Feather. Mr. Fred Yarnold (Billy Broad) and Mr. Frank C. Lester (Bobby Broad) introduce the comedy element in a clever manner.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Topping an excellent bill is the well-known Achmed Ibraham Troupe of Bedouin Arabs, who perform their wonderful aerobatic turn with such daring and skill. Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford are a refined comedy vaudeville duo; Miss Norman Grant proves entertaining at the piano; Fred Evans does well in a novel absurdity entitled Dreaming; and the Brothers Hannaway, clever comedians and dancers, Rita and Roma in a new pot-pourri, and Chris Baker, a thoroughly amusing comedian, contribute to the attractive programme. The Palace Perfection Pictures are as interesting as usual.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The first visit of Mr. Arthur Leigh's company in Lucky Durham drew a large and appreciative audience on the opening night. In the title-rôle Mr. Edmund Kennedy gave a sound and well-balanced interpretation; the Lord Mountfalion of Mr. William Calvert was a judicious and careful piece of acting; and Mr. Charles Wemyss's tact and skill made Mr. Vallerton a prominent character. In the comedy-rôle Mr. Arthur Leigh made a big hit; Miss Florence Tressilian was a charming heroine; as Mrs. D. ham Miss Nellie Bonser made a deep impression; the Lady Mountfallon of Miss Frances Wolviston was a sound performance; and Miss Dorothy Turner as her daughter looked and acted the part admirably.

THE PALACE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—The Milton Bros., in a comedy skating act, in which they display wonderful ability and agility, are one of the most popular turns this week; Beatrice Bonnie and her troop of juvenile clog-dancers give a striking turn on a novel stair arrangement, entitled "The Stairphone"; Stylo, the hoop manipulator, displays his skill to everyone's satisfaction; and J. G. Aitken's songs and funny Scotch tales bring down the house. Cromo and Hamilton, smart burlesque artists, W. B. Raby, comedian, and Rose Cass, comedienne and chorus singer, contribute excellent turns.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Sydney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Peter Mooney.—The most striking films reproduced this week are Nellie's Farm, The Flag of Company H, and The Blacksmith.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Monday and Tuesday Mr. Arthur Farren's Royal Pierrots and No. 1 vaudeville company occupied the Assembly Rooms, and gave a refined and enjoyable entertainment. Miss Girtie Coleman contributed very effectively a couple of humorous songs; Miss Eva Travis scored in her illustrated song; La Zenith delighted the audience in her illuminated butterfly dance; the humorous interlude of Mr. J. Mackenzie and the company caused roars of laughter; Mr. Eugene Maccabe was successful in his songs; Miss Flo Claremont proved herself a capable vocalist and dancer; and Mr. Harry Sumner made a decided hit in his songs. Mme. Zilla and M. Mazeppa gave wonderful exhibitions of telepathy. The comedy sketch of the company was amusing.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman, J.P.—As Your Hair Grows Whiter is presented here by Mr. Herbert Fuller and company. Mr. George Galsford gives a manly and dignified impersonation of Rev. John Albery; Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell is responsible for a careful study of Farmer Walters; Miss Florence Delmar is a very natural farmer's wife; as Alice Walters Miss Agnes Collier sings sweetly; from Mr. Edward Fryer comes a well-acted portraiture of that precious scoundrel Squire Jake Stoneley; Mr. Louis Weston plays Mozart with brisk humour, and, supported by Miss Emily Lewis as Nurse Von Grip, causes much laughter; another amusing couple are Mr. Percy St. Clair and Miss Tilly Fuller.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre of Varieties Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and Will H. Emerson.—A capital bill this week is headed by the Lukushimas, in a smart performance as acrobats; the Avrignys are expert balancers; Elsie Malpass gains much applause for mimicry; Rousby and Rene are pleasing vocalists; the Lancashire comedy sketch, Fine Feathers, is attractively funny; Harley and Melton have good songs and amusing patter; Walter Buxton is in capital form as a baritone; Tom Isherwood's songs provoke laughter; Spry and Bentley in a humorous character sketch, The Dude and the Dupe, meet with approval; and good pictures are shown.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Messrs. Glenister and Ingram are presenting The Fires of Fate. Mr. Lewis Fielder gives an admirable delineation of Colonel Cyril Egerton; Mr. Gilbert Yorke's Rev. Samuel Roden is a capital portrayal, his brother, James Roden, being commendably represented by Mr. George F. Ide; Mr. Sidney Carlyle is the Abdulla, and makes a favourable impression, and the rôle of Miss Sadie Adams is effectively undertaken by Miss Aimee de Burgh.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. George Humphries.—Gracie Lawn, comedienne and dancer, Master Cliff Diamond, a pleasing singer and nimble dancer, Stella Stahl, a vivacious soubrette, The Three Romas in a clever gymnastic act, Harry Clifford, with an amusing shoeblack song and recitation, Jack Lorimer, a popular Scotch comedian, and the Hemispheres Quartette in their musical act, are in the capital programme here this week.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company provide thrills this week in The Sailor's Wedding. Mr. Stanley Harrison plays with never-failing earnestness the part of Gordon Drake; Mr. Cecil Klein plays with spirit and humour as Sir Victor Lascelles; Giovanni Ferici is robustly impersonated by Mr. J. H. Darnley; Leonora de Gresac is impersonated with sufficient dramatic emphasis by Miss Olive Warne; Miss Madge Monte is pleasing as Mary Bellini; Mr. Alfred Fisher is sympathetic as Count Bellini; and Miss Daisy Gwynne is a stately Countess Bellini; Mr. Alfred Holles is a sinister figure as Giacomo Ferrara. Humorous relief is afforded by Mr. Frank Bertram as the typical sailor, Jack Hawkins, and Mr. Frank Kidger as his bosom pal Bill Burns; Miss E. Giddens, a pretty and coquettish waitress, and Miss Celestine Bertram as a chic French maid are clever.

POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. C. B. Shenton.—The Brothers Weyman, American wooden shoe experts, do some clever step dancing; Miss Alice Gill charms the audience with "Beautiful garden of roses"; The Dunvilles, comedy instrumental vocalists, contribute an excellent turn; and the pictures are again perfect.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY. — THEATRE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Walter Stott.—Excellent pictures are exhibited here.

CLYDEBANK.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickhard; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Mitchell.—Hess and Chivers lead off with their roller-skating act, which is well received. Charles Howarth in a laughable sketch, Fun in the College, is highly amusing; and Lillie Dennis, an excellent comedienne and speciality dancer; Day and Daly, comedians and dancers; Jack Chambers, negro comedian; Queenie May, descriptive vocalist; and some good films on the Bioscope complete a good show.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Lester Collingwood's company, in When London Sleeps, is here. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson played David Englehart in his own delightful style; Miss Mabel Tremere was a winning Queenie; Miss Lilia Wilde a dramatic Hilda Carode; and a fine impersonation was that of Rodney Haynes by Mr. Frank Eaglesfield. A trio of popular characters were Sammy, Carrie, and Hon. Bertie by Mr. Harry Cooke, Miss Amy Manfree, and Mr. Chas. Rogers respectively. Mr. F. G. Kay worked hard as Mark Blackwood.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Co-operative Varieties, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Leo. King.—Millie Payne, "topping" here this week, is much enjoyed; Horace Wheatley, fresh, funny, and in good voice, is a welcome turn nightly; W. G. Webber is a basso to whom all listen with delight; Frank Sylvo, comedy juggler, is an amusing artist; Albert Ross, ventriloquist, has a pleasing partner; Harry Thurston, burlesque comedian, is droll, with variations in verse and prose; Kitty Corri is generally admired as a dancer and a comedienne, and films conclude.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—At the top of the bill is Beaumont's Circus, consisting of performing ponies, dogs, &c.; Chiko, equilibrist, is accorded applause; Tiny Aston sings well; and R. C. Note is a big favourite as a chorus singer. A Cowboy's Stratagem and Bullfight in Chili are two fine pictures.

DALY'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—The Five Yorkshire Lasses top the bill with original song and dance scena; Rennie, ventriloquist, is very amusing. Capital pictures are shown, among the best being Revolution in Portugal, Unexpected Reward, and The Governor's Daughter.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The New Town Hall Co.; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—Bosanquet, in his clever musical act, "The Human Violin," holds premier position; Rohde and Roche, in novelty episode, A Strange Meeting, are interesting; and Charles Coll, comedian, is well received. Pictures shown are appreciated.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—A Country Girl opened here on Monday night. Mr. Jonathan Clarke as Mr. Raikes sang well, and was recalled; Miss Ethel Negretti as Princess Melanch was in splendid voice; Barry was capably filled by Mr. Coningsby Brierly; Mr. Percy Carr as Geoffrey Challoner was successful; Mr. Percy Everard as Sir Joseph Verity and Mr. Norman Howard as Lord Anchester both filled their parts capably; Miss May Rawlinson made a pleasing and clever Marjorie; Miss Hilda Darrell scored as Sophie; and Miss Dorothy Craske as Nan was also good.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—Mme. Ada Pagini, Royal Italian Court violinist, contributes some beautiful pieces; Schichtl's Marionettes are attractive; Ike and Will Scott, comedians, are a clever pair, and amuse; Walter Emerson is a smart comedian; Gweenie Hasto, comedienne and dancer, and Rosie Sylvester, soubrette and dancer, both contribute capital items; and the Palascope pictures are well received.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett. — Mr. Sutton Vane's company is presenting Two Lancashire Lasses in London. Miss Florence Zillwood as Constance is particularly good; Miss Mabel Coleman ably portrays the other Lancashire lass Nellie; Mr. Robert Gilbert is the hero; and Mr. Edward M. Heanley makes a capital villain; Mr. T. Dennis Byron ably portrays the Rev. Frank Selby; Messrs. Dan Mining and Frank Irwin are particularly good as two burglars; Miss G. Verner as Bessie Edmunds and Miss Doris Kelvey as Jane Adelaide are excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Heading the bill is Mr. George Lashwood, who has a hearty reception; Messrs. Harry Jackson and Peter McLaren, champion axemen, provide a very welcome turn; Mlle. Leonie de Lausanne, lady champion shot, does many very difficult feats. Other excellent turns are contributed by Edith Fink, comedienne; Stacey and Williams, entertainers; Queenie May, vocalist; and the Victor Brothers, herculean equilibrists. Excellent pictures conclude.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Davidson.—The Black Mask has been played here by Messrs. Marriott Watson and Jas. Usher's capable company. As the young doctor, Walter Blackmore, Mr. Edward E. Ashby gave an exceedingly good performance; and Mr. Marriott Watson was a capital representative of Le-Noir. The Jem Rudge of Mr. Elton Morgan is worthy of notice; Mr. Tom J. Taylor was funny as Sam Winkle; the rendering of Nellie Cunningham by Miss Florence E. Florence was both artistic and pathetic; while a pleasing bit of acting was that of Miss Dot Forde in the boy part of Philip Le-Noir. Miss Hettie Senior as the servant Emma deserves mention, and the remaining parts were in good hands.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Wood; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is winning unstinted praise here in the pleasing musical comedy The Dollar Princess. Mr. Fred Leslie is a host in himself, and never fails to amuse as Harry Q. Conder; Mr. Alec Worcester has a remarkably fine voice and stage presence, and makes a palpable hit as Freddy Fairfax; Mr. Hugh Henson is quite at his ease and sings well as Dick; Mr. W. Johnson Douglas is fully equal to the responsibilities of John, Earl of Quorn; Mr. Willie Warde, jun., as Sir James MacGregor dances cleverly; Mr. Horace Mills enacts the rôle of Mr. Bulger with a tinge of unctuous humour which is most refreshing; and useful services are rendered by Messrs. Jack Bates, Derrick Knowles, and J. Austin Castle as the Duke of Stonehenge, Sir John, and Lieutenant Grant; Miss Muriel Allen as Olga gives a smart performance, which calls for general admiration; Miss Daisy Elliston is irresistible as Daisy; Miss Muriel Hodgson makes a handsome Dulcie; as Alice Miss Kathleen Courtney wins all hearts. The dresses are beautiful, and the scenery au fait, and there is a first-rate chorus and augmented orchestra.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—A new sketch entitled Mill, produced by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company, is noticed in another column. Ella Shields' artistic methods are much appreciated; the Poluski Brothers are genuine comedians; Dave Samuels is an eccentric Hebrew comedian; George Robey causes fun; Addie Lennard is a persevering comedienne; the Prince Milner Trio submit a novel pot-pourri act; Joe O'Gorman always receives a cordial welcome; Jay Laurier, comedian, is funny; Poole and Maguire are creditable in comedy act; and Eddie and Ethel are a diverting pair.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—A smart and whimsical pantomime sketch, The Burglars of New York, is being played here by the Alex Piccad company; Harry Claff, assisted by Alice Tremayne, is much enjoyed in operatic novelty The White Knight; George Formby is a comedian of resource; J. C. Scatter, Tyneside comedian, deserves praise; Ryan and Hall are skilful acrobatic comedians; Lamberti in his living portraits and character impersonations brings down the house; Aggie Nolan is a successful comedienne; Sanford and Lyons are commendable comedians and simultaneous dancers; and the American Bioscope pictures conclude an enjoyable programme.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. Dicks.—The picture programme at this comfortable house is full of interest and novelty. All new subjects are quickly snapped up by the management, and large audiences testify their approval nightly.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Lionel Rignold

and his company are on a return visit with What the Butler Saw. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink (the Butler) is the life of the comedy. Mr. Charles Fawcett as Jack Barrington, Mr. Harry H. Rignold as Abraham Weinstein; Mr. Harry Dudley as Sir Charles Foden, Mr. Pat Alexander as Professor Shale, Mr. George Ascot as General Dunlop, Miss Zoe Gilfillan as Mrs. Barrington, Miss May Hart as Sephonisbe Hake, Miss Julie St. George as Mrs. Hake, Miss Florence Vennimore as Mrs. Fleming-Smythe, and Miss Marie Daltra as Miss Foden all contribute valuably to the success of the production.

Palace.—Lessees, The East Coast Variety Halls, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—The great Dayton Family head the bill here this week. Miss Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots sing sweetly in the scena The Gipsies' Revels; Miss Beatrice, soprano, has a fine range; Cestria is simply great in comedy juggling; and other special turns are Lily and William, acrobatic sand dancers; Tom Joy, comedian; Bros. Curran, in a comedy boxing act; and the Bioscope, with the latest pictures.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Manager, Mr. J. Bollen.—Miss Dora Diehl and company appear in a patriotic episode, All's Well. Miss Eva Lumley plays the part of Jim to the life, as does Mr. F. De Quincy the part of Corporal Smith; Miss Diehl being prominent as Stella Harcourt. Pictures on the Bioscope are also shown.

Albert Hall.—Lessee, Mr. H. Holden; Manager, Mr. J. Morris.—Mona Vivian is successful in her impersonations of Vesta Tilley, Harry Lauder, &c.; Lloyd Trio are applauded for their clever wooden-shoe dancing; and Geo. Leavern, comedian and mimic, is amusing. Capital pictures are shown.

Public Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson and Co.; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson.—Les Volteens show smart work in their comedy wire act; and Siegel and Sields give a good turn of comedy, singing, and dancing. Excellent pictures conclude.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Harry P. Selwyn's company, A 55 to 1 Chance, is the attraction here this week. The company includes Ben Jordan, the retired undefeated feather-weight champion of the world, and Young Sullivan, the American light-weight champion. Selvidge and Holland give a funny musical absurdity, A Dotted Crotchet; Tom Reed is a quaint comedian and an amusing patterer; Dewson is entertaining at the piano, and sings well; Floria, as an equilibrist, goes through a strenuous performance; John Martin, actor-vocalist, possesses a good voice; Cissie Lupino is a graceful speciality and character dancer; and Francesca is deserving of praise for her rendering of patriotic picture songs.

Palace Theatre.—Sole Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Moyes.—Miss Dot Stephens and company are this week presenting A Child of the Streets. Miss Dot Stephens as Doris Graham gives a clever rendering; Mr. Leonard Clarke makes the most of the part of Lawrence Craigie, the villain; Sir Robert Graham is characteristically enacted by Mr. John Errol; and Mr. Claude Gravely submits a manly interpretation of Robert Wallace. Miss Bessie Hazelwood is praiseworthy as Gertrude Graham; and Little May Renaud is charming as Little Doris. Messrs. Norman H. Tracey, H. C. Edwin, Geo. H. Hazlehurst, Chas. Tolcher, and Lewis Rae, and Misses Yoxa, Summer, and Jennie Hackels are responsible for the remaining characters.

Victoria Electric Theatre.—Proprietors, United Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. T. Studd.—A capital selection of films are reflected on the screen at this cosy little house, chief among which is the drama The Murder of Admiral Coligny. A pleasant break between the pictures is provided by Miss Nina Lorenza, a clever mandolinist; Avis and Desbarre contribute an exceedingly smart conjuring act; and Harry Carsdale, farmyard linguist, proves most entertaining.

Midland Electric Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Many highly instructive and amusing films are displayed here, including some wonderful Kinemacolour studies of the Italian Lakes, which are admired for their richness of colouring. Extensive alterations are being effected at this popular place of amusement which, when completed, will bring it into line as one of the most comfortable and up-to-date picture shows in the Midlands.

"Spot" Cinema Theatre.—An excellent programme of topical pictures is provided, and an innovation in the shape of afternoon tea, which is dispensed to patrons, is a popular feature.

DEVONPORT.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. G. E. Prance.—Tom Clare is starred for the week, and a more entertaining turn it would be impossible to imagine. The Five Musical Marvels provide a delightful musical number; Minnie Leslie and Edgar Stevens in a pretty vocal scena, Love Levels All, supply a choice entertainment; Edna Latonne realistically impersonates well-dressed members of the male sex; Wisper performs good jugglery; and George James completes a good bill.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. G. S. King has kindly placed the theatre at the disposal of the Western Amateur Operatic Society, who are giving a fine rendering of The Yeomen of the Guard in aid of local charities.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. H. C. Dudley Bennett's well-selected company in The Chinese Honeymoon is here. Mr. Colin Bryce is a great success as Mr. Pineapple; the part of Mrs. Pineapple is in the competent hands of Miss Gertrude Melville, who sings and dances delightfully; Miss Gwennie Harcourt plays Fi-Fi with much success, being loudly applauded for her efforts; Tom Hatherton is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Crimp; Miss Gladys Ivery makes a dainty Princess Soo-Soo; Mr. Rudolph Kloss is capital as the Emperor Hang-Chow; Miss Dora Speakmar as Mrs. Brown plays with dignity; and a word of praise must be given to Mr. Leonard May (Hi-Lung) and Mr. Harry Spawton (Chippie-Choo).

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Lockhart's Elephants, introduced by Captain Taylor, supply the star item. Helen Charles proves herself to be a clever mimic and siffleuse; Madge Allan is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Les Supriskis perform marvellous feats on the double trapeze; Henry Hilton mystifies with sleight-of-hand business; and another excellent turn is that of Tom Stuart, with burlesque impersonations. Stuart and Stuart are greatly appreciated in their singing and dancing act; Bertha Evelyn has a good contralto voice; and animated pictures complete.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager and Proprietor, Mr. George Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. P. Hogg.—Poole and Poole, the comedy duo, introduce smart patter into their act; Le Hurst proves himself to be a clever ventriloquist; Harry Goodburn, singing comedian, evokes much laughter; Pongorilla does some smart acrobatic work; Mlle. Zaida submits a graceful slack wire exhibition; and Marie Taft, comedienne and drummer, goes well.

DINNINGTON (Yorks). — Lyric Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Jas. England.—Messrs. Fox and Leonard's company is here for a second week with The Lady Tomboy. Miss Mabel Phillips very capably fills the title-rôle; as Black Davie Mr. B. M. Fox finds ample scope for his undoubted histrionic talent; whilst as Vincent Middleton Mr. B. Crosby scores heavily. Miss E. Graham makes an exceptionally good Becky Wiggles; and as the designing cousin Mrs. B. Crosby is superb. The comic element is well filled by Mr. F. Edwards as Jimmy Jenkins; and the heavy lead is capably accounted for by Mr. P. Walters.

DONCASTER.—Grand Theatre and Empire.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Five Vernons, xylophone experts, are a welcome turn here, and their musical attainments are strikingly evident. Little Dolly Manson adds to her reputation as a coon vocalist and mimic; some amazing and dexterous juggling is contributed by Leolin; the Continental acrobatic performances of Les Zelovas are smart; Agnese and Arthur Lynch, in their American picture songs, are well applauded; Baddow's ventriloquism is greatly enjoyed; Miss Victoria Cross, the lassie in kilts, gives a number of good character sketches; and Mlle. Sarema, in her animal act, The Zoological Universe, provides a good turn.

DUBLIN. — Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Messrs. J. Forbes Knowles and Harry Masterman's company is here this week with Nick Carter, Detective. Mr. Knowles furnishes a good rendering of the name-part, and Miss Helen Walbran as Madeline acts in a sympathetic manner. Mr. Raymond Thomas leaves nothing to be desired as the villain, Eustace Lee, and is well supported by Mr. William Burgess as Dave Crowley. Miss Nellie Shirley submits a careful study as Stephanie, and Nance has a good exponent in Miss Nellie Waddington. Mr. R. J. Turner is satisfactory as Jim Colston, and Little Hilda Vokes acquite herself well as Cyril Carter. The comedy element is well looked after by Mr. C. H. Momber (Timmins), Miss Nancy Laurence (Bessie), Mr. Will Ellythorne (George Slade), and Miss Nellie Fern (Mrs. Timmins).

Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—The Naked Truth is being presented here this week by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Stanley Logan as Bernard Darrell (Bunny) gives a capital embodiment, and Miss Violet Ley is to be complimented on her assumption of Mrs. Hayter. Mr. Horace Sinclair cleverly enacts Teddy Lestrange, while the Norah Creighton of Miss Kathleen Maude is admirably rendered. Mr. Townsend Whitling is well suited as James Darrell, and Miss Ormonde Wynne submits a good rendering of Mrs. Darrell. Mr. Besley Bertram is capital as Mr. Hayter, and the remaining parts are all in capable hands. Protecting Mrs. Moxon precedes.

Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—The attraction here is Our Miss Gibbs, played by Mr. George Edwardes's company. Miss Carrie Moore is delightful in the title-rôle, and Mr. George Gregory as Timothy Gibbs gives a humorous and clever performance. Mr. Frank Hector fills the rôle of Hughie Pierrepoint admirably, and Miss Nancy Hervyn is seen to advantage as Mme. Jeanne. The Earl of St. Ives has a capable exponent in Mr. Myles Clifton, and Miss Olive Moore is creditable as Lady Elizabeth Thanet. Mr. Leslie Gaze ably sustains the part of the professional crook, Slithers, and Miss Kitty Cavendish gives a good account of herself as Mrs. Farquhar. M. Ernest Mahar does well as Mr. Toplady, and Miss Grace Wixon is distinctly good as the Duchess of Minster. The solo dance in Act III. by Miss Florence Phillips is warmly applauded, and the chorus and orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Harold Lonsdale, is efficient.

Empire. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—Heading the bill here we have Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in The Deputy Sheriff. In the novel racing act, Not a Crook, Phil Rees's Stable Lads are applauded. Edith Henn Brown as Eliza Ann, the musical slavey, is diverting. Adeline Phillips is an accomplished operatic vocalist, and Rose Gower is an attractive comedienne. Good turns are added by Bert Weston (comedian), Crissie Cross (song and dance artist), and Arthur Green (comedian and dancer). The Empire pictures conclude.

Tivoli. — General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Frances Letty is scoring here this week. Viviana and company in The Toy Shop provide an enjoyable turn. Much merriment is caused by the Thompson Trio in Watch the Chalk. Others who contribute successfully are the Calcotts in their episode, Rags and Tatters; Harold Heath, coon vocalist and dancer; Marie Blythe, contralto chorus comedienne; Will Rhodes, droll comedian; Beattie Sullivan, comedienne and dancer; Wallie Fitzgibbon, musical monologist; and the Bioscope.

Round Room Rotunda.—The Irish Animated Photo. Co. entered on their last week here on Monday, after a most successful season, when a large audience patronised each performance. The pictures shown included:—A Great Pacific Train Hold-up, A Boarding School Romance, Foolshead's Fishing Exhibition, The Incendiary, The Man to Beat Johnson, Short-sighted Sportsman, The Flag of Company H, The Smuggler Automobilists, &c. Good vocal items are given by Mr. P. J. Molony (baritone) and Miss Violet Gore (mezzo), and the orchestral band of the Rifle Brigade plays excellent selections.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietors, Sprengel Bros.—The following artists are appearing here:—The Reenos, comedy speciality act; Max Welton, comedian and piper; Miss Allie Fittoni, the banjo queen; Will Ivor, descriptive vocalist; Miss Ada Farne, ballad vocalist; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—Empire.—Manager, Mr. R. Colin.—An attractive programme is provided here this week. The top of the bill is occupied by Seeley, West, and Rhodesia, in a very smart comedy, musical, and juggling act; C. Tessman gives a clever turn with his performing donkeys, goats, and chickens; the Bros. Erard are exceedingly good musical and acrobatic comedians; Eccentric Billy and his dog give a neat acrobatic novelty; and the Esdale Bros., eccentric comedians, have good songs and patter. Oliver Conroy, comedian, "the Knut," had a good reception, as also did Will B. Wright, coon artist; and Marie Ray is a good comedienne and dancer. The electric pictures are always a welcome item.

Opera House—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The ever-welcome Cingalee is here. Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram is funnier than ever; Mr. Cyril Dane is effective in the principal part of Harry Vereker; Miss Ida Ernest as Peggy Sabine is charming and attractive; Bobby Warren has an interesting representative in Mr. Scott Cullen; and the Boobhamba of Mr. Milroy Cooper and the Sir Peter Loftus of Mr. F. W. Ford are effective and diverting. Miss Pauline Hague's fine stage appearance adds to the effectiveness of her performance as Lady Patricia; and Miss Molly Woolstenhulme is a highly-pleasing Nanoya.

DUNDALK.—Town Hall Theatre.—Proprietors, Urban Council; Manager, Mr. M. Comerford.—Mr. John H. Tomkinson's variety company, under the management of Mr. Payne Seddon, is here this week. Mr. George Keith renders songs in a style that gains applause; Messrs. Diamond and Hart afford capital entertainment; Wee Winnie proves herself a clever child actress; Eric and Nora provide a bright musical act; the Sisters Lesmere, charming duettists, render excellent selections and dance well; Miss Mabel Lewis would be hard to improve upon in illustrated songs; the Aerials are an attractive turn; and Miss Elsie Rubina is a decided acquisition.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Gaston's Mayer's company in The Brass Bottle has played to enormous business here. The mechanical effects are exceedingly well managed, and the stage business throughout is excellently contrived. As Horace Ventimore Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., has many opportunities of displaying his abilities, and his success is most emphatic; the Fakrash-el-Aamash of Mr. Holman Clark is a really excellent characterisation, his make-up and actions being admirable; Mr. Percy Marshall depicts the peppery Professor most effectively; Miss Edith Hunter as the Professor's wife plays capitally; while her daughter has a charming and dainty representative in Miss Phyllis Birkett. Mr. Rudge Harding submits a performance of sterling merit as Spencer Pringle; Samuel Wackerbath is vigorously and humorously characterised by Mr. Robert Ayrton; Miss Hilda Sims contributes an engaging portrait of Mrs. Wackerbath; as Rapkin Mr. Charles Barrett plays remarkably well; a noteworthy character study is presented by Miss Mary Brough of Mrs. Rapkin; Messrs. Henry Siebert and Charles Hirst as the Chief of Caravan and Head Waiter respectively do useful work; and a captivating Dancing Girl is found in Miss Irene Wells.

King's Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—The chief attraction is Arthur Watson and Flo Stanley's company in that rollicking musical comedy The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, which goes with a fine swing, Miss Stanley being a charming Polly; while as Jack Marlinspike, the sailor detective, Mr. Arthur Watson creates no end of merriment. The neatly executed dances by the Vera Troupe prove an enjoyable feature of the piece. Prince of the Dandies was presented the latter end of the week. Maude Mortimer is in great form, and gets a hearty reception; Marie Dreams displays her remarkable baritone voice to advantage in several well-chosen songs; Tom E. Hughes scores heavily; the Six Manchester Lads in "Dancing in the Old Oak Tree" get a perfect ovation; the Paolias appear in a really artistic athletic act, entitled "At Home with a Modern Athlete"; Philip Levard and Lily Gene present a mystifying illusionist act; Richard Wally proves an expert juggler; Jack Warman is a cheery comedian with a good style; and Jury's Bioscope Pictures complete.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. J. E. Watson's company is appearing here throughout the week in The Sowers. Mr. Reginald Besant gives a cleverly restrained and effective performance as Prince Paul; Mr. Charles Craston is a strong and individual Herr Karl Steinmetz; Mr. Walter Russel an excellent Count Stepan; Mr. Robert S. Entwistle does good work as Baron de Cheuxville; Mr. Leslie Oswell as Mr. Bamborough and Mr. Fred Epitaux as Vassili render good service; and other parts are capably sustained. Miss Violet Luddington is a strong and sympathetic Mrs. Bamborough; Miss Jessie Lothian is an earnest and attractive Catrina; Miss M. Lister Stephens gives a capable account of the part of the Countess Lanovitch; and other ladies do able duty.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—For the first three evenings of the week Mr. Henry Dallas's company is appearing here as the Follies, and the clever band of artists is proving an attraction. In the first half of the programme Miss Elsa Redfern used a sweet voice very artistically in a song "My moon"; Mr. Clifton Yates was enthusiastically received for his finely-rendered songs; Mr. Reginald Mountfield was the clever pianist, and his musical sketches were very popular; Miss Marie Mansfield pleased with some humorous stories; Miss Cissie Harcourt contributed a pretty, tuneful song with success; Miss Nellie Webber joined Mr. Desormes and Mr. Henry Dallas in duets; and the first part concluded with "potted" versions of The Merry Widow and The King of Cadonia. A really clever skit on the music-hall entertainment follows, and collectively and individually this is the success of the evening. Mrs. Lewis Waller and company, including Mr. Maurice Farkoa, will appear later in the week.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—Heading the bill here this week is the Lyons Trio, and their clever comedy act in pantomime is capitally acted and well received; Baby Vi Davis, a juvenile vocalist, is received with marked favour for her praiseworthy efforts; Miss Madge Morley and company play smartly an effective sketch, After the Races; Hulbert is a ventriloquist of considerable merit; the Musical Keiths have a musical turn which pleases the audience; Mr. Harry Merrylees causes much fun in song and patter; De Lil is an expert illusionist; Miss Lily Deane is a successful singer and dancer; and new pictures are added.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Variety once more holds sway at this theatre. The star position is occupied by Mr. H. O. Wills, comedian, and his efforts are the source of much merriment; Phil Herman makes his reappearance, and is cordially welcomed; Mr. Will Walton is a comedian with some very good patter; Messrs. Burns and Bentley provide an acceptable dancing turn; Milton and Horton prove themselves expert horizontal bar artists; the Claymore Trio are good vocalists and club jugglers; a sketch, The Last of the Desmonds, meets with well-merited approval; and two good films are shown on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr Geo. T. Minshull.—The Thomas Beecham Opera Comique company has been warmly welcomed here this week by large audiences attracted by the performances of two works, Offenbach's bizarre Tales of Hoffmann (Contes d'Hoffmann) and Johann Straus's A Viennesse Masquerade (Die Fledermans), seldom presented in public. Opening on Monday evening with Offenbach's opera, the company gave a magnificent interpretation of the work under the direction of Mr. Hamish McCann. The arduous part of Hoffmann was in the hands of Mr. John Bardsley, who proved himself an admirable singer and accomplished actor; Miss Caroline Hatchard took the character of Olympia, and sang and acted with much effect. Miss Edith Evans, in the dual rôle of Guiletta and Antonia, displayed her splendid voice to advantage, and showed versatility in these strongly contrasted parts. Mr. Charles Magrath, a powerful singer and fine actor, played the characters of Coppelius and Dr. Mirakel, in the latter of which he created a profound impression by his dramatic intensity. The rest of the cast, Mr. Scott Russell, Mr. Frederick Ronalow, Mr. M. R. Morand, and Miss Isobel Bronte, who sang charmingly in the trio in the third act, contributed to an exceptionally good performance. Die Fledermans had an altogether satisfactory rendering on Wednesday. The flowing melodies were admirably sung by Mr. Wilson Pembroke (an expressive singer), Miss Caroline Hatchard, Miss Kate Anderson (an artistic contralto vocalist), and Mr. Frederick Ranalow, who appeared in the name-part. Mr. M. R. Morand's quaint humour was of much service in the character of Frank, and Mr. Howard Carr conducted with ability and taste.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A revival of Les Cloches de Corneville, by Messrs. Milton Bode and John Hart's Opera company, has this week delighted admirers of Planquette's charming work. Mr. Cyril Thomson makes a manly Marquis, and sings with an agreeable baritone voice; while Mr. Arthur Geary approves himself a vigorous tenor in the part of Grenicheux. As Gaspard, Mr. E. St. Alban gives a powerful rendering of the old miser; and Mr. Fred Dark, with Mr. Alfred Selby, as the Bailie and Gobo, keep the house in constant merriment. The Germaine is Miss Kitty Dale, who invests the part with all possible grace and distinction; Miss Dolly Castles is captivating as the saucy Serpolette; and minor rôles are all competently filled.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Wee George Wood, a child mimic, gives some distinctly clever imitations; Mr. Angus Strong, a baritone vocalist, with a cultured voice, and Miss Ethel Thomas, a sweet singer, give much pleasure by their selections; the Athos Troupe, daring acrobats and skilful ball manipulators, are loudly applauded; Morton and Elliott, harmonica players and vocalists, and paper manipulators, submit a fresh performance; and Griffiths and Carmen evoke merriment by their sketch, The Lady and the Chef; Cosgrove and Burns, in a capital sketch, The Singing Academy; Miss Dorothy Watson, an exceedingly pleasing entertainer at the piano; the Brothers Weltman, Russian whirlwind dancers; Mr. Fred Dunstone, comedian; and films shown by the King's Bioscope complete a strong and varied programme.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—An attractive bill was headed this week by Kate Carney and company, with the brisk and mirthful production, Fun of the Fair, the three scenes of which were carried through with great zest by Miss Carney and Messrs. Geo. Marriott, Willie Phillips, Albert Mason, Fred Malcolm, and Percy Moran. The clever ventriloquial sketch of Tom Edwards proved increasingly popular; and exceedingly dexterous display of feats on the wheel was given by the Daunton-Shaw troupe of Australian trick cyclists; Goodfellow and Gregson put in a good turn as comedy artists; the Channings appeared with acceptance in a vocal and instrumental act; Kitts and Windrum aroused hilarity in their military scena, The Cuckoo; and Hans and Lux made a successful bid for favour as comedians. Evelyn Bingham, a pleasing soprano vocalist; Harry Simons, a versatile light comedian; and American bioscope pictures completed.

ELLESMERE PORT.—Hippodrome and Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—The bill here is headed by the Three Royal Temples, who are drawing large audiences, and are highly appreciated for their operatic songs. Long Amos causes roars of laughter as a character comedian; a delightful comedienne and dancer is Daisy Osborne; Sandy and Carl are funny comedians and patterers; and the animated pictures are of the usual interesting order.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—A welcome return visit is paid by Beauty and the Barge, presented in an admirable manner by Mr. Arthur Shelton's company. The genial bargee Captain Barley is typified in a style redolent of the river by Mr. Maitland Marler; Mr. A. Russell-Davis capitally impersonates Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N.; Mr. A. E. Jackson is good as the irascible Major Smedley; and Mr. Jack Lilliput is clever in the part of Mr. Porter. Miss Hilda Vaughan endows the rôle of Ethel Smedley with grace and charm; and Mrs. Henry Renouf supplies just the right touch of humour as Mrs. Baldwin.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Fred Granville's No. 1 Company occupied the boards here during the week with A Hot Night. Mr. Edward Stream as Frank Frith, Mr. R. Austin Earl as Fontenoy Flutterwig, and Mr. H. Jackson Collis as Mark Maybury, individually and as a trio, keep the fun going at a lively pace, ably assisted by Mr. Chas. North as Captain Drake. Mr. H. Val Morgan as Professor Sheerman, Mr. Frank Daleno as Wm. Whiffles, Mr. Jimmie Watson as Mrs. Fontenoy Flutterwig, and Mr. Wm. Kent as Banks. Among the ladies of the cast Miss Nellie Valentine (Polly Drake), Miss Minnie Fisher (Lucy Lorimer), and Miss Olive Sparke (Fanny Frith) are prominent. Clever dances are given by the Granada Girls troupe.

FERNDALE.—New Theatre.—Business-Manager, Mr. David Williams; Secretary, Mr. William James.—The Seymour Hicks production, The Gay Gordons, under the direction of Mr. Robert McDonald, visited this popular house the first three nights of this week, and had a warm reception. Mr. Alec S. Clunes was admirably suited as Angus; Miss May Yates was a winsome Peggy; Mr. Harry Howe and Mr. W. H. Desmond as the showman and his son introduced much merriment; Miss Kitty Kerwin scored a success with her humorous performance of the showman's wife; Janet McLeod was capitally represented by Miss Beatrice Grosvenor; and Miss Edie Adeson was very popular as the showman's daughter, Victoria Siddons. Mr. Charles Benson as Andrew Quainton was dignified.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The Bad Girl of the Family, capably presented by Mr. Fredk. Melville's company, has interested large audiences here. Miss Violet Crossley, in the name-part, acts with great feeling and sympathy; Mr. Richard Lane is a popular Lieut. Richard Marsh R.N.; and Gladys Erskine is gracefully sustained by Miss Daisie Cook. Mr. James C. Taylor acts with commendable ease as Lord Erskine; Barney Gordon is played with a keen appreciation of the humour of the part by Mr. Luke Forster, who arouses roars of laughter; Harry Gordon has an efficient representative in Mr. Alexander Bradley; Mr. George Belmore supplies all necessary colouring in sustaining the character of Jerry Holmes; Mr. Tom May is Sammy Snozzle; Mr. Edwin Lever's John Moore is a creditable piece of character-acting; and Miss Sadie Southern is sufficiently docile as Mrs. Moore. Miss Dulcie O'Mull Conry ably impersonates Honour Moore; and smaller parts are in safe hands.

Town Hall.—Poole's Myriorama is presenting an excellent and varied programme. At the top of the bill is Amasis, who is responsible for a series of wonderful magical tricks; Inez and Pim are a couple of clever gymnasts; the Jerome Duo give a capital juggling performance; the Cairo Trio have an artistic musical performance; Vasey and Ramsey are clever dancers; the Three Ettenas appear successfully on the revolving globe; and Mr. W. L. Rowland creates roars of laughter.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. J. Reece.—Miss Nannie Goldman's company appeared here the first half of the week in The Stepmother. Captain Bristow, Abraham Wiggins, and Luke Frizel were all excellently played by Mr. William Holles, Mr. Chas. Dockwray, and Mr. H. P. Owen. Mr. Herbert J. Walton was a capable Detective; Miss Patricia Bostock gave a powerful rendering of the title-rôle, and the Donny of Miss Goldman was a pathetic performance. The comedy element was really well sustained by Mr. Teddy Myles and Miss Edith Bruce. Miss E. Walton Hemming was a precocious child, and the mounting all that could be desired.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Maurin's Marvellous Fountains form the leading attraction here this week. With the vari-coloured lighting some excellent effects are obtained, and the act is much admired. Harry Levaine is a comedian well supplied with fresh and incisive patter; we have been introduced to few better comedy duos than Barry and Wood, who have an act which is refined and taking; the Real McKies, Scotch juveniles, are remarkably accomplished; Annie Schuberth renders two ballads to the satisfaction of the audience; Marco is an entertaining mystifier; and Russell Carr, the military ventriloquist, and the Kingscope are other attractive items on the list.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. F. Douthwaite.—A most welcome return visit is being made here by Mr. Ben Greet's company in The Sign of the Cross. Mr. W. Lawson Butt in the part of Marcus is not found wanting in any respect; there is much to admire in Mr. Bernard Elliott's Nero; Tigellinus is capably impersonated by Mr. Charles Aldred; Mr. J. Wetherall does the part of Licinius full justice; especially notable is Mr. Frank Wood in the part of Glabrio; a sweet and lovable Mercia is presented by Miss Evelyn Nope; Stephanus is charmingly depicted by Miss Winifred Delevanti; Miss Dorothy Lart is seen to advantage as Beronice; the Empress is well looked after by Miss Mabel Cook; and Dacia is excellently done by Miss Esme Lee.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys. —A welcome return visit is being made by Mr. Edward Terry and company. The play presented on Monday was The Toymaker of Nuremberg, which comes to Glasgow for the first time. In the part of the toymaker Mr. Edward Terry has a part to which he is admirably suited; the toymaker's younger son, David, had a fine reading at the hands of Mr. Percival Madgewick; and Miss Christine Rayner gave a fine portrayal of his sweetheart. Mr. Robert Pateman was specially deserving of notice as the Sergeant; as also was the old actor of Mr. Percy Bell. Miss Adah Barton as the toymaker's wife and Mr. Templer Powell as the eldest son completed an admirable cast. The play was followed by Bardell v. Pickwick.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. G. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—A crowded and enthusiastic house on Monday welcomed Mr. Lewis Waller in his latest picturesque character, Bardelys the Magnificent, and followed with interest the development of the fascinating story. Miss Madge Titheradge makes a most charming Roxalfane, and acts with much power and intensity in the dramatic moments of the play; Mr. William Haviland makes a notable success as Castelroux, acting the cold-hearted villain with striking effect; Mr. Herbert Jarman is a stately and dignified Louis XIII.; Miss Dorothy Dix acts well as Andree de Marsac; Mr. A. B. Tapping is a most amusing Vicomtesse de Levedan; Mr. Reginald Dane as the foppish St. Armand, Mr. Frank Woolfe as Regnier, Mr. Caton Woodville as a Captain of Dragoons, and Mr. Dion Titheradge as a tipsy courtier all give excellent support. The Ganymede of Mr. Alec F. Thompson is a cleverly acted part. The play is beautifully staged.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Sub-Lessees, The Scottish Playgoers Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Humphrys.—Miss Elizabeth Baker's realistic comedy Chains, which finished here on Tuesday evening, makes a pleasing addition to the repertory company's stock of plays. In the parts of Charlie Wilson and his wife, Mr. Campbell Gullan and Miss Eva Titheradge were capitally suited, and keen perception of character was shown by Messrs. George Tarode (Fenwick), Frank Cochrane (Massey), and Norman McKeown (Walter Foster). Mr. Perceval Clark as Tennant and Miss Lola Duncan as Maggie gave very convincing studies. On Wednesday The Two Mr. Wetherbys was presented for the first time here.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss's Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant. — Success continues to reward the efforts of the management here in their triple bill. The sketch this week is On and Off, and as Peter Macducketty Mr. Alex. Keith has a part that provides endless amusement. Mr. Chas. Horner acts well as the poetic De Pentonville; Miss Ann Haughton, Miss Margaret Zaidia, and Mr. John Roberts complete the cast. The principal film is a dramatic rendering of Harriet Beecher Stowe's immortal story, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Illustrated songs are contributed in good style by Miss Jenny Sneddon.

PRINCESS'S. — Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The Face at the Window is being presented here by Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's company. Mr. W. Haughton Macaulay is successful in depicting the villainy of Lucio Delgado; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe creditably sustains the more popular part of Paul Gouffet; Mr. James Chippendale plays with discretion as Le Blanc; Miss Constance Glenabyn draws a strong and pathetic picture of the heroine; Mr. Richard Oliver is an effective Lucien; Mr. James Weston an excellent Henri de Brisson; and the humorous element is supplied by Mr. John A. Stimson as Peter Pottleberry and Miss Frances Day as Babette.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—"Striking" and "stirring" are the superlatives that could be used in describing the representation of The King and the Unknown Woman here. The author, Mr. Hill-Mitchelson, in the character of Prince Menski, brought the ire of the "gods" upon his head by his realistic interpretation; Miss Adeline Raby in the pathetic picture of the Unknown Woman captured admirers; Mr. Norman Partriege as Prince Loris played with dignity and power, as also did Mr. W. R. Winning as the faithful General Platz.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Two pieces are being staged at the Lyceum this week by Mr. Ernest R. Abbot's company. On Monday night A Wife's Triumph was performed twice before good audiences. For the remainder of the week an adaptation of Alphonse Daudet's novel Sapho will be produced, Miss Ada G. Abbott taking the part of Fanny Legrand.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—The centre of attraction this week is the popular prima donna Mme. Ella Russell; Caryl Wilbur and company again present their now well-known comedy 61, Prospect-street; Russell Wallett is amusing in the extreme; in a comedy pantomimic acrobatic sketch, The Billposter, much clever and amusing work is performed by the Francoli Troupe; Jean Clermont presents again his burlesque circus, including ponies, dogs, roosters, &c.; Frank Lynne's burlesque of "The Village Blacksmith" is exceedingly smart; Adam Tomlinson, a comedian from Tyneside, has met with a capital reception; Lola Patey is dainty and cheery; Dan Fraser gets through a lot of good work as a Scotch comedian; and the Bioscope brings an enjoyable evening's entertainment to a finish.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Vesta Victoria is once again proving a record draw here, and all her songs, new and old, go well, "Simple Life" being a special favourite; the Bros. Egbert, the happy dustmen, are strong favourites in Glasgow, and their reception is particularly cordial; John Le Hay and company once more give their lively sketch Poor Beggar, and both for humour and music it is one of the best that comes here; Bromley and Fontein contribute a clever musical burlesque item; Jennie Johns takes well in several catchy ditties with good choruses; Clarke and Mostol are smart patterers and wonderful dancers, and make a hit; the Eight Frolics are smart young people, and their singing and dancing proves highly popular; Kittie Douglas, a bright and happy comedienne, goes well in a couple of lively songs.

PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—The principal item is an exhibition of rifle and pistol shooting by the Three Dreadnoughts; another turn of note is the humorous and dramatic episode, Wrong 'Uns, presented by James Hare and company; Lindsay and Harte in their vocal and comedy sketches are specially favoured; and other artists include Edie Veno, eccentric comedienne; the Three Orleans, clever vaudeville artists; Jack Barker, comedian and mimic; Petro and Leon, simultaneous gymnasts; and Fred Park, comedian and dancer.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—Tom Foy and company in their sketch, First of April, cause half-an-hour's hearty and continuous laughter, the Yorkshire simpleton of Tom Foy himself being a wonderfully clever bit of humorous acting; Verno and Voyce have a well-written and well-played turn in John Bull's Cash Box, and it earns hearty applause; Elsie Roby's fun at the piano, and her imitations of a Spanish dancer and an operatic vocalist, are richly comic; Rich and Rich are pastmasters in the art of humorous patter, and they get a great reception; Rhoda Paul contributes a clever sketch of a street waif, and acts and sings with notable effect; the King's College Boys take well in their musical turn; Larola, in his varied acrobatic turn, is well received; Russell Wallett as the lady in black ably deputises for an absent turn; Rose Cabani, comedienne, completes a most enjoyable entertainment.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Well-sustained patronage is still the lot of the management here. Both comic and dramatic films were excellent. The B.B. Gazette presented an interesting chronicle of events, including a splendid view of King George at the recent Royal funeral. The variety interludes were provided with great acceptance by Hector Wright, in his vocal and dramatic sketch, The Portrait, and the star trio, in their musical speciality, Ginger. The talking and singing picture for the first part of the week was the ever-popular Lauder ditty, "I love a lassie."

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Sinclair.—The principal position here is filled by Harry St. Clair, comedian and instrumentalist, whose clever dog performs many tricks; Lillie Lawrence, speciality dancer, Tymes and Waite, patterers and dancers, and Harry Arnold, Scotch comedian, are also on the bill. The Bioscope pictures are specially interesting.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—The chief attraction here is a refined instrumental speciality by the Musical Bentleys; Andy Burns takes well with his songs.

STAR, LTD. — Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—The variety artists here include Hargadon and Cole, in a musical comedy sketch; the Brookland Girls, dainty comediennes and dancers; and Miss Rita Halkett, one of Partick's own "stars."

ZOO-CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mlle. Florence, the globe-walker, joins the company here, and is proving her dexterity in her clever feats on the rolling globe; the Walonells are clever triple-bar experts, who give a smart turn; Mons. Abex, the boy Hercules, remains another week, and his wonderful feat of lifting a motor-car and five men with his teeth creates a sensation. The circus items are always much enjoyed by the youngsters in the audience.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss Violet Osmund's company presented here the musical comedy The New Barmaid. Mr. George Fox ably sustained the part of Captain Loveday; Miss M. Stead was charming as Braddy; Mr. W. Henty gave a fine impersonation of Colonel Claymore; Mr. Alexander Loftus was a big success as Bertie White, as was also Mr. Chas. Adeson as the Head Waiter; Miss B. Steale was an imperious Lady Moulton; and Miss Madge Prior a sweet and charming New Barmaid.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. Charles Windermere and company are here in Where is William? Mr Windermere plays the part of Sir William Gregory in mirth-provoking style, and comedy honours are shared by Mr. Rule Pyott as William Jolly; the fery General Rubbub is excellently played by Mr. Leslie Norman; and Mrs. Alfred Davies enacts the part of Emily, the cook, in able manner. Harry Gregory is smartly rendered by Mr. Robert Urquhart; Miss Zoë Davis as Eliza is distinctly good; and Miss Clare Manifield acts charmingly as Phyllis Patterson. Lady Gregory is presented in dignified manner by Miss Belle Donaldson; Mr. Fred Archer plays Joe Budge, a burglar, well; and an imposing police officer is made by Mr. Albert Plant.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Stewart.—An Indian Girl's Romance is a good picture; and Miss Kitty Woodford tunefully renders some good illustrated songs. The Bowery Boys and Girl dance excellently; and the Loonas, in musical act, are well received.

THEATRE DE LUXE.—Electric Theatres (1908), Ltd. —Whilst putting on a good selection of pictures, the management have, for the comfort of their patrons, added smoking lounge, ladies', and general rooms, where all the illustrated and daily papers are provided for patrons waiting for a seat at this continuous show.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. P. Hainsworth.—A good all-round company is here this week, including the clever Zingares, international dancers and vocalists; Mr. Tom Delamare, comedian and female impersonator, provides a clever and entertaining turn. The Sisters Cecil, duettists and buck dancers, are highly successful, and Miss Ethel Colyer is a clever skipping-rope dancer. The Monarchscope Pictures complete the bill.

GRAVESEND.—NEW PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE. —Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke, J.P.—On the concluding three nights of last week Mr. G. W. Bowes produced The Arcadians, which was well staged and dressed. A really artistic portrayal of the dual characters of James Smith and Simplicitas was given by Mr. Harry Rignold; and as Peter Doodey, the jockey, Mr. Percy Cahill was as good as anyone could wish for, his song, "Always merry and bright," being repeatedly encored at each performance. As Jack Meadows Mr. Max Wakeman proved himself worthy; and as Bobby Mr. Lauri Aster was good. Miss Maisie Riversdale's was a first-rate impersonation of Mrs. Smith; and as Eileen Cavanagh Miss Moyna Hill sang sweetly and danced gracefully. Of the Arcadians themselves, Mr. H. E. Neville as Astrophel did well; and Miss Dorothy Clancy and Miss Beatrice West worked admirably together, and were perfectly at home as Chrysea and Sombra respectively. Other parts well sustained were Sir George Paddock (Mr. Jack Chester), Reggie (Mr. Edward Jefferson), and Time (Mr. Horace Nye).

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. G. Leslie.—For the week we have here Howell, Webb, and company, in their sketch, The Professor's Baby, which puts the audience on good terms with themselves; Charlie Moore, comedian, also contributes to the laughter; the Sisters Beatrice excel as vocalists and dancers; the Gelders, society entertainers and magicians, are a smart turn. Cyclumina performs some clever tricks on an electrically lighted cycle; Ivy Dene, a soubrette, is a good songstress; the Three Victors, in a song scena, "The Flower of the Prairie," written and produced by Herbert Shelley, make a decided hit; and the Erascope, with some new films, proves very acceptable.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—His Indian Wife is here this week. Miss Leila Zillwood gives an artistic performance of Wild Rose; Miss Jara St. George is a dignified Lady Kingsley; Mr. Arthur Hinton gives a capital portrayal of Hubert Ainsworth; Mr. Travis Green is excellent as Wolfstang; and Miss Laura Wright as Black Duck and Mr. Tod Squires as Billy Twiggle are amusing.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Three Lumars top the bill this week, and give a unique and clever gymnastic performance; the Martialo Trio are jugglers of remarkable dexterity; the Three Rocs submit a smart performance on the silver chains; Judge's cockatoos are repeating their success of former visits; Mr. George Gulliver is a remarkable ventriloquist; and Doodles, with his sketch, is responsible for much hilarity.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey and company are here. On the opening night Rollicking Rory was effectively produced. Mr. Chalmers Mackey admirably sustained the title-rôle; and as Rosie Callagan Miss May Livesay played with much freshness and charm; Mr. Conway Hastings gave an effective delineation of Stephen d'Arcy; Mr. J. P. McBride was commendable as Desmond Fitzgerald; and Mr. Charles M. Julian proved successful as Captain Ashleigh; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey was seen to advantage as Rosaleen; and Miss Jeanette Lyons was very good as Widow Callagan.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Charles Parker's Aeolians, who top the bill, are very entertaining in their vocal and dancing act; Edie Haley, vocalist, submits a smart and versatile turn; A. J. Gamble keeps the audience in the best of humour by his funny patter and originalities; Dixon and Dixon are very successful; Tony, Hoppit, and Terry, in their speciality act, cause hearty laughter; George Madigan's dogs supply a pleasing turn; and Frank E. Ford excels as a dancer.

GRIMSBY. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—After an absence of a few years A Message from Mars is appearing here again. Mr. Harry St. Barbe-West successfully plays Horace Parke, being excellent alike in the lighter and more pathetic scenes; Mr. William H. Brougham acts with dignity as the Messenger; Mr. Norman Clark's impersonation of the Tramp is a clever character study; Miss Josephine Middleton acts pleasingly as Minnie Templar; and among others who may be mentioned are Miss Aubrey Ashton as Miss Parker and Mr. Alfred Sugg as Arthur Dicey.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford. — Sandy McNab, the Scottish comedian, is causing much merriment in his sketch, The Egyptian Mummy; the Amaranths are a troupe of clever lady acrobatic and whirlwind dancers; Walter Lennard is a baritone of pleasing ability; Jimmy Danvers and Eva Rosslyn have a capital vocal burlesque; Dolf Escourt provides novelty as a singing juggler and mimic; and other good turns are given by A. G. Spry, a quaint comedian, Henry Carlton, a refined entertainer, and the Sisters Storm, vocalists and smart dancers.

GUERNSEY. — THEATRE ST. JULIAN. — Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Imperial electric pictures and varieties continue here. Some excellent films are shown this week. Unexpected Help, Our Weekly Chronicle, and a coloured picture depicting a Biblical story Athaliah, are greatly admired. Mr. George Bernard, actor-vocalist, is in high favour with his songs and scena; Miss Fanny Humber, novelty instrumentalist and skipping-rope dancer, pleases; Freda and Frank appear in a singing and dancing act; and Miss Kitty Caffrey contributes as the military maid. Mr. A. May-Marsh is an able pianist.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here with Brewster's Millions. Mr. Percy Hutchison plays Monty Brewster with real naturalness. He is admirably supported by Mr. G. Ash (Charlie Harrison), Mr. R. Forsyth (Mr. Grant), Mr. A. Andrews (Colonel Drew), Mr. H. Hampson (Archie Golding), Mr. Aubrey Mather (Joseph McLeod), Mr. A. Bell (Frank Bragden), Mr. A. Wight (Horace Bettinghill), Mr. O. Hazlewood (Tommy Smith), and Mr. Frank Hill (Rawles). Miss Dorothy Whitaker is a winsome and captivating Peggy, Miss Lilias Earle a charming Mrs. Dan, and Miss M. Ripley an interesting Janice Armstrong.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas give a fine and artistic rendering of various scenes from Dickens; Arthur F. Ward fully justifies his title of a "Somewhat different juggler"; J. A. Wilson and his dog Towser are a popular turn; David uller is a baritone of full range and a good singer; and Gracie Hunt (comedienne), Elroy (the armless wonder), and Harvey's American Boys and Girls complete the bill.

HAMILTON, N.B. — HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Mr. George A. Street and company, in The Cattle Thief, are topping the bill here. Mysterious Mysticus in his clever burlesque of spiritualistic clap-trap is entertaining; the Bellong Brothers have a skilful equilibristic turn; Bert Williams, ventriloquist, is funny; Vera Rochdale is the possessor of an excellent voice, besides dancing very cleverly; Sisters Luraine are capital instrumentalists. Marie Kay (roller skate dancer and comedienne), George Rae (Scotch comedian and dancer), and the Bioscope conclude.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—Mr. George Edwardes' company in The Merry Widow visits Hanley for the third time. Miss Louie Pounds, Mr. Basil S. Foster, and Mr. Lionel Victor are included in the powerful cast.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Riogoku Troupe of Japanese acrobats are a great attraction; the Gothams in comedy-harmony are also very popular; the Gillins are responsible for a clever comedy act; Tony Black, a Scotch comedian, is well received; Jack Waller is decidedly clever; the Watsons, musicians and sketch artists, are very entertaining; the Derrington Family of cyclists are clever; Tom and Edie George present an original sporting scena; and the interesting pictures include the funeral of Prince Francis of Teck.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—This week Mr. Stephen Pritt's company is here with a selection of his plays. On Monday Almost his Bride was in the bill. Mr. J. O. Stevenson made a dignified Earl of Ulswater; Mr. Barrie was good as Squire Rowland; and Mr. Morris Maud was a manly hero; Mr. Quinton Fulford played the deep-dyed villain, Jasper Thorne, and Mr. Stephen Pritt was a host in himself as Simon Simson; Miss Bellamy was good as Myra Thorne, and Miss Kathleen Stewart made a sweet Mona. East Lynne and A Woman's Passion have also been played.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—Stanley and Vandyke head the bill, and provoke considerable merriment. Arthur Harris, character vocalist, is cordially received in his varied sketches; and song and dance are well contributed by Masie Phillips. Capital films are shown by Ruffel's Imperial Bioscope.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus's company are here in The Thief, by arrangement with Mr. George Alexander. Mr. Bernard Limpus as Richard Chelford contrives to invest the part with manly charm and tenderness: Mr. F. Morland lends dignity and weight to the rôle of Raymond Leyton; his suspected son Harry has an excellent exponent in Mr. Carl W. Lindsey; a telling impersonation of the Detective is given by Mr. W. Somerset; Miss Diana Cloud shows true dramatic talent in her vivid portrayal of the character of Marise Chelford; and Isabel, Leyton's second wife, is daintily depicted by Miss Mary Forrester.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Maxwell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hawker.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's company is here in The Marriage of Kitty, Davy Garrick, and Caste. As Sir Reginald Belsize in The Marriage of Kitty Mr. Norman employs a quiet, humorous method which is very telling; Mr. Lock Whittaker is effective as John Travers (solicitor); as Mme. de Samiano Miss Agnes Thornton acts with a deal of brightness and cleverness; and a delightful impersonation of Kitty is given by Miss Beatrice Wilson.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING. — GAIETY. — Proprietors, Messrs. J. Ainsley and H. Hall.—Mr. J. W. Cordiner's company is here in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde, in the title-rôle, scored heavily; Miss Florence Corri as Judith met with hearty applause; and Kate Montrose was finely portrayed by Miss Margaret S. Forbes; in the humorous character of Silas Crump, Mr. James Salter kept the audience in a merry mood; Mr. Walter Ashley made a typical captain; and Mr. James Morath as Dudley gave a capital impersonation.

HOYLAND. — HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Firth.—The attraction here is Mrs. Frank Bateman and company with Where Angels Fear to Tread. Mr. Fred W. Goddard is an excellent Maurice Masterman; Mr. George Herbert is successful as Lord Fearless; as Bert Taylor, Mr. George Butler makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. Will White as Jim Sadler is satisfactory; Mr. Percy Shaw is a humorous Herbert Stiggins, being ably assisted by Miss H. Carrington as Acrodyan Warkerry, and Miss Emma Rainbow is all that can be desired as Lady Margaret Austinleigh; Mrs. Fanny Olive as Selina Sticcles is good; Miss Dulcia Lawrence as the scheming Lady Carina Clelland gives an interesting reading; and Miss Frank Bateman in the rôle of Araminta Parson is sympathetic.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—An interesting return visit is being paid by the wonderful animal Consul, whose highly educated state is remarkable. Also appearing on Monday night were Arthur Albert (character vocalist), the Two Diamonds (a pair of clever young singers and dancers), Will Lindsay (Yorkshire comedian), Smarte Bros. (skilled comedy acrobats), Fred Conquest and company in a highly amusing sketch Something for Nothing, and some good pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—A good bill includes Miss Victoria Monks (the popular comedienne, whose first visit is a great success), Harry Taylor (comedian), Halma (a dexterous juggler), Miss Daisy Taylor (a dainty singer and dancer), the Werds Bros. (clever comedy acrobats), Hicks and Hunter (two nimble dancers on real ice skates), Harry Elliston and company in a funny sketch Aunt Matilda, and Albert St. Clair (a sweet singing double-voiced vocalist). The Palace Pictures are, as usual, good.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The House of Temperley, with the full company from the Adelphi, has been doing great things this week, and little wonder. Mr. Stratton Rodney and his company all work towards one end—success. Mr. Murray Carson plays with consummate skill the part of Sir John Hawker, and Sir Chas. Temperley is a rôle that finds excellent scope for Mr. Rodney. Captain Jack Temperley could not be better cast than in the safe keeping of Mr. Claude King. Lady Temperley was well played by Miss Claire Paunceforte. Mr. Blake-Adams with all his skill plays the part of Ginger Stubbs; Miss Una Venning gives a taste of her work as Ethel Morley.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Great Awakening is a play that just appeals to the Alexandra audience, and Miss Olga Audré is an artist full of resource, and meets with warm expressions of approval; and Mr. Arthur Wimpenny fills the part of Jack Merton with distinct cleverness. Miss Evie Conway gives a daring performance as Molly Merton; Mr. Chas. Chandler renders good service at Captain Lambart.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—The clever illusionist, Mr. Horace Goldin, ably assisted by the charming Mlle. Jeanne Fransioli, is presenting some novelties in the way of cabinet and trunk tricks; Howard and Harris are quaint American humorists; My Fancy, the charming dancer, presents her pretty and novel scena, "Winter, Spring, and Summer," with distinct success; Ernie Mayne's quaint and irresistible humour is responsible for hearty laughter; as "the tramp at the piano," James Stewart enhances his reputation here; Ricardo and Salving obtain vociferous applause for their clever and novel acrobatic act; Mina Denvil, a pleasing vocalist; Kenny Kay, an entertaining ventriloquist; and the Bioscope pictures complete a capital bill.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hy. Slingsby.—A popular feature of a varied bill is the clever weight-lifting performance by Atlas and Vulcana, they also introduce the Sisters Atlas and Little Gus, an exceedingly clever trio; the Phœnix Trio of harmonising singers and dancers contribute an enjoyable item; Kydd and Kydd, patter comedians, and Kail Stern, the Colombo coon, meet with well deserved recognition; Mons. Ugo, the man of mystery; Lilian Rose, popular vocalist; Rose D. Auiby, chorus comedienne; and Ida Idris, comedienne, are much appreciated.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Bentley.—Principal turn here is John Clempert, whose death-defying mysteries are watched with close interest; Dave O'Toole, with a budget of funny songs, is a warm favourite; a bright comedy act is presented by Kennedy and Ryan; Dale and Vale win hearty plaudits for their smart singing and dancing; an item much enjoyed is the vocalism and dancing of Lauri and Elsy; Tom Clifford is a ventriloquist of merit; and Harriet Rose a pleasing comedienne.

PRINCE'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morton.—An attractive picture programme is given at this pretty hall twice nightly, and it is difficult to find a vacant seat.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Messrs. R. and F. Kelso still draw good houses with a series of pictures. Mr. Ben Lomond is popular. The proceeds of Friday evening are to be devoted to the Provost's coal fund.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Jack Lane, an old favourite in Ipswich, is as good as ever; An Amateur Anarchist is a short comedy turn well played by Livesey and Rosebery; Paul Barnes is a droll American vocalist and raconteur; the Valdo Brothers are smart and skilful acrobats; Yellmah has a stock of amusing tricks; Dolly Harmer sings well and is a good comedienne; Connie Macot is also a good singer and dancer; and the Bioscope has some excellent pictures.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edwards Evans.—This week we have a visit from The Coal King company. Mr. Cecil H. Woodhouse plays Tom Roberts admirably, while Mr. A. M. Norman makes an excellent Sir Reginald Hartford; the part of Walter Hartford is played with force and skill by Mr. Sidney C. Kearns; Mr. Frank Caffery makes much out of the part of Jim Williams; and Dick Shirley is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Dalton. Miss Winifred Love gives a charming rendering of the part of Grace Shirley; Miss Laurie O. Neil is quite at home as Araminta Green, while Miss Emily Levettez makes an ideal Mad Ann.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, The Palace Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Padden.—This picture hall continues to show some excellent films. Lillah Brett, the athletic girl, and Babe Lloyd are here this week and are well received.

THE KINO.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Scott.—The hall is still drawing good houses and shows some excellent pictures.

JERSEY. — OPERA HOUSE, LTD. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Edward Marris and Albanany Ward; Manager, Mr. Lindsay Edwards.—Miss Lena Stanton's company is appearing here in The Bluecoat Boy, burlesque, in tabloid form. Miss Stanton is supported by Miss Norah Neville and Messrs. Arthur E. Carlton, Harry Josephs, and Dan Lyall. The same company also appear in The Happy Jap. The picture portion of the programme is particularly good.

ROYAL HALL.—Lessee, Mr. J. T. West; Manager, Mr. George Francis.—The pictures shown here include A Day With Mr. C. B. Fry's Mercury Boys, A Ramble through Ceylon, and The Launch of the Olympic.

ALHAMBRA.—Proprietors, Messrs. L. C. Langlois and L. Poulain.—Mr. Jim Begley supplies the variety portion of the programme, and the Pictures are up to the usual standard.

Miss Ruth Zillwood gives a fine impersonation of Risca Maflinson; Mr. Arthur S. Pitt is a big favourite as Jem Murley; Mr. Thompson Carruthers well sustains the part of Eric Melville; Mr. James Willoughby scores highly; and Mr. Eddie Vane is good.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The boards were occupied the first three nights of the week by Mr. H. P. Tower's company, in The Best People, excellently mounted. Mr. Henry Renouf cleverly enacts the part of Lord Emsworth; Mr. Frederic Sargent ably portrays that of the Hon. Gerald Boyle; Mr. Claude Haviland and Mr. O.

FOR INDIGESTION

Pains After Eating Biliousness Constipation, Wind Headaches

Those who have once had Indigestion know what a death in life it is. Indigestion causes more human misery than all other ailments combined. When pains in the stomach, chest or back, visit you after meals; when you lose your appetite, or have headaches, biliousness, constipation, and feel miserable, run-down, played-out, Indigestion is wringing the life out of you. Mother Seigel's Syrup, the herbal tonic, is the remedy you need. It tones and strengthens the stomach, so that it can digest food, cleanses your blood, increases your vitality, and gives you health and strength. Mrs. M. A. Murray, 41, Wychtree Street, Morriston, Swansea, says:—"I suffered from Indigestion. I became constipated, had pains across my chest and between my shoulders, with frequent headaches, and violent pains in the region of the heart. The very first bottle of Mother Seigel's Syrup did me a world of good. I had about eight bottles of the Syrup, and by then my cure was complete."—11/4/10.

AND CEASE TO SUFFER

The 2/6 bottle contains three times as much as the 1/1½ size. Also in Tablet form, 2/9.

Forester are good as Lord Wynlea and Jackson; the part of Mr. James Spofforth is in the capable hands of Mr. Edward Nimmo; Miss Irene Lavington and Miss Evelyn Summers do full justice to the rôles of Lady Emsworth and the Hon. Mrs. Boyle respectively. The latter end of the week Mr. H. Armitage is presenting Leah Kleschna.

KING'S LYNN.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch was presented for three nights this week. Miss Cecile Anson is a capable Mrs. Wiggs; Miss Muriel Locking makes an eccentric Miss Hazy; Miss Clara Earle is a graceful Lovey Mary; Mr. Kenneth Rivington as Mr. Stubbins is quite characteristic; and all the other characters are well sustained.

KIRKCALDY.—New King's Theatre.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Bell.—The New Lady Bantock is being presented here this week by Mr. Horace Lingard, Miss Beatrice Moreau, and company. In the title-rôle Miss Beatrice Moreau exhibits much histrionic ability, and Mr. Horace Lingard is eminently successful as Martin Bennett. Miss Miriam Holt and Miss Dorothy Clifton submit a delightful study of the maiden aunts, the Misses Wetherell; Dr. Freemantle is admirably played by Mr. Leon Hastings; Mr. Alfred Ray is excellent as Lord Bantock; and Mr. Wilfred Compton's enactment of George Newte leaves nothing to be desired.

LANCASTER.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Miss Elizabeth Dexter and Mr. Harold C. Lloyd's company, in The Passing of the Third Floor Back, occupied the boards the first three nights this week. Mr. Hodgson Taylor as a Passer-by delivered his lines with remarkable clearness; Mr. Herbert Pearce was good as Joey Wright; Mr. Gerald Pring did capable work as the Artist; and the part of Major Tompkins was in the safe hands of Mr. Richard Hicks. Miss Elizabeth Dexter gave a clever portrayal of Vivian Tompkins; Miss Jeannie Thomas as Mrs. Sharpe, the landlady, was a decided success; and very able support was rendered by Miss Katherine Morris as 'Stasia, the slavey, Miss Emma Stockley as Miss Kite and Miss Clara Nicholls as Mrs. de Hooley. Mr. John Levey and company appeared in the melodrama The Scapegrace on Thursday.

Hippodrome.—Haley's Garden of Girls are at the top here; the Cumberlands supply a remarkably clever cycle turn; Odeyne Spark sings well; Barry Snowball and Kitty Mack, in a hunting skit, are smart; and Walter Stanley, comedian, does well. Animated pictures complete.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—During the earlier part of the week Mr. Ernest E. Norris's company appeared to large and delighted audiences in The Education of Elizabeth. Miss May Norris played Elizabeth with wonderful effect; whilst Mr. Harry B. Waring gave a very natural performance as Harry Fairfax. Mr. Norris was a decided success in the rôle of Reggie; and as the unscrupulous Whitby Mr. Fred Castleman played with much merit. Miss Helen Forest was admirable as Lucy Middleton; other characters being portrayed by Miss Phyllis Dailley and Miss Maggie Spencer with much skill. In the latter part of the week Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is announced to appear in Don.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; Manager, Mr. Wynn Hart.—Dame Nature is here this week. Miss Ethel Irving gives a powerful and convincing impersonation as Lolette; Mr. Frank Cooper submits an admirable representation of Robert Bertram; and Mr. Norman Forbes very capably sustains the character of the Prince de Chabran; Miss Mabelle Hunt plays with much distinction the Princess.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Manager, Mr. George Macleod.—Miss Zena Dare is drawing enthusiastic audiences here in The Model and the Man. Miss Dare sings, acts, and dances delightfully, and is quite a success. She is well supported by Mr. Frank Wilson, who takes the part of a sculptor, and Miss Ivy St. Helier as a slavey; Tom Costello is well received in several new songs; the Kirbys create much amusement in a merry comedy act; Campbell and Barker do some clever cycling tricks; and the Cavalotti Bros. in their musical act are good; Fred Poplar has a clever political song; and other nice turns include those of the Sisters Jerome and Kitty Wager.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Fred Karno in his amusing sketch Perkins, M.P., with Tom Nelson as Perkins, is well received; Alec. Hurley is a big favourite; Herbert Rule is rapidly increasing in popularity; Margit and Lener are good in a speciality act; and other successful turns are those of Fred Lyndo, Elton and Elma, Vera Wotton, Lloyd Morgan, an excellent light comedian, and Eileen Northe.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—No Man's Land is being presented here this week. The leading characters are taken by Messrs. Henry Horne, Edwin Bennett, Villiers Stanley, and Misses Marie Kildare and Alice Steinberg.

Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Manager, Mr. Albert Whiteman; Assistant Manager, Mr. Bernard Armstrong.—Luis Hardt tops the bill here in a new scena entitled In Days of Old. Ferguson and Mack in a comedy act are responsible for much laughter; Seener and Fridkins appear in their clever sketch; Sisters St. Julian are talented dancers; and others appearing are Billy Rex, Sterling Nasham, and Jack Hayton.

LEEK.—Grand Theatre and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Leek Theatre Co., Ltd.; Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Barry Bond.—Mr. Morton Powell's company in How Girls are Brought to Ruin is here. Mrs. Morton Powell achieves success as Minnie Waters; Miss Alice Defoe plays with tact and sympathy the rôle of Jessie Burton; Mr. Harry Scott draws a manly portrait of Harry Hailing; and Messrs. Richard Vane (Philip Edge) and Alaric Burton (Solomon Sleck) prove themselves capable exponents of villainy. The rôle of Mrs. Burton is effectively sustained by Miss Kathryne Eckhart; and Miss Addie Adair as Mrs. Slutt and Mr. Sidney Bryant as Jack Jossie supply the humorous element successfully. The play is well mounted.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—Messrs. T. C. Wray and Austen Hurgon's company is presenting The Girls of Gottenberg. Miss Dora Langham plays delightfully the part of Mitzi; and "Smith" is very funny as Max. Various other artists who deserve special commendation include Miss Grace Desmond (Clementine), Mr. R. N. Cory (Otto), Mr. Eddie Foy (Brittl Bottl), Miss Beryl Vaudrey (Elsa), and Mr. Tom Squire (Adolph). The dressing and mounting are well done.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—A notice of the new play, The Ruin of Her Life, will be found in another column.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—At the top of the bill is Frank Cass, who is well received; Lennard and Vereker introduce their original and thoroughly pleasing vocal-picture-songs, with satisfactory results; the Brothers Tarrant, excellent and amusing comedians and dancers, appear in place of Flo Warner; Guy Rider goes well in his latest success, "The regimental pet." Other good turns are contributed by the Vanderbilts, the swell and the belle; Ernestine Desborough, vocalist; and Daisy Hurdle, comedienne. The Bioscope shows good films.

Empire.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—The two star films in the usual lengthy and diversified programme invariably submitted here are The Judge and The Girl and the Eleventh Hour. Ruby Lester, comedienne and mimic, is on a successful return visit.

Grand Electric Palace.—Proprietors, The Midland Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joseph Eke.—The Kinemacolor pictures shown here always arouse the greatest interest and admiration.

The Electric Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Reynolds-Benjamin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Kingstone Trollope.—The business continues to be exceptionally good at this new hall, with double changes of pictures weekly.

LEIGH. — Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Gould; General-Manager, Mr. A. F. Beaton.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here in The Apple of Eden, which was enthusiastically received by a full house on Monday. Mr. Percy Ballard makes a good impression as the aristocratic scoundrel, Prince Nicola; General Pavlos finds a clever exponent in Mr. John F. Traynor; Mr. Lauderdale Maitland gives a masterly performance of Julian Hanbury; Vassili has a capable representative in Mr. Percy Follis; Miss Janet Alexander as Queen Margaret quickly wins the sympathy of the audience by her pathetic enactment; Miss M. Hayden is finely suited as Lady Hanbury; the humour of the play is never allowed to flag by Mr. Bertie White as Robert Bertram and Miss Tressa Myers as Winifred Cresson; Mr. Francis James deserves praise as Stefan, as does also Miss Mysie Monti as Anna.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—A strong programme is headed by Carlton, an accomplished illusionist and humorist; the Four Quaint Q's combine good comedy with excellent vocal harmony; David Poole is a smart ventriloquist; the Sisters Thorne, duettists and dancers, are successful; Rene Graham is clever; Chas. Woodward, light comedian, is well received; Victor and Louis contribute a good comedy sketch; Mack Olive, mimic and whistler, and the Hipposcope pictures complete.

Assembly Rooms and Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Barclay.—Another fine picture programme is presented here. The Sisters Aindow have a refined musical act.

LEITH. — New Gaiety Theatre. — Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The various episodes in Mr. Arthur Shirley's stirring drama, The Midnight Mail, which conveys a moral lesson on the temperance question, are well illustrated by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company. Mr. Claude Hermann makes a striking figure in the leading part of Harry Steyne, whose wife, ably played by Miss Trissie Humphrys, bears the vicissitudes of the heroine with a fortitude deserving the reward she ultimately secures. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman is very acceptable as Leonard Royle, the good genius of the play; while the evil-doer, Hasson Padisha, is presented as a sufficiently malevolent person by Mr. Frank S. Strickland; and Miss Jennie Weston appears to advantage in the rôle of Lady Phyllis Eustace. Miss Mildred Carr acts in very brisk and engaging style as Nancy Brewer; and her dissolute spouse, in the hands of Mr. Fred G. Evison, becomes one of the strongest character-studies in the cast. Minor parts receive careful representation, and some imposing realistic effects are successfully worked.

LICHFIELD.—St. James's Hall.—On Monday night Miss Maggie Morton's company appeared here in A Thief in the Night. The premier part was in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Duval; Mr. M. de Courtsey was the heavy lead, and Mr. W. Owen an amusing low comedian. Of the ladies, Miss C. O'Sullivan played the part of Joan Escombe with spirit, Miss Helen Lowther was responsible for the heavy rôle of Sonia Cleeve, and Miss Maggie Blyth was pathetic as the child Joan.

LIMERICK.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. George Victor Fogerty.—The Little Damozel was produced on Monday by the Ida Molesworth and Mark Blow company, before an extremely appreciative audience. Mr. Alick Chumley impersonated the rôle of Recklaw Poole with rare histrionic ability; and as Fitzroy Lock the acting of Mr. Guy Newall was much to be commended. As Captain Partington, Mr. George A. Brandram was admirable; and Walter Angel, of the café, was in the capital hands of Mr. W. Matthews. Papa Batholdy, Franz Pepo, and Abraham were capitally sustained by Messrs. R. R. Ravenscroft, Frank Roy, and Captain Gambier. Mr. Arthur Redmond acted well as Chef d'œuvre; Miss Marion Locke was a winsome Sybil Craven, and Miss Emelie Polini as Julie Alardy won rounds of applause by her artistic acting. Miss Maude Rivers appeared to great advantage as Madam. Miss Polini had to acknowledge the plaudits of a very large and delightful audience.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Here again Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company are delighting large audiences with The Arcadians. Mr. Walter Passmore is the life and soul of the merry play, his Simplicitas being as rich as ever. Miss Ethel Erskine sings and acts very nicely in the rôle of Sombra; Mr. Oliver J. Round's Peter Doody is again a big mirth-provoker; Miss Billie Sinclair makes a delightful Eileen Cavanagh; Miss Veronica Brady proves an amusing Mrs. Smith; and other worthy helpers are Mr. H. E. Pearce (Jack Meadows) and Miss Florence Ivy (Chrysea).

Shakespeare Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The Carl Rosa Opera company are here this week. On Monday night they opened with Tannhäuser, in which Miss Emma Loeffler appeared as a new Elizabeth, and showed talent of the highest order both as a vocalist and actress. Mr. E. C. Hedmondt repeated his well-known Tannhäuser; Mr. Hebden Foster played Wolfram with care and intelligence; Mr. Arthur Winckworth repeated his Landgrave, and sang in fine style; and others who lent valuable aid were Messrs. Charles Brierly (Reinmar), Alexander Richard (Biterolf), Albert Felton (Schreiber), and Miss Lawson Tayler (Shepherd Boy), and Miss T. Addington (Venus). The other operas given were Queen of Sheba (first time in Liverpool), Faust, Lily of Killarney, Carmen, and Il Trovatore. Messrs. Walter Van Noorden and Eugene Goosens were the conductors.

Rotunda Theatre. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Beggar Girl's Wedding is the attraction here this week. Miss Muriel Dean plays Bessie Webster with every satisfaction; Mr. Norman B. Cannon makes a manly Jack Cunningham, earning much commendation; Mr Frank McClellan is well suited to the rôle of Norman Marsh; Miss Sybil Hare is a sweet Elsie Cunningham; most diverting comedy comes from Mr. Fred Hodson (Dicky Storm) and Miss Daisy Maynard (Tina Torkington); and others who appear with distinction are Messrs. Charles Barclay (Dr. Millbank); William T. Riley (Gilbert Lindsay), and Miss Ernestine Walter (Maud Villiers).

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week owing to the important booking of A White Man. Mr. Herbert Sleath sends a capital company. Mr. Frank E. Petley plays Jim Carston with much dramatic effect, and earns earnest applause; Miss Dorothy Edwards, a young lady who has recently adopted the stage, gives considerable promise, her acting as Nat-u-rich being marked by care and intelligence; Big Bill is capitally presented by Mr. John M. East; Mr. Oswald Lingard makes an impressive Tab-y-Wana; Cash Hawkins is played with plenty of dash and swagger by Mr. Vernon Sansbury; Bud Hardy finds in Mr. James E. Page a worthy exponent; Miss Nora Nagle is an intelligent Little Hal; and the rôles of the Lady Mabel and the Countess of Kerhill are carefully held by Miss Elsie Buller and Miss Enid Sass.

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—The Hypocrites is the attraction this week, an able company, under Mr. Frank Bertram, presenting it. Mr. Philip Darien stands out prominently with his Rev. Edgar Linnell, which he plays with every effect; Mr. W. F. Stirling is an amusing Mr. Willmore; Miss V. St. Lawrence proves successful as Mrs. Willmore; Mr. Frank Melrose pleases as Mr. Viveash; and other strong supporters are Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald (Leonard Willmore), Miss Violet Macaree (Rachel Neve), Miss Verita Vivien (Helen Plugenet), and Miss Viola March (Mrs. Blaney).

Lyric.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Here this week are Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company in Her Nameless Child, in which Mr. J. W. Evelyn plays Anthony Ford in forceful manner; Miss Jean Wigney pleases as Phyllis Ford; Mr. Leonard Aardale makes a strong Lord Woodville; a deal of broad humour is introduced by Mr. Larry Clements (Tom Rivers) and Miss Rene Belle Douglas (Bessie Brooks); and Miss Dora Weber fills the part of Lady Woodville with distinction.

Royal Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the programme here is Fred Karno's company in R.M.S. Wontdetainia, which is causing endless laughter. Frank Fenton and company have a powerful and well-played episode, Treachery; a pretty vocal and dancing scena is gone through by the Twelve Forget-Me-Nots; Theo. C. le Gar's company present a delightful playlet, Music the Conquerer, in which Señor Angel Blanco renders some charming excerpts on the violin; Fred Land is as funny as ever; Sam Thompson's Scotch quaintness is richly enjoyed; and others in the list are A. E. Clifford, vocal comedian, and Mabel Mignon, comedienne and dancer.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here are this week giving For the Colours twice nightly, among the principals being Messrs. Harry Tresham (Captain Vereker), Leo Montgomery (Lieut. Hansford), Sydney Grant (Van Blumen), Tom H. Solly (Sergeant Steel), Miss Lilian Radbourn (Doris), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Mrs. Vereker).

Olympia.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—Karno's latest sketch, Mr. Justice Perkins, is creating great amusement here this week. Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce please immensely with their Over the Garden Wall trifle; Lieven and Pantzer have a remarkable speciality act, A Lesson in Physical Culture; Ben Albert finds great favour by reason of his songs; the smart second sight work of the Violas causes much wonder; a delightful vocal and dancing scena comes from the Manchester Mites; and in the list are Katie Butler, character comedienne; Lizzie Glenroy, Scotch comedienne and dancer; and the Sisters Allen, duettists and dancers.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Cullen and Carthy are here this week with their funnyosities, including their latest, "Danny McCann"; Otto and Olga have a musical act of a refined nature; Ernest Cadle and company create a deal of fun with Bank Holiday in Casey Court; Forbes Guilbert presents in good style characters from popular plays; Merian's Dogs show wonderful sagacity with the sketch, A Faithless Wife; Dolly and Elsie are a couple of dainty duettists and dancers; some clever gymnastic work is gone through by Donna's Trio; and others who contribute are Clifford Stuart, Lancashire comedian, and Harry Kirk, comedian.

LONDONDERRY.—Opera House and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. R. A. Warton.—The attraction this week is His Dishonoured Wife, which is capably presented. Mr. Alex Alexander gives a capital study of Lord Devant; Mr. George A. Fry as Frank Lindon made the most of the part; and the humorous character, Micky Doolan, found an able exponent in Mr. Harry Tilbury. Of the feminine characters, Miss Belle Tilbury as Florence Linden gave a most cultured representation, and Miss Arline T. George as Alice Harvey was also good. During the last three nights of the week My Native Land, an Irish-American play, drew fine audiences.

LONGTON. — Queen's Theatre. — Proprietors, New Longton Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. H. Sheriff Howard.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and his repertoire company opened to a packed house on Monday. Lady Godiva was chosen as the initial attraction, and Mr. Woulfe himself was seen to great advantage as Tom o' Coventry. Miss Edith Loraine made an ideal Lady Godiva, and Miss J. Richards gave a really excellent performance as Lady Aldyth. Jane Shore, The Two Orphans of Paris, David Garrick, The Sleigh Bells Hamlet, and The Flowers of the Forest are billed for the remaining nights.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Town Hall.—Miss Incz Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, visited here on Friday and Saturday last week in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, and were well received. Miss Ethel Savill as Princess Monica played with feeling; Miss Gladys Moss-Wright was a bright and humorous Viola; and Miss Jessie Yatman a good Camiola. Mr. Alfred Brandon as the cynical tyrant, Prince Hildred, was clever; and Messrs. William J. Rea and Chas. A. Baker as Prince Michael and Prince Olaf respectively gave fine renderings of those parts. Mr. J. Desmond Brannigan as Captain Hector was highly successful; and as the flippant Lieut. Karl Stromberg Mr. Lawrence Grove was breezy.

Vint's Electric Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Vint's entertainments continue to hold their own in popular favour. The Three Phydoras are clever in a grotesque and novel musical turn; and the Melbas, vocalists, musicians, and sketch artists, are much appreciated.

Temperance Hall. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. S. Evanson.—The Forders, in their mannikin act, give a clever turn; and Frank Boyce, character vocalist, also appears.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—Her Fatal Marriage is drawing excellent business here. The piece is well acted and staged, and the efforts of the company meet with unstinted applause, especially from the Scotch fisher folk, who are engaged in the local fishing season.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—The current bill includes, in addition to a smart pictorial display, which arouses great interest amongst the crowded audiences, Syd Crossley, comedian; Fred E. Ellis, comedian; Hayes and Merritt, acrobats; and the Four Panamas in a pantomimic sketch. Of the pictures, Carmen, Birdland, and The Winning Punch (a sporting film) deserve special mention.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is drawing crowded houses with The Dairymaids. Miss Eva Ellis as Peggy is very bright, and her vocal numbers are well received; Miss Cathaline Sinico makes a delightful Winifred; as Eliza Miss Nellie Bouman submits a clever and amusing impersonation; Mr. Norman Bowyer is very funny in the character of Joe Mivens; Mr. Price-Evans as Lieut. Sam Brudenell, Mr. Algernon W. Lee as Lieut. Frank Meredith, and Mr. P. Vaughan as Dr. O'Byrne give excellent assistance; Miss M. Carter is a distinguished Lady Brudenell, and Miss R. Lewis is pleasing as Helen.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ewart C. Potter.—A good variety bill has been presented here. Leipzig, card manipulator and conjurer, is amazing and amusing all; Gwennie Llewellyn gets a hearty reception for her well-rendered songs; Reid and Power introduce singing and dancing into a good comedy duologue; George Prince, comedian, sings excellent songs; Hearne and Palmer provide some fun in an acrobatic act, entitled The Hebrew and the Barman; Bertha De Pas is entertaining in song and dance; the Sisters Cora excel in a charming singing and dancing act; and the electric pictures contain some of the best films.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Mr. Martin Harvey's appearance in Manchester is always a welcome event, and on Monday a big audience showed the usual appreciation of his acting as Lieut. Keresby in The Breed of the Treshams. Excellent support was rendered by the company, the most prominent successes being scored by Miss N. de Silva in her familiar rôle of Batty, Mr. Charles Glenney as the despicable Clement Hungerford, and Miss Brenda Gibson as Margaret. Besides these, a powerful and imposing impersonation of Viscount Dorsington was given by Mr. Philip Hewland; Mr. Albert E. Raynor played Sir Henry Curwen with quiet distinction; and Mr. Cowley Wright was becomingly heroic as young Francis Tresham; while a good word should be added for the clever acting of Mr. Edward Combermere as Captain Stanhope. The week's bill includes also The Only Way and Richard III.

Prince's Theatre. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—It is the general opinion here that nothing so memorable and unique has ever been seen in Manchester as Maeterlinck's fairy play, The Blue Bird. Full of poetic and spectacular charm and instinct, with a tender philosophy which touches at once the heart and the imagination, it is indeed a play to be thankful for—a beautiful and touching evidence of a genius that is nothing short of wonderful. Every justice in the matter of staging and lighting has been done, so that the effects become part of the beauty of the play; and when to all this is added admirable acting, the total effect is something that mere description fails to convey. The parts of Tyltyl and Mytyl are charmingly filled by Master Stephen Thomas and Miss Bella Terry, the former part being played also on three occasions by Master Eric Rae. Mr. Edward Rigby as Bread is also a conspicuous success, while one may well conceive the ecstasies of children at the impersonations of such things as Water, Milk, Sugar, and familiar creatures of the animal world, all with their separate meanings. Mr. James Hearn as Time is notable among many others; Mr. Ernest Hendrie as the Dog is capital; and Mr. Norman Page makes an effective contrast as the Cat. Mr. Norman O'Neill's music is distinctly pleasing and appropriate, and it only remains to be added that full houses, like that which overflowed on Monday night, are sure to be the rule to the end of the fortnight of the play's visit.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart presents here Sherlock Holmes, which is proving a big attraction. Mr. Stewart himself plays the title-rôle, and makes quite a success of it, and he is very capably supported by Miss May Clare as Alice Faulkner, Mr. W. T. Harris as Moriarty, Mr. Oliver Crombie as Larrabee, Miss Ethel Trevor Lloyd as Madge Larrabee, and Master Thomas Hill as Billy. Other contributory parts are also well filled, and the staging is excellent.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Fred Karno's Skating and Mumming Birds are the two principal attractions here, much enjoyed, as usual. Other good turns are Nellie Gannon, descriptive contralto vocalist; Harry Wright, vocal and extempore comedian; Molly O'Morgan, the singing colleen; Leigh and Lawrie, refined comedy boys; Pat Carey, the popular Irish comedian; and the Whitworth Trio of smart trick cyclists.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—A brilliant attraction here is Zona Vevey, assisted by Max Erard, her author-composer, in a delightful and refined act; the Eight Saxones appear in dances extraordinary, supplemented by transparent dressing-room scenery; Herbert La Martine gives a fine exhibition of eccentric dancing; Maud Esmond, vocal comedienne, is very well received; and other enjoyable turns are the Two Lilleys, in a speciality act; Mabel Moss, a refined singer of chorus songs; Mildred Parr, entertainer; and Vera Nixen, comedienne and dancer.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A capital programme here is headed by Robins and Collier in Miss Bacon's Easter Egg, a comic item; Ganty's Grotto, a beautiful water extravaganza, is also prominent; Richard Finberg adds a selection of his character studies; the Five M.P.'s give enjoyable evidence of their expert musical abilities; and Merton and Rydon are an entertaining musical comedy duo. Other pleasing turns are Mima Kello, who is very charming in a dainty song-scena, assisted by the Raphael Quartet, and Fred Lloyd, a versatile comedian.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Peterman and Ricketts provide the top turn here in their farmyard burlesque Chanteclair, which is very well put on. Arthur Lennard, the popular actor-vocalist, occupies the other place of honour with his usual distinction; and other good turns are Rose and Calvert in their amusing act Captain Kettle and his Mate; Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Piccaninnies, led by Lily Vine; Cole and Rags, the comedy jugglers; Fred Elton, entertainer; Diamond and Beatrice, novelty musicians; and Frank Couch, a smart patter comedian.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—An all-round excellent programme here includes Miss Marie George, who sings, acts, and dances well, and is ably supported in The Cowboy Girl, a new one-act play; Senorita Carmen Turia, the famous Spanish prima donna, is a glorious singer, and meets with a big reception; Malcolm Scott as Nell Gwynne is, as usual, highly entertaining, and makes a hit; Hal Forde is an excellent light comedian; Lohenwirth and Cohan are very funny Hebrew comedians; the Jackson Family are splendid in a delightful musical scena of great merit; Tom Parker, the happy comedian, gives an enjoyable turn; the Four Royals are seen to advantage in a very funny sketch; and Queen and Le Brun are good in comedy act. Up-to-date pictures are also shown.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Alice Hollander, who tops the bill here, sings in fine style, and is loudly applauded; Miss Sylvia Cavallio, ably supported by Mr. Clifford Pembroke and company, appears with great success in the dramatic playlet Lulu; Miss Mabel Green, a dainty musical comedy artist, gives a charming turn; whilst other good turns are those of Florence B. Dudley, burlesque artist; Walter Lintone, concertina expert; Birdie Brightling, American entertainer; David Kidd, Scottish light comedian; and Kitty Malone, burlesque comedienne. On the occasion of our visit Lisbon and Barker acted as deputy turn for Jenny Trill, comedienne, who did not appear. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures complete.

King's Theatre, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—Morny Cash, the well-known Lancashire comedian, tops the bill here with his usual success. W. E. Gillin is an exceedingly smart and amusing ventriloquist; Nellie Rose, serio, dances neatly; the Ellesmere Troupe of trick cyclists are well received; George Hyam, comedian, takes well; the Broadway Boys are a quartette of wonderful dancers; Cara Magda, Continental lady juggler and gymnast, presents a good turn; and The Desperado on the Bioscope is an exciting film.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—L'Incognita a soprano of wonderful range and ability, and meets with a great reception; Gildey and Fox, Hebrew comedians from America, make a big hit; Jack Raffo, tenor vocalist, is well received; Nightingale and Stigent are good in an amusing duologue, Two Sides of a Wall; Pichel and Scale are clever comedy acrobats; Mike Cray, comedy juggler, with his dog Dooley, is smart and funny; the Brothers Ashley score in a comedy boxing act; and the Two Heiland Lads is a wonderful human study on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD. — Grand. — Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Clayton.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company in Uncle Tom's Cabin had a hearty reception from a crowded house. Mr. J. H. Boehm is to be congratulated on the feeling and sympathetic manner in which he played Uncle Tom; Mr. Lawrence Nerry showed the experienced and finished actor in his impersonation of Phineas; Mr. Frank Syms was successful in the part of Mr. St. Clair; Mr. John Gibson was good as Mr. Wilson; Mr. Tom Bowron was very effective as the brutal Legree; and Mr. Eric Williams was good also as George Harris.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Lake.—Mr. Clive Currie, with his company, has been paying a return visit to this house, and on the first three nights of the week presented The Octoroon. Mr. Clive Currie as Salem Scudder and Miss Eileen Savage as Zoe were especially good; and other characters worthy of favourable comment included the Jacob M'Closky of Mr. W. A. Mackersy, the George Peyton of Mr. Stuart Ethall, the Squire

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mayall.—Harry Grey, eccentric comedian, has kept the audiences in a continuous state of merriment. Other good turns are Bi-Bo-Bi, a most expert musician; Frazer and French's Dixie Dancers; Willie Harvey, in his cycling on the wire; Frankland Gray, comedian and impressionist; Olive Armidale, comedienne and dancer; and Waldo and Etoile, the Crocodile and the Fairy. The pictures are as interesting as any yet shown.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sandon Perkins.—Mr. James Welch's company in When Knights Were Bold is here. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce presents an excellent interpretation of Sir Guy de Vere; Mr. Allan Macdonald plays with skill the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe; Isaacson is acted in capital style by Mr. Charles F. Lloyd; Mr. Colin Johnston is well suited as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry; Miss Violet Noel as Lady Rowena gives a charming performance; and Misses Lola Norman, Mabel Hardinge, Juliet Matthewson, Elspeth Olivant, Lena Flowerdew, Lee Lewes, and Messrs. Humphrey Warden, Lawrence Stephenson, and John Cecil are successful in their respective parts.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, The Merthyr Entertainments Co.; Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Chas. M. Daly and company return here after a brief absence, and introduce a realistic sketch entitled 'Twixt Love and Duty; the Lannons provide an excellent show; Blodwen Jones, a juvenile 'celloist, is loudly applauded; and other taking turns are provided by Connie Gilbert, Healey and Spencer, Gosling and Merrall's Australian Bush Boys, Billy Fauder, and a good series of Biograph films.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company is here in Every Inch a Man. Mr. Ralph A. Armfield ably depicts Alderman Barnet; as Dick Barnet Mr. W. Graham Arthurs makes a manly hero; the part of Ben Brown is well portrayed by Mr. Joe Barker; the villainy of Daniel Barnet as depicted by Mr. Gerald Ord would be hard to equal. A lighter vein is supplied by Mrs. Edwards (Miss Mildred Evergleigh) and Martha (Miss Mollie Richardson); while the tricks of Teddy Edwards (Miss Ada Band) are an unceasing source of mirth. Miss Mabel Elliott as Vera Maxwell makes a good and effective heroine.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Goodison.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott's Répertoire company opened here on Monday night with The Shaughraun. Mr. Chas. Draycott gave a typically boisterous and good-humoured rendering of Conn; Mr. St. John Stuart capably interpreted Captain Molineux; Robt. Ffolliott was cleverly played by Mr. J. Dobson Clyde; Mr. Clinton Baddeley was effective as Corry Kinchela; and Father Dolan was well played by Mr. Theo. Balfour. Mrs. Chas. Draycott imparted grace and sympathy to the rôle of Clare Ffolliott; Miss Shirley Dalton was pleasing as Arte O'Niel; and Miss Louise Millward did well as Mrs. O'Kelly. The Ticket-of-Leave Man, A Modern Adventuress, and Arrah-na-Pogue were also in the bill for the week.

PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. H. Melton.—A specially good selection of films is being shown here this week.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Fighting Chance is the attraction here. In the part of Ethel Hardy Miss Marie Duncan is much appreciated; Miss Mary Campbell is a successful Joan Feilding; as General Sir Christopher Blanchard Mr. Fred Waller is seen to advantage; the character of Captain Jim Blanchard is well played by Mr. Sidney Vautier; and as Stephen Blanchard Mr. Austen Milroy is successful.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Mr. Tom Watt and company present East Lynne, in which Mr. Watt meets with well-deserved success as Lord Mountsevern. The character of Archibald Carlyle is in the able hands of Mr. Frank Beresford; Mr. Edward Ray does well as Francis Levison; and Mr. Jarrold Manville's portrayal of Justice Hare meets with approval. Miss Ida Heron is responsible for the part of Lady Isabel, which she sustains admirably.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Chas. T. Aldrich, the talented entertainer, occupies the top of the bill here; an old favourite, Miss Nellie Wallace, captivates her admirers with her "skit" on the hobble-skirt; a clever and amusing gymnastic display is given by Onda and Antell; and Talberto and Douglas, speciality artists, are well received. The Three Pirmans (comedians), the Misses Florence and Rose Showell (vocalists), Miss Gwen Francis (comedienne), and the Empire Pictures complete an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—A capital picture show is presented nightly, and good houses rule. The Three Clarkes in their speciality act are very amusing; Cavilli is a capable ventriloquist; and Miss Elsa Rayne, vocalist, is well received.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—A Royal Divorce has done excellent business here. Napoleon finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Frank Bradley, the Josephine of Miss Edith Cole is endowed with power and pathos, Talleyrand is cleverly played by Mr. George Traill, and a finished study of the Marquis de Beaumont is given by Mr. Charles Hartopp. Marie Louise is excellently portrayed by Miss Winnie Tempest, and a clever child actress, Dorothy Hudson, is good as the little King of Rome. The Christian is billed for the last three nights of the week.

MUSSELBURGH.—EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Logan.—George Charlton, comedian; and Little Chris, the Glasgow singing newsboy, are the variety turns. Red Eagle's Love Affair and Rent Day are among the best films shown by the Empire B.B. pictures.

NEATH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—Mr. Oswald Grey submits the popular play When It Was Dark to excellent houses this week. In the leading part of the Rev. Basil Gortre Mr. Oswald Grey presents a clever impersonation; Miss Lillian Herres is a charming Gertrude Hunt; Miss Rosalie Notrélle displays ability as Helena Byars; Mr. C. Wordley Hulse is a clever Constantine Schwabe; Mr. Vincent Carlyle a good Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. Walter Manfree an excellent Rev. Mr. Byars; Mr. Frank Venn an amusing Hon. Charlie Gadfly; being ably supported by Mr. Percy Coningsby as Nunc Wallace; Miss Madeline Grand is capital as Gracie Goldeye; and Miss Ethel Wynne Mathews is worthy of praise as Minnie Golightly.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Harry Tower's company in The Mountaineers is drawing crowded houses here. Mr. Fred Eastman is exceptionally funny as Pierre; the Fritz of Mr. Claud Flemming is beyond reproach; Mr. Len Holloways's Conrad could not well be improved upon; Mr. Nevill Wyatt is droll as Gustave; and Mr. Leo Sheffield is an amusing Sergeant Frederic. The important rôle of Clarice is entrusted to Miss Marie Dainton, who enacts the part with a chic and vivacity that makes her impersonation very charming, and her vocal efforts evoke repeated applause. Miss Ida Stratham is a bright Annette, and Miss Aida Jenoure causes much mirth by her clever impersonation of Miss Spinifex. Miss Mona Campbell makes the most of her opportunities as Prudence.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—A treat of unusual excellence has been afforded to the dwellers of the Northern Metropolis this week by the visit of Cavaliere F. Castellano's Italian Grand Opera company in a répertoire of favourite compositions. On Monday night Il Trovatore was the attraction. As Azucena Mme. Isoretta Castellano's singing and acting were worthy of the best traditions; Signora Defral in the rôle of Leonora sang with the greatest ease; Signor Barbato, a youngish Manrico, came in for a most flattering reception; and Signor Vail was an interesting Conte di Luna. The augmented orchestra, under the bâton of Signor Wehilo, was most satisfactory.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. Edwin B. Clark.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's (N.) company is here in The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Mr. Leonard Booker gives a particularly strong rendition of Prince Hildred; the somewhat trying rôle of the afflicted Prince Michael is in the able hands of Mr. Victor Rae; Mr. Henry Hallatt scores a success as Prince Olaf; Mr. Herbert Burton makes the most of his opportunities as Captain Hector, and the same may be said of Mr. Oswald Waller as Nathan, Mr. W. S. Hardy as Colonel Wellenberg, and Mr. Charles Coleman as the Bishop of Illyria. Miss Viloa Holland is a delightful Princess Monica, and Miss Violette May an excellent Camiola. Much amusement is caused by Mr. Strafford Dickens, who capably fills the comedy part of Karl Stromberg, and receives able assistance from Miss Mona Hall as Viola.

EMPIRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Kilgour.—Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. Charles Manners hold the place of honour this week. The Staley's company in musical act and lightning transformations are another excellent turn; Mr. Edmund Maurice's company scores a success in their one-act drama, entitled Blind; Thora introduces a novel ventriloquial act; Stephens and Rennor are two clever burlesque comedians; and Alf Chester (comedian), France and Stewart in sketch, The Little Puritan, and Baby Boden (child entertainer) conclude.

PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—Arthur Prince again heads the bill here, and in his new items maintains his reputation as the prince of ventriloquists. Miss Beaumont Collins and company present their sketch, The House of Terror, with considerable success; Harry and Fanny Dent are both amusing and clever in their novel mélange; Archie Royer is an eccentric acrobatic comedian of more than usual ability; David Muir pleases by his various and well-rendered selections on the violin; the Tafanos are clever Continental musical eccentrics; the Carpatti Bros. prove themselves to be marvellous bar performers; Mlle. Medicis presents rather a pretty posing act, and is assisted by a well-trained dog; Nora Stockelle, comedienne and dancer, well deserves the reception she receives; and Harry Clark, comedian, and the pictures complete the entertainment.

GRAND.—General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—Captain Permane's Teddy Bears are here this week, and prove an acceptable turn. Zenora, equilibrist, and the Arlenas, entertainers, also contribute, and there is the usual picture programme.

BRINKBURN ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHarg; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. T. Edminson.—The Three Veros are responsible for a capital variety turn here this week, their figure dancing being heartily appreciated. Chief among the films are Little Angels of Luck and The Modern Prodigal.

ROYAL PICTURE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Hall Jones.—Another excellent programme is submitted and full houses are the order. The chief film is The Tide of Fortune.

NEWRY.—TOWN HALL.—Owners, Newry Urban Council.—Mr. Payne Seddon is presenting Mr. John H. Tomkinson's variety company to large audiences. The musical act by Eric and Nora is unique; the gymnastic display by the Ariels is very clever; Elsie Rubina sustains her reputation as a skilful wire-dancer; Wee Winnie is a decided success; Diamond and Hart are capital burlesque artists; the Sisters Lesmere, duettists and dancers, are very attractive; and Mr. George Keith and Miss Mabel Lewis deserve mention as vocalists. The Bioscope shows the very latest in pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Andrews' Pictures, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—The leading films this week are Company D to the Rescue, The Master of the Quarries, A Modern Prodigal, and The Adventuress. The illustrated songs "Love Beams" and "Planning" are well sung by Mr. F. Nettleton.

COUNTY ELECTRIC.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lyle Edwards.—Hako's Sacrifice, Carmen, Across the Gorges, and Uncle Tom's Cabin are full of interest, and The Man Who Beat Johnson is funny.

PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. F. Bentley.—The chief pictures this week are The Heart of an Outlaw and The Farmer's Daughter.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. F. Cyril Leighton's company with Captain Jack is attracting large audiences here. As Mary Miss Nina Blake-Adams presents an excellent portrayal of the character, and Miss Betty Manners gives a creditable account of herself as Winnie Trent. Mr. Ernest Owtrim is responsible for a fine impersonation of Captain John Wetherley; Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh makes a marked impression as Anthony Cliversedge; Mr. F. Cyril Leighton acts with distinction as Barney Trent; Mr. Fowler Thatcher makes the most of Ned Dedrull; and the comedy parts are in the hands of Miss Ada Arnott (Giace), Mr. Harry Leamer (Billy Bowster), and Mr. Owen Edwin (Joseph Gympey).

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The Four Lubins, Russian singers and dancers, are the principal attraction here. Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers, give an interesting turn; Jack Henri pleases immensely with his Scotch songs; Duranceee and Azeela are clever chair pyramidists and staircase equilibrists; and La Gautias (in a vocal and instrumental interlude), May Bright (vocalist), Bert Lytton (the favourite swell comedian), and the Pictures are also in the programme.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Mr. George E. Gilmour's company in the Irish musical comedy, My Irish Molly, has been the cause of much enjoyment. Denis in the hands of Mr. S. John Medley is a pleasing performance; Mr. Harry Starr as Billy, the Showman, is very amusing; and Miss May Warden is entirely successful in the title-rôle. The other characters are well filled, and good songs and dances are supplied.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—The attraction here is Mr. William Mollison's excellent company in The Chorus Lady. Mr. John Sims Woolley is very good as Dan Mallory; Mr. Henry Ludlow is equally so as Dick Crawford; and Mr. Thomas Howes is successful as Patrick O'Brien; Mr. Eric Dane does well as Rogers, and Mr. R. F. Marshall deserves compliment as the Shrimp; Miss Rita Carlyle deserves every praise as Patricia O'Brien, and receives hearty applause; Miss Elsie Vron Neville is equally well appreciated as Nora O'Brien; Miss Mabel Durrant is excellent as Sylvia Simpson; Miss Josephine Woodward acts well as Mrs. O'Brien; Miss Agnes d'Aragon is good as Georgie Adams; and Miss Jeannie Fitzgeorge ably accounts for the part of Blanche.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Henry Bedford and company, in their sketch, The Bottom Dog, create quite a sensation, Mr. Bedford making an excellent impression; while the other characters are filled by Messrs. Robert Purdie (Rev. Carruthers), W. E. Wenham (Sergeant Stubbs), and Jack Williams (policeman). Chinko displays extraordinary skill as a juggler; Miss Minnie Kauffman is a very clever and neat trick cyclist; the Milstead-Bell Trio create much laughter in their farcical comedietta Three Sharps in a Flat; the Toreadors are very funny in their comedy bullfight; Ernie Myers, comedian, is a great favourite; Mabel Sinclair and her little coster boy give an amusing as well as smart performance; and Lily Lonsdale is a pleasing vocalist. The Hippo-Bio pictures are interesting.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Dollar Princess is here. Miss Nora Barry sings and acts with charm as Alice; Miss Mabel Russell is a dainty Daisy; and Olga is presented in charming fashion by Miss Madeline Seymour; Mr. Leslie Styles impersonates the good-natured Conder with a fine perception of humour; Mr. W. H. Rawlins again demonstrates his gifts as a comedian in the rôle of Bulger; Mr. Leonard Mackay's fine voice is heard to advantage in the music of Fairfax. Mr. Paul Plunkett (John), Mr. Howard Cridland (Dick), Mr. Martin Rosse (Lieutenant Grant), Miss Roma June (Sadie), Miss Berenice Maxwell (Lady Margaret), and Miss Winifred Vyvyan (Lady Gwendoline) are all good in their respective parts.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry J. Crane.—The company of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is giving good representations of Who Is She? Mr. S. Herbert Humber has a congenial rôle in King Vladimir, which he plays with power and distinction; Mr. Walter T. Clifford invests the villainy of Prince Bora with easy nonchalance; Mr. Stanley W. Healey is a commendable Captain Gower; Sergeant Metroff is well delineated by Mr. Alfred Grenville; the impersonation of the title-rôle by Miss Ada Champion is pervaded by dramatic intensity; Miss Elsie Clarke makes a charming little King; and able assistance is also rendered by the Misses Helen Richmond, Constance Medwyn, and Alice Barber.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The ventriloquial act of Lester is an amazing piece of cleverness; another exceedingly dexterous turn is the juggling of Severus Schaffer; the coon songs of Anna Chandler are pleasantly rendered; the Goltz Trio submit a skilful wire-walking performance; Charles Fisher's Vocalesques give an amusing skit on grand opera; Sammy Shield's comicalities are brimful of fun; as vivacious as ever, Peggy Pryde keeps her audience in the brightest of humour; James Curwell's pianoforte solos are well rendered; and the Soho Trio are excellent dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. W. Austin.—La Poupée, judiciously condensed, is being brightly and effectively played by Miss Stella Gastelle, Mr. Leon Simkin, Mr. Warwick Wellington, and Miss Rose Lytton; smart comedy and patter by the Waldrons draw appreciative applause; Taree makes an excellent entertainer on the mouth organ; Rastus and Banks supply an expert dancing turn; the Athols are also clever dancers; the Denaro Brothers prove skilful head and hand balancers; and enjoyable items are also given by Arthur Aldridge (vocalist), Martin Conway, and Marguerite Broadfoote.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Messrs. Glenister and Ingram presented The House of Temperley here on Monday. Mr. Lionel Glenister, in the character of Captain Jack Temperley, did very creditably; Mr. Howard Rose as Sir Charles was excellent; and Mr. Fellows Bassett as Sir John Hawker acted cleverly; Miss Sheila O'More as Ethel Morley was charming; and Miss Adria Hill as Lady Temperley made a dignified society lady; Miss Nora Watson as Mrs. Barnet, Miss Grace Massey as Mary were excellent; Miss Madge Devereux as Lucy, with Mr. Charles Cleveland as Ginger Stubbs caused much amusement; Jakes was well played by Mr. John Ditliv; and Mr. E. E. Clive capitally filled the part of Tom Belcher.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—A Broken Heart is being played here by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company. Miss Dorothy Haigh acted delightfully as Mary Barnard; and Mr. John S. Millward as John was very forcible; Mr. Denis Hogan as Stephen Raylton and Mr. Vernon Travers as Gash Gill were good; Miss Mamie Thorpe acted in a charming manner as Grace Fanshaw; Miss Ethel Grey was excellent as Mrs. Kellett; and Miss Dorothy Frances was smart as Little May; whilst Miss Nellie Benson made a motherly Mrs. Barnard; Miss Nancy Mitchell as Sally Travner and Mr. Newton Pearce as Tony Tibbits created merriment; the Rev. Mr. Staunton was well played by Mr. Eric Vayne; and Mr. George Addison was good as the Shrimp.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Stuart Lomath and company opened here on Monday in Whom God Hath Joined. Mr. Lomath portrays the part of Captain Jack Merritt in a manly style; and Miss Mary Ainslie as his wife Marian acts charmingly; Mr. Geo. Edwin Clive as Major Stevens plays cleverly, and is ably supported by Mr. Oswald Douglas as Digby Trant and Mr. Frank Orchard as Richard Manley; Miss Amber Wyville creditably fills the rôle of Beatrice Trant; Miss Olive Lindsay as Teddy and Miss Madge Ashdown as Frankie are good; and Miss Daisy Stone as Kitty Crumpett introduces some good comedy, with Mr. Victor H. Crawford as Watty Cooper.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Burt.—The Flag of H Company is a capital picture, another good dramatic one being The Girl of Bar X Ranch, How McWinter Went to the Races being also good. Some amusing films are shown, among others being Kill that Fly and Davy Jones's Landlady. Pathé's Journal is excellent.

Osborne Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. William Hughes. Triple X. Ranch is a capital drama of the Far West, and The Price of a Sacrifice is capital. Some very laughable pictures are also screened. The vocalist for the week is Mr. W. Ashworth.

Brown's Assembly.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown. —The Girl of Triple X. is a good picture of ranch life; Storms of Life is a capital dramatic film. The funny films include Widow's Wooers, and Embroidery is a smart trick film.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—This week the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company are paying us their annual visit, and absolutely packed houses and continuous laughter and applause testify to the increasing popularity of the operas. On the first day of booking every seat was taken in the theatre for all the seven performances, so that the genial and popular manager of the company (Mr. Henry Bellamy) has good reason for his customary cheerfulness. In The Gondoliers Mr. Lytton and Mr. Billington were welcomed with a cordiality there was no mistaking, and their acting of the parts of the Duke and the Grand Inquisitor went as well as ever. Messrs. Henry Herbert and Leicester Tunks did full justice to the parts of the Gondoliers; Miss Beatrice Boarer charmed all with her delightful rendering of Tessa; Miss Ethel Morrison was admirably suited as the Duchess; and the other ladies' parts were cleverly sustained by Miss Marjorie Stone and Miss Myfanwy Newell, whose singing was delightful. The chorus was, as always, first class, and the orchestra, under Mr. Walter Hann's direction, did full justice to the music. During the week Patience, Iolanthe, Yeomen of the Guard, H.M.S. Pinafore, and The Mikado are billed for performance.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Karl Edwards.—Mr. Walter Steele's company is appearing here and attracting good houses with A Fast Life. Mr. Walter Steele sustains the rôle of the hero, John Dixon, very forcibly; and is ably assisted by Mr. J. Sommerville as Sir Oliver Franklin and Mr. Cuthbert Taylor as Harris Goldberg. Mr. Ed. Kingsley is very good and sings well as Lord Craven; whilst Mr. Willie Barratt supplies the necessary fun as Tommy Burke. Miss Lilian Burns makes an effective and graceful Lady Franklin; Miss Clarice Jenner is merry as Juliana; and Miss Lillian Ross gives a very capable rendering of Mrs. Dixon.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Queen of the Fair is presented this week by a well-selected company under Mr. Basil Horsfall. Senora Mercedes Dalmada gives a graceful and charming impersonation of Elsa; Miss Janet Reeve makes a dainty and bright Ermyntrude Higgins; Miss Maude Fergusson gives an excellent enactment of Jemima Jellicoe; Miss Aubrey Esmonde's Freda and Miss Carlotta Silvano's Rosalie are capital impersonations; and Miss Rosa Maie wins applause for her gracefully executed pas seuls; Mr. George Carroll as the Burgomaster submits a capital character study; Mr. Arthur Reynolds enhances his reputation by an entertaining and quaint portraiture of 'Enery; Mr. Albert Chapman as Karl acts with alertness and spirit, his songs being effectively rendered; the Pierre of Mr. Claude Casey is capitally sustained; and Mr. James Wood as Herr Funf is funny and humorous. The choruses are all ably rendered, and the opera is admirably staged and handsomely dressed.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—Miss Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, in a novel kindergarten, head the bill this week; the Five Musical Tritons, vocalists and instrumentalists, give a highly finished entertainment; Mart and Pep, in hand-balancing and tumbling acts, contribute a wonderful exhibition; and the others in the programme include the McGregors, comedy entertainers; Marie Reeve, comedienne and dancer; Tom Moore, comedian; Lorno Lomond, contralto vocalist; Stewart and Morgan, vocalists. The Bioscope concludes with interesting pictures.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—An old favourite, in the person of Mr. Wm. Dobell, is here, presenting his La Comédie Anglaise Company. On Wednesday, the opening night, a crowded audience was attracted, when A Child Shall Lead Them was presented.

PENTRE. — Tivoli.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Will Stone; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's principal company is here in Two Little Drummer Boys. Exquisitely staged and acted, the powerful drama attracts crowded houses.

Workmen's Hall.—Manager, Mr. H. Salway.—A strong picture programme is supplemented by the Three Van Earles, in song and dance, and the Herald Comedy Four, in The Indians and the Sailor.

PENZANCE.—St. John's Hall.—Messrs. A. J. Rogers and Son presented on Monday evening Miss Inez Howard's company (under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell) in The Old Home. Daddy Dean was capitally represented by Mr. Sidney Rennef; while the part of his erring daughter Hazel was played with emotional ability by Miss Gertrude Bonser. Mr George Steel gave a powerful portrayal of the villainous Lord Avondale; Mr. John Blake made a clever exponent of the character of the Rev. Eric Armstrong; Mr. Bertram Noel provided amusing comedy as Sam Adams, and had an excellent helpmate in Miss Coralie De Waner, who played the part of Polly Popp. Miss Harriette Loydall gave an excellent impersonation of Bridget, and as Timothy Twaddle and Dr. Warburton Mr. Ed. Johnson and Mr. Wilfred Martin were well placed.

PERTH.—Perth Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge. A first-class variety programme is headed by Rabottini and his band. Alpho is a smart ventriloquist; Ben Jackson is an expert banjoist; Fame and Fortune are clever tumblers and boxers; Wal Croft sings Scotch humorous songs; Ward and Davis give a merry musical comedy act; and Leon and Tee provide a grotesque musical turn entitled On the Farm.

PETERBOROUGH. — Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—Mr. W. W. Evans and company, in Paradise Alley, is a prominent feature here this week; Violet Romaine sings in a pleasing style; as a comedian Sam Fay is decidedly good; an interesting turn is that of Billy Tucker, champion ball-puncher; Ernie Westo, dancing comedian, contributes a clever turn; Green and Willa have an amusing tumbling act; and Gilbert Girard, animal mimic, is well received. The Karnoscope concludes.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The ever-popular Arcadians is again in the West, and proves every whit as attractive as on the initial visit. Mr. Gus Oxley continues to impersonate James Smith and Simplicitas, and infuses a kind of infectious humour into the part that is quite irresistible. Mr. Geo. Hestor is by far the best Peter Doody that has visited Plymouth, his melancholy reminiscences never failing to elicit roars of laughter, whilst the "Merry and bright" song was encored time after time. Mr. Freddie Bentley introduces some smart dancing into the part of Bobby, and Mr. H. Nelson Hancock is responsible for some cultured songs as Jack Meadows. Miss Maggie Jarvis impersonates Sombra, and does full justice to her many opportunities, whilst her magnificent singing, particularly "The Pipes of Pan," is a feature of the performance; and Miss Beryl Craigie is a fascinating Chrysea. Particular mention must be made of the splendid mounting and powerful and well-balanced chorus.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. J. Field.—Vera d'Astra in The Shepherd's Dream provides some wonderfully effective poses; Minola Hurst and her two diminutive comedians provide a good number; the Hesseys entertain with some charmingly-rendered musical selections; Ian Colquhoun does full justice to a couple of well-known songs; Josh Dixon has a warm welcome; Niagara and Falls execute some good acrobatic business; Boden and Bell, juvenile vocalists and dancers, work hard and please; Mlle. Wanda Baranoff and M. Olave Friteroff introduce some pretty costume dances; and the Bros. Herbert have some amusing eccentric business.

PONTEFRACT. — Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Mr. Geo. Tankard.—Madame Lucerna's burlesque animals give a novel act; Mr. Charles Wakeman's Five Singing Gipsies have a charming pot-pourri of vocal numbers; Palette and Otto bring down the house with their entertainment as comedy umsicians, jugglers, and lightning painters; Pattie Burton is a sweet soprano; Allan Hanbury is a clever comedian; and Caselli a phenomenal banjoist. Other turns are Nellie Duval, comedienne, Max, the educated dog, and the Alexscope.

Assembly Rooms.—Mr. George Munro and company, including Miss Horrocks, appeared here on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week, playing The Sleigh Bells and David Garrick. This talented company gave every satisfaction, and closed their visit to a big house.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Chas. Trenchard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Trenchard.—The New Frivolity is being played here with success by Mr. Charles Goff and company. Mr. Harry Douglas is good as Oliver Buckwheat; Mr. Goff is a capital Professor Fumble; Mr. Fred Leopold, jun., is excellent as Daniel Teething; Mr. Tom Leopold is a capable Jules Vermiglio; Mr. Willie Leopold is a creditable Samuel Vermiglio; and Mr. R. Valls is commendable as Tickle, Mr. W. H. Howard making an effective Mick. Miss Kathleen Kavanagh is a praiseworthy Madame Cobweb, as is Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat; Miss Rosie Clair is a pleasing Winnie; Miss Winnie Leopold is an able exponent of Maud; and Miss Queenie Bronte (Mannette), Miss Maudie Weston (Elsie), and Miss Aida Hurley (Cissy) are also adequate. The dancing and acrobatic tricks are clever.

PORTH.—Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in Her Secret Lover is the attraction here. Mr. Ed. Fletcher as Gilbert Seymour makes an impression by his excellent acting; and Mr. Walt. Wilson as Captain Darrell Rose is a most accomplished actor. John Strange is in the hands of Mr. Alf. Stretton; Mr. Frank Wheatley as Mr. Murfield is very good. Miss Laura Walker as Ivy Seymour wins the admiration of all, and Miss Flora Leslie as the designing Alicia Royale is quite capable. Comedy is well furnished by Miss Lyn Darlington and Mr. Fred Russell (Billy Burley).

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company are here with Tantalising Tommy. Jimmy, the Colonial Office clerk, is humorously portrayed by Mr. Hastings Lynn; his artist friend Harry Killick has a clever exponent in Mr. Ambrose Flower; Tommy's docile father, Thomas Pepper, is capitally handled by Mr. Royd Byford; Mr. Ernest H. Holloway ably realises Mr. Eustace Tathem; and the chauffeur Jennings is amusingly impersonated by Mr. Olaf Hutton. Miss Nellie Lonnen's conception of Tommy rivets attention throughout; low comedy is well sustained by Miss Eva Brickwell as the servant Bertha; and Miss Margaret Stuart suitably plays the Methodistic Elsie Tathem.

Prince's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—His Real Wife, produced by Mr. T. E. Ward's company, is here this week. Rose Avondale is admirably taken by Miss Ward; the old blind father Martin Avondale finds a capital counterpart in Mr. Albert Sember; Mr. Clifford Rean gives a realistic portrayal of Herbert Barton; Colombe is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles Yorke; Miss Kate Walfred makes an impressive Lady Sybil Welton, whilst some excellent humour is provided by Messrs. Harwood Roberts and T. E. Ward in the form of Alf Snickers and Simon Slotherby, cleverly aided by Miss Carrie Yandell as Bettie Tuttlebee.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A tabloid version of East Lynne is the attraction this week. Walter Aubrey is a comedian who amuses, the Four Melbas are clever vocalists, Tiny Arnold creates mirth in original style, W. Fullbrook and company produce a comical sketch, Astronomy, and other turns that please include Lester and Lenton (entertainers), the Albano Girls (soubrettes), and Leo Trainor.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—A musical treat is provided by W. W. Audrey's renowned Russian Balalaika Court orchestra, M. Trojanousky, with pianoforte accompaniment, being the soloist; Foreman and Fannan were responsible for much hilarity; Francini Olloms, assisted by a page, not only showed skill as a juggler and acrobat, but entertained with his concertina playing; Archie Glen, as a scout with some clever patter and dancing, was a success; Griff, the sarcastic juggler, and his figure scored, as usual; the Two Vestas, Maudie Ford, and Harry Luck are good turns; and an amusing picture, Foolshead in the Lions' Cage, concluded.

King's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—George Bastow tops the bill this week with his popular "yokel" songs; charming Topsy Sinden soon dances herself into favour; Mary Law's manipulation of the violin delighted all; Hinton and Wootton, cyclist-footballers, riveted attention; the Two Brilliants (xylophonists), the Kepples (operatic vocalists), Len Tell ("The Suffering Dame"), Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Manning (in comedy duologue Our Wedding Anniversary), Damerell and Rutland, the Schmellans, and the clever child mimic, Wilson Hallett, were the recipients of frequent applause.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Exors. of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and his Shakespearean répertoire company are paying a return visit. Hamlet was played on Monday to a most appreciative audience. In the title-rôle Mr. Allan Wilkie gave a most artistic performance; Miss Hunter Watts was a most successful Ophelia; Mr. Houston Meharry as Polonius imbued the part with the necessary touch of humour; Mr. Philip Gordon was excellent as the First Gravedigger; Miss Mary Lovett gave a stately rendition of the Queen; and Messrs. Edward Dunstan as Horatio and Henry Hargreaves as Laertes proved themselves finished actors, and displayed much skill. Mr. Sinclair Neill was decidedly good as the King; Mr. Herbert Mansfield was heard to advantage as the Ghost; and Mr. John Paley was excellent as the First Player.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Fred Karno's company in The Wow-Wows and an up-to-date version of Mumming Birds are attracting good houses. The Bros. Obo are clever; Susie and Protte in their original Continental dancing creation prove themselves most graceful and artistic; Rosie Lee is decidedly original; Adela Masson in her triple-song scena—operatic, amusing, and dramatic—is the possessor of an excellent voice; and Wolffe Laud is a comedian with a good voice.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company in A Life's Revenge is an exceedingly popular booking; Mr. Edward E. Lewis gives a most meritorious presentation of Paul Starovitch; Miss Millie Ford appeals strongly in the part of Princess Vanda; Mr. Lancelot Usher is an acceptable Maurice Trevor; Mr. Arthur Dudley as Clarence Chesterfield is thoroughly suited; and Miss Nellie Hook is vivacious as the wife. Mr. Percy Brown is a thorough stage villain as Prince Boris, and he is ably supported by the crafty Michael Orloff, most ably portrayed by Mr. Ulick Burke. Miss Amy Ellam as the Red Angel, Mercia Vittoria, is excellent; and Mr. Richard Walsh as Nicholas and Mr. Chas. Elborne as Colonel Tumbleoff cause much merriment.

RADCLIFFE (near Manchester).—Grand Opera House. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—The Sarnthalu Troupe of dancers and singers give a very acceptable turn; Mr. Geo. Shurley is a lively comedian and dancer; Mr. Bert Anderson bewilders the audience with his conjuring; the Starley Brothers give a unique turn on a motor cycle; Mr. Tom Garland is a good ventriloquist and mimic; while Friscary conjures cleverly with the top hats; the Blue Bells are excellent singers, and Otto Cuisino is the possessor of a good bass voice; The Milton Ray's duologue entitled The Puzzled Coroner, by Mr. Arthur Milton and Mr. Edwin Millins, proves very entertaining.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Palace Theatre.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Charles Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Mr. William Howard's company is here in Under the Iron Heel, which is well staged and admirably acted. Mr. Walter Howard plays with fine effect the part of the manly and chivalrous French officer. There is a strong love interest in the play, and Miss Carlotta Anson is extremely good in the emotional scenes. Mr. Howard is supported by an excellent company.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hamilton Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw.—The Ideal of Paris is here, played by Mr. James Bell's company. Miss Annie Bell as Flare Flare gave a powerful portrayal, her acting being exceptionally clever and realistic; Miss Lottie Ray did well as Ann; and as Madame Santerre Miss Frances Bruce gave an admirable representation; Mr. Chris A. Olgar was distinctly good as Victor Cashelle, his impersonation being marked with strong and refined feeling; Mr. Bernard Copping was clever as Phillippe d'Esterene; and Mr. Arthur McCullock made a capital Prince Sergius; Mr. H. Vivian Thomas scored a success as Tatave Cashelle; and the remainder of the cast were all thoroughly capable.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans. —The Merry Territorials, an amusing musical farce, is being played here successfully this week by Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company. Mr. Edward de Vere distinguishes himself as Augustus Gaybird; Mr. Sydney Claydon portrays Bertie Brown capitally; Mr. Haydyn Scott is a good Captain Carlton; Mr. W. S. Stevenson as Major Mustard and Mr. Victor T. Raymond as Corporal Jones are highly amusing; Miss Evelyn Robson as Mrs. Gaybird, Miss Irene Atchinson as Bella Brown, Miss Lily Beverley as Polly, and Miss Ethel Royale as Angelina Vernon all sustain their parts well.

The Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Curline Baldry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Kedge.—This week's attractions include Max Waldon, a clever female impersonator; the Fitzroys, smart society gymnasts; May Fayre, a fascinating vocal soubrette; Tatten Hall, comedian; Maurice H. Hoffman and company, in a capital sketch Ship Ahoy; W. P. Sheen, who appears in a hobble skirt as the Merry Widow Wimple, and creates much amusement; Carl Lynn, a clever animal mimic; the Four Maisonos, French musical clowns, who give a clever and novel turn, in which they produce music from a variety of unlikely articles, and finish up with a musical boxing bout; and the Palace Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—Royal.—Manager, Mr. S. Burton. —Mr. J. A. Campbell's company present From Convent to Throne here this week. Miss Valerie Crespin is a great favourite as the Queen, while Mr. Aidan Lovett is very successful as Lieut. Ernest von Hapsburg. Others who perform with considerable ability are Mr. A. F. Stuart, who makes a clever villain, Mr. W. J. Miller as the Prime Minister, Mr. Courtney Robinson as General von Hapsburg, Miss Gwen Verschoyle, and Miss Maudie Grayson.

T. Chalmer, admirably supported by Miss Maud Garth as Edessa; Miss Lily C. Bandmann acts with grace and charm as Almida.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—Home, Sweet Home has been presented here this week by Mr. Frank Lindo's company. Mr. Norton Shields acts with power and feeling as Stephen Armitage; Lucas Lyle has a capable representative in Mr. Leonard Laurence; Mr. Sydney Dench plays with due dignity as the Duke of Ancaster; Mr. Tom E. Lewis makes a typical David Armitage; and as Dick Redmayne Mr. Eric Crowther is sympathetic; Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan impersonates the character with skill and ability.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will. A. Jackson.—Mr. and Mrs. Barry Lyndon's company is here in Why Did She Run Away? The principal parts are in the capable hands of Mr. John B. Shinton, Miss Ellie Macklin, and Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon. Able support is given by the remainder of the company.

QUEEN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Trevanion.—Another batch of excellent films is depicted. The vaudeville turns are by Ernie Travers, a clever eccentric trick cyclist; and Mint and Mart, in their wonderful exhibition of paper-tearing.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow; Treasurer, Mr. J. Crawford Orr.—Messrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's Juvenile Pantomime Co. is here this week, playing in Hop o' My Thumb. George Harris played the part of Prince U-No in excellent style, while Miss Daisy Wood was equally good as Rupert; Mr. Harold Pyott, the smallest man on earth, appeared with success, as Tommy and Miss Kitty Rafferty, was appreciated in the role of Princess Meadowsweet; Mr. Vivian Wakeman caused amusement as the Dame, and Messrs. Tom Cowley and Alf E. Rick were also responsible for much good humour as Silver Sheen and Goldstein. There were some capital ballets, including The Clans, in which Miss Gladys Wyss excelled in song, dance, and piping.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn and company are engaged here to produce a series of playlets founded on the fictitious detective character of Nick Carter. Judging from this week's performances the arrangement will be a great success. Mr. Bernard Mervyn impersonates Nick Carter in capital style, and is backed up by an excellent company; Mr. Nigel P. Kean gives some enjoyable vocal items.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Archer Hamilton. The Breen Family of comedy jugglers are making a tremendous hit here this week with their clever and skillful work; the Three Comerfords give an enjoyable acrobatic act; Madame Dalmere's animals and birds give evidence of careful training.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is playing here this week in The Old Folks at Home. Miss Maud Warburton excels in the delineation of Dorothy Robin; Miss Adele Liddon makes a capital Martha; Mr. Frank Liston gives a fine performance as Andrew Ross, and clever work also comes from Messrs. Henry Sainsbury and Cecil Renton as Christopher Robin and Hugh Lovel- respectively; Miss Alice Greenwood (Patricia Bathurst) and Mr. Cecil Mannering both prove themselves capable exponents of villany, and the humour is entrusted to the capable hands of Miss Pollie Denville and Messrs. George Organ and Henry Strong.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Jock Whiteford is scoring a big success here this week with his popular songs and patter, his "Fitba' Match" being keenly enjoyed. Equally popular on their own lines are Dale and O'Malley, who are highly diverting; M. and Mme. Agoust prove to be jugglers of rare skill; the Satanello Trio give a clever dancing and tumbling turn; Harry Ford is as popular as ever; Walter Wade has an abundance of humour in his monologue, "Sandy McGregor"; Beautiful Lilian gives a daring cycling turn; and Little Keeno, comedian, and Ethel Beach, comedienne, are also good.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is on a return visit with his new play, The King's Romance. The author gives a powerful embodiment of Prince Andreas; Miss Austin provides a charming impersonation of Vera Navairre; Mr. Arthur Estcourt is seen to advantage as Baron Cavonia; Mr. William Manning makes a satisfactory Count Bavantio; Mr. Ernest C. Edwards is well placed as Bortoy; Mr. William H. Dewhurst skilfully enacts Paul Navairre; Mr. John Dunbar effectively portrays Michel Vacurat; Miss Ethel Vinroy is a pleasing Lizette; Miss Bella Power and Mr. Henry Sheppard as Mme. Pomeroy and Jean Pomeroy respectively are amusing.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Miss Nora Carton's company is successfully appearing in Temptation. Mr. C. H. Mortimer gives point to the part of Sir Chas. Tremayne; the Mr. Blight of Mr. C. Roystell is a convincing study; Hubert Thorne is capably undertaken by Mr. N. A Overton; and Mr. G. Wallace is well cast as Stephen Rowe. Miss Nora Carton gives a charming representation of Hilda Dundonald; and Miss Lilla Wilde ably depicts the scheming Ivra Blight.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Ton-y-pandy Hippodrome Co.; General-Manager, Mr. D. Taylor.—Topping a fine bill is Gates' Burlesque Band; the Three Louberts are screamingly funny; the Matt Wilkinson Trio ably present a comedy sketch; the Two Le Bruns appear successfully in a pot-pourri act; Violet Beatrice, the Belmonts, and Harrd Hayton are well received; and the Hipposcope pictures are greatly appreciated.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Ald. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearce.—Mr. Harry P. Tower's company in Dear Little Denmark is here this week. Miss Winifred Volt as Ophelia creates an excellent impression, singing and dancing with charming vivacity; Miss Alice Waldie as Xandra does exceedingly well, and Miss Thelma Raye sings with acceptance as Christine; Mr. Cameron Carr achieves considerable success as Conrad; and Mr. Arthur Ballance as Karl gives a capital study. As the Duke, Mr. Edward Thirlby is well placed, whilst Mr. Frank Lewis is equally suitable to the character of the Burgomaster. Mr. George W. Ruff is a very quaint Jenson, and works well with Mr. Tom Payne, whose interpretation of Hansen causes much hilarity.

TYLDESLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. H. O. Silverstone's company is attracting good audiences here in The Prince's Secret Wedding. Mr. George Mitchell is seen to distinct advantage as Ivan Nowasky; Mr. O. Silverstone plays Prince Alexander in capital style; Mr. Cowell Clarke gives a meritorious study of Karl Orloff; Mr. J. B. Harvey is a successful Father Gourki; Miss Annie Hylton makes an excellent impression as Princess Olga; Aexina Orloff is capably portrayed by Miss Edna Clare; Mrs. O. Silverstone is a pleasing Katrina; and Mr. Henry Wright is responsible for much humour as Bobbie Smart.

TYNEMOUTH. — PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Messrs. Peter Davey and Douglas Gordon's company is presenting The Importance of Being Earnest. John Worthing, J.P., has an apt exponent in Mr. Douglas Gordon; and Mr. Hugh Ardale admirably sustains the rôle of Algernon Moncrieff; Miss Evelyn Cecil furnishes a clever impersonation of the Hon. Gwendoline Fairfax; a charming and captivating Cecily Cardew is to be found in Miss Barbara Hannay; the Rev. Canon Chasuble, D.D., is in the able hands of Mr. Geoffrey Guise; Mrs. Peter Davey makes the most of her opportunities as Lady Bracknell; and Miss Ruth Rose is successful as Miss Prism. The comedy is preceded by a society duologue entitled We Dine at Seven, in which Miss Ethel Vokins as Millicent, and Mrs. Peter Davey as Julia, are seen to advantage.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is presenting Her Forbidden Marriage. George Maddison, the hero, is well sustained by Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson; Mr. W. H. Porter ably portrays the villainies of Charles Devereux; Mr. T. Macdonald is successful as Geoffrey Broughton; the part of Rev. Mr. Dean is well depicted by Mr. Conrad Stratford; Mr. Frank Denis is realistic as Sir George Lancaster; Mr. Fred de Vere is responsible for much humour as Timothy Tuttut; Mr. J. Stewart is efficient as Jenkins; Miss Alice Bowes is admirable as Lucy; Miss Vera Grafton acts well as Lady Lucretia Lancaster; Miss Rita Tomkins is seen to advantage as the Mother Superior; and Miss Kitty Merrick is vivacious as Patty.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Arnold Richardson and company, in the mirth-provoking sketch Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, has a great reception; Briff, Braff, and Graff provide an excellent comedy acrobatic turn; Jean and Josie, lady contortionists, give a clever and graceful performance; Tiny and Mite, juvenile duettists and dancers, merit hearty applause for smart dancing; George Brooks, comedian, is entertaining; Cambo and Castell have a pleasing and novel musical turn; and Rover and Gloria, comedy couple, merit appreciation.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Toffree.—The pictures on the bioscope are good, and continue a great attraction. Variety turns are provided by Mr. Andy Fagan, comedian, who does well, and Miss Mamie Morris, a dashing comedienne, who dances smartly.

WALLSEND. — BOROUGH THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—The Ansonia Trio, equilibrists, deservedly hold the place of honour; a highly amusing turn is provided by Chorley and Connor, Scotch comedians and dancers; Phyllis Seymour is a dainty and refined comedienne; Master Leonard Bedford proves himself a talented cornet soloist; Frank Hartley is a juggler of exceptional merit; and a sweet and cultured soprano is to be found in Adelaide Waldorf; Tom Taylor and company are successful in their sketch The Plumbers; Tony Friedman, comedian, and Fields and Lewis, in a comedy act, are also seen to advantage.

WALSALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company are here this week in The Female Detective. The part of Colonel Heathcote is well sustained by Mr. T. B. Brabazon; Mr. Ernest J. Fare supplies a powerful impersonation of Tom Heathcote, V.C.; Myra Mayne, the title-rôle, is featured by Miss Florence Trevoir with exceptional ability; Miss Violet Agnew shows to advantage in the rôle of Nellie Danvers; much humour is introduced into the part of Tubby Philpotts by Mr. Horace Stanley; the rôle of the unscrupulous Basil Vane is capitally sustained by Mr. Chas. Burdon; and other parts are well sustained by Miss Kate Kilpack (Emma Toogood) and Mr. Fred Seymour (the Mad Doctor).

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Joint-Management, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—George French was billed to appear here, but on the night of our visit he did not appear owing to indisposition: a local comedian deputised, and showed considerable ability; King and Benson keep the house in a good mood with their latest burlesque; May Mars has a charming song-scena, entitled A Persian Garden; the Du Gros Trio are comedy gymnasts of a high order; Dacey and Lewis are a pair of successful entertainers; and F. V. St. Clair (vocalist) and Edie Reynolds (violinist) complete.

WEDNESBURY. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Manager, Mr. Walle Spinner.—Mr. W. V. Garrod is presenting A Country Girl in London. Effectively mounted, Mr. Fred Wilberforce as John Hamilton and Mr. Chas. Halling in the rôle of Frank Gordon do well. The adventurer, Godfrey Clinton, is creditably played by Mr. Scott Leighton. Mr. J. Sutton Pateman makes up well as Job Smithers; Miss Maude Merrick meets with hearty approval in the representation of Marjorie Hamilton; as Adelaide Puddyphatt, Miss Alice Clarke proves most humorous; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson gives a clever performance as Gwendoline Gordon; warm appreciation is accorded to Mr. Frank Dallas in his interpretation of Henrich Oppenheim; whilst the part of Wilberforce Puddyphatt is left to the safe keeping of Mr. Seymour Perry.

KING'S HALL.—Sole Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. B. Kennedy.—The vaudeville items here this week include Mr. Chas. Murray, eccentric character vocalist; Miss Amy Bayne, descriptive and coon vocalist; and Mr. E. H. Linson in his latest songs. There is an interesting show of pictures.

WELLINGBOROUGH. — KING'S PALACE.—Zelda is an attractive lady instrumentalist; Miss May Halsee is a favourite vocalist; Wal Owen's performance is very quaint and novel; and Williams and Hayes as prima donna and tramp are a great success.

EMPIRE.—Joan Deering is a charming speciality artist and vocalist; Prof. Thornbury gives a clever exhibition of lightning painting, &c.; and Fifi Gordon's scenes are also appreciated.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Nightingale and M. Beaudyn.—The Queen of the Night forms the attraction here. Miss Sidney Crowe as Paulina and Mr. Herbert Skardon as Frank Featherstone have met with a hearty reception; a word of praise is due to Miss Margaret Noble as Maud Sylvester; Miss May Dana as Kitty White and Miss Emmie Gurney as Mrs. Adelaide Brisket. Mr. Geoff Sutherland is good as Philip Stoneleigh; Mr. Richard Nugent as Adolphus Brisket does well; and the other parts are admirably sustained.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Cohn; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Cohn, sen.; Secretary, Mr. W. Hebden.—An excellent bill is headed by Dix and Dox; Miss Marie Ray is clever; the Two Mites do well; and the Leotard Bros., Jack and Vera, Miss Clara Hastings, Oliver Conroy, and the Bros. Erard provide enjoyable turns.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—The principal turn is provided by Joe Boganny and his troupe of lunatic bakers, whose tumbling and acrobatic feats are the wonder and amusement of all. Tom and Marie Motramo are also old favourites who are well received. A novel and expert musical act is delightfully submitted by Corcoran Bros; harmony is delightfully contributed by the Elsteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette; the Flying Hanlons, bouncing gymnasts, perform numerous revolutions on the spring mat; an amusing sketch, depicting matrimonial amenities, is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden; Rowlands and Ford, in Welsh and Scotch comedy, are entertaining; and Beattie and Blanche prettily contribute song and duet.

WHITEHAVEN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—Mr. F. Bulmer's company is here with The Girl Who Went Astray. Mr. R. Ferris is well cast as Captain Julian; and Mr. Austin Mortimer is good as Rupert Murdock. Mr. R. Oldroyd as James Yellowsocks and Mr. E. Roland as Adolphus Boomer are creditable; and Mr. J. H. Lee is capital as Gussie Seymour. Miss Ada Oakley is a pleasing Violet; and the character of Madge Harvey has a capable exponent in Miss Dorris Brookes.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company, Ltd.—Florodora is being presented here by Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 company. Miss Daisy Lake gives a capital portrayal of Dolores; Miss Florence Hersee dances herself into favour as Angela Gilfain; Miss Kate Leicester sings admirably as Lady Holyrood; Mr. Johnnie Schofield creates endless laughter as Tweedlepunch; Frank Abercoed is in the capable hands of Mr. Martin D. Pitt; Mr. Stanley White does full justice to the part of Cyrus Gilfain; while the character of Arthur Donegal finds an able exponent in Mr. J. Junior.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co., Ltd.—The premier position is occupied by Amati's Band, consisting of thirty clever instrumentalists, who are loudly applauded for their various selections; Menotti, the Stockholm wonder, gives a smart exhibition with his bicycle; Richard Flanagan's production, Compensation, provides a capital turn; Henry O. Boie is a clever juggler; Bert Rayburn amuses the audience with funny songs; Oger and Orule are responsible for a skilful acrobatic exhibition; and other acceptable turns are provided by Jennie Higham (a popular vocalist), the Sisters Montague (duettists and dancers), Eva Chadwick, Marjory and Maud, and Owen and Wills (comedians and dancers).

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. G. Kimberley.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company in The Village Blacksmith is proving a strong attraction here. Mr. Sam Livesey is a powerful John Strong; Mr. Joseph Carter as Captain Leo makes a plausible villain; Mr. J. Milne Taylor is good as Lucas Marler; Mr. Joe Hodson acquits himself well as Billy Twigg; and Mr. Edwin Maydew as Jeremiah Parkins and Miss Nellie Graham as Sal Parkins present two clever character sketches. Miss Maggie Edwardes plays with tact and skill as Kate Strong; Miss Cassie Le Grande arouses sympathy as Ruth Parkins; Miss Nellie Sinclair is well placed as Martha Mopps; and a special word of praise is due to Little Gladys Brittain for a delightfully intelligent rendering of Harry Strong.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Of the many musical turns seen here, few have succeeded in raising the audience to such a pitch of enthusiasm as do the Seven Bramusas, a family of juvenile musicians, who present a brass band extravaganza, Music Afloat; the Bros. Durant make a comic entrance in an aeroplane, and then indulge in clever acrobatic eccentricities; Atlas and Collins, comedy duo, are as popular as ever; Mr. C., as a raconteur, causes much merriment; Maud Courtney appears in song and story; and Phillips and Bristow, in a unique dancing act; and Nobby, boy comedian, complete the bill.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Macnamara.—Our Miss Gibbs again finds a hearty welcome, and crowded houses throughout the week have revelled in the many melodious numbers and the humorous creations which the comedy presents. Mr. George Dance's company is a strong and talented one. The production is superbly staged and dressed, the chorus is strong and well trained, and Mr. Hubert Boggetti conducts an augmented orchestra. Miss Daisie Wallace acts with dainty grace in the name-part, and sings delightfully. Lady Elizabeth is safely entrusted to Miss Dorothy Harris, who has a natural charm of manner; and Miss Madge Lucas causes much amusement as the Duchess. Miss Florence Hylton as Mrs. Farquhar, and Miss Louise Rickmann as Mme. Jeanne contribute their full share to the success of the production. Mr. Vincent Erne is inimitable as Timothy, and he is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. J. H. Willis is a dashing Hughie, Mr. J. S. Durant an admirable Slithers, Mr. A. Gordon Begg a dignified Earl of St. Ives, Mr. Douglas Phillips well suited as Eynsford, and Mr. Frank Sealey a suave stores manager. The Misses Cole, Loraine, and Stuart are dainty colleens.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Resident Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—During this week Messrs. Albert and Edmunds' comedy company of versatile artists have played to excellent houses. The variety turns have consisted of Miss Vera Elmore, Desmond and Dare, Jean Kram, Nellie Boden, Harry Morris, Purvis and Partner, George Lambton, and the Four Minims, all of whom gave great satisfaction.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—The usual thing, good houses every night. Robb Gilmore (comedian), Dolly Brough (comedienne and dancer), and Eva Hope (descriptive vocalist) were very successful, and the pictures were of good order.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Eynorth.—The pictures here are of the usual standard and excellence; Williams's Welsh Minstrels give a refined musical and vocal entertainment; and Mlle. Sylvesto and comedian Rumbo present a smart comedy contortionist act.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Little Phil's Mother has drawn large audiences. Mr. Herbert Evelyn gives an intensely dramatic rendering of Frank Towers; and Miss Maud Russell is in every way acceptable as Ruth Towers. Mr. David McFarlane is successful as the villain; and Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Geoffrey Eyne gives a clever character study. The comedy is in the safe hands of Mr. Frank Thorne, a most amusing Sam Perkels. Praise is due to Miss Daisy Rochefort for her sympathetic acting as Phil.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—The ever-popular Florrie Forde is having a hearty welcome from crowded houses. Her songs are rendered with great success. The Three Spissell Bros. and Mack are acrobats of great merit; the singing of the Four Celestas is very popular; and Albert Rees at the piano and in song at once commands attention. As a clay modeller De Bessell has probably few equals; and C. H. Charlton's magic kettle causes wonderment. Excellent dances are given by Dorris and Francis; and Marjorie Laurence is well received in song and dance.

"THE COWARD," a drama in four acts, by Mrs. Sam Duckworth, was produced for copyright purposes at the Birkenhead Hippodrome on Oct. 27.

"NEW YORK," a drama, in three acts, by J. Hurlbut, author of The Fighting Hope, is the current attraction at the Bijou Theatre, New York. The newspapers have severely criticised the play. It was announced as "a picture of New York life," but as a matter of fact its characters and incidents are merely suggestive of that part of New York known as "the Tenderloin." A man with a past has an illegitimate son, whose mother is a woman of the streets. He falls in love with a good woman, who attempts to reform the son, the latter not knowing who his father is. He attacks her in revenge for a fancied slight from his father, and she kills him in self-defence. An attempt is made to fasten the crime on the father, but the woman confesses, and finally the man marries the murderess of his son. The language used by some of the characters is of a sort that is seldom heard on the stage. The drama is well acted.

DURING the performance of a melodrama at one of the Palermo theatres on Saturday night it was noticed in the course of the play that two of the musicians of the orchestra named Propeta and Olivieri were quarrelling, and in the entr'acte they came to blows. The two men were, however, separated, and took their seats for the third act. Suddenly the audience was horrified to see Propeta rush towards Olivieri with a revolver. He fired four times, and Olivieri fell, gravely wounded. The theatre firemen took the shots as signals of an outbreak of fire, and drenched actors, orchestra, and audience to the skin with the hose. The wounded man was taken to the hospital and Propeta to gaol.

E. J. C. writes:—I see that Mr. Sidney Lee, the well-known authority on Shakespeare, in his recent lecture said: "As to Shakespeare's law, it is almost invariably bad law." Assuming that Mr. Lee has been correctly reported, his opinion is directly opposed to that of Lord Campbell, and, I believe, of Lord Penzance. Lord Campbell says in his little volume on Shakespeare's legal acquirements, page 108: "Whilst novelists and dramatists are constantly making mistakes in the law of marriages, of wills, and of inheritance, in Shakespeare's law, lavishly as he propounds it, there can be neither demurrer, nor bill of exceptions, nor writ of error." Lord Campbell may have written too eulogistically of Shakespeare, as most people seem to do, but there is a great difference between his opinion and that of Mr. Lee.

"THE ARCADIANS."

550TH PERFORMANCE.

The delightful fantastical musical play The Arcadians celebrated its 550th performance at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday evening, when the piece was entirely redressed, the ladies' costumes so exquisitely shown having been designed with a view to forming a forecast of the fashions of to-morrow. Always merry and bright, Mr. Robert Courtneidge's charming production is now brighter and merrier than ever, and the fair sex will revel in the feast of beautiful and wonderful Parisian costumes, including the startling bifurcated skirt, the bewildering array of hats—turbans, beehives, &c.—on exhibition in the Askwood and Arcadian Restaurant scenes. The principal parts remain in nearly every instance in the same hands as on the first performance, Miss Florence Smithson's dainty enaction of the simple Arcadian maid Sombra, the beautiful renderings by the cultured and sweet-voiced vocalist of "The Pipes of Pan," "Arcady is ever young," and other numbers enrapturing the crowded house on Thursday evening. Miss Cicely Courtneidge now takes the part of the roguish little Irish girl Eileen Cavanagh, dancing with much daintiness and grace, and acting throughout with delightful piquancy and sweetness. Mr. Dan Rolyat and Mr. Alfred Lester as James Smith and Peter Doody have greatly worked up the fun since the first night, and there is not a dull moment while either of these admirably contrasted and clever comedians is on the stage. Screamingly funny is Mr. Rolyat in the scene where the Arcadians appeal to the astonished Cockney to lead the simple life; and the song and business in the second act, where, as Simplicitas, Smith carries on a flirtation with his wife, who fails to recognise him, is also a capital bit of fooling, the eccentric "falls" and dances occasionally indulged in by Simplicitas being all immensely entertaining and adroit. Mr. Alfred Lester's portrait of the dismal Doody is, of course, one of the most precious remembrances of a delightful evening. The melancholy jockey's monologue on his racing experiences is one long laugh, and his distinctly funny song, "I've got a motter," is repeatedly encored. Miss Ada Blanche as the good-natured Mrs. Smith is responsible for a genuine comedy portrayal that greatly adds to the value of the scenes in which she appears, the accomplished actress never once forcing the fun. Mr. Harry Welchman as Jack Meadows, Mr. Nelson Keys as Bobby, Mr. Akerman May as Sir George Paddock, and Miss Gladys Silvani as Chrysea all give invaluable support, and the many other clever and charming artists contributed materially towards the enjoyment of the evening. Delightfully picturesque and exhilarating, The Arcadians, with its first scene of entrancing beauty, its charming vocal numbers and dainty dances, and its feast of genuine fun—not forgetting the magnificent and startling new confections and the bevy of beauty whom they adorn—should attract all London again for many months to come.

THE Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph telegraphs the news of the death of Mlle. Bianca Dutamel, an actress long popular in Paris, who has passed away in comparative solitude in a small flat near the Avenue des Ternes. Born in Rouen nearly forty years ago, she made her first appearance as a child at the local theatre, and after making her début at the Paris Galté in Le Petit Poucet, she entered the Conservatoire as a pupil of Delaunay.

AT the Bouffes-Parisiens she played the name-part in Maxime Baucheron's Miss Helyett, with music by Audran, for the first time, on Nov. 12, 1890, and her fame was assured. The piece, with its French indelicacy was deodorised by Sir (then Mr.) Francis Burnand, and its English dress was produced at the Criterion as Miss Decima, with Miss Juliette Nesville in the title-role and the late David James as a Baptist minister. The name of Miss Helyett became indissolubly associated with Mlle. Dutamel, and her decease, after a long illness, has been announced in the Paris papers as "the death of Miss Helyett."

WHEN Mrs. Charles Sugden was playing Camille in a large North Country town, her husband was watching her in her dying scene in the last act when he noticed the call-boy in the O.P. entrance looking at the scene with the tears running down his cheeks. Mr. Sugden was so delighted at the call-boy's appreciation of his wife's acting that he gave the boy 2s. 6d. The matter passed out of Mr. Sugden's head till he returned to the same town some months afterwards, playing Wheels within Wheels, Mr. Carton's brilliant comedy. The house was laughing heartily, but Mr. Sugden noticed as he came off the stage his old friend the call-boy crying bitterly, with his handkerchief to his eyes. Sugden says that call-boy ought to get on. As a matter of fact, he has got on; he is now playing the principal comedy part in Mrs. Sugden's new melodrama, The Ruin of Her Life.

THE funeral of Mr. Arthur Edwards, of The Arcadians company, who was drowned in Sydney Harbour, just off Manly, on Sept. 17, took place at Waverley, an enormous crowd following and receiving the cortège at the cemetery. Members of all the theatrical companies in the town attended. Scores of beautiful floral tributes filled a large dray, male singers sang a dirge, the Rev. North Ash read the service and delivered a touching address, and deep sorrow bowed every head and saddened every heart, for the cheery young actor, only twenty-four years of age, was beloved by everybody in front of and behind the curtain.

Advantages of Municipal Theatres.

MUCH is urged, and with justice, against the system of theatres subventioned or owned by the municipality; yet, from the actors' point of view, it has a good many features distinctly in its favour. A happy illustration is the new agreement under which the commissioners appointed by the Burgomaster and Senate of the old Hanse town of Lübeck have let the Stadttheater for the next four years to Councillor G. Kurtzschulz and Director Stanislaus Fuchs. Among other beneficial stipulations it is laid down that out of the chorus, numbering never less than thirty-two persons, a nucleus of twenty-five be given annual contracts, which secure to them a salary throughout the whole of the year, amounting to a minimum of £6 5s. per month instead of £7 10s. for a season of eight months only. The difference, an increase of £15 for the performers, is made up by the municipality. Another clause provides that so-called "volunteers"—members with a monthly salary of less than £5—are to be employed adequately, and that extra performances in the guise of matinées must be paid for in addition to the ordinary salary. The quaintly picturesque old Hanse town on the River Trave possesses one of the most beautiful municipal theatre buildings on the Continent, its graceful modern architecture, mirrored in a lake of the Town Park, its elegant modernity emphasised by its mediæval surroundings, for which Lübeck is famous, being one of the s

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Play entitled
"RAFFLES."

That the Amateur Cracksman still exercises his fascination over the King's patrons was plainly manifest on Monday evening, when, in the person of Mr. Leonard Boyne, he made his re-entry for the week. Raffles is a capital play containing plenty of excitement, and the love interest is not neglected. In addition, the cast has been excellently selected, and the piece, in consequence, swings along most effectively. As Raffles Mr. Leonard Boyne has a part that suits him exactly. The "champion slow bowler of England," moving in the best of society, through his cricketing claims, must obviously be a gentleman, and Mr. Boyne quite fits the character. Loud applause throughout rewards his efforts. Mr. Carlaw Grand makes an exceedingly good Earl of Amersteth; and Viscount Crowley has an able representative in Mr. Stephen Wentworth. The American ex-detective, Curtis Bedford, is splendidly rendered by Mr. Edward Irwin, who, in his catechism of Raffles, shares the honours with Mr. Boyne, and creates keen interest amongst the audience. Mr. Harold West's portraiture of Harry Manders (Bunny) is well realised, his unswerving devotion to Raffles earning for him much approbation. The professional burglar, Crawshay, the very antithesis of Raffles, is boldly and vigorously typed by Mr. Buckstone Clair. Mr. Henry Armstrong is good as Merton. The part of Gwendoline Conran is undertaken by Miss Eva Killick with great skill and charm, and, aided by a delightful appearance, the actress attains popularity. Miss May Brooke, in the unsympathetic part of Mrs. Vidal, displays talent and delicacy; and Miss Blanka Stewart gives a careful rendering of Lady Melrose. Lady Ethel is brightly played by Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald, and the French maid, Marie, is tactfully represented by Miss Kathleen Grey. The scenery and appointments are quite up to the King's standard of excellence.

THE MARLBOROUGH.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"CAPTAIN KIDD."

The first suburban production of the successful musical comedy, Captain Kidd, by Seymour Hicks, took place here on Monday last. It is an adaptation of Richard Harding Davis's successful play The Dictator. The lyrics are by Adrian Ross, with additions by George Arthurs, and the music by Leslie Stuart. From the raising of the curtain on Monday it was evident that the large audience assembled would have a great treat, and so it proved, for one good thing followed another in quick succession, and one lovely scene, The Deck of the Steamer Boliver, came to a close only to be replaced by one even more delightful—The American Consulate at Porto Banos, both designed and painted by Joseph Harker. Everything went as merrily as possible, and the members of the clever company got together by Mr. Herbert Jay, and which includes Miss Maie Ash and Mr. Roland Bottomley, seemed almost to have been made for their parts. The music is charming, and the dances, specially arranged and rehearsed by Mr. Fred Farren, of the Empire, are very pretty and well executed by the company. Miss Maie Ash made a great success with a charming impersonation of Lucy Sheridan, playing in a bright and vivacious manner, which fairly carried the house with her. Miss Ash has not a strong voice, but her sweet and particularly acceptable singing and neat dancing met with repeated demands for encores. Her numbers include "There's going to be a honeymoon," "Take your girl where the band is playing," and, most successful of all, "Um-te-ay." Mr. Roland Bottomley as Captain Kidd has a great deal of work to do, and does it all in splendid fashion. He amused the audience all the time he was on the stage, and his songs, "Johnny on the spot," and notably one about "The only girl he ever loved," were funnily and brightly rendered, and were heartily encored. Miss Ash and Mr. Bottomley also share honours in their duets, "I could do wonders with you" and "I've got rings on my fingers." Much dry humour is introduced into the part of Simpson by Mr. Harry Benet, whose quaint comedy business is funny in the extreme, and keeps the house in merriment the whole time he is on the stage. He has a capital song, "Poor old man," which was funnily rendered and heartily redemanded. Mr. Harold Deacon appears to advantage as Dick Hyne, and renders in excellent voice and artistic finish a patriotic song, "England," for which he was encored. A capital impersonation of Colonel John T. Bowie is submitted by Mr. Lister Morrah; and Mr. Alfred Sandoe contributes his share to the general success as Duffy. Miss Marjorie Maxwell was seen to great advantage as Senorita Juanita Arguila, and sang with excellent effect "I am the Star of the East." Miss Helen Holmes is bright and pleasing in the part of Aggie Shrubb, a miniature "Louie Frear" character, and is very successful with "I want a man to love me," which meets with its due reward. The buxom hotel proprietress, Mme. Ducrot, is characteristically undertaken by Miss Constance Grainger; and Miss Dorothy Eden suitably impersonates the part of Mrs. Bowie. Mr. Sydney Gavin (Rev. Bostick), Mr. Harry Hardy (General Campos), Mr. Frank Wolsey (Captain Codman), and Mr. Dan Robson (Lieut. Perry) all capably fill their respective parts. Miss Margaret Lynhart dances well as Sarita, and the remaining parts are all suitably represented.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Farce, by Charles Marlowe, entitled
"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

That genial comedian Mr. James Welch is "storming" the house at Kennington this week in the familiar farce When Knights were Bold which he has made so peculiarly his own. Mr. Welch is producing the farce with the company and scenery that figured in it at the Criterion Theatre, and, despite the fact that this is not his first visit to Kennington, the audience which assembled there on Monday found the play as fresh and as entertaining as at the outset of its run. Mr. Welch keeps well abreast of the times, so that topical point is lent to most of his allusions, references being made, amongst other subjects, to the Suffragettes and latest aviation achievements. As Sir Guy de Vere Mr. Welch is as bright and as merry as ever. Despite the strain of continual appearance in the part during the past four years or so he is incredibly blithsome and festive, and never allows a dull moment throughout the entire action of the farce. He is supported by an exceedingly able company, the chief amongst whom is Miss Audrey Ford, whose Lady Rowena is a splendid study. Mr. Arthur Grenville on Monday scored a distinct personal success by his clever and well-sustained interpretation of the part of Isaac Isaacson, the Jew. Mr. Henry Ford was excellent as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, the boisterous gaiety of his performance as the Jester in the second act keeping the house convulsed. Mr. Guy Lane was very good as the Dean, his dignified mien forming a necessary contrast to the eccentricities of Sir Guy de Vere. Three fascinating and charming figures were the Misses M. O'Hea, H. Black, and Peggy Kennedy as Lady Millicent, Lady Muriel, and Kate Pottlebury respectively. They sketched the larkish young ladies fresh from school to the life. Mr. Cecil Kinnaird presented a vividly-drawn portrait of Sir Brian Ballymote; while Miss Daisy Cordell was a graceful and attractive Miss Isaacson. The part of Wittle was finely sustained by Mr. George F. Tully, and Mr. Gordon Tomkins was very good as Barker. Miss Annie Chipperdale made a sprightly Alice Barker, and Miss Mabel Younge was well placed as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave. The staging was magnificently done, the second act being an especially fine set, with its picturesquely garbed crowd of mediæval servants, soldiers, and nuns.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Drama, entitled
"MAN TO MAN."

This strong drama has been very successful at Mr. J. Bannister Howard's theatre, where large and sympathetic audiences have been the rule, and each highly sensational situation has been followed and appreciated, with hisses for the villain and tears for the sorrows of the hero and heroine. Mr. Clifford Bown as the old "lag," Bill Burkley, kept the audience in a roar by his quiet quaintness, and his make-up and acting were alike excellent; and Mr. Edward Lloyd, who, in conjunction with Mr. Bown, is responsible for the company, made a most efficient cleric as the Rev. Philip Ormond. Mr. Arthur Robinson's youthful appearance and taking style were well adapted to the part of the hero, George Gordon. He rendered the pathos without undue sentimentality, and spoke his lines with clearness and effect. Mr. Charles Stirling as Richard Ellerton, the villain, made himself as unpopular with the upper part of the house as he could well wish, his appearances before the curtain being the signal for hisses and booing, in appreciation of the reality which he infused into his acting. Mr. Bruce Williams as Samuel Blumtree was an excellent light comedian, and supplied plenty of very good comic relief in conjunction with Miss Alice Bradshaw as Mary, who played the part capitally. As the sorrowing heroine, Ethel Maythorne, Miss Beatrice Hone puts in much good work without effort, and claimed the sympathy of all from the first, both her style of acting and her appearance being very much in her favour. Mr. H. Holland as the old man, Matthew Ellerton, was well suited; and Mr. Elec Mayhew as Forde, the stolid constable, was all that could be desired. The erring boy, Ned Doyle, was feelingly acted by Miss Phyllis Oakley, who succeeded in giving a feeling touch to the part. Miss Eleanor Papera as Miss Phyllis Dove was the cause of much amusement as an old maid with a leaning towards matrimony; and Miss Frances May gave much reality to the strong part of Gipsy Madge. The sensational railway accident scene was realistically carried out.

DALSTON THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Play entitled
"HER LOVE AGAINST THE WORLD."

Mr. W. H. Hallatt and Mr. Walter Howard's company present this week at the Dalston Theatre the romantic drama, entitled Her Love Against the World, which was originally produced at the Lyceum Theatre. The piece is admirably staged and the acting is of such general excellence that the attention of audiences is rivetted from first to last. Mr. Fred Emery as Eric, Earl of Strathmere, is seen to the best advantage, making the most of the many striking situations. Miss Rossie St. John is Lionel (Nello), the fifteen-year-old brother of the Earl. Ulric, Prince of Ravensburg, has a fine representative in Mr. Roy Fortesque, whose striking presence and dignified bearing creates precisely the right impression. Prince Othmar is remarkably well sustained by Mr. W. H. Hallatt, who is the popular general-manager of the company. Mr. Arthur Chisholm proves himself a most capable actor as Prince Maurice of Saxonia, obtaining the admiration of all for his histrionic abilities. Mr. Ernest Hillyer as Major Sarona is well cast. Mr. Charles R. Hann, Mr. Webster Grey, and Mr. A. B. Cushman are officers serving Prince Maurice; Mr. T. Archer, Mr. W. F. Thorpe, and Mr. J. Russell are troopers; Mr. A. J. Moss is well suited as Sergeant Kaspar, and Mr. Clement Barnes is thoroughly at ease as Surgeon-Captain Helgar. Mr. Fred Acton, who fulfils the responsible duties of stage-manager, appears as Heinrick Pimpernickle, and Mr. John Mill is Fritz Pimpernickle. Miss Ellen Snow presents a striking picture of Iris, the beautiful Princess of Idalia. A great deal of the romantic interest of the story centres in the dramatic circumstances which surround the life of this lady, and Miss Snow proves herself quite capable of discharging the responsibilities of such a trying part. Miss Blanche Steele does full justice to the demands made upon her as Shula, Countess of Rasslyn; Miss Julie de Esco is attractive as Corona, an Austrian dancer, and Miss Winifred Acton and Miss Hettie Ferguson are maids of honour to Princess Iris.

THE SHAKESPEARE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Play entitled
"THE SPECKLED BAND."

The patrons of the Shakespeare Theatre have certainly every reason to be satisfied with the fare provided this week, the fascinating and thrilling play The Speckled Band engrossing large audiences. The members of Mr. Arthur Hardy's company have met with signal favour, fully realising all expectations. That fine actor Mr. Bassett Roe scored a complete triumph in his representation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott, the dramatic intensity of his acting holding the audience completely enthralled. Nothing could exceed the charm and personal attractiveness of Miss Mary Forbes as Enid Stonor, and her delineation of the terror-stricken girl was a striking piece of acting. Miss Lilian Brennard was distinctly good as the austere housekeeper, Mrs. Staunton, and Miss Lilian Rodgers made the most of the part of Mrs. Soames. A fine character study was that of Mr. H. Asheton Tonge as Rodgers; the crafty nature of the Indian, Ali, was well portrayed by Mr. Frank G. Vyvyan; Mr. Herbert Bradford as Mr. Scott Wilson was satisfactory; Mr. E. H. Brooke was an amusing Mr. Armitage; Mr. S. J. Warmington was the suave Coroner to the life; Mr. Rupert Lumley rendered good service as Mr. Brewer, Foreman of the Jury; Mr. O. P. Heggie's conception of Sherlock Holmes was all that could be desired, and he enacted every phase of the character in the most effective style; Mr. Talbot Homewood was an interesting Dr. Watson; and Master Philip Tonge as the page, Billy, showed real humour.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Drama, entitled
"THE WORLD, THE FLESH, AND THE DEVIL."

As presented by Mr. Laurence Cowen's company, this weird drama proved greatly to the liking of the large audience assembled. Mr. Keith Fraser well sustains the rôle of the "devilish" Nicholas Brophy, who sticks at nothing to attain his ends; Mr. Harry Douglas makes an efficient hero as Robert Hall; Mr. Frederick Jacques is a dignified Sir James Hall; Mr. Henry Compton plays well as the wretched Rupert Dyke, whose misdeeds recoil so strikingly on himself and daughter; Mr. John Brittain is distinctly humorous as Mr. Jenkins, and finds an able helpmate in Mrs. Harding Barrington as Mrs. Jenkins; Mr. Edwin Wilson makes a sinister figure of George Grigg; Miss Dora Hammersley puts in some fine acting as the betrayed girl, Gertrude Grant; Miss Dorothy Routh does well as Beatrice Cuthbert; Miss Alice Winter plays the old nurse, Caroline Stanger; and Mrs. Maitland Marler shows to advantage as the militant Suffragette, Sylvia Trevor.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Drama, entitled
"HER ROAD TO RUIN."

The above piece is doing very well here, which is not surprising. It is a most popular play. Mr. Charles Dickens gives a most brilliant and diverting rendering of the now famous rôle of the Curate, and Mr. Albert Grenville is strong as Tom Wells. The heavy part of Philip Hardy is admirably sustained by Mr. Knox Orde. The Bishop is most ably played by Mr. Dane Clarke, and Mr. R. Leigh Ellis satisfactorily interprets the rôle of Charles Cholmondeley. To Mr. Will Wood falls the part of the Solicitor. The characters of Fritz and Carl, waiters at the Savoy, are suitably allotted to Messrs. Harry Winter and Harry Clarke. That of Dicky Gerald falls to Mr. Henry Powell, and Mr. H. C. Stallwood is good as Inspector Homewood. Mr. Chas. H. Brooke is thoroughly entertaining as Billy Boots. The rôle of Bill Grimes is wisely left to Mr. Thomas Henry. The part of the old roué, Sir John Lewis, has been acted admirably by Mr. H. Dobell Lyle in the sudden absence, through illness, of Mr. Guy Routh. Miss Gertrude Tait plays with grace and ability the part of May Willoughby, and is particularly clever in the scene with Mr. Temple. The rôles of Sal Briggs, Lottie Baker, Clara Seaweed, and the Scorcher fall respectively to Miss Leta Scarlett, Miss Jessie Stevens, Miss Lucy Bentley, and Miss Mary Halstead, who interpret them ably. The Wardress is well played by Miss Violet Cane. As Jenny Crackling Miss Grace Emery is bright and sparkling, and a thorough favourite. Miss Margaret McClellan as Mary Dawson, Marie De Vaune, and 'Orrible Mary sustains the triple part with praiseworthy versatility, passing from one phase to another with remarkable ease. Miss Doris Gilham must be praised highly for her admirable and fascinating rendering of Jess; the swift thoughts that fleet across the woman's mind are well brought out, and her hesitation at continuing her dangerous career, followed quickly by a devil-may-care attitude, are vividly delineated.

EALING THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Historical Drama, by T. N. Walter, entitled
"JANE SHORE."

At the commencement of this historical play we are taken back through centuries to the time of Edward of Rouen, when the White Rose was triumphant and that of Lancaster had long lain in the dust. Some liberties have been taken by the dramatist in writing the book, but in the main the tale runs upon historic lines.

Mr. Frank Stone as the Duke of Gloucester endows the character with all the savage ferocity with which history credits it. Miss Kathleen Russell as the goldsmith's beautiful wife acts and looks the part to perfection, and small is the wonder that she makes havoc in so many hearts. Mr. Wheeler's Edward IV. showed the amorous monarch in one of his softest moods. As William Shore Mr. H. Booth had the full sympathy of the house, while Mr. Bert Morley made a brave and gallant Hastings, Mr. E. Chester won all hearts as stout John Milverton, Mr. N. Tracey brought well to the front the despicable characteristics of Sir William Catesby, and the vein of fun running through the play was well supported by Mr. F. Brunnell as Peter Buckram, Mr. H. C. Morton as Simon Mucklebery, and Miss N. Sheffield. Little Miss F. Arthur was a pert Malbouche, a Court jester; Miss N. Gilmore made a stately lady-in-waiting to the Elizabeth Woodville of Miss H. Vigors, who was successful in showing that her hatred of Jane was not so blind that she could see no virtue in the heart of her rival. The scenery, by Leolyn Hart and Co., was good, and more than one word of commendation is due for the excellent dressing of the play by Mr. L. Benjamin. Well staged and well played, the drama has an unmistakably favourable reception.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE SHOP-SOILED GIRL."

Melville drama again occupies the boards at the Britannia this week, and is proving a big attraction. The many vicissitudes of the "shop-soiled girl" are watched with keen interest by Hoxtonians, whose attention is firmly held throughout. Probably some of the finest passages in the piece occur in the scene between Jessie Browne, the "shop-soiled girl," and Joe Kelly, her faithful Lancashire lover. The former part is undertaken by Miss Georgina Wynter and the latter by Mr. H. E. Herbert. The scenes are well written, and the acting of the respective parts is to be highly commended. The unscrupulous Mark Faulkner is impersonated by Mr. Harvey Braban, and he makes a very capable villain. The rôle of the equally unscrupulous adventuress, Mrs. Philip Thurston, née Flossie Duveen, is undertaken by Miss Winifred Pearson; her acting of the part is so excellent as to call forth more than one oral "plaudit" from an indignant gallery. Miss Gladys Ford-Howitt is very charming and natural as Vera Thurston; and Mr. D. Willis makes a dignified and refined character as Philip Thurston. Mr. C. W. Standing undertakes the part of Jack Duncan, Vera's sweetheart, and acts in a manly and sincere fashion. The comedy element is well looked after by Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Teddy Champion and Miss Beatrice Fairley as Polly Smith. The humour of this excellent duo is indeed quite refreshing. Mr. J. P. Haynes puts in some excellent work in the capacity of Dick Champion, a butler, and Mr. C. Arton as Mr. Jarvis makes a plausible enough manager of the "shop." Mr. Raymond Wood as Detective Dering is very commendable. Mr. John Brooks and Mr. Wiliam Smith make capable inspectors. Miss Carrie Thomas and Miss Dorothy Duncan as shopgirls, and Mr. Harry Wilson and Mr. B. Vernon, all lend valuable assistance. The scenery and dresses are noticeable features in an excellent production.

GRAND, FULHAM.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Play, in Three Acts, entitled
"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH."

Good houses have been drawn to Fulham to see Mr. Gaston Mayer's excellent company in Mrs. Wiggs, and have received it with much favour. The entry of the various eccentric characters in Act I. was marked with ripples of delighted laughter, which, indeed, hardly ever stopped. The rôle of Mrs. Wiggs, that invincible optimist, is capitally played by Miss Lucy Beaumont, who in face and manner is strongly reminiscent of the gifted creator of the part, and proves a worthy successor in the task of portraying a delightful character. Miss Armine Grace is irresistibly quaint as Miss Hazy; and Miss Sybil Brooke and Miss Violet Vivian keep up the characterisation as Miss Elchorn and Mrs. Schultz. Miss Winifred Murray made a charming Lovey Mary; and Miss Ethne O'Brien played brightly as Miss Lucy; while the daughters of the Wiggs family also found fresh and pretty representatives. Mr. Fred Forrest as Mr. Stubbins showed himself a comedian of the first water, and delighted the house. Mr. Ernest Gray did well as Mr. Wiggs; Mr. Robert Neilance was good as Mr. Bob, and Mr. H. G. Wright was amusing as Hunkerdunkus Jones. Mr. Walter Hicks and Mr. Bailey Hick also were efficient as Billy Wiggs and Chris. Hazy; and Mr. Alfred Fisher was good as Deacon Bagsby.

PAVILION THEATRE, E.
On Monday, Oct. 24, the Drama entitled
"CAN A WOMAN BE GOOD?"

The manager of this theatre has put a question to his audience this week in the form of Mr. C. Watson Mill's popular play Can a Woman be Good? and when the curtain falls the audience answers decidedly in the affirmative. The cast is a very strong one, and the scenery is elaborate. Much credit is due to Mr. Harry C. Robinson for the correct interpretation he gives of the callous Herod Steinberg, who can claim to be the worst of all men; as Manuel Errington Mr. Joseph Millane plays with such skill as to win the admiration of the audience; Mr. Ernest St. John is very pathetic as old Jostler Jim; Mr. W. H. Griffiths in his impersonation of Ralph Desmond won much applause; Miss C. R. Tyrrell plays Curley Dabbs in a humorous manner, and receives much assistance from Miss Winifred Barton.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Romantic Play, entitled
"THE PRINCE AND BEGGAR MAID."

This week Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's No. 1 company is here with the last-named gentleman's latest success. Mr. G. Mayor-Cook as Prince Hildred brings stage villainy up to a pitch of excellence. The hunchback brother, Prince Michael, is well placed in Mr. Lionel Gadsden's hands. The other brother, Prince Olaf, has an able exponent in Mr. E. H. G. Cox. The peppery Col. Wellenburg is played to a nicety by Mr. J. Chamberlain, and deeply pathetic and intensely dramatic is the personification of the dumb servant, Nathan, by Mr. Hugh Selwyn. Dignified and impassioned is Mr. Adam Alexander as the Bishop of Illyria. Mr. Fred D. Davies makes the most of the opportunities offered as Captain Hector. As the beggar girl Camolia Miss F. Hale-Daviss acts with great charm. Miss Miriam Pritchett as Princess Monica is a tower of strength, and the comedy is most capably infused into the play by Miss Jessica Black and Mr. C. T. Sandford. The remaining characters are well played by capable artists, and the scenery and dresses, direct from the Lyceum Theatre, are everything that can be desired

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

Lovers and students of Shakespeare in Woolwich are in their element this week, as Mr. F. R. Benson's company (North) is on a welcome return visit here. On Monday evening Hamlet was staged. Other works by the immortal bard produced during the week were: Tuesday, Twelfth Night; Wednesday, The Tempest; Thursday, The Taming of the Shrew; Friday, She Stoops to Conquer (Goldsmith); Saturday, Richard III. Matinées, Wednesday, The Merchant of Venice; and Saturday, A Midsummer Night's Dream. Such a fine répertoire affords an intellectual and educational treat to large numbers of people, and as the company is a powerful one, the visit has proved abundantly successful. Mr. Henry Herbert, the popular provincial favourite, in the leading rôle, contributed a most interesting performance, being ably assisted by Miss Gladys Vanderzee. The remaining parts are in the capable hands of the following well-known and talented artists: Messrs. Jno. Cairns, H. S. Cohen, Andrew Leigh, Jos. O'Dowd, F. J. Richardson, Chas. Warburton, Duncan Yarrow, Horace Braham, Wilfred Fletcher, R. Mortiboy, J. P. Wicksteed, A. G. Legge, E. Pardoe Woodman, Guy Cavandish, Harry Ballantyne, Wilson Tarrant, and H. G. Withers; Misses Dorothea Johnson, Celia Lorraine, Hope Trant, Rosalind Grey, Mollie Lloyd, Sheila Leslie, Olive Everest, and Damaris Kingston. In addition to playing the leading rôles Mr. Henry Herbert is also stage-director of the company, and is responsible for the productions. The tour is under the personal direction of Mr. W. H. Savery. The scenery and dresses are splendid and complete in every detail.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company is once again paying a return visit to this popular house, and meeting with gratifying success. The operas selected for presentation are the old favourites, viz., The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Faust, Maritana, Satanella, Carmen, Lily of Killarney. The veteran tenor seems to grow more juvenile on each visit, and he was in splendid form on the occasions he sang. Then the other artists who support Mr. Turner, notably Mr. F. J. Hargrave, Mr. Tom Griffiths, Mr. Richard Cummings, Mr. Arthur Fisher, Miss Kitty Brownless, Miss Beatrice Hill, Miss Jessie Dennis, Miss Grace Parish, and the ever-popular Miss Sarah Williams received ovations.

On Wednesday evening a capital performance of Carmen was given, Mr. Seth Hughes singing and acting in robust style as Don José. Mr. Tom Griffiths was, as ever, excellent as Escamillo; Miss Kitty Brownless was delightfully naïve as Carmen, and sang the melodious music with feeling. Mercedes was in the hands of clever Miss Jessie Dennis; Mr. M. Le Noir made an excellent impression as Zuniga; Mr. Frank Clarke rendered valuable service as Don Carlo; and Mr. Richard Cummings was very satisfactory as Remendado. Morales was effectively played by Mr. T. Yates; Mr. S. Appleby, Miss Ella Vane, and Miss Stock all aid in the interpretation. The augmented orchestra and the well-drilled chorus deserve a word of praise. Mr. T. Lawton is to be complimented on his efficiency as musical conductor.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.
On Monday, Oct. 31, the Comedy, entitled
"THE WOMAN IN THE CASE."

This intensely powerful play, which rivets the attention from start to finish, has been a strong attraction at the Kingston playhouse this week, and, despite numerous counter attractions, has been "drawing" crowded audiences. The company got together by Mr. Louis Meyer is one of the strongest that have visited Kingston in comedy for some time. Chief honours were accorded to Miss Florence Lloyd, who gives an artistic portrayal of Claire Forster, greatly enhancing the reputation already won by her in Kingston. An equally successful appearance is made by Miss Mabel Trevor, who presents a powerful and most sympathetic picture of the wife, Margaret Rolfe. The part of Julian Rolfe affords Mr. Clayton Green many opportunities of exhibiting his admitted histrionic abilities, and both he and Miss Trevor quickly enlist the sympathies of the audience, and retain them till the end. Admirable work is also put in by Mr. Leonard Pagden, who acts the part of the attorney, Thompson, in finished style. All the subordinate parts are well filled by the Misses Sophie Lingwood, Madge Rossell, Esther Whitehouse, and Grete Hahn, and by Messrs. F. Clive-Rocs, Richard Fielding, Lambert Plummer, Reginald Maurice, and T. Taylor Vinson. All the details in the mounting of the play are above reproach. It is preceded by the comedietta Yes, Papa, by Miss Grete Hahn.

To the uninitiated the initial letters "D.H.A." ("Duty, Hospitality, and Alliance") have little significance; to certain Pressmen they are important as representing the distinctive title of a private club, the majority of whose members are associated with the editorial and business departments of a section of the London Press. Last evening about 300 members and friends of the club assembled at the Frascati Restaurant, where a programme of exceptional interest was provided and keenly appreciated. President Bro. Henri F. Klein, of the Standard, occupied the chair, assisted by the senior vice-president, Bro. John Warburton, of the Daily Graphic, in the vice-chair. Of the artists, the following merit special recognition. Miss Helen Forsyth excelled herself in a vocal effort, enthusiastically received; Miss Lilian Goodson, whose fine contralto voice was impressive in its richness and sympathetic expression; Miss Lilian Barnell, a soprano of distinctive merit; and Miss Steed, a young lady new to the concert platform, possessing a voice of more than ordinary promise. Mr. Edward Beaumont, the well-known baritone, was in great form, and rendered songs, "The harvest dance" and "The Token" with a distinct enunciation and expression and delightfully agreeable. Mr. William Fisher won warm applause after each of his songs, "I mind the day" and "Rossmund." Charles Hughes, ventriloquist, was clever; Archie Naish was a host in himself at the piano; and Frank Powell proved himself a comedian with a rare force of humour, and quaintly original in its interpretation.

"BIRTHRIGHT."

A Play, in Two Acts, by T. C. Murray, Performed for the First Time on any Stage at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, on Thursday, Oct. 27.

Dan Hegarty .....Mr. J. A. O'Rourke
Maura Morrissey .....Miss Eileen O'Doherty
Bat Morrissey .....Mr. Sydney J. Morgan
Frank Harrington .....Mr. J. M. Kerrigan
Shane Morrissey .....Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Hugh Morrissey .....Mr. Fred O'Donovan

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This play is from the pen of Mr. T. C. Murray, of Cork, and is his first work, and it was most successfully handled by the artists of the Abbey Theatre company. Needless to say, the play was enthusiastically received, and the author was doubtless highly pleased at the warm and cordial reception.

The scene is the Interior of an Irish Cottage in West Cork, where we meet the Morrissey family. There are two sons, Hugh, the mother's favourite, of a sensitive character and a high-spirited lad, and his brother, Shane, who was put to the farm. The farm is the birthright of Hugh, and Shane, who has laboured many years to keep the farm going, and has only the prospects of going off to America to work for himself, has a deep resentment against his brother. His father, whose favourite he is, feels with him in this matter. Hugh is successful in everything except farming, in which he shows no interest. He scores in the Feis and in the Gaelic sports, and his high favour with the priest of the parish only jars on the other two men, the mother's admiration for her favourite son only serving to increase the resentment of Shane and the angry scorn of the father. The culmination of these family jealousies occurs very swiftly and tragically. Hugh has great honours at the hurling tournament, but he is fated to be the instrument of disaster to his house, for the cheering crowds who shoulder him home frighten the farmer's mare, which breaks a leg and has to be shot. Shane and the father are highly incensed. Hugh goes out again to a spree to celebrate the match, and returns moody and feverish, after drinking. His father, in a white heat of rage, dispossesses him, and orders him to take up Shane's part and clear off to America. Hugh is in no mood to obey, and when Shane interferes, high words and blows ensue between the brothers. In the end Hugh leaves the house, and the mother, in her deep woe, turns on Shane, and says, "I would see you to the gallows to have back my son." "You mean that?" exclaims Shane, with fierce bitterness, "then it shall be so," and snatching up his gun, he rushes after his brother and murders him.

The individual acting of the artists was very convincing and natural. Mr. Fred O'Donovan gave a splendid study of Hugh, and as Shane Mr. Arthur Sinclair was efficient, Mr. Sydney Morgan submitting a remarkable and powerful reading of the father (Morrissey). Miss Eileen O'Doherty acted with excellent judgment as the mother, Maura Morrissey, and Mr. J. M. Kerrigan as Frank Harrington and Mr. J. A. O'Rourke as Dan Hegarty were both good in their respective parts. The whole production, under the supervision of Mr. S. L. Robinson, was excellent.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 32, Regent-street on Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Present: Mr. Cyril Cattley (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Robson Paige, Basil Dean, Frederick Annerley, Cecil A. Collins, Richard A. Greene, Clarence Derwent, Miss Vita Spencer, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Beatrice Chester, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 25th ult., and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed same.

The chairman read a letter from a member with reference to a complaint made by another member, and the secretary was instructed to file the letters for future reference.

The committee reported progress in the matter of the "coming of age" dinner, to be held at the Criterion on Sunday, Dec. 4, and advised early application for tickets by the members.

The secretary read letters from Miss Winifred Mayo, Mr. T. Baxendale Patterson, Mr. A. Caird, Miss Geraldine Montrose, Miss Clara Nicholls, Mr. William Lestocq, and Sir Edward Moss. With regard to Mr. T. Baxendale Patterson's letter, it was proposed by Mr. Dean, seconded by Mr. Cecil A. Collins, that Mr. Patterson be elected an hon. dental surgeon for Blackpool.

The secretary read a letter from a manager, and was instructed as to reply. The secretary also read a letter from a member with reference to her claim against a manager, and Mr. Mote agreed to write a letter on her behalf.

The hon. solicitor reported on a member's claim with regard to a manager, and advised that action should be deferred. The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Murri Moncrieff and adopted.

Reinstatement.—Kathleen Coleman.

Nominations.—Francis Roberts, John Wells Knight, Gertrude De Lacy, Susie Nainby, Dorothy Radford, and E. Vivian Wilson.

A revival of The Lyons Mail was given at the Assembly Rooms, Balham, on Saturday, by Mr. R. Malcolm Morley and his company. Mr. Morley not only adapted the drama skilfully to the limits of the small stage, but played the dual rôle of Dubosc and Lesurques with much effect. Admirable support was given by the company, and a most enjoyable performance resulted.

"Monarch" mattings for South Africa.—The High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa has accepted the tender of Messrs. John B. Champion and Sons, Reliance Works, Dursley, Glos., the well-known makers of "Monarch" mattings, for the supply of those goods for Government buildings in Natal. This is a repeat order, Messrs. Champion and Sons having been successful in obtaining a similar contract some time ago.

At a meeting held recently at the house of the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, in Dublin, for the purpose of raising a subsidy for the Irish National Theatre, the Lord Chancellor, who presided, read a letter from the Lord Lieutenant wishing the movement every success. Mr. Birrell, the Chief Secretary, said that the Abbey Theatre had vindicated in a high degree its right to a place amongst the intellectual forces of the Western world. He assured them that the universal feeling in England was that the Abbey Theatre, small and humble though it might be, was really a very remarkable product, and one well calculated to cause foreigners and Englishmen to respect Irish genius and character. It had produced a literature. Personally he had gained more of the little insight he had into Irish character from seeing and reading these Irish plays than from any other source or experience to which he had been exposed. Mr. Justice Ross said that when he first went to the Abbey Theatre he went perhaps with a certain prejudice, but before long he became convinced that they had in the movement the nucleus of a very important thing for Ireland. His visits had led him to study Irish literature, and his eyes had been opened a good deal. Perhaps as a Commissioner of National Education he had been against the people wasting their time, as he thought it, in such studies. But he was now convinced that in Gaelic literature they had got a most important asset, and these studies should be encouraged in every shape and form. Many large subscriptions were announced. About £2,170 of the requisite £5,000 has now been subscribed.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At the old Theatre Royal, Leicester, on Monday evening last, was presented for the first time the above drama. In The Ruin of Her Life Mrs. Morton Powell has written just the type of drama of which the stage stands in need. The story is a strong, heart-moving one; it grips the audience the moment the curtain rises, and that grip is never lost till the final tableau, and we leave the theatre feeling that the night has been all too short, and filled with a strong desire to see it all again. It is a drama which will hold the stage for many years, and given a London production it would make the fortunes of manager and authoress.

The play opens in the shop of Mother Blight, who, under the cloak of a dealer in secondhand clothes, plies her more profitable and nefarious trade of training young children for a career of crime. Here we see a number of little ones of tender age being instructed in the art of pocket-picking, safe-opening, shop-lifting, &c. Conspicuous amongst this group is Fairy, a wild wilful waif of the streets, grand-daughter of Mother Blight, who is evidently ripe for anything, from pitch-and-toss to manslaughter, and her companion Alice Macaire, a sort of infant Cinderella, who is kicked and cuffed from pillar to post because of her natural dislike to stealing. Alice is the daughter of Dan Devel Macaire, head of a gang of thieves, and Mary Macaire, his wife, who, we learn, is serving out a sentence of seven years for a robbery of which she was really innocent, the crime having been committed by her husband, Devel, who allows her to suffer in his stead. Ned Wilde, the brother of Mary Macaire, who is on the eve of starting for Australia, arrives in search of his sister, and learning that Mary is in prison, seeing the miserable appearance of the child Alice, he arranges that the little one shall be sent into the country and brought up to an honest life. He leaves £50 for her present needs, and promises to send the same amount every year for the child's maintenance and education. On his departure Devel Macaire enters with news that he has obtained information that Lady Desborough's diamonds valued at £20,000, are to be deposited in the safe of her friend and lawyer, Sir Philip Selwyn, at his private residence on the Thames, preparatory to Sir Philip Selwyn negotiating a loan of £15,000 which Lady Desborough stands in immediate need of. Devel Macaire determines to obtain possession of the diamonds, and arranges to employ his own daughter, Alice, to assist him in the robbery. He is aided in his scheme by Eli Shadwell, a Jew fence, Curly Smiler, a bright young coster lad and Mother Blight. At this moment Mary Macaire enters, having been released on ticket-of-leave. In a powerfully-written and admirably-arranged scene, the character of Mary is revealed to us. She is a woman of noble nature, with all the finer qualities fully developed, but possessing strongly-marked characteristics. At the moment of her return, embittered by five years of unjust imprisonment, all the good in her soul seems to have been twisted and mangled out of shape by the iron bars and prison rules. She went into jail a woman capable of great good; she comes out a wild, desperate creature, ready for anything evil. This scene is a most powerful indictment of the prison code and of the ticket-of-leave system as worked to-day. Nothing stronger or finer than Mrs. Sugden's performance in this scene has been witnessed on the stage for years.

Mary suddenly meets Fairy, who rushes in with a watch she has stolen. Her attention is attracted to the child by her wild ways, and by a peculiar birth-mark on the little one's neck, and she accidentally learns that her own daughter, Alice, whom she believes was being brought up in the country in an honest life, and fitted to fill a respectable position, is being trained for a thief, and is to be employed that night to aid Devel Macaire in the burglary. Mary threatens to denounce Devel and the gang to the police if they attempt the ruin of her child's life. Devel and his companions tie Mary to the counter, and locking the door, leave the place, taking Alice with them to accomplish the robbery at Sir Philip Selwyn's. Mary escapes from the shop and follows them, arriving just at the moment that the child jumps from the bedroom window of Sir Philip Selwyn's with the jewel case in her hands. Mary attempts to save her child, but Devel, seeing he is betrayed, throws the child into the river, and in a struggle with Mary for the revolver she holds is accidentally shot by Mother Blight, who is waiting on the river bank. Devel falls into the river as the Detective Tracy, Sir Philip Selwyn, Lady Desborough, and the guests, aroused by the shots, rush on to the lawn. Mary, believing her child dead, falls fainting to the ground. Tracy is about to arrest her, when Sir Philip, whose life Mary has saved in a previous scene, declares the thief is not Mary, but a child whom he saw jumping from the window.

Ten years elapse between the first and second acts, and when the curtain rises again we quickly learn that Mary Macaire believes the child, Alice, was drowned, and that her husband, Devel, was shot by her hand on the night of the robbery ten years before. Mary, now Lady Selwyn, is suddenly met by Eli Shadwell. He forces her to meet him at Mother Blight's house for the purpose of blackmail. Arriving there, Mary meets Alice (now grown to womanhood), and without knowing who she is, protects her from the blows of Mother Blight, and gives her address to Alice, bidding her come to her if she ever needs a friend. Fairy, seeing a diamond bracelet dropped by Lady Selwyn, steals it, but is induced by Alice to give it into her care, she—Alice—undertaking to return the bracelet to Lady Selwyn. Devel Macaire, who is now known as Captain Broderick Cunningham, enters, disguised as an Italian organ-grinder, he having learnt that Ned Wilde, the brother of Mary, has died in Australia, leaving a fortune of £100,000 to his daughter Alice. Devel believing the child Alice was drowned, decides to pass Fairy off as his daughter, and so obtain the fortune. To this end, in the disguise of a clergyman (Rev. Christopher Good), he goes to the house of Sir Philip Selwyn, who is the London agent of the Australian lawyers. There he meets and recognises in Lady Selwyn his own wife Mary. Fearing she may recognise that Fairy is not her daughter, he employs Eli and Mother Blight to denounce Lady Selwyn before her husband and her guests as a ticket-of-leave woman and a thief. Sir Philip, horrified by the discovery, turns Mary away as Alice, who has brought the bracelet back, offers to Mary the share of her small room; and the act ends with mother and daughter, still ignorant of their relationship, going out into the world together.

In the third act Mary and Alice are living in poverty. Devel, still disguised as Captain Roderick Cunningham, follows and finds Mary, reveals his identity to her, and tells her that her daughter is not dead, and offers to restore the child to her arms if she will consent to claim her and aid him to obtain the fortune of £100,000 left by her brother Ned to Alice. Mary consents, and meets Devel, now disguised as the Rev. Christopher Good, at Sir Philip Selwyn's office. Here he produces Fairy, and attempts to pass her off as the daughter of Mary; but the latter, recognising Fairy by the mark upon the neck, turns the tables upon Devel Macaire by swearing Fairy is not her daughter and denouncing the Rev. Christopher Good as Devel Macaire. Mrs. Charles Sugden in this act treats us to a piece of acting which is nothing short of wonderful. The despair of the mother, who feels no love in her heart for the child they call her daughter, her struggle to take Fairy to her arms, her scorn of Devel, her love and gratitude to Sir Philip, her wild outbursts of grief, despair, hope, and fear, follow one another with lightning-like rapidity. She sways her audience with a magic touch, her acting rising to heights seldom seen in melodrama.

Act 4 discloses the public-house of Bill Buster, an accomplice of Devel Macaire. Here Alice, who has fallen into the hands of Mother Blight and Eli, is kept a prisoner in the cellar. Devel, hunted by the police, now learns that Alice is his own daughter. He takes full advantage of this knowledge, and sending for Mary, in a most powerful scene, reveals to her the fact that Alice is her child, and offers to restore her in return for half the fortune. Mary refuses, and sets out to find her child, aided by Fairy. She comes to the public-house disguised as the Duchess of Bethnal Green, a drunken, debauched wreck of humanity. Here again Mrs. Sugden's marvellous powers were fully revealed. The cough, the slouching gait, the alcoholic, husky voice, were all true to life. It was no stage figure, but an absolute type of London's submerged tenth, which we saw before us. Nothing more striking, vivid, and realistic than this gem of character acting could be imagined. In London it would set the West-End talking. Alice is rescued by her mother as the cellars are flooded and she is being left to drown. The climax of the play, in the fight between Devel Macaire and the soldier lover of Alice, and the raid in the public-house by Detective Tracey and the police, is sensational and natural, and ranks amongst the most realistic ends we have witnessed.

Of the company taking part, of course the greatest amount of work fell to Mrs. Charles Sugden, an actress of unquestionable ability, her marvellous emotional powers, whether of love, hate, despair, or revenge, being brought out to the full in the triple parts of Mary Macaire, Lady Selwyn, and the Duchess. She achieved a most gratifying success. As the villain, Dan Devel Macaire, with many aliases, Mr. F. Pennington-Gush was seen at his very best, and that is sufficient praise for an actor of his recognised histrionic abilities. Miss Mary Vane as Alice is also deserving of the highest eulogium, her acting being especially noteworthy. Mr. Sam Roberts as Eli Shadwell, Mr. Johnny Leoni as Curly Smiler, and Miss Kitty Rose as Fairy, each did excellent service in the lighter parts towards the general success. Mr. Arthur Keand as James Tracy, the detective, was very good; and Mr. Henry C. Ward as Sir Philip Selwyn and Mr. J. E. Stevenson as Harry Heather should also be specially praised for the capital style in which they fulfilled their respective parts. Miss Constance Groves as Mother Blight did well, the same remark also applying to Mr. Charles Coventry as Ned Wilde. Two clever little child actresses were also seen in Little Doris Denville and Little Florence Maye. The other parts of the cast were also capably presented.

On Saturday next, at 3 p.m., Mr. Harold Bauer will give a pianoforte recital at the Crystal Palace, and will be assisted by Miss Eva Ross, the Australian vocalist. Harold Bauer hails from New Malden, and was born in 1675. At the early age of twelve he showed remarkable talent, and, although it was at first intended that the youthful Bauer should become a violinist, he himself finally decided to devote his gifts to the pianoforte, and, at the persuasion of Paderewski, who was profoundly impressed by Bauer's playing, he went to Paris to complete his studies. Here his life's chance occurred. While playing at a small Parisian soirée, a famous Russian singer, hearing him, gave him the offer of a tour as her pianist. Bauer accepted, and the enterprise was crowned with success. Ultimately Lamoureux, the well-known conductor, sent for him, with such satisfactory results that Bauer's career as a pianist was definitely settled.

WHITEHALL, EAST GRINSTEAD.

A UNIQUE BUILDING.

The residents of the delightfully located Sussex town, East Grinstead, and dwellers in the near neighbourhood should be very grateful to Messrs. Letheby and Christopher, the well-known caterers, to whose enterprise is due the Whitehall, a building which is certainly a valuable asset to the district, and one possibly unique in its way. For this perfectly-equipped and beautifully-appointed house may be utilised either as a theatre capable of comfortably staging any ordinary London production, a skating rink, or a picture palace, and a wonderful transformation can be effected in a very short time.

This was demonstrated at the private view given by Messrs. Letheby and Christopher to a few friends and a party of the Press on Tuesday evening. The company were conducted all over the building and the handsome adjoining suite of rooms—including the handsome ball-room, with its magnificent patent oak parquet flooring, the exquisitely decorated and furnished drawing-room lounge, the artistic Japanese lounge, and many other apartments which cannot here be described in detail—by Mr. Christopher, the hall being then in perfect readiness for a theatrical performance. In less than two hours, on being revisited, the solid, built-up proscenium-walls, stage, chairs, &c., had vanished; everything had, in fact, been cleared away, and the whole area of rock maple flooring was available for the revellers on rollers. Thus it will be possible to give rinking sessions in the early part of the day and theatrical shows at night, or vice-versâ. Mr. Cecil Barth, the well-known manager, has undertaken the bookings, and promises some special attractions in the near future. Flying matinées with "stars," and high-class concert parties, it is hoped, will frequently visit the Whitehall, and the proprietors and all concerned have certainly done all in their power to ensure success. The opening night of the theatre is fixed for Wednesday, Nov. 9, when Miss Agnes Nicholls and her concert party will provide the entertainment.

Amongst those present at the enjoyable little function of Tuesday may be mentioned Mr. Christopher, Mr. Letheby, Mr. Cecil Barth (the Managers' Club), Mr. Frank J. Arlton (the Actors' Association), Mr. H. E. Mathews, the architect, Mr. W. Drury, Dr. Stewart, Col. Wyndham, Mr. Whitley Hughes, and Mr. Hills. The little party sat down to an exquisitely-served dinner in the dining-room of the Grosvenor Restaurant soon after six, at the conclusion of which Mr. Christopher, in a capital little speech, expressed his gratitude to the gentlemen who had helped him to accomplish what he ventured to hope would be a success — Mr. Mathews, the architect; Mr. Frank J. Arlton, who was responsible for the admirably-planned stage, proscenium, &c.; and Mr. Cecil Barth, who would look after the booking. All these gentlemen briefly replied. The health of Mr. Christopher and prosperity to his enterprise was proposed by Mr. Hills, of the East Grinstead Observer, in a few pithy remarks; and the toast was honoured with enthusiasm. The festive little party then adjourned to the rinking hall, the more venturesome donning the "rollers," and some unique "exhibition" figures were executed. The London and Brighton visitors had to leave just as the fun was starting, much to their regret. The following are a few particulars of the building:—

The hall occupies a position adjacent to the Grosvenor Restaurant and Ball Rooms, which are situated in the centre of the town, also owned and occupied by Messrs. Letheby and Christopher. The hall has been erected in the Georgian style of architecture, and has a length of 95ft., a width of 58ft., and a height to top of lantern of 32ft. A very comfortable seating capacity is afforded for about 800 people, and represents a house of about £120 at 5s., 3s., 2s., and 1s. prices.

The object the proprietors had in view was the provision of a large hall for public meetings, entertainments, concerts, skating rink, and a fully-equipped stage for dramatic performances, to meet the requirements of the population of nearly 40,000 in the East Grinstead district. Exits have been made at each of the four corners of the building, and provided with fireproof staircases.

When the Whitehall is arranged for stage plays every convenience for the audience has been considered. The orchestra stalls and private boxes are approached through the main entrance to the Grosvenor Hall, with its glass awning extending to the roadway, the floor is beautifully carpeted, and the tip-up seats are luxuriously furnished in red velvet. The stalls are comfortably cushioned, and the occupants sit about 3in. higher than in the orchestra stalls. The unreserved seats are again raised some 2in., and all comers have, therefore, an excellent view right up the well-raised and sloping stage. Good cloak-rooms are also provided.

Coming to the stage part of the building, there is a full equipment for any London company. The working stage measures 50ft. wide by 25ft. from front to back, and from the stage level the roof is placed at a height of 46ft., giving ample space for the flies, grid, ropes, tackle, and all the usual fittings which are essential in any well-arranged theatre. The height to grid is 40ft., height to fly floors 19ft., width between fly rails 32ft.

The proscenium opening is 25ft. by 15ft. 6in., and has for an act drop a reproduction of W. L. Leitch's celebrated picture, "The Church of Santa Maria della Salute, Venice," specially painted by Mr. Walter Drury, of Brighton. On the stage, as in the auditorium, personal safety and convenience have been provided for by two fireproof staircases, and there is capital dressing-room accommodation.

Coming now to the all-important matters of heating, lighting, and ventilation, these have been carried out in the best and most up-to-date manner. The heating is by radiators, and ample provision has been made for thorough ventilation. The building is electrically lighted by current produced by the proprietors' own plant. The hall is mainly lighted by lamps concealed from view on the top of the main cornice and two electroliers, which give a beautifully soft and restful illumination. The lighting of the stage is complete, including footlights, battens, side lengths, and arc-lights. By the use of the Watkins switch all these can be dimmed to any required degree.

The modern craze for living pictures has not been overlooked, and the proprietors, having purchased the latest type of Bioscope machine, have arranged to give exhibitions similar to those in the principal London theatres of the latest and most up-to-date pictures on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays in each week twice nightly.

When the theatre is transformed into a skating rink it is difficult to realise that it is the same building. By a carefully thought out plan the whole of the stage is made collapsible, and all the parts are stored away in a comparatively small compass. The curtains, borders, and other stage fittings are drawn up bodily into the huge space above the stage. The proscenium walls are rolled back against the sides of the building, and the whole of the floor area is available for skating. This has been laid with the orthodox rock maple, and provides the finest possible rinking surface. A revolving notice board at one end of the rink indicates the order of skating. By festoons of small electric lamps, the mode of lighting for the rink is entirely different from that to be used for theatrical performances or concerts, and by the introduction of coloured lamps a very bright and charming effect is obtained.

The various work has been carried out by the following firms:—Stage fittings, Mr. Sheldon, of Daly's Theatre; the curtain and the stage decorations, Mr. Walter Drury, of Brighton; seating and furnishing, Messrs. A. R. Dean and Co., of Birmingham; daylight exclusion blinds for matinée performances, Mr. T. Facer, of East Grinstead; electrical installation, Messrs. A. and C. Bridgland, Ltd., of East Grinstead; stage lighting, Mr. Hunt, of Daly's Theatre, London; electrical dimmers, by the Watkin Switch Co., London; Bioscope machine and fittings, Messrs. Hepworth, London; general contractors, Messrs. C. and H. Rice, of East Grinstead.

The whole of the works have been carried out from the designs and under the personal superintendence of Mr. H. Edmund Mathews, F.R.I.B.A., of the firm of Messrs. J. Douglass Mathews and Son, of London and East Grinstead, and the stage, proscenium, &c., has been specially designed and planned by Mr. Frank J. Arlton, of the Actors' Association and the principal London theatres, both of whom are to be heartily congratulated on the thoroughness of their work. Messrs. Letheby and Christopher have spared no expense in any department, and their bold venture certainly deserves to flourish.

INTERIOR OF THE WHITEHALL THEATRE, EAST GRINSTEAD.

To mark the completion of his twenty-five years as manager of the Comédie Française, M. Jules Claretie was on Monday entertained to luncheon by seventy authors, whose works have been produced at the French National Theatre during that period.

BEFORE a good gathering of members of the English Association, presided over by Professor de Selincourt, at the Birmingham University, on Wednesday evening, Mr. Drinkwater read an interesting paper on "The Presentation of Shakespeare on the Modern Stage." Much of the paper was devoted to the difficult problem of scenery or no scenery, and Mr. Drinkwater said that to his mind scenery was unnecessary on the ground of verisimilitude, for, after all, did it matter whether Puck and Oberon walked in a wood in Warwickshire or near Athens? On the whole, the vagaries of the scenic artist were many; either he overdressed the play or made it unconvincing. He thought the use of curtains a much more satisfactory setting for the dramas of Shakespeare.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

On Thursday, Oct. 27, Mozart's "DON GIOVANNI."

Don Giovanni ..... SIGNOR DE LUCA
Donna Anna ..... MME. GLEESON-WHITE
Il Commendatore ..... MR. ROBERT RADFORD
Don Ottavio ..... MR. WALTER HYDE
Donna Elvira ..... MISS PERCEVAL ALLEN
Zerlina ..... MISS RUTH VINCENT
Leporello ..... MR. MURRAY DAVEY
Masetto ..... MR. ARTHUR WINN

Mozart's Don Giovanni was revived at Covent Garden on Thursday night, Oct. 27, and the performance, if not ideal, was certainly interesting. One welcome feature was an English cast, with only a single exception, Signor de Luca—who on Tuesday night gave such a striking performance of the Jester in Rigoletto—impersonated the Don with considerable success as regards the music, although he was somewhat lacking in courtly bearing. Miss Ruth Vincent made a charming Zerlina, and sang Mozart's music with delightful finish and purity of tone. Mr. Murray Davey appeared as Leporello, and if he was not so entirely vivacious in his acting as some Italian exponents of this part, the music was admirably sung. Mr. Walter Hyde made Don Ottavio vocally effective, and an excellent Il Commendatore was found in Mr. Robert Radford. Mme. Gleeson-White and Miss Perceval Allen gave an interesting performance of Donna Anna, and Donna Elvira and the rustic humours of Masetto were ably undertaken by Mr. Arthur Wynn. The opera on Thursday night did not end with the disappearance of Don Giovanni and the statue, as the principal characters sang the sextet Mozart wrote for the finale. The opera was handsomely mounted, and the orchestra, under Mr. Thomas Beecham, gave a spirited account of the score.

Le Nozze di Figaro was given by Mr. Beecham's company on Saturday evening. Mme. Elizabeth Amsden as the gentle Countess sang delightfully, and Miss Maggie Teyte again made an excellent Cherubino and so pleased the audience that one of her airs had to be repeated. The Count's part does not entirely suit Mr. Clarence Whitehill, but he sang the music finely. Messrs. Lewys James, Robert Radford, Byndon Ayres, and Arthur Wynn repeated former successes, and the Misses Carrie Tubb, La Palme, and Betty Booker were thoroughly efficient. Mr. Thomas Beecham conducted, and the principal artists were frequently called on.

Faust was produced for the first time this season at Covent Garden on Tuesday night, Miss Maggie Teyte undertaking the rôle of Margherita, a part in which the talented young artist has not been heard before. As regards youth and a charming presence, Miss Teyte was an ideal heroine for Gounod's opera, and the music was always sung with delightful purity of tone and finish, her artistic rendering of the "Jewel Song" creating a most favourable impression. In the more dramatic scenes Miss Teyte naturally was less effective, for this exacting part requires a prima donna who, while looking a young girl, has at the same time mature operatic experience. Signor Bendinelli as Faust sang well, but his voice sounded somewhat light for the part, and in appearance he hardly realised Margherita's youthful lover. Mr. Murray Davey's Mephistopheles, if not very sardonic, was vocally excellent, and Signor de Luca gave a striking performance of Valentine. Miss Edna Thornton was successful as Marta, and Miss Lena Maitland a graceful Siebel. Signor Camilieri conducted.

Hänsel and Gretal was performed at Covent Garden on Wednesday afternoon, and as the delicate charm of the forest music in Humperdinck's fairy opera appeals to all musicians, the inclusion of this work in Mr. Thomas Beecham's comprehensive répertoire is very welcome. Although Covent Garden is somewhat large for such a dainty little opera, its fine stage greatly adds to the picturesque effect of the forest scenes. The performance on Wednesday afternoon was excellent. Miss Muriel Terry and Miss Ruth Vincent as the two children acted and sang charmingly; while Mr. Harry Dearth and Miss Lena Maitland as the father and mother acted with great spirit. The rest of the cast worked well in securing admirable results, for the other characters and the orchestra (under Mr. Cuthbert Hawley) did justice to Humperdinck's delightful score.

MESSRS. RAPHAEL TUCK AND SONS have published a new edition of "Alice in Wonderland," with illustrations by Mabel Lucie Attwell. The text is printed in the large clear type beloved of juveniles, and the illustrations are quite in harmony with the spirit of Lewis Carroll's work. There are twelve coloured plates, and any number of outline sketches are embedded in the text. A great claim of Miss Attwell's designs is their bold and simple style, so well suited to the mind of childhood. The book will be a most attractive present in many a family this Christmas.

MESSRS. RAPHAEL TUCK AND SONS.—Messrs. Raphael Tuck and Sons have made their usual yearly output of Christmas and New Year cards, calendars, toy books, and varied art novelties connected with the season. The novelties in Christmas and New Year cards include over 4,000 new designs. The famous "Autograph Christmas Stationery" is packed in 300 separate boxes, ranging from 6d. to 3s. the complete set, and of the immensely successful "Card Wallets" there are over forty new varieties. A delightful set of cards is the "Lucky Charm" series. The charms are attached to specially designed cards by a silken ribbon, and are easily removed. There are many other new and attractive lines. Their Majesties the King and Queen, Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, their Imperial Majesties the German Emperor and Empress, and their Majesties the Kings and Queens of Spain and Italy, have graciously allowed the firm to reproduce the Royal Christmas cards, the demand for which is extending year by year. A choice series of 1,000 new designs for Christmas postcards appeals to every sort of taste; and the picture postcards have the usual qualities of novelty, beauty, and high artistic finish. The collection of books and toy books is most attractive. "Crystal Thoughts from the Poets"—six charmingly dainty miniature volumes, containing selections from Shakespeare, Tennyson, Burns, and Robert Browning—are included in the collection of birthday books; and Father Tuck's "Annual" is this year more sumptuous and entertaining than ever, the old and favourite fairy tales appearing in new and brilliant dresses. A remarkable series of natural history books in the "Midget" series has been added, and in the "Picture Building" series many new and delightful subjects have been introduced. The calico and untearable books and the painting books, including the highly popular "Patent Paintbox" series, are more numerous and pleasing than ever. The calendars are of astonishing quality and quantity, beautiful ideas being beautifully carried out in upwards of four hundred designs; and Messrs. Tuck and Sons have judiciously increased the number of their engagement calendars. The block calendars are better than ever, the designs by such gifted artists as John H. Bacon, A.R.A., A. Dixon, and Harold Copping being excellent. The art and toy novelties include zag-zaws, Royal picture puzzles, picture puzzle postcards, and a remarkable series of walking animals, the last named being one of the most popular juvenile items ever issued by the firm, whose productions seem to increase and improve every year.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE has decided, to meet the continually increasing demand, to give five extra matinées of King Henry VIII. during the Christmas holidays. The first will be on Boxing Day, Monday, Dec. 26, and the others will be on the Thursdays in January, viz., the 5th, 12th, 19th, and 26th of that month. The ordinary matinées on Wednesdays and Saturdays will continue as usual throughout the run.

SIR JOHN HARE writes to contradict a statement to the effect that he will visit America professionally in the spring. The report, which has caused Sir John much inconvenience, is entirely without foundation.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY opened the carnival at the Hall of St. Francis Xavier's, Upper Sherrard-street, Dublin, on the 27th ult. Father Cullen, in introducing Mr. Harvey, said, from all he had heard of Mr. Harvey and of his high aspirations, he made great efforts wherever he went to purify the stage. They welcomed men like Mr. Harvey, who set themselves to lift the stage up to the high level which they all believed it should enjoy.

MR. HARVEY, who was very cordially received on rising to declare the carnival open, said that on one occasion an Aberdeen doctor was interested in a bazaar, and his daughters, who had often been to the theatre, suggested that the doctor should ask him (Mr. Harvey) to open the bazaar. It seemed repugnant to the Aberdeen doctor to invite an actor to open his fête, but eventually he surrendered to his daughter's wishes. The doctor received him (Mr. Harvey) on the opening day, and seemed to be trying to keep the good side of his nature out, when suddenly he burst forth, "Aye, mon, it's jist wonderful to wha' depths a mon will sink to raise money." It was a real pleasure, continued Mr. Harvey, to come to open the Pioneer Carnival, although night after night he was appearing as Sydney Carton, the poor fellow who was always down to the cup. However, he felt in presenting that play that he was holding up the awful example of the unfortunate Sydney; "and if I may say so," said Mr. Harvey, with a smile, "without appearing in the guise of the man who wants to push his own wares, I would say that there is no better temperance lecture you could attend than see a performance of The Only Way." Mr. and Mrs. Harvey and a number of patrons of the carnival then attended an interesting concert in the Café Chantant.

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON will play the leading part in Just to Get Married, a comedy in three acts, which she will present at the Little Theatre on Tuesday. The remainder of the cast will consist of Misses Dora Earton, Margaret Watson, Phyllis Embury, Everard Vanderlip, and Rosina Filippi, and Messrs. Thomas Sidney, Godfrey Tearle, A. C. Fotheringham Lysons, and Arthur Fayne. In The Merciful Soul, a play in one act, which follows, the characters will be undertaken by Misses Violet Bucalossi, Isabel Merson, Christine Jenson, and Dorothy Minto; and Messrs. Guy B. Rathbone, James Gelderd, A. E. Filmer, and Cavendish Morton.

"JUST TO GET MARRIED" is a modern comedy, in three acts, the story being unfolded in a quiet country atmosphere somewhat reminiscent of Trollope's novel, "Dr Thorne." The plot concerns a spinster of thirty, who ever since she came out has been intent, unsuccessfully, on getting married. In this she has been ably assisted by her aunt, the wife of an old squire, the family leading a somewhat humdrum existence. All the household are very interested in this chase of a husband except the desired bridegroom, who is so indifferent that he thinks it better to make a bad marriage than never to marry at all. The first two acts are exact reproductions of the interior of a well-known house in the Shires, and the managerees has made a special effort to represent in the costumes, male and female, the dresses seen in an out-of-the-way country village. The Merciful Soul can hardly be described as a new piece, as it has already been played in four languages throughout Europe, but never in Great Britain. The characters live in an ideal country, in the age of chivalry.

SIR JOHN HARE, Mr. Hall Caine, and Mr. W. W. Jacobs were present at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the "Charles Dickens Testimonial," held on Monday under the chairmanship of the Lord Chief Justice. The chairman having consented to act as trustee, the names of three others were proposed and unanimously chosen, namely, the Earl of Rosebery, Sir Charles Mathews, and the Hon. H. W. Lawson, M.P. It was agreed that the definite object of the stamp issued by the committee should be "for the purpose of raising a fund for the benefit of the descendants of Charles Dickens, and, should the proceeds permit, of in other ways commemorating his memory."

AT the matinée organised by the Actresses' Franchise League and the Women Writers' Suffrage League at the Aldwych on the 18th inst., Miss Gertie Millar, Miss Evie Greene, Miss Lily Brayton, and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy will appear, and in Miss Cicely Hamilton's "Pageant of Great Women," produced by Miss Edith Craig, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Gertrude Kingston, Miss Lillah McCarthy, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Fanny Brough, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Decima Moore, Mr. Henry Ainley, Lady Constance Lytton, and Mrs. Despard will take part. Two new plays are to be produced, namely, Stuffing, by George Paston, played by Mr. Arthur Chesney, Miss Clara Greet, Miss Agnes Thomas, and Miss Sydney Fairbrother, and a new piece by Miss Cicely Hamilton, in which Miss Marion Terry will appear.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES will reopen the renovated Adelphi this evening, when he will produce the new musical play, The Quaker Girl, written by James T. Tanner, with lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, music by Lionel Monckton. In the cast are Messrs. Hayden Coffin, James Blakeley, Herbert Ross, and Joseph Coyne, Miss Gracie Leigh, Miss Elsie Spain, Miss Phyllis Le Grand, Mlle. Caumont, and Miss Gertie Millar. The stage production is by J. A. E. Malone. The curtain will rise at eight precisely.

THE usual monthly meeting of the directors of the Royal General Theatrical Fund was held at their offices at Savoy House, 115-116, Strand, London, on Tuesday last, when the chair was occupied by Mr. A. B. Tapping. Mr. Charles Cruickshanks, the secretary, announced the receipt of a letter from Mr. George Alexander, stating he should be happy to accept the invitation to take the chair at the sixty-sixth festival to be held in the early part of next year. It was unanimously agreed that Mr. George Alexander be cordially thanked for his kindness in undertaking the duties of presiding on the occasion. The suggested new rules were again dealt with, and after a lengthy discussion, in which the honorary actuary gave valuable advice and assistance, the further consideration of the matter was adjourned to a future date.

MR. LYN HARDING has arranged to resume his masterly characterisation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's play, The Speckled Band, at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on Monday. He will play the part at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Nov. 14, and at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, on Nov. 21.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and Mr. Percy Hutchison's Don company will make its first suburban appearance next week. On Monday, at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, it will present Mr. Rudolf Besier's famous comedy. The company, which includes Miss Emma Hutchison, Mr. Charles Harley, and Mr. Gordon Bailey, has had a most successful provincial tour, the play being received with great enthusiasm in every town visited, and the players having to take repeated calls after each act.

MR. EDWARD TERRY'S provincial tour will conclude at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, on Dec. 10. Four days afterwards, on Dec. 15, he sails with his company in the Tunisian for his Canadian tour (under the auspices of Messrs. Liebler and Co.), opening at Halifax, Nova Scotia, on Dec. 26. During the tour the eminent comedian will visit Montreal, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Vancouver, &c. His répertoire will consist of The Toymaker of Nuremburg (by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman), Sweet Lavender, Liberty Hall, The Magistrate, and Fiander's Widow. Mr. Terry will return to England in ample time for his annual provincial tour in the autumn.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER sailed for New York on Saturday by the Mauretania to produce at Montreal, on the 28th inst., a piece by himself and Mr. Lechmere Worrall, entitled Daddy Dufard. In this Mr. Chevalier will himself play Achille Talma Dufard, the anxious father in The First Night, whom the authors have made the central figure in a four-act play. Mr. Chevalier has already appeared in the character at the Coliseum. Daddy Dufard will eventually be seen in New York.

THE date for the unveiling of the statue of the late Sir Henry Irving, to be erected in the Charing Cross-road, will very shortly be fixed, and the directors of the Royal General Theatrical Fund have placed their offices in Savoy House, 115-116, Strand, at the disposal of Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, who is the secretary of the Memorial Committee, for the work in connection with the ceremony. All communications on the subject should be forwarded to Mr. Cruikshanks at that address.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH has lent the Haymarket for two matinées on Thursday and Friday, the 24th and 25th inst., in aid of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre. Mr. J. M. Barrie's A Slice of Life, The Kiss, by George Paston, Stuffing, by the same writer, and The Dark Lady of the Sonnets, by Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, will constitute the programme.

THE recent retirement of Dr. W. H. Cummings, the veteran principal of the Guildhall School of Music, recalls the fact that it was during his régime the theatre was added to the building. Amongst the dramatic pupils who, on leaving their alma mater, have distinguished themselves are Miss Constance Hyem, who is playing in Koffo, of Bond Street, at the Palace, and Miss Ethel Cadman, leading lady of Mr. Frohman's New York Arcadians company, while Mr. Bassett Roe and Miss Kate Rorke, professors at the Guildhall, are appearing respectively in The Speckled Band on tour and The Toymaker of Nuremberg with marked success.

MR. AND MRS. H. B. IRVING showed their sympathy with the work which the Rector of Saltley is doing by attending a drawing-room meeting held at the Cathedral Church Rectory, Birmingham, on Wednesday, and giving recitals. The object of the function, which attracted a numerous attendance, was to raise money on behalf of the Saltley Church Rooms and gymnasium fund, connected with which £100 remained to be obtained. The audience, which included Lord Norton and Sir Oliver and Lady Lodge, gave a cordial reception to Mr. and Mrs. Irving. The programme commenced with "Gemini and Virgo," by Calverley, recited by Mr. Irving with a happy ease and admirable realisation of the humour of his subject. Subsequently he gave a rendition of W. S. Gilbert's "Etiquette." In responding to the plaudits of his hearers, Mr. Irving said he was glad to have done anything he could to help his friend Father Adderley. Mrs. Irving also recited with marked grace and expression her contribution, "High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire," adding much to the enjoyment of a keenly interested audience. Miss Boughton sang successfully, and during the proceedings some short speeches were delivered.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN'S company, with Miss Gladys Unger's translation of De Flers and De Caillavet's comedy Le Bois Sacré, entitled Decorating Clementine, will leave New York on Wednesday for London, where the piece will be produced at the Globe Theatre, replacing A Woman's Way, which will be transferred to the Comedy. In Decorating Clementine Mr. G. P. Huntley will sustain the part in which he has made such a success in New York.

MR. HARRY NICHOLLS, who has been engaged by Messrs. Liebler and Co. to appear in Marriage à la Carte in New York in December, will leave Southampton to-morrow by the Amerika (Hamburg and America Line).

MR. ARTHUR HARDY will produce next Thursday at the Comedy Theatre Mr. F. Anstey's version of his own novel, Vice Versâ, described as a "farcical fantastic play," in three acts, with a cast including Mr. Fred Volpe, Mr. Spencer Trevor, Miss Agnes Glynne, Mr. C. M. Lowne, Mr. Arthur Playfair, Miss Phyllis Embury, Mr. Leveson Lane, Mr. Brian Egerton, Mr. W. Briscoe-Owen, Master Bobbie Andrews, Master Philip Tonge, Master Joseph Victor, Master F. Thorndike, Master Jack Hobbs, Master Sidney Sherwood, Mr. Clifford Brooke, Miss May Taverner, Miss Jean Bloomfield, Miss Marjorie Dane, and Master Burford Hampden.

MR. VEDRENNE has arranged with Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow to tour Cosmo Hamilton's successful military play, Mrs. Skeffington, founded on his novel of the same title. Great things are expected of Mrs. Skeffington in the provinces. This play, which has such a delightful military setting, will certainly appeal to all theatregoers. A special company rehearsed by the author will start on tour early in January.

MISS PAULINE CHASE has had a sad bereavement in the death of her mother, which recently took place in America, where Miss Chase is now playing Mary in Our Miss Gibbs.

MR. FRANK STANMORE'S Chasing Cynthia is playing to extraordinary business everywhere. So great is the desire on the part of managers to secure this remarkable attraction that the advertisement in last Saturday's Era notifying Nov. 14 to be the only date vacant brought no fewer than nineteen offers by letter and telegram. M. Rouband, who is running French matinées on the South Coast witnessed the piece at the Gaiety, Hastings, and was so enthusiastic about it that he has entered into negotiations with Mr. Stanmore to send a company next April to the Continent for two months. The effect of the performance at the Garrison Theatre, Tidworth, on Monday night was seen in the issue of a special brigade order to all messes requesting them to support so excellent a show by attending in full force.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY concludes to-night a particularly successful visit to the Theatre Royal, Manchester, where he has appeared in The Breed of the Treshams, The Only Way, and Richard III. Mr. Harvey figured in a new rôle on Sunday evening, when, habited in a surplice, he read the lessons at St. Ann's Church, Manchester, at the annual services of the Actors' Church Union.

THE preacher was the Rev. A. J. Waldron, of Brixton, who, in referring to the fact that in former days it was thought a Christian could not attend the theatre, mentioned that he was brought up in such an atmosphere. "My father and mother," he said, "believed sincerely that the place nearest hell was the theatre. When about fourteen, I went—though I told a lie about it—and to my surprise I thought the theatre was more like heaven than anything I had read or heard about in my life."

ON Tuesday afternoon Mr. Harvey delivered, in the presence of a large audience, his lecture on the subject of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre project. On Monday, Mr. Martin Harvey will reappear, after a long absence, in Cardiff at the New Theatre, when the programme will comprise The Only Way, A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, Rouget de L'Isle, and Richard III.

MR. T. LANGTON LANE, who was manager for Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's recent tour of The Mummy and the Humming Bird, is, we are glad to be able to state, now completely restored to health, after a long and painful illness, following upon an operation on the throat.

"THE MELLSTOCK QUIRE," a Wessex comedy in four acts, adapted by A. H. Evans from Thomas Hardy's Under the Greenwood Tree, will be presented by the Dorchester Debating and Dramatic Society at the local Corn Exchange on the evening of Wednesday, Nov. 16.

MR. ALFRED GRAY was taken suddenly ill at Greenock on Monday, and reluctantly had to relinquish his professional duties. His friends wish him speedy recovery, and trust he will very soon be enabled to resume work.

MR. HORACE LINGARD'S company, with The New Lady Bantock is meeting with every success through Scotland, receiving great praise from the press of each city visited. Miss Beatrice Moreau is creating a marked impression by her admirable performance of Fanny.

MR. FRANK ADAIR'S new play, It's Always the Woman (originally produced at the Shakespeare, Clapham, on June 20), will commence its provincial tour at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, on Nov. 7, with nearly all the original cast. The piece is booked up to October, 1911 (forty weeks) with only one vacant date.

MISS RENEE DE L'ESTRADE has been engaged by Mr. Auguste van Biene to play the part of Mabel, in The Broken Melody at Christmas.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN will pay a return visit to the Crystal Palace Theatre next week with Lord and Lady Algy. By special request David Garrick will be played on Friday and Saturday evenings. Mr. Norman will be supported by Miss Beatrice Wilson and a strong company.

COUNTESS ARNIM'S successful comedy Priscilla Runs Away will be performed at the Haymarket Theatre for the 150th time on Wednesday. The play shows no sign of waning popularity. The rights of translation into Russian, German, French, and Italian have been secured.

MISS DORA BRIGHT, whose dainty little pieces The Dryad and The Faun have been produced with such success at the Empire, has written a dance play, entitled The Portrait, which Mr. Chas. Hawtrey will produce at the Prince of Wales Theatre at a special matinée on Thursday, the 24th inst., subsequently placing it in the evening bill as a prelude to Inconstant George.

MISS KATHLEEN CLIFFORD, the clever child actress, late of Edmund Tearle's company and Mr. Gaston Mayer's Mrs. Wiggs company, has been specially engaged by Mr. Alfred Wareing, of the Scottish Repertory Theatre, for two seasons at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow.

MR. D. LEWIN-MANNERING will tour early next spring an original romantic drama, specially written for him by Mr. C. Watson Mill, entitled A Prince of Pleasure. Mr. Mannering will himself play the title-rôle, which is a very striking one, and he is also engaging a very fine cast. The play will be toured on a large scale, with new and elaborate scenery, uniforms, and dresses.

A FIRST performance (for copyright purposes) of a new musical play, entitled The Golliwog, was given at Ladbroke Hall on Wednesday. The book and the lyrics are from the pen of Mr. Edward Cadman, and Mr. J. Grcebe is responsible for the music.

MR. HENRY DEAS, who is leading man with Miss Annie Hughes, concludes to-night in a successful tour of Jerome K. Jerome's play, Miss Tommy, in which he played Dick Danvers, and opens on Monday at the Pavilion, Glasgow, as Napoleon in Miss Hughes's well-known Sans-Gêne sketch.

THE Opera House, Southport, receives week after week visits from all the latest London successes booked by Mr. Percy Hutchison, who controls this beautiful theatre. Mr. F. R. Benson is there this week, and the advance booking for the original London company of The Blue Bird (although it is not due at the Opera House until Nov. 21) is close on £100.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT writes:—"I yield to no one in admiration of Charles Dickens, in love of his labours; but I cannot help asking myself if it is proper to forget, or to ignore, words which were written with his own hand at a solemn time: 'I conjure my friends on no account to make me the subject of any monument, memorial, or testimonial whatever. I rest my claims to the remembrance of my country upon my published works, and to the remembrance of my friends upon their experience of me in addition thereto.'"

MISS MARIE DAINTON has had a number of tempting offers lately—one to appear at the Repertory Theatre, Glasgow, in a special fairy play at Christmas, one from Mr. John Hart for pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, one for principal girl at the Stratford Theatre, and a fourth from a Christmas play to be produced in the West End. Those who think of Miss Dainton as a soubrette will be surprised at the voice she has developed, and a well-known opera entrepreneur recently approached her with a view to an engagement.

MR. STANISLAUS STANGE, the English librettist of The Chocolate Soldier, who was struck down by serious illness during one of the final rehearsals of that notable comic opera, has, we learn with pleasure, sufficiently recovered to witness a performance of the piece at the Lyric. His complete restoration to health is now so well assured that his doctors sanction his sailing on Nov. 16 for the United States, in three of whose principal cities The Chocolate Soldier is playing to large and enthusiastic audiences. Meantime, overflowing houses and record advance sales are to be chronicled.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON'S visit to York last week with Brewster's Millions was a most successful one. This play, having such a far-reaching reputation for its attractiveness and enormous popularity, consequently received the patronage of many county families during this visit. On Thursday evening the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, also the Lord Mayor-elect and members of the Corporation, were present. The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress personally congratulated Mr. Hutchison on his performance as Monty Brewster, also expressing great admiration for the wonderful yacht scene and the realistic electrical effects, which was endorsed by the members of the Town Council, who were also present and chatted to Mr. Hutchison in his dressing-room between the acts. On Saturday evening the house was full prior to the curtain rising, and amongst another fashionable audience many officers from the barracks were to be seen in the dress circle and stalls.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, in an interview in the Halifax Guardian, says:—"My hobbies are motoring, golfing, and hard work. Just at present I am a very ardent admirer of bricks and mortar, and I can tell you that we are now actually in negotiation for two first-class theatres, these and the others of which I may become the lessee, to be visited by my own companies as well as by the leading successes from London. Many prominent people on the boards may also be persuaded to come. It is a big venture, but I think the scheme will succeed."

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will end the run of D'Arcy of the Guards at the St. James's on Friday, and in the week beginning Nov. 14 will produce a new play by Mr. R. C. Carton entitled Eccentric Lord Comberdene.

MRS. MORTON POWELL'S new drama, The Ruin of Her Life, which was produced at the Theatre Royal, Leicester, on Monday, scored an immense and immediate success, and booking ahead has already begun busily. The local Press is enthusiastic in its praise, and the piece was received with rapture by the audience. A full report appears elsewhere.

"SEVEN DAYS," with a record of 402 consecutive performances at the Astor Theatre, New York, closed its engagement there on the 22nd ult. This farcical comedy was played for fifty weeks on Broadway, running through the four seasons of the year without missing a performance. The company, with one exception, remained unchanged during the entire period.

THE last weeks of the remarkably successful Bad Girl of the Family at the Aldwych are announced. The 400th performance was celebrated on Tuesday.

A NEW romantic comedy opera, in one act, entitled Sweet Simplicity, by Professor Kopski, the talented conductor of the orchestra at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, is to be produced at the theatre this (Saturday) afternoon, when the first of a series of three Saturday matinée concerts will be given. The orchestra will be augmented to thirty performers, and the opera will be produced on each occasion.

MR. F. CULL-PITT is sparing neither expense nor trouble in order to make his pantomime of Aladdin a success. To assist him ensuring the absolute correctness of the Oriental scenes Mr. Cull-Pitt has engaged M. Henri Leon, Ph.D., formerly Masqara Bashi, or Chief Director of Amusements, at the Palace of Yildiz, Constantinople, who produced the spectacle of Al, A-ud-deen (the Turkish equivalent of Aladdin) before the ex-Sultan of Turkey in 1907.

BARON H. HARRISS and Charles St. John Denton have arranged with Mr. Charles Elphinstone to produce at the Theatre Royal, Hanley, on Boxing Day his first city pantomime, the subject being Cinderella. The following artists are amongst those already engaged:—Madeline Rees, Joan Ritz, Emmeline Orford, Edith Barwell, Edwin Brett, Tom Payne, Arthur Sutcliffe, and E. Statham Staples. There will be a chorus of fifty.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER gave an "At Home" on Friday at Pont-street, in aid of the South St. Pancras Branch of the League of Mercy. The event was a most gratifying success. Mr. Alexander and Captain H. M. Jessel, M.P., delivered speeches, and songs were given by Miss Constance Drever, Mr. Maurice Farkoa, and Mr. George Grossmith, jun.

IN the Children's Court at Bow-street on Thursday application was made on behalf of Mr. Arthur Hardy for licences to enable six boys and a little girl to take part in Vice Versa, which is about to be produced at the Comedy Theatre. It was stated that the police had no objection, and the licences were granted. At the same Court, on the application of Mr. Harry Wilson, a number of boys and girls were licensed for the Savoy Theatre.

MISS ELLA ERSKINE is by way of publishing in a volume, through Messrs. Truslove and Hanson, of Oxford-street, eight plays that have been adapted by her from Felix Philippi, the well-known Viennese playwright.

AT Mr. W. W. Kelly's Birkenhead Theatre Royal on Monday Mr. Percy Hutchison will appear in Brewster's Millions. This is one of the most important engagements Mr. Kelly has made for some time for his "over-the-water" house.

THE results of the year's working of the Glasgow Repertory Theatre were submitted to a meeting of the Scottish Playgoers, Ltd., on the afternoon of the 26th ult. A report covering the period from March 17, 1909 (when the company was incorporated), till May 28, 1910, states that during that period the company occupied the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, for the following seasons:—From April 5 till May 29, 1909—eight weeks; Sept. 6 till Nov. 27, 1909—twelve weeks; and Jan. 10 till May 28, 1910—twenty weeks.

IN these three seasons forty-two plays were produced (sixteen of which were performed for the first time on any stage), and the number of performances given was as follows:—Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, 284 performances; King's Theatre, Glasgow, seven performances; Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, twelve performances; Her Majesty's Theatre, Carlisle, two performances. The expenditure of the company for the period ending May 28, 1910, including depreciation, &c., written off, amounted to £15,006 4s. 10d., and the income to £11,986 8s. 6d., showing an excess of expenditure over income of £3,019 16s. 4d.

THE following is a summary of the receipts, expenditure, &c., in respect of each season:—Spring, 1909—Receipts, £2,015 19s.; expenditure, £2,982 6s. 3d. Autumn, 1909—Receipts, £4,097 11s. 3d.; expenditure, £4,646 7s. 9d. Spring, 1910—Receipts, £5,495 16s.; expenditure, £6,839 0s. 7d Vacation expenses and receipts, payments, &c., in connection with visits to other theatres—Receipts, £377 2s. 3d.; expenditure, £538 10s. 3d. The directors think that, on the whole, satisfactory progress has been made, and they are of opinion that the excess of expenditure over income should be considered as development expenses. It is not, however, intended to make any division of profits until this expenditure is very materially reduced or entirely written off.

MR. W. W. KELLY'S booking of Mr. Frank Bertram's company in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's play, The Hypocrites, has resulted this week in exceptionally good business at Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool. For next week the attraction is The Girls of Gottenberg, which will be presented by Mr. T. C. Wray and Mr. Austen Hurgon's company, the cast including "Smith" and Miss Dora Langham.

MISS IDA MOLESWORTH AND MR. MARK BLOW will be sending out four companies at Christmas and early in January—the great Prince of Wales success, Inconstant George; Cosmo Hamilton's sterling military play, Mrs. Skeffington, which is attracting large audiences at the Queen's; The Little Damozel, which will make another triumphant tour, having been received everywhere with great enthusiasm this autumn, and last but not least the ever-popular Under Two Flags, which has toured continuously, with hardly any break, for these last three years.

"TO-MORROW," a play for children, by Miss Kitty Barne and "O. W. Wheeler," was produced at the Court Theatre on Thursday and yesterday afternoons in aid of the Children's League of Pity. Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the Chancellor, made her first appearance on the stage as "A Day of the Week."

THE new principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in succession to Dr. Cummings, is Mr. Landon Ronald, the popular conductor of the New Symphony Orchestra, who was appointed on Thursday by the Court of Common Council. The election was unanimous. The appointment is to date from Dec. 25.

MR. WALTER PEARCE has been engaged to produce at Mr. Redfern's Cambridge Theatre for the Footlights Club a musical play, entitled The Socialist, by Mr. Rottenburg, M.A., a well-known "coach." The music is by Mr. J. W. Ivimey. Incidentally, the play treats of the "equality of man," a subject that perplexed young Midshipman Easy, as all readers of Captain Marryat will remember. There will be five performances.

THERE is a great deal of drama in life which is left untouched by people who write for the stage, because it is the one art which is so bound by conventions that it has scarcely room to breathe; managers have tight-laced its possibilities until it has the approved French figure (writes Mr. Dion Clayton Calthorp in the Fortnightly Review). Some few have tried to get away from convention by writing for children, others by writing very intimately of social problems. The only true way to set to work is to write about children. This is the reason for the success of The Third Floor Back, where childlike and very simple words appeal straight from the Stranger to the hearts of his converts.

THE pupils of the Croham Hurst School gave a performance at the Croydon Public Hall on the evening of the 28th ult. in aid of the Shakespeare National Memorial Theatre, when a fantasy play, Some Dreams Come True, by Theodora E. Clark, incidental music by Mr. R. Ingleton Rowe, was produced. The play centres round a Dream Pedlar, who offers dreams to various personages, and there is a mystic chorus of the Hours and a ballet of Wayward Dreams.

THE first act is laid in a leafy place before dawn on Midsummer Day. The Dream Pedlar summons the Wayward Dreams, who recount their adventures. They disappear at the approach of dawn, and the Hours sing the song of Dawn. In Act II. the Dream Pedlar discourses with various characters as to dreams, and they in turn discuss the philosophy of the day and its work. The last act brings, at twilight, the Wayward Dreams and the passing of the Hours in the song of Sleep. The incidental music comprises overtures to each act, and songs and dances of the Dreams and Hours. The music was conducted by the composer, who may be complimented upon his work.

MR. ALEC WEATHERLY, whose death at Southampton is recorded, was the only son of Fred. Weatherly, song-writer and barrister, of Newbridge Hill, Bath. He was born at Oxford, and was educated at Rugby and Brasenose College, Oxford. Having spent many years on the stage in boy and character parts, under such actor-managers as Beerbohm Tree, Charles Hawtrey, Sir Henry Irving, and George Alexander, he took to management, and it was while acting as manager of Mr. Percy Hutchison's Smith company that he was taken ill with pleurisy at Torquay.

UNFORTUNATELY he struggled against his illness, and stuck to his nightly work till too late, and reaching Southampton last week he developed acute pneumonia, followed by heart failure, and died on Monday afternoon. He will be buried to-day at Portishead, near his grandfather, and it is a pathetic circumstance that his body passes through Bath, where his company is now playing, and where his father resides. He leaves a widow and two young children. He was only thirty-six.

MR. WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS, the poet and dramatist, visited Leeds on Monday, at the joint invitation of the Arts Club and the Playgoers' Society, and delivered a lecture on "The Dramatic Movement in Ireland."

"IN England," said Mr. Yeats, "when they wished to educate the people, they founded a library; they gave the public books because there was great treasure existing in the mind of and created by the educated classes. But in Ireland," continued the lecturer, "we go to the peasant, because in the peasant's memory, and not in any library, is our national treasure. The Gaelic League, feeling the growing squalor of the Irish mind, has gone back to the peasant for his language, thinking to find in that language a noble inspiration and the key of a great past. Lady Gregory and myself have gone to the peasant for his stories, for his fancies, that we may bring them back into the towns."

MR. YEATS then spoke of the wanderings of Lady Gregory and himself among the peasants gathering their stories and their fancies. In the lore they collected they found the Homeric quality, a contemplation of the heroic. After these wanderings they tried to form a little theatre to bring back to the people of the towns two things—the legend and the life of the country people rendered through abundant and beautiful language. They tried to bring back to the towns the life of folk. They founded a little theatre, with Irish amateurs at the beginning, and they gradually built up the little company of actors which the people of Leeds knew.

THE lecturer next proceeded to tell how the late Mr. J. M. Synge came to give aid to their movement, which was much needed. Synge was a man with a passion for primitive life, and Mr. Yeats first met him in the Latin Quarter of Paris. Synge's whole life was a flight from organised life and from all that was not of the folk. He could not form a political thought, he thought of nothing but human life. All his plays were plays of the heroic life. Speaking of the dialect in which Synge wrote, Mr. Yeats said that this dialect of the people was a necessary part of the attack on the imagination of that commercial Ireland which must be taught everything anew. The dialect had the idiom of the Gaelic and the vocabulary of Elizabethan English.

THE IMPROVED ADELPHI.

There has always been a curious tendency in the proprietors of the houses built on the site in the Strand now occupied by the Adelphi to rebuild, enlarge, and improve. The original playhouse was built in 1802 by a Mr. John Scott, the proprietor of a "liquid dye," who called it the Sans Pareil. Scott sold the theatre to two partners, who reopened it in 1819 under the name of the Adelphi. Terry and Yates bought the house in 1825; and then came the management of Mathews and Yates, which commenced in 1828. The name of Madame Celeste is always remembered in connection with the Adelphi. She made her first appearance there in 1837. In 1844 Benjamin Webster became lessee, and Madame Celeste directress; and they appeared with famous success in Buckstone's drama of The Green Bushes, in which Madame Celeste played Miami and Paul Redford Jack Gong.

The last night of the old Adelphi Theatre was June 2, 1858. The new Adelphi accommodated 1,500 spectators. Mr. J. L. Toole was introduced to the audience at its opening, appearing as Tom Dibbs in Good for Nothing. In 1859 Watts Phillips's drama The Dead Heart was done at the Adelphi, where, in 1860, the famous Colleen Bawn was presented. In the October of 1862 Miss Bateman appeared in Leah, and in 1867 Lost in London was produced. In 1870 Webster and F. B. Challerton were joint managers of the Adelphi, where in 1874 Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault appeared in The Shaughraun. But the Adelphi will always be most firmly associated with the series of melodramas in which, under the management of the Brothers Gatti, the present ground landlords, the late William Terriss won such widespread fame and popularity. Messrs. Gatti extensively reconstructed the house and enlarged the stage; and now comes Mr. George Edwardes and puts the finishing touches to the improvement of the theatre by a series of alterations marked by enterprise, taste, and excellent judgment.

CHANGES IN THE FRONT.

The visitor to the much-altered house will find himself puzzled and bewildered as to the geography of the building. As he enters he will find that one of his "land-marks," the large staircase which led to the dress circle, has vanished. Its removal has allowed of the construction of a magnificent entrance hall, about 56ft. long by 24ft. wide, with a ceiling supported by five square columns of real marble. This entrance hall is a very striking feature of the altered house, and will excite general admiration. From it corridors conduct the visitor to either side of the stalls, a new saloon bar having been built for the stall patrons. The dress circle is reached by an oak staircase on the left, and the upper circle has direct communication with the Strand.

THE AUDITORIUM.

Standing in the centre of the stalls, one is struck by the bright, clean, and artistic effect of the auditorium generally. The colour scheme of white, grey, and gold is carried out with exquisite judgment, but little of the old decorations having been retained. The ornamentation of the ceiling, however, has not been much altered, and Mr. George Edwardes has judiciously preserved the beautiful dado or frieze of figures above the proscenium. The line of the stage at the base of the proscenium remains unaltered; but, in order to accommodate the large orchestra of forty performers, the "apron" arrangement has been adopted, part of the band being seated beneath the stage. The boxes at the sides of the proscenium have been enlarged by moving the walls at the back 8ft., and those on the first and second floors have been supplied with large retiring rooms. The arches which formerly surmounted the top "boxes"—which are really part of the upper circle—have been removed and replaced with flat panels, the seats having been raised 8in. The old imitation copper figures, of no great artistic value, have disappeared, and gilt festoons provided. The curves of the fronts of the second tier of boxes have been brought out in a fine sweep. The Royal Box has been enlarged, and the passage which formerly existed between it and the Royal retiring room has been done away with, so as to form a spacious "withdrawing room."

On the balcony tier, at the back, eight new boxes have been constructed, tastefully draped in grey. These have removable partitions, so that, if desired, two of them can be thrown into one. The stalls and balcony are upholstered in Rose du Barri plush. The general decorations of the auditorium are simple and chaste, and need no detailed description.

The proscenium has been supplied with a movable border, which, by means of wires worked through tubes let into the wall, can be let down and cleaned regularly. On the new act-drop crimson curtains are painted, one of which is looped up with a tasselled cord, leaving an opening through which a female figure in a blue pierrot costume is visible, beckoning the public to enter between a pair of brown curtains which she is slightly parting with her other hand. The idea is pleasing and appropriate, and the figure is very prettily painted. An important item in connection with the new auditorium is that the floor of the pit has been raised to make the rake 1ft. in 10ft., to the great advantage of the view of the stage, both from the stalls and from the pit. On the balcony tier the old foyer at the top of the staircase has been added to by throwing the floor back over the gulf which formerly existed at the top of the stairs. The new foyer goes right back to the old buffet, which is retained, though much embellished and improved.

THE STAGE.

Though the stage itself is almost unaltered, much has been done in the way of increasing the accessory accommodation. A new electrician's room has been built, and a new intake room; and at the back of the stage, under the scenery doors, a lift-up staircase can be raised like a drawbridge during the performance, so as not to obstruct the space at the back. A new property room has been placed under the street, and there is a new boiler house for the system of heating by which every room in the theatre is supplied with hot water. The stage has been slightly enlarged at the back, and an electric lift carried to the top floor, so as to serve the thirty-four dressing rooms. A green room about 24ft. by 16ft. has been made out of an old cellar, ventilation and light in the daytime being obtained by making in the thickness of the wall an area opening on the street. A new office for the stage door keeper has been built; and the stage-door entrance connects directly with the new lift, the position of the stage door being changed. All the dressing-rooms are most comfortable and convenient, but Miss Gertie Millar's is a gem of taste and elegance, curtained in Rose du Barri, brilliant with mirrors and glass, and luxuriously furnished with couches and chairs of delicate grey. The whole house has been newly repanelled. The street front below the canopy has been faced with Pavonazza marble cut from an exceptionally fine block, and has been supplied and fixed by Messrs. Farmer and Brindley. The slope of the floor of the house has been very much increased, and both the stalls and the pit have now an uninterrupted view of the stage. This as well as many improvements behind the curtain has been carried out by Mr. Emblin Walker. The reconstruction of the Adelphi has been made under the direction of Mr. Walter Cave, who is responsible for the design and the colour scheme and the extensive alterations. The general building work has been carried out by Messrs. W. J. Fryer and Co. and Mr. J. Sinnott. Altogether the way in which the theatre has been prepared for the reception of The Quaker Girl reflects great credit on Mr. George Edwardes's taste, liberality, and judgment.

It is difficult, after seeing Mr. Cecil Raleigh's play, Behind the Veil, which was presented by Mr. Robert Arthur at the Coronet Theatre on Tuesday, to decide whether the dramatist has done his work in a spirit of contemptuous cynicism with a view to crude provincial consumption, or whether he was really inspired with the idea which it contains, and elaborated it in all sincerity. In his previous work, Mr. Raleigh has shown himself as the practical dramatist par excellence, free from illusions, absolutely sane, and powerfully realistic. In Behind the Veil he launches on the sea of the mystic and supernatural, and the result is a piece which it is not easy to analyse, and somewhat difficult to describe.

According to the author's own account of his work, the hero, Prince Maurice Le Noir, "in his wanderings from the faith, seeks in the nightmares of science the light of truth, listening one day to an Eastern fairy tale, the next to some dream of apes and atoms, now with the chemist, now with the hypnotist, now with the charlatan, driven terrified from craze to craze, from doubt to doubt." Such a character—especially when, as in this instance, he is addicted to morphia—is obviously like Voltaire's Habakkuk, capable de tout, and accordingly the Prince believes himself to possess peculiar powers. He imagines that he is able to restore to his cousin, an elderly lady, the Mother Superior of a convent near Paris, her departed youth and beauty. Margaret, a young and pretty girl, also his cousin, has been trying on a new dress, which the girls of the convent school have been making for the Mother Superior, and when Margaret appears, radiant and attractive, and throws off the costume, the Prince believes that he has transformed the old woman into the young one. He falls in love with the latter, and she, returning his affection, resolves to save his soul.

The Prince has been forced to accept a challenge to fight a duel, in consequence of a chivalrous act on his part in protecting a lady—who, unknown to him, was his cousin Margaret, who had visited a bal masqué in a spirit of frolic—from the insults of one of the masquers. He is wounded, and is brought in almost insensible, and in this condition he sees the Mother Superior, and is horrified, imagining that his supernatural power was a dream. The Prince gets over the effects of his wound; but an eminent specialist states that his brain is affected, and that the only chance of his cure is for Margaret to throw herself into the life of his former associates. So she joins a party of his Parisian friends, and theatens to take part in their orgies. The Prince is horrified at the contrast of her purity with so much vice. Margaret then announces her intention of returning to the convent, to which the Prince follows her; but there he comes face to face with the Mother Superior, and endeavours by the exercise of his supposed supernatural power to change her form to that of his younger cousin. Of course, he fails, and the shock restores to him his reason. Thus all ends well, and at the end of the play the Prince and Margaret are seen kneeling at the steps which lead to the convent chapel, while the organ peals out and the nuns' voices are heard chanting hymns.

Mr. Philip Desborough gives a quite sound performance of the very difficult part of Prince Maurice le Noir. He is seen at his best in the third act, where his Parisian friends welcome him back to life, and drink a toast to their "Prince of Darkness," the scene culminating in his driving them from his house in disgust. Here Mr. Desborough is particularly powerful and convincing. Margaret Courtenay has a very able representative in Miss Viva Birkett. Always sweet and sympathetic and wonderfully natural, she easily finds the way to the hearts of her audience, and thoroughly deserves her undoubted success. Miss Mildred Cottell cleverly portrays the Mother Superior of the convent, Lady Margaret Courtenay, and gives a cultured and finished performance, being decidedly strong and satisfying. The part of Victor Deseloux, the Prince's intimate friend, is handled in excellent style by Mr. John Tresahar; he is carefully subdued and never obtrusive, yet always intelligent and effective. Mr. William Lugg enacts Doctor Anceloe with great energy and expression, and wins a round of applause for his telling speech in the third act. Mr. Owen Roughwood's performance as Dr. Beaunier could scarcely be bettered, and is to be commended in all respects. Mr. J. H. Brewer is excellent as Baptiste, the old servant of the Le Noir family. Miss Ruth Bower plays Madge Guthrie, Margaret Courtenay's Australian friend, in exactly the right vein, and deserves warm praise. Miss Gladys Mason and Miss Beatrice Ainley are excellent in every way as Blanche Giberne and Nelly Anson, the two Australian girls at the convent, the former doing a very spirited piece of acting in the first division of the play. Misses Winifred Beech, Muriel Dole, and Mary Miers adequately represent the sisters, Marie, Therese, and Adela; and the two lay sisters, Marthe and Joan, have careful exponents in the Misses Constance Bachner and Aline Earl. Miss Florence Jackson and Miss Marion Ashworth as Leonie, a model, and Lulu, a dancer, deserve great credit for their lively and active performances, and the supernumerary parts are all carefully played. The scenery, by Mr. W. T. Hemsley, is appropriate and artistic, and the drama was produced under the direction of the author, with the assistance of Mr. Slaine Mills as stage-manager. Mr. Esde Montefiore, the general-manager, attended to his onerous duties in front of the house with his usual courtesy and ability.

THE O.P. CLUB DINNER.

The eleventh annual dinner of the O.P. Club was held at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday. The president of the club, Mr. A. E. W. Mason, was in the chair, and the chief guests of the evening were Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton. Amongst other well-known people present were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hope Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Shorter, Mr. and Mrs. Pett Ridge, Mr. James Welch, Miss Audrey Ford, Miss Mabel Love, Miss Gladys Unger, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Miss Edyth Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Richard Green, Miss Nora Kerin, Mr. Herman Finck, Mr. Lewis Sydney, Mr. F. H. Jones (hon. treasurer), Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, Miss Ethel Allandale, Mr. J. Bernard Dickson (vice-president), Mr. George Spencer Edwards, and Messrs. J. Davies, Smith, and Stanley Grey (joint hon. secretaries).

After the toast of "The King" had been drunk with enthusiasm, the PRESIDENT proposed the toast of "The Drama." He said that he thought people might be divided into two classes—those who had written plays and those who were going to write plays, and that the latter was an insignificant and constantly dwindling minority. Many considered that the drama required rejuvenating and revitalising; but, in spite of that, he thought that it seemed to get along. He said that as a body they might call themselves a club of appreciative playgoers, who went often to the theatre with a great desire to be pleased, and more often than not went away with that desire gratified. He was not going to run down the Drama, for he thought that in neatness, ingenuity, and ability our playwrights could show a bold face to the dramatists in all the countries in Europe. A good deal was heard about many a black swan in Paris, which when it came over here was discovered to be a somewhat speckled bird. They were there that night to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Asche on their return from Australia, to congratulate them on the great success they made there, and to assure them of their pleasure in recapturing them again for the Old Country. They wanted to keep them here to carry on the tradition of romantic drama. He was not going to endeavour to analyse the art of Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, but he thought that the O.P. Club owed them a good deal of gratitude. Mr. Mason concluded by remarking that Mr. Oscar Asche was going to carry into private life the attitude of Count Hannibal, and make his wife's speech for her.

Mr. OSCAR ASCHE, in responding to the toast of "The Drama," said that his wife had at first announced her intention of responding, and had told him that he could enjoy his dinner and need not speak, but since then she had joined the Suffragettes, and had told him that he would have to speak, as she declined to do so. As Mr. Mason had said, there had been a lot of talk about what the Drama should be, and for years it had been suggested that the public required to be educated. He did not agree with this. He thought it was the dramatists and producers of plays who wanted to be educated up to the public taste. He had tried to produce classical drama in London several times, and outside Shakespeare it had always been a non-success. The Drama depended on the playgoing paying public. It had been left for years past to the actor-managers—Sir Henry Irving, Sir Herbert Tree, and others—to keep classical drama alive. The commercial managers had never produced Shakespeare's plays; it had always been left to the actor-manager. When they went to Australia they were told that Shakespeare was not understood out there, and would be a failure. Well, they had visited Perth, which had a population of 50,000, and had produced four of Shakespeare's plays there in a week, and the returns showed that 63,000 people went to see those four plays, and many of those people had never seen or read a play of Shakespeare before. In Australia they loved tragedy, because they lived under sunny skies; here, in London, living under fogs and dreary skies, tragedy did not pay. Referring to the Repertory Theatre, Mr. Asche thought that London was too big a place to support it, as most of the theatres were repertory theatres. They hoped to carry on the good work which Mr. Mason had been good enough to say they had done in the past, but they also had to live. When they had lived a little time, and had made money enough by producing plays which were not perhaps artistic successes, they would endeavour to produce plays which were artistic successes, and would also allow them to die decently.

Miss GLADYS UNGER, in replying to the toast of "The Visitors," said that the only thing she had done for the British drama was that she had given the public a chance of seeing Mr. Hawtrey in his pyjamas. She considered that there was some excuse for the conduct of Count Hannibal; he wooed so tempestuously that he had no time to be polite. She thought that Mr. Oscar Asche should start a school for young lovers, to be turned out perfect masters of the art in six lessons.

Mr. JAMES WELCH, who also responded, standing on a chair, told several amusing anecdotes, and confessed to a yearning to give up playing "the fool" on the stage, and to take to serious parts. He was, he said, replying for Mr. Stanley Cooke, because he supposed that, in the absence of that gentleman, a bit of "Welch" rabbit would do instead of "Unger and Cooke."

Mr. PETT RIDGE, who gave the toast of "The Chairman," made a neat speech, and was enthusiastically received.

An excellent entertainment was given at intervals during the evening, amongst the performers being Miss Alexandra Dagmar, Miss Ruby Wilson, Mr. Stuart Debnam, Miss Dorothy Normandy, Mr. Ivor Foster, Mr. Leslie Lambert, Mr. Ulph Smith, and Mr. Horace Whitty. Mr. Sinclair Mantell accompanied.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The students' concert on Monday afternoon opened with Hummel's Trio in E flat, Op. 12, for pianoforte, flute, and violoncello, Miss Edith K. Bird, Miss Margaret Gibson, and Miss Winifred Love, the executants, giving a praiseworthy account of the Allegro Agitato. The young performers are members of the Chamber Music Class. Miss Muriel Croston was heard in Woodforde-Finden's pretty song "O flower of all the world," and Miss Jennie Clarke received much applause for her singing of "When all was young" (Gounod). Miss Ida Benthin played Chopin's Etude No. 9, Op 25; and another able pianist, Mr. Patrick Thayer, was successful in the "Lento" and "Danse Négre" of Cyril Scott. Mr. Eric Catford is ambitious, but he can be commended for his singing of recit. "I feel the Deity within" and aira "Arm, arm, ye brave" (Handel); and Miss Constance Hatton in her piano solo, "La Campanella" (Elégie Idylle), W. G. Faubert, deserved praise. Mr. C. H. G. Mottram greatly pleased the audience by his cleverly-written song, "Inspiration," and was called on with the vocalist. Miss Alice Booth. Mr. Mottram's second effort, "Little Nancy," was effective, but less artistic. Another young composer, Mr. S. H. Sheppard, brought forward a Miniature Suite MS. for violin and pianoforte, in four short movements, which had merit, and were cleverly played by the composer and Miss Alice Lees, a very promising violinist; while mention should be made of Miss Briana Prager's excellent performance of Liszt's pianoforte solo "Liebestramm."

AT the theatre at Bayonne on Sunday evening, during the performance of Carmen, one of the singers, Mlle. Lucy Sternel, went out of her mind while performing her part, and hurled insults and curses at the audience, who, ignorant of the cause of her conduct, retorted vigorously. The disturbance was terminated by the lowering of the curtain.

DEATH OF HENRIETTA HODSON.

Miss Henrietta Hodson, who had long since retired from the stage, succumbed to an attack of apoplexy on Sunday morning at her villa in Florence. She passed away in the presence of her husband, Mr. Henry Labouchere, whom she married, en secondes noces, in 1868, and her daughter, the Marchesa Dora di Rudini. The deceased lady came from an old theatrical stock, her grandfather, George Hodson, being at one time the lessee of the Bower Saloon, a minor theatre in Stangate, Westminster, which was cleared away on the removal of St. Thomas's Hospital to that locality. The theatre was opened in 1838; Phil Phillips, the scenic artist of the Surrey Theatre, having, in 1837, taken a tavern with some land, on it he built this place of entertainment. The venture was not too successful, but had its palmy days under the lesseeship of Mr. Hodson. He had conducted the "Yorkshire Stingo," where in those days a variety entertainment was carried on. The old proprietor's son, George Hodson, married Miss Noel, sister of the late Mrs. Harry Marston, and the daughter born to them was the subject of this memoir.

Henrietta Hodson had her early theatrical training, like Lady Bancroft, under the Chutes at the Bristol Theatre. It was an admirably conducted house, says Lady Bancroft in her "Reminiscences," and "will always be remembered by me as my stepping-stone to London. The work was hard, but some of our best artists have left the old King-street theatre to fill leading positions in London. Names that come at once to my mind are Kate and Ellen Terry, Madge Robertson (Mrs. Kendal), Henrietta Hodson, and Charles Coghlan." After her provincial experience Miss Hodson came to the Prince of Wales's, Tottenham-street, under the management of Marie Wilton, her former comrade, and made her London début in Henry J. Byron's Pandora's Box; or, The Young Spark and the Old Flame, in which she played Prometheus.

At the opening of the old Queen's Theatre, Long Acre, on Oct. 24, 1867, under the management of Alfred Wigan, the deceased actress acted the devoted servant Jacintha in Charles Reade's The Double Marriage, a dramatisation of his novel "White Lies." In this piece Lal Brough, "a favourite comedian of the Liverpool stage," made his début on the London stage, and young Charles Wyndham distinguished himself as Colonel Dujardin. Sir Charles and Ellen Terry are now the only survivors of a celebrated cast. In January, 1868, Miss Hodson played Lucy in Dearer than Life, in which Toole made a hit as Michael Garner, whose son was played by Charles Wyndham, the Uncle Ben being Lionel Brough—another fine cast that was completed by Henry Irving as Bob Gassit. A bright and winsome performance was Miss Hodson's vivandière in W. S. Gilbert's extravaganza La Vivandière; or, True to the Corps, the triviality of which rôle was in direct contrast to her delineation of Oliver Twist in an adaptation of Dickens's novel (Queen's, April, 1868), by John Oxenford, which was chiefly notable for Henry Irving's wonderful sketch of Bill Sikes. The actress made a successful appearance in Robert Reece's burlesque, The Stranger, Stranger than Ever, in November, 1868, at the house in Long Acre.

On May 29, 1869, Mrs. Labouchere took part in the first performance, at the same theatre, of Burnand's play, The Turn of the Tide, which had a considerable success. In the following year (January, 1870), at the same theatre, she was in the original cast of Tom Taylor's play, 'Twixt Axe and Crown,' the late Mrs. Rousby in the leading rôle. Completing her engagement at the Queen's Theatre Aug. 10, 1870, on the 3rd of the following month she opened the Royalty Theatre under her management with a comedy by H. T. Craven and a burlesque by F. C. Burnand. During the year following she acted in various pieces, chiefly burlesque, at that theatre, and in 1872 returned to the Queen's, "opening" Jan. 8 as Nydia the blind girl in John Oxenford's version of Lord Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii." During the same year at the same theatre Miss Hodson played certain parts in the so-called "legitimate" drama: Virginia (Virginius), Imogen (Cymbeline), &c. Of the latter character she gave "a tender and graceful representation, failing only to convey those subtle shades of character, duly to embody which needs an actress of the highest intellect and culture. She exhibited much grace and not a little intelligence, but no inspiration." She was highly successful, however, as Ariel in a revival of The Tempest, with John Ryder in the part of Prospero and George Rignold as Caliban. Miss Hodson appeared later at various theatres in London and the provinces, one of her most successful impersonations being that of Dick Wastrell, in a romantic drama in five acts entitled Old London, adapted from Les Chevaliers du Brouillard (a French dramatisation of Harrison Ainsworth's "Jack Sheppard"), produced at the Queen's Theatre in February, 1873. Mrs. Labouchere was also very successful in a revival of Pygmalion and Galatea at the Haymarket in January, 1877, in the character of Cynisca.

For many years Mrs. Labouchere, who retired from the stage a few years after her marriage, lived at Pope's Villa, in Twickenham, where she and her popular husband loved to entertain their friends with al fresco theatrical performances. From the memoirs of Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, who but a few months ago returned from a long visit to the Labouchères in Florence, this little word-picture of the scenery for A Midsummer Night's Dream may be taken:—"The disposition and charcter of the garden lent itself perfectly to the play, and never was there a more grassy, daisy-pied, flowery, softly rolling background provided for Shakespeare's fascinating fantasy. Clumps of lilies and Canterbury bells grew just where they were wanted, and a bed of roses was not too far away. A noble old tree in the centre, with gnarled roots, was chosen for the stage. The huge branches, like a monster umbrella, dipped down here and there, quite low enough for Puck to swing upon. The musicians were hidden from view behind a screen of honeysuckle and trumpet flowers. The electric lights glowed through blossoming foliage, and a moon was provided in case the real one, which was due, should hide her silver face behind a cloud."

THE musical season at the Harrogate Kursaal was brought to a close on Saturday evening last, when a special concert was given. The large interior of the Kursaal was crowded, and overflowed into the promenades, several hundred residents and visitors being present. An excellent programme of music was played by the orchestra, under Mr. Julian Clifford, who gave a pianoforte solo, and entertaining items were given by The March Hares. In an interval in the programme, the Mayor (Captain A. B. Boyd Carpenter), who was supported by several members of the Kursaal Committee, said that the Kursaal could be congratulated this year upon an increase in its receipts. Whereas last year there was a charge on the rates of £4,170, this year it seemed certain that the amount to be found from the rates would not exceed £2,925. When, however, this amount was spoken of as a charge on the rates, it was well to remember that the Kursaal paid £700 in rates and another £400 to the Corporation electricity department. Those figures were apt to be lost sight of, but they were important, because they showed that the Kursaal helped the rates to a material degree. The Kursaal during the past season had actually received £600 more in season tickets than last season, and £182 more than in 1907, which was often spoken of as the bumper year.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

A large audience assembled at the Guildhall on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29, for the annual presentation of medals, prizes, and certificates to the students of the Guildhall School of Music by the Lady Mayoress, who was accompanied by the Lord Mayor (Sir John Knill), Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Johnston, and Mr. Sheriff Buckingham. The proceedings commenced with a short concert. Dr Cummings' ode "Domine Dirige Nos" being sung by the choir, which was followed by an able pianoforte solo of Chopin's Barcarolle, Op. 60, by Miss Jessie Willis, winner of the Lady Mayoress' prize for 1910. In Weber's scena, "Ocean, thou mighty monster," from Oberon, Miss Ethel Dieselhorst, the Lord Mayor's prize winner, 1910, displayed considerable power; and Mr. Reginald T. Crawford, the Chairman's prize winner, 1910, was heard to advantage in Blumenthal's song "The Requital." The winner of the Musicians' Company silver medal, Mr. M. Gordon Burgess, gave two piano solos MS., "Romance" and "Humoresque," of his own composition; while Miss Florence Riden's fine contralto voice was heard in an admirable rendering of Sardi's aria, "Lungi dal caro bene." Miss Riden is the Sheriffs' (contralto) prize winner, 1910. Mr. Bevington Rosse, the School (bass) prize winner, 1910, sang Handel's air, "Shall I in Mamre's Fertile Plains?" (Joshua); and a very clever little student, Master Louis Godowski, nine years old, a Special Corporation Scholar, quite distinguished himself in a violin solo, "Souvenir de Bellini" (Artot), and was recalled several times. The concert concluded with a fencing display by the Misses Petronella C. Collins and Irene M. Sargent, winners of the fencing prize of 1909 and 1910. Miss Jenny Hyman presided at the piano and Mr. David Beardwell at the harmonium.

The Chairman of the Music Committee, Mr. John R. Pakeman, in a short address said: "Every year in the life of an institution such as this school must bring changes, and I must first mention the fact that the veteran principal (Dr. Cummings) has been obliged to resign by reason of failing health. We miss his presence to-day, as for many years he has been accustomed to deliver an address on the occasion of the annual distribution of prizes, and it is only fitting to acknowledge here his strenuous and constant efforts on behalf of the school. He devoted his best energies to the work, and continued to do so until the breakdown which overcame him early in the summer term. Let us hope that he may be blessed with good health to enjoy his well-earned retirement. This retirement has thrown much extra work on our esteemed secretary, Mr. H. Saxe Wyndham. I have also, alas! to mention the deaths of five distinguished professors, Messrs. Prout, John Matt, A. Beaumont, Fountain Meen, and Henry Guy, all of whom were highly esteemed. On the other hand, I find consolation in the fact that the school has during the past year obtained some excellent results upon which the committee and the Corporation may well feel self-congratulation. The silver medal given triennially by the Musicians' Company to the most distinguished student in the school I was able to award to Mr. Gordon Burgess, A.G.S.M., F.C.O., B.A., whose successes have been so many that I dare not detain you long enough to mention them in full. The absence of the principal has necessitated my devoting a great deal of time to the affairs of the school, and I do not hesitate to say that in every branch there are students of a very high order, and possessing great, and, in some cases, quite exceptional, talent. My own opinion was confirmed by such eminent judges as Mr. Riccardo Martin, Mlle. de Lys, M. Emil Saure, Mr. Lloyd Chandos (himself an old student), Mme. Clara Samuel, and others. The Corporation of London has recently created further valuable scholarships. Two are of £80 each, providing maintenence and education, and five are of £30 each, for complete education. They will all be competed for in the course of the next year. In addition to these, two scholarships are given by the Grocers' Company for children of their Freemen, five scholarships for violin students given by the National Union of School Orchestras, the Maude Willby medal given by Miss Alice Grimes, the Pearce Morrison prize for enunciation in singing, and the August Manns' Memorial prize for a young pianist-composer. In addition, I must say how much we appreciate the renewal by the Merchant Taylors' Company of their valuable scholarships, and you will notice from the list that there are many other generous donors. I would mention that during the past year very successful operatic performances have been given of Gounod's Irene and Purcell's Dido and Æneas. I should also state that some distinguished former students have this season taken part in grand opera. Of these I may mention Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Betty Booker, and Mr. Byndon-Ayres. This is a fact of which we are justly proud, and which should afford an impetus to present students. At the conclusion of Mr. Pakeman's address, which was heartily applauded, the Lady Mayoress presented the medals and prizes to a very large number of successful students. Miss Audrey Richardson was awarded the silver Jubilee Commemoration Challenge Cup, given by the late Alderman Sir Stuart Knill; and Mr. Gordon Burgess the Musicians' Company silver medal. The Associates for 1910 were Miss E. K. Harrison, gold medallist for piano; Miss Marie Cox (pupil of Mr. L. Cairns James), silver medallist (elocution); and Mr. C. Arthur Wright, bronze medallist for elocution, also a pupil of Mr. L. C. James. Besides these awards there were a host of medals, prizes, and certificates too numerous to mention. A vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor, the Lady Mayoress, the Sheriffs, and their ladies was proposed by the chairman, and seconded by Mr. Richard Davies.

In responding, the Lord Mayor said this was almost his last public function, as his term of office was near a close. Sir John Knill also congratulated Miss Audrey Richardson, and in making a graceful allusion to Dr. Cummings, said he had always done his best to raise the Guildhall School of Music to its present high standard.

Mr. John Crawley's able performance of Dr. Basil Harwood's organ solo "Dithyramb" was the first item in the students' concert on Wednesday evening. In Sullivan's song "Will he come?" Miss Amy Watts was fairly successful; and Miss Dorothy Westlake for her piano solo gave a painstaking performance of the allegro from Beethoven's Sonata in B flat. Miss Dorothy Mackay attempted Donizetti's florid aria "O luce di quest anima," from Linda di Chamonix; while Miss Nellie H. V. Lynde was applauded for her violin solo "Romance et Rondo elegant," Op. 9 (Wieniawski). Mr. E. Marsh was hardly wise in selecting Blümenthal's once-famous song "My queen," as it requires such expressive singing. The two most successful vocalists in this concert were Miss May Colegate, heard in "Peace and rest" (Batten), and Miss M. E. E. Sowman, who gave a pleasing rendering of "Sunshine and butterflies." The most important item in the programme was Miss Evelyn K. Harrison's brilliant performance of Moszkowski's difficult "Caprice espagnole." Miss Harrison is this year's associate and gold medallist for pianoforte. Miss Eleanor Barrett (a pupil of Mr. Bassett Roe) recited "The Butterfly" (Hans Andersen) with considerable charm. The second recitation, "The Clown's Baby," was admirably delivered by Miss K. Wann, a clever pupil of Professor Paul Berton. Another student, Miss Marjorie H. Bolland, gave a careful performance of Chopin's A flat valse, Op. 82.

MR. JOHN TAYLOR, Mus.Bac., of 36, Grand-parade, Eastbourne, and late of Torquay, by his will, which has just been proved, left £500 to the Royal Society of Musicians of Great Britain.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LE MILLION,"

Comedy-vaudeville in Five Acts, by Georges Berr and Marcel Guillemaud, Produced at the Palais-Royal, on Oct. 28.

Béatrice ..... Mlle. Berny
Francine ..... Mlle. Yrven
Torelli ..... Mlle. Calvat
Mariette ..... Mlle. Danjou
Prosper ..... M. Ch. Lamy
Michel ..... M. Le Gallo
Tubjse ..... M. Hurteaux
Crochard ..... M. Clement
Champaubert ..... M. Patau
Sopranelli ..... M. Mangin

PARIS, Thursday, Nov. 3.—MM. Berr and Marcel's farce differs from those generally brought out at that house, in so far that it is not at all "peppery," and, with a little pruning, may be offered as a spectacle to a young ladies' school. The idea of the play is the chase after a million, or, rather, after a lottery ticket. This ticket that won the prize of a million francs belongs to Michel, a young hare-brained painter, who hid it in one of the pockets of his old studio jacket. But, during his absence, Thomas Crochard, a burglar, hunted by the police, rushes into Michel's studio, puts on the jacket, and goes straight to the reach-me-down shop, of which he is the owner, where he sells the jacket to Sopranelli; a tenor, who came to the shop to select a picturesque costume. Michel and his faithful friend, Champaubert, are arrested by the police on suspicion of being burglars, but they succeed in chloroforming the inspector on duty and all his men, whereupon they escape, and we meet them again at Sopranelli's trying to take possession of the jacket. After much trouble Béatrice, a young pianiste, Michel's friend, finds the garment, which she then throws out of the window to Michel and his friend, who are waiting on the pavement. Unfortunately it drops on a motor-car going at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Fresh troubles and complications ensue, until finally Crochard, the burglar, pursues the car and brings back the coat with the ticket inside; for Crochard owes a debt of gratitude to Béatrice, who assisted him in escaping, and he tells Michel that Béatrice loves him (Michel) without daring to show him her affection. And everything ends happily by a marriage between the new millionaire Michel and Béatrice. The vaudeville, which raised much laughter, was spiritedly played by a very efficient cast.

"ARSENE LUPIN CONTRE HERLOCK SHOLMES."

Detective Play, in Four Acts and 22 Tableaux, by V. Darlay and de Gorsse, Brought Out at the Chatelet on Oct. 28.

Rebecca ..... Mlle. Ety
Mme des Epouffettes ..... Mlle. Maud
Miss Moore ..... Mlle. Alson
Ganimard ..... M. Moricey
Herlock ..... M. Noury
Arsène Lupin ..... M. Jullien
Fotinard ..... M. Hamilton
Nazir-Pacha ..... M. Albens
Gottlieb ..... M. Bardes
Monnier ..... M. Legoux
Piédechou ..... M. Ollivier
Fred ..... Mlle. Carina

It is a foolish spectacular play, but one that will please the little boys and girls whom their parents will take to the Chatelet, and for whom, no doubt, the work was written. The little folks will delight in the homeric struggle between that arch-thief Arsène Lupin and the great American Herlock Sholmes, without reckoning the latter's seven-year-old son, Fred, like his father, a born detective. It would be a hopeless task to relate in detail the plot of this intricate business. Sufficient to say that Lupin robs the banker Gottlieb of a valuable jewel belonging to the ineffable Nazir Pacha. Lupin then bluffs Ganimard, an idiotic police inspector, and, chased by Herlock Sholmes, locks up the latter in a grotto in his country seat at Villers-Cotterets. The American detective, however, is not to be beaten, for he shadows Lupin wherever he goes, and recognises him in his various disguises. But Lupin has undergone a transformation. He is in love with the highly respectable Miss Moore, and, thanks to that lady's influence, becomes a reformed character. Herlock Sholmes and his clever little son will not now arrest Lupin, but allow him to escape and begin life once more under honourable auspices. The Chatelet management have introduced many "numbers" in the play that have nothing whatever to do with the action, but appeared to give much pleasure to an easily-amused audience.

"CHOU-BLANC,"

Farce, in 3 Acts, by Grenet-Dancourt and R. Dieudonné, Produced at the Nouveautés on Oct. 29.

Yvonne Chaloup ..... Mlle. Marguerite Caron
Fanoche ..... Mlle. Templey
Mominette ..... Mlle. Peuget
Angèle ..... Mlle. Delys
Le Frisé ..... M. Germain
Lambinet ..... M. Sulbac
Lasnier ..... M. Coquet
Chaloup ..... M. Ladrin
Jacques ..... M. Saint-Bonnet

The new farce met with a well-deserved success, although the authors depict the morals of the Paris middle-class in rather sombre colours. Maurice Lasnier is a friend of Chaloup. He pays marked attention to that gentleman's wife, Yvonne, who does not object to become Maurice's mistress. She, therefore arranges to accompany her intended lover on a motor-car trip, when they will manage to spend a night together. But on the road to Rambouillet the car breaks down, and the lovers have to return to Paris without having made closer acquaintance. Unfortunately, a sporting paper informs its readers that M. Lasnier, the well-known motorist, has come to grief with his car near Rambouillet, whither he was going with a lady. That paragraph is read by Fanoche, Lasnier's mistress, a spiteful cocotte, who at once suspects her friend, Angèle, of being the lady who accompanied Lasnier. Lasnier then hires a little house at Auteuil where he can receive Yvonne, but Fate ordains that these two lovers will never accomplish their purpose. The house at Auteuil—supposed to be uninhabited—is the home of Le Frisé, an apache, who is in the habit of meeting there his friend, Mlle. Mominette. And in the bedroom of the Auteuil house we meet all the dramatis personæ: Le Frisé, who awaits his lady; Mominette, who comes to meet Le Frisé; Maurice and Yvonne, who want to be an hour by themselves, undisturbed; Fanoche, in search of her supposed rival; and, finally, Yvonne's husband. Maurice sees Mominette in the bed where he expects to find Yvonne. Le Frisé embraces Yvonne, whom he mistakes for Mominette, and the arrival of Yvonne's husband brings things to a climax. Maurice and Yvonne extricate themselves the best way they can out of the difficulty, but their last chance of ever having a secret meeting is gone.

Miss Naomi Rutherford.

Miss Naomi Rutherford, the talented young actress who has come to the front so rapidly during the last six months whilst acting with Leonard Rayne's company in South Africa, was born in New Zealand, but has lived most of her life in Johannesburg. Her first part was Cissy Denver in The Silver King with Wilson Barrett when he was in South Africa. She was then only nine. Later she was with Edward Terry at the old Empire, acting Dick Bellamy in My Pretty Maid, and two years ago she joined Leonard Rayne's company. One of Miss Rutherford's big hits was the part of Batty, the boy in The Breed of the Treshams; but she told a Sunday Times (Johannesburg) reporter that she does not like being a boy. She prefers light comedy, and revels in acting the ingenué in The School for Scandal.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The following additions to the list of artists who are giving their services at the Employees' Benevolent Fund concert, on Sunday, Nov. 20, at the Coliseum, have been secured: Mme. Zelie de Lussan, Miss Helen Blain, the Hon. Eva O'Connor, Mr. Dutch Daly, Miss Florence Dudley, and Miss Violet Lorraine. Mr. Bernard Gluck has kindly consented to act as the accompanist.

There is a good demand for tickets, and all those below 2s. 6d. in price have already been sold. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones sends a cheque for £2 2s. to the hon. treasurer, Mr. Pedgrift, and says he will be glad to have his name added to the list of patrons of the concert. Sir Arthur Pinero sends £1 1s.; Sir Edward Moss, £1 1s.; Mr. Frank Curzon, £1 1s.; Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, £1 1s.; and Mr. Henry Tozer has consented, "with pleasure," to add his name to the list of patrons.

A meeting of cinematograph operators was held on Tuesday morning at the A.M.U. Club, 9, Great Newport-street, W.C. Mr. Mason, vice-president of the N.A.C.O., presided. The secretary (Mr. John Hutchins) presented reports on several important items, among which were the result of an informal conference with representatives of the Cinematograph Defence League, the Manufacturers' and Hirers' Association, and details of the arrangements made for the examination of candidates for certificates. Mr. W. Day sent a donation of £1 1s. for the Association to give a prize to the candidate sending in the most satisfactory examination paper. A number of applications for membership were considered. A sub-committee met on Wednesday at 29, Wellington-street to go through the large number of examination papers sent in.

Mr. J. L. Meeker, corresponding secretary to the New York City Branch of the International Alliance of Stage Employees, writes to Mr. William Johnson, and sends the local scale of pay, in referring to which Mr. Meeker says: "While it may seem to be rather high, taking into consideration the high cost of living, &c., it is only a fair rate of wages." Mr. Meeker says the past year has been the most eventful one in the history of the Alliance, many branches having secured increases in the rate of pay.

A SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL.

The Shakespeare memorial at Verona was inaugurated last Sunday by Sir Rennell Rodd, the British Ambassador to the Italian Court. The Ambassador, speaking in Italian, alluded to Shakespeare, whose remarkable knowledge of Italy, if due perhaps to his genius rather than to a personal visit, shows at least how profoundly he had been penetrated by the Italian spirit. At Verona (continued the speaker) we are in the very heart of Shakespeare's country; it is in Italy that the poet found the most suitable environment for his romantic creations—in Sicily for The Winter's Tale and Much Ado About Nothing, in Italian waters for The Tempest, at Padua for The Taming of the Shrew, in Florence for All's Well That Ends Well, on the lagoons for The Merchant of Venice and Othello, at "fair Verona where we lay our scene" for The Two Gentlemen of Verona and Romeo and Juliet. Verona had, indeed, no need of a poet to perpetuate its memories. Placed at the meeting of the great ways that lead from Italy to Germany, she was marked out for fame from the time of the Cimbri to our own, while as the birthplace of Catullus, the refuge of Dante, she now pays her respects to the greatest poet of the North—a poet already interpreted in Italy by Federico Garlanda, and about to be translated in his entirety by Diego Angeli. As representing in Italy the fatherland of Shakespeare and of my Sovereign, who, as an exceptional favour, has allowed me in this year of national mourning to appear here to-day, I thank the Municipality of Verona, the members of the committee, and the sculptor for their generosity. The memorial, planned some three years ago, is situated at Juliet's tomb, and takes the form of a bust of the poet, surrounded by the principal characters from his plays, all in white Carrara marble, the work of the local sculptor, Cattani.

At a recent meeting of the Evesham Town Council it was resolved that the Town Clerk communicate with the boroughs of Kidderminster, Droitwich, and Bewdley, asking them to join with the Council in making a representation to the County Council to delegate their powers in connection with the licences of theatres in the boroughs to the Town Councils instead of to the county justices, as at present. The Town Cl

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

ERNEST ST. JOHN.—In that case an application to the Actors' Benevolent Fund would be your best course.

ERNEST TAYLOR.—The play was produced at the Haymarket Theatre. You might get into communication with the management.

G. NEWSTED.—We know of no particular method. Acting-managers are sometimes promoted to that position after experience in the box-office of a theatre. The most direct way is often reached through influence. You must begin by taking a subordinate position, to learn routine. Salary £2 and upwards. Try an advertisement.

A. F. L.—Your question is slightly ambiguous. Do you refer to novels dealing with aspects of stage life, or to actual reminiscences and experiences of well-known players? Anthony Hope's novel, "A Servant of the Public," which has been dramatised, deals with life at the footlights; and Miss Ellen Terry, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, and many other stage celebrities have had their life chronicles published.

LEONARD COOPER.—There have been many adaptations of Bulwer Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii." Under the same title adaptations by Fitzball and J. B. Buckstone were presented at the Victoria and the Adelphi in 1834. John Oxenford's version with the same title was produced at the old Queen's Theatre, Long Acre, on Jan. 8, 1872. Nydia, the Blind Girl of Pompeii, author's name not given, was produced at the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, Oct. 18, 1869; and an opera in five acts, with precisely the same title, was composed by George Fox, and produced at the Crystal Palace on May 10, 1892.

BENGER'S
FOR ACTORS, ACTRESSES, VOCALISTS AND ATHLETES.
When fatigued or overstrung, the first refreshment should be Benger's Food, because all exceptional physical effort and nervous strain causes a temporary lowering of the digestive capacity, just when Food is required as a pick-me-up.
It is unwise then to take ordinary food, and stimulants should be doubly avoided, Benger's Food is, however, just what is required to revive from fatigue, to give immediate nourishment, and to tone up the system in readiness for ordinary food.
Benger's is the lightest and daintiest of foods; it is also the most digestible and most highly nutritious.
It should be made with new milk strictly in accordance with the directions contained on each tin.
Benger's Food is sold in Tins by Chemists, etc., everywhere.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required. — St James's Gazette.

TOURING AND RESIDENT MANAGEMENTS.

It is now some little time since we printed Mr. GEORGE DANCE'S statement of the case of the travelling manager against the resident manager. Mr. DANCE'S complaint was made in connection with The Whip, which was an excessively expensive production to mount; and he objected to the lowness of the percentage—45 per cent.—which one manager offered for a visit of Mr. DANCE'S company with the great Drury Lane success. "Just imagine what our expenses are," said Mr. DANCE in the interview. "Last week I paid in authors' fees over £200; railway fares came to an enormous sum; then there are innumerable other demands—three horse-boxes, a special truck 45ft. long for the panorama, six carpenters, four property men, grooms for the horses—why, the expenses of such a production are half as much again as those of a musical comedy. I cannot take the terms offered by the management of certain provincial theatres, so I am driven to the music halls.

"I have no quarrel with the managers generally; they are all old friends of mine. But I get a piece handed over to me, and I am responsible to the London producing manager and the author. I have to make the best I possibly can, not only for myself but for them. Therefore, to recoup the producing manager for his original outlay, which is exceedingly heavy, and the author for his brain work, I have to run the piece for all I am worth. I have a tour to map out and dates to fill, and if I cannot get reasonable terms at the theatre I shall go to the music hall. In Sheffield The Whip goes to the Hippodrome, and in Newcastle-on-Tyne to the Pavilion. Many theatre patrons will accordingly visit the Hippodrome for the first time, and having gone once will go again, thus creating a new audience for the hall. I could book every music hall in the country, but in every case where I could get proper terms from the theatre I have refused, despite the fact that I can get in the halls 10 per cent. better than the best offered in the theatres."

Other complaints were of the insufficient time available for rehearsal—the members of the orchestra being usually employed at various trades, and having only their dinner hour to devote to the purpose—and the alleged dirty condition of some provincial theatres.

In our last issue we printed a most informative and interesting letter on the same subject from the much-experienced Mr. PAYNE SEDDON, who thinks that the trouble comes from so few resident managers devoting themselves entirely to their own business. "One manager," wrote Mr. PAYNE SEDDON, "is a good business man; he runs two theatres, both of which do fairly well, but he has no theatrical experience outside managing his own two theatres. A second is a legitimate theatrical manager who controls a dozen theatres. A third is a brewer by trade; he leaves the management of the theatre to a lad of about twenty-five years of age, assisted by the carpenter—who is a practical man, and assists with the bookings. Yet another is a tweed merchant, a splendid old fellow, but he does not call himself a theatrical manager—the theatre is a little hobby of his. . . . One theatre is owned by the Corporation, and can be booked by any company which likes to pay two-thirds of the rent in advance. This manager runs his theatre on very cheap lines—I believe it pays him, but the legitimate touring manager only works it as a "fill in." The manager keeps going with the cheapest drama companies, and is a general dealer in the daytime."

But Mr. PAYNE SEDDON had yet another explanation of the "bad business" in the provinces which some travelling managers complain of. He contends that many towns whose population only justifies a three nights stay by a travelling company are made week towns, with the result that there are not enough people wanting to see the play to make a six days' stay profitable. Mr. PAYNE SEDDON throws the blame of this on the touring manager, who, Mr. SEDDON says, finds the bookings for three nights only "too much trouble"; and he substantiates his argument by instances which have come under his personal observation. The suggestion is certainly one worth attention; and we commend it to the consideration of our readers among touring managers.

The modern provincial manager is, and must be, primarily a man of business. In most cases this arrangement "answers" excellently. The qualities which are chiefly necessary to a resident manager are those of the successful hotel-keeper. He must have a good general idea of the merits of the different dramas which are on the road, and should know what are the legitimate demands of a travelling company upon the "resident" staff. These are easily understood; and a resident manager need not necessarily be an actor to be acquainted with them. Common-sense will tell him that, for a theatre to be successful, the front of the house must be made comfortable, and the accommodation, appliances, and assistance behind the curtain must be first-rate.

In most cases the resident manager is equal to the demands made upon him by his position, and gives complete satisfaction. We cannot believe, in the face of the long list of companies "on the road" which we print every week, that the touring business can be in such a bad way. As there are black sheep in every flock, so there are poor companies and badly-managed theatres. But we do not believe that the degeneration is general, or that dissatisfaction is anything but exceptional.

DEATH OF MAUDI DARRELL.

The theatrical and play-going world will hear with regret of the death of Miss Maudi Darrell, the popular musical comedy actress, who was married in the March of last year to Mr. John Bullough. She passed away on Monday morning at her London home, after a long and painful illness. For many months she had been under the care of Sir Alfred Fripp. The cause of death was septic poisoning. The funeral took place on Wednesday from her husband's Scottish seat, Meggerine Castle, Glen Lyon. Miss Maudi Darrell's marriage to Mr. John Bullough was one of the stage romances of last year. The civil ceremony at the Paddington Registrar's office on March 24, 1909, prevented Miss Darrell taking up the part of Mimi Vernon in The Devil at the Adelphi, and it was assigned to Miss Constance Hyem. Mr. John Bullough is the son by his second marriage of a millionaire Accrington engineer, and the stepbrother of Sir George Bullough, the owner of the Island of Rhum, off the Argyllshire coast.

Mrs. Bullough, who was only twenty-eight years of age, was three years older than her husband. She was the daughter of Mr. Hugh Jay Didcott, the "father" of music hall agents, who died last November, and was educated at the Convent du Sacré Cœur, Paris. After appearing in the chorus at Daly's, as one of the "six little wives" in San Toy, 1899, she went to the Gaiety to take up Miss Ethel Sidney's part in The Toreador, 1902. She next appeared in The Girl from Kay's at the Apollo, 1903; this was followed by her appearance at the Savoy, February, 1904, in The Love Birds; at the Apollo, May, 1904, played the part of Denise in Véronique; next appeared at Lyric, 1905, in The Talk of the Town, in which she was selected for a leading part by the author, Seymour Hicks; also in revival of Blue Bell in Fairyland, at Aldwych, Christmas, 1905, and in The Beauty of Bath, at same theatre, and the Hicks, 1906-7; at the Imperial, February, 1907, played Ethel Borridge, a popular music hall star, in the lamented St. John Hankin's piece, The Cassilis Engagement; at the Vaudeville Theatre during the summer of 1907 she succeeded Billie Burke in the leading comedy rôle of Mrs. Ponderbury's Past with great success. At the Aldwych, December, 1907, she played Victoria Siddons in The Gay Gordons; and at the Queen's Theatre, October, 1908, her performance of Toinette in The Belle of Brittany placed her in the front rank of stage favourites.

The funeral took place on Thursday at Innerwick Churchyard, Glenlyon. There was a large representative attendance, including tenantry on the estate. A short, impressive Presbyterian service was held at the castle, after which the cortège proceeded to the family vault, where the interment took place. The coffin was covered with numerous wreaths.

Bombay Skating Rink.

MR. SOUNDY has now secured a new location, close to the new General Post Office and quite central for all parts of the city. The new rink is 140ft. by 50ft., and has been decorated throughout in a manner most creditable to the management. A new band has been engaged, and everything points to a record season. Expert instructors are present each session, and a noticeable feature is the number of European ladies who find in rinking the ideal health restorer in this torrid clime.

The large audience at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening expressed their unanimous approval of George Reston Mallock's new comedy, The Career of Henry Jones, produced by the Play Actors. Scarcely convincing, farce and sentiment being curiously mixed, the play is full of amusing and witty lines, and the main idea is good. The scene of the prologue is the interior of the pork pie establishment of Henry Jones in the Borough. Jones, an enterprising young man, is determined on adopting different business methods from his late father; the goods were all right, but the old man was evidently too slow, and the son is about to try an elaborate system of advertising, and tells his mother—an uneducated, homely old soul, who does not seem to take altogether kindly to his new-fangled ideas—of his plans. Jones has a friend, Albert Ransome, an artist, who has painted to Jones's design an advertisement which will astound the universe. It represents Jones, in life-size, seated on a throne of pork pies, with a pork pie for a crown, a sceptre of sausages in one hand, and the other resting on a pig, a number of little pork pies and sausages embellishing the painting, and underneath the words, "Jones, the Pork Pie King." Ransome, bringing the completed work of art to the shop, tells Jones and his mother that he has taken the liberty of asking John Grisly, a grocer in a large way, round to see the painting, and hints that Grisly is likely to make an offer to Jones, of whose "live" business methods he is a great admirer. This Grisly, who is accompanied by his daughter Alice, does. He will give Jones the benefit of his money as an exchange for his valuable services, and a kind of partnership is agreed upon. Jones, it appears, has met Alice before, at the County Council classes, and implants a kiss on her cheek ere the enthusiastic party adjourn to the parlour for refreshment, the curtain coming down on Jones gazing admiringly on his picture as the Pork Pie King, and rapturously exclaiming, "Am I too ambitious?"

The first act takes place in the drawing room of the Earl of Bartripp's town house, ten years later. Jones and Grisly have achieved remarkable results with the partnership, for Jones is now an M.P. and enormously wealthy, and Grisly has been knighted. At the rising of the curtain Lady Paygrave, the sister of the Earl of Bartripp, is reading out a list of names of likely people to invite to an assembly at her brother's house—the majority of whom she is aware Bartripp, poor but proud, has no liking for. His daughter, Lady Diana, is engaged to Jones, who has broken off the engagement to Alice some years previously—a mutual arrangement on their part. Diana has no real affection for Jones, and tells him so; she is quite frank as to her feelings towards him. She respects him, but there must be no love making. It must be mentioned that none of the family are aware of Jones's connection with the pork pie business. There is only one of the pictorial "ads" where he is shown as the "Pork Pie King" now in existence, and old Grisly has this. He has satisfied the Earl as to his antecedents, and is now a gentlemanly and very earnest young man, anxious and determined to accomplish some good work. Amongst the Bartripps' invited guests are Sir John Grisly and his daughter Alice; and when Grisly comes on the scene he quickly makes it known to Jones that if he refuses to break off his engagement to Lady Diana and marry Alice he will get him turned out of the house. Alice herself does not want to wed Jones, for she is in love with the artist Ransome, now a distinguished R.A. Jones tells Grisly that he will not marry his daughter, and the latter, before the assembled company, then asks the Earl, knowing him to be an enthusiastic collector of works of art, if he will accept an old painting he has—an early example of Ransome's work. Bartripp will be pleased, and at the presentation of the picture on the following day all present are invited to attend. Jones and Diana—who ere this has learnt of her "'Enery's" connection with the sausage-meat and pork-pie business from the ingenuous Alice, and also begun to get very fond of him—guess at once what the picture is, and decide that at all costs Bartripp must not see it. He would never allow his daughter to wed the "Pork Pie King." The kindly, worldly aunt, Lady Paygrave, flippantly refers to the sensation in society such a revelation would create, but nevertheless bids the lovers cheer up, and she will help them. And Alice and Ransome also decide to assist them. When the covered canvas arrives Ransome asks to be left alone with it. And then comes the unveiling. Jones, thinking the game is up, tells the assembled party that the portrait about to be uncovered is that of a young man who was born in poor circumstances, and determined to rise, &c.—his own life-story. And when the picture is unveiled it is the bewhiskered face of old Grisly which is revealed to the astonished party. No one is more taken by surprise than Jones, unless it be Grisly. That crestfallen person shakes him by the hand, and departs, and Jones and Diana embrace.

An otherwise capital all-round representation was occasionally marred by the lapses of memory of some of the Play Actors. Mr. Eric Leighton was an earnest and sincere Jones, particularly effective being his delivery of the lines where he bitterly talks to Lady Diana of the opposition a man of lowly birth has to contend with, and also his explanatory speech at the conclusion. The underlying pride of Jones at having accomplished so much from such humble beginnings was skilfully indicated, and his love for Diana expressed very really. Miss Mabel Mannering as the frank and bantering Lady Diana acted with a keen sense of the humorous possibilities of the part, and gave a delightfully natural and easy portrayal; Miss Doris Digby as the ingenuous Alice also being responsible for a very praiseworthy impersonation. Miss Marie Linden as the worldly, kind-hearted Lady Paygrave gave a polished and acute enactment, delivering her very telling lines with exquisite point, and her representation throughout being an unimpeachable one; and the homely, plebeian Mrs. Jones was a capital character study as enacted by Miss Rose Moncrieff. Miss Kitty Lofting as Mrs. Snodgrass and Miss Kathleen Russell as Mrs. Stanhope were responsible for attractive and quite satisfactory portrayals. John Grisly was realistically undertaken by Mr. F. Annerley, the actor cleverly suggesting the surliness and masterful nature of the character; Mr. Ralph W. Hutton as the Earl of Bartripp gave a neat and quietly humorous impersonation; Mr. Lawrence Hanray as Albert Ransome was responsible for a clever and effective caricature; and Mr. A. L. Burke as Peter Snodgrass, Mr. William Stack as Colonel Bolliver St. John, Mr. Harold Chapin as Mr. Castleton, and Mr. Robson Paige as the Bishop of Bexhill all gave admirable little character sketches.

NEW PLAYS AT THE COURT.

A substantial bill was provided at the Court Theatre on the afternoon of the 28th ult., when Mr. Clive Currie presented the Rehearsal Company in two one-act plays and a three-act comedy. The last-named was written by Ursula Keene, and entitled

"THE ELDEST MISS DARRELL."

James Darrell .....MR. W. A. MACKERSY
Matilda Darrell .....MISS DOROTHY TANQUERAY
Lucy .....MISS MAY SAKER
May .....MISS ADAH DICK
Rupert .....MR. W. COATS-BUSH

Captain Cosmo Thynne ....MR. DENNIS CLEUGH

A sense of humour is displayed in the above piece, but the material utilised is so scanty that the whole three acts occupied less than an hour-and-a-half, including waits. Its picture of suburban life has an air of reality, but when the authoress ventures among the upper classes she becomes less interesting, and a weak second act is the result. Considerably strengthened, the piece would be of excellent service to the amateur. The characters are of a familiar pattern. There is Lucy Darrell, the abnormally self-sacrificing eldest daughter of a Norwood family, who uncomplainingly waits upon her abnormally selfish sisters and brother, and is apparently contented. The arrival of Cousin Mary, who has inherited a large fortune, changes the situation, for Mary offers to adopt Lucy, and takes her away to her country house in order that she may enjoy the delights of life so long denied her. Here Lucy wins the heart of Captain Cosmo Thynne, and has just accepted the offer of his hand, when news comes of her mother's death, and she determines to return home. The third act—some five months later—finds Lucy back at her "drudgery," as it is termed, though she commands a staff of three servants. Cousin Mary sends a letter requesting her to return, but Lucy's father forbids her not only to go, but to give up all thought of marriage. Then Lucy rebels, and bitterly denounces her selfish sisters, until her Captain arrives to soothe her and carry her off in his motor-car in quest of a marriage licence.

The best opportunities to the artists occurred in the first act, and the exponents of the various characters took full advantage of them. Miss May Saker quite succeeded in suggesting the sweet and patient disposition of Lucy. Her share of the love scene was particularly charming, and her fiery outburst towards the close was quite thrilling. A capital character-study was the James Darrell of Mr. W. A. Mackersy, who acted the stern paterfamilias with every effect. Miss Dorothy Tanqueray also cleverly assumed the affected superiority of Mrs. Darrell, and the two objectionable girls were ably contrasted by Miss Adah Dick and Miss Clarice Laurence, the latter as a pert young miss of seventeen being particularly good. Mr. W. Coats-Bush was amusing as the bad boy of the family, who, however, befriends his eldest sister; and Mr. Clive Currie presented a new kind of stage curate as the mincing Rev. Augustus Bankes. Miss Katherine Stuart was a sympathetic Cousin Mary; Miss Eileen Savage a refined Lady Catherine Thynne; Mr. Dennis Cleugh was duly agitated in the proposal scene in which Captain Cosmo Thynne shared; and Mr. Matthew Boulton appeared as Sir Horace Thynne.

Another novelty was a fantasy by Clarice Lawrence, entitled

"SERVANTS OF PAN."

The little piece, which was produced at Margate on Oct. 14, and noticed in our columns, is written in graceful language, but its story is not distinguished by clearness. The scene is laid in a hut in the depths of a mountain woodland, and the piece seeks apparently to show how the dwellers therein, an old man and woman and their son have penetrated the mysteries of the rural divinity Pan, and have been taken into his service, with the threat of dread punishment should his secrets reach the ears of other mortals. An adventurer from the plain below discovers the mysterious celebrations in progress, but is persuaded to leave by his sweetheart, who has followed him to the forest. Later, however, the god's threat is realised, for the people in the plains arrive in force to take the wood-dwellers captive, and put them to death. The playlet was elaborately mounted, and there was a creditable attempt to realise the thunders of the angry god. The cast was exactly the same as on the former production, and each member of it acted creditably.

The central item of the programme was the dramatic incident, The Passing of the Ironside, which has been improved and strengthened since its production at the Rehearsal in March last. Mr. Clive Currie repeated his impersonation of the stricken Roundhead, who dies in his chair after a fierce denunciation of the Monarchy, which he learns has just been restored. Miss Evelyn Vanderzee was again a prim and pretty Puritan maiden; and Mr. Matthew Boulton made a gallant and prepossessing lover. A very full house (which included Sir Charles Wyndham) gave authoress of The Eldest Miss Darrell had the distinction of a call.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT, on arriving at New York last Saturday in the liner Provence, received a remarkable welcome. In the steamer Mme. Bernhardt's state-room was decorated daily with bouquets which had been preserved by cold storage. Her sixty-sixth birthday on the 30th ult. was made the occasion for a grand dinner.

ON Monday, at Bow Street, a young woman named May Ayres, was charged, before Mr. Marsham, with stealing 7s. 6d. by means of a trick. Mr. Frederick King, the prosecutor, a clerk at Daly's Theatre, said that after the matinée on Oct. 8 the prisoner came to the manager's office and complained that she had lost her purse in the pit. She said she had come up from Winchester by an excursion train, and the purse contained her return ticket and about 14s., which was all the money she had with her. She added that 7s. 6d. would be sufficient to take her home, and witness handed her that amount, for which she signed a receipt. The prisoner then said, "To whom am I to send the money?" and a stamped addressed envelope was given to her. She mentioned that she would be coming to town again on the 15th, but witness did not see her again on that day, and he wrote to the address she had given at Winchester. The letter was, however, returned by the postal authorities.

MR. KING on Saturday evening was passing the Prince of Wales's Theatre, when he noticed the accused standing at the box-office. He instructed his wife, who was with him, to telephone to Vine-street Police Station, and upon the arrival of a detective-sergeant the woman was given into custody. The sergeant stated that when he got to the theatre Ayres was in the waiting-room. The manager asked her what she wanted, and she answered, "I have lost my purse in the theatre. It contained about £2." She had in her possession a purse containing about 8s., and papers bearing the names of persons connected with the Savoy, Comedy, and Criterion Theatres. Prisoner was remanded.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Cast in the stirring period of Cortes' invasion of Mexico, the story is picturesque and interesting. The love interest is centred in Malinche and Cortes, and the infatuation of Uloa for Tezcat, while the complications are provided in the conspiracy of Maya to supplant her son, Tezcat, in the inheritance legally belonging to Malinche, and in the jealousy of Technichpo, whose husband, Guatemoc, shows an unrequited love for Malinche. The vengeance of Cortes falls upon Guatemoc, who is compelled to fly for his life, the conspirators are saved from death by the strategy of Totona and Uloa, and a happy ending is assured.

Mr. Gill has aimed high in his music, and with a considerable measure of success. The numbers are tuneful and pretty, and the dialogue is bright and sparkling. Mr. Harry Farnsworth made a hit as Totona, helping along the fun in no uncertain manner. Mme. Woodward sang and acted with expression as Malinche, and the vocalism of Mme. Farnsworth was admirable in the part of Maya. Miss Helen Maude sang, acted, and danced in excellent style, and Mr. Albert Farnsworth's fine baritone voice gave full effect to the music of Guatemoc. The dances were arranged by Mme. Maud Bolton, and enthusiastic applause greeted each one. The scenery by Mr. J. Halford Ross was excellent, and a capable orchestra was under the bâton of Mr. J. E. Pickerill.

STEDMAN'S STAGE SOCIETY AT THE COURT.

For their second performance at the Court Theatre on Saturday, Oct. 29, the Stedman Stage Society again chose a difficult work as a test of their abilities—Henry Herman's adaptation of Scribe and Legouvé's Adrienne Lecouvreur. The important part of the ill-fated Adrienne was undertaken by Miss Iris Damon, who, it will be remembered, at the last performance did admirable work as Sophie Fullgarney in The Gay Lord Quex, and the actress may again be complimented on a creditable enactment of an arduous rôle, her death scene being particularly well played. Adrienne's unselfish love for the Count de Saxe and her gratitude to the devoted old prompter Michonnet were skilfully suggested, and the scene between Adrienne and the Princess de Bouillon was effectively handled. A finished and convincing portrayal of the Princess de Bouillon was given by Miss Frances Goring, the hatred of the jealous woman for her rival in the affections of the Count being realistically shown, and her portrayal throughout a decidedly meritorious one; and Miss Elsa Hall again did good work as the Duchess d'Aumont. Of the males Mr. Charles Koop is specially deserving of praise for his capital portrait of the kind old prompter Michonnet, the ambition of the old man to become a Societaire, his pride in the triumph of Adrienne, and his devotion to her throughout being cleverly depicted. Mr. Stanley Hughes as Count Maurice de Saxe was a gallant and earnest lover, being at his best in the concluding scenes of the play; and the gay Prince de Bouillon and the busybody and tiresome Abbé de Chazeuil were creditably undertaken by Mr. Stuart Gantner and Mr. Gerald Ermin. The performance gave evident delight to the large and friendly audience, and the principals were frequently recalled.

Adrienne Lecouvreur was preceded by a charming ballet divertissement, Perdita, founded on the sheep-shearing scene in The Winter's Tale. The dances are arranged by Mlle. Lilian Leoffeler and the music written by Mr. Archibald Benwell. Misses Dorothy Edward, Edith Mansfield, Phyllis Munro, Helen Hope, Violet Denzil, Hilda Munnings, and Hilda Boot were among the principals who contributed some delightful dancing in the dainty little entertainment, and the Maypole Dance, in which a number of youngsters represented shepherds, shepherdesses, &c., was attractive and skilfully executed. As a spectacle it was very pleasing to the eye, and the carefully trained young dancers appeared to thoroughly enjoy their exercises. Bouquets and other floral tokens of appreciation were handed to the principals at the conclusion, and all concerned in Perdita may be congratulated on the success of the pretty ballet.

TOURING AND RESIDENT MANAGERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The letter of Mr. W. Payne Seddon is worthy of being reproduced in pamphlet form and sent to every theatre proprietor. It is through lack of theatre managers that bad business so often results from a good average all-round travelling company. What successful commercial man would place an inexperienced, unsuitable person in charge of his business, at a paltry salary and no authority, to meet the necessities of the moment? How can such a man be expected to understand the working-up of a neighbourhood and to satisfy the requirements of the play-going instinct of his town? Then there is the foolish system of "window billing," which in many towns means that every week the tradesmen get free seats for exhibiting a bill. These worthy people can well afford to buy their seats, and should be the keenest supporters of a well-conducted, attractive theatre. Local representatives are not easily persuaded that bright surroundings from early-door opening, good music (not necessarily a large orchestra), and ever-changing channels of letting the neighbourhood know of the varied coming attractions, to be successful must be carried out in a thorough and generous spirit.

Touring managers (who likewise run theatres) are not blameless, for, "knowing the ropes," they endeavour to cut down gratuities, which in their own theatres they expect the travelling company to respect. Personally, I consider all such gratuities should be universally abolished. This, however, is but one of many "robbing Peter to pay Paul" tactics adopted.

For over twenty years I have kept a careful return of all takings, and I am led to think that more actual profit was made when the manager was a "showman" in the true sense of the word, and terms, on an average, an equable fifty or fifty-five per cent. Each party to the contract did their level best, and found it mutually advantageous.

There are good managers to-day, but they want a good salary and a free hand to develop the "showman's" business.—Yours faithfully,

HENRY TWEEDIE.

"Daneswood," Twickenham, Nov. 2, 1910.

MR. HARRY ROXBURY'S Mother Goose pantomime will play a short season at the Bordesley Theatre, Birmingham, opening at Christmas.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Earl of Derby, K.G., K.C.B., Sir Edward Moss, J.P., Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., Lord Mayor-Elect of Liverpool, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. William Henry Broadhead (Mayor of Blackpool), Mr. Walter De Frece, and Mr. W. W. Kelly are amongst those who have given their influential patronage to the benefit matinée to be given (by kind permission of Mr. Oswald Stoll) at the Empire, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 24th, in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund.

The following is the splendid programme of star artists who are appearing in Liverpool and the vicinity that week, and who have generously offered their services:—Ben Albert, Bros. Ashley, Adrienne Augarde and company, Margaret Cooper, Fred Curran, Mina Denvil, the Three Emersons, [illegible] Troupe, Florrie Gallimore, Archie G[illegible], Jack Hylton, Jennie J[illegible]y, Ketts and Windrum, Harold Montague, Bros. Obo, Orpheus, Lola Patey, Pichel and Sale, W. B. Raby, the Romanis, Harriett Rose, Rose and Challoner, Harry Russon, F. V. St. Clair, Verno and Voyce, Russell Wallett, Walton and Lester, Harry Weldon, and Bert Williams.

Such a company could not have been obtained without the co-operation of all the managements having halls in Liverpool and district, and special thanks are due to the Moss' Empires (Ltd.), and Messrs. De Frece, Butt, and Gibbons, Broadhead and Son, D. J. Clarke, Fred Wilmot, the Jacksons, and others for readily granting permission for artists engaged with them to appear.

The performers have rallied round grandly, while Mr. George Manners, manager of the Empire, and Mr. Tom McKay, the local representative of the Benevolent Fund, are working hard to ensure a crowded house. The box-office opens next Thursday, and already there is a keen demand for seats. The entire arrangements of the benefit are in the hands of Mr. Douglas Stuart, assisted by Mr. T. C. Callaghan.

Mr. John Lawson has scored another success in New York with his production of The Open Door. He is on his way to England on the Oceanic, having started on Wednesday, and is engaged to return to America on Jan. 16 to produce his other big works in New York prior to an extended tour of the States.

The Law and Parliamentary Committee of the Fulham Borough Council, reporting on the application by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a music and dancing licence in respect of the Fulham Empire, proposed to be erected in the Fulham-road, express the opinion that the application should be opposed by the Council, and recommend that the necessary steps be taken on the consideration of the application by the Licensing Committee of the London County Council.

It is pointed out by the Parliamentary Committee that the immediate neighbourhood and surrounding district are well supplied with places of public entertainment, and that the erection of the Fulham Empire would depreciate the value of the premises in the vicinity, which are mainly of a residential character, with a consequent loss of rates.

The Variety Artists' Federation are supporting Mr. Stoll's application for a licence, on the sensible plea that the opening of a new variety hall gives more work to the performer, who will also benefit by the exclusive contract foreshadowed in Mr. Stoll's scheme of management.

Miss Florence Smithers concluded the Moss and Stoll tour last week at Newport, where her comedy sketch Our Mary Jane proved as great a success as on previous visits. After playing Southampton, Lincoln, Nelson, and Huddersfield, Miss Smithers takes a week's holiday at Brighton, and then returns to London to prepare for the Lyceum pantomime, in which she will appear as one of the Sisters in Cinderella. At the end of the run she opens, for her third year, on the Moss-Stoll tour at Birmingham, and is fully booked, having only two vacant dates in 1911.

Miss Annie Hughes, who will terminate her tour with Jerome K. Jerome's play Miss Tommy at Blackpool to-night, commences on Monday her music-hall engagements, with Napoleon's Washerwoman, The Fourth Kiss, and Nell Gwynn. Miss Hughes visits Glasgow, Liverpool, and Manchester, The last-named city, where she is a great favourite, claims her for two weeks. On Dec. 5 Miss Hughes will make her reappearance in London at the Syndicate halls.

Miss Millie Hylton, the well-known musical comedy actress and old Gaiety favourite of a few years ago, who has been appearing with great success on the Moss-Stoll tour for many weeks past, underwent a serious operation for appendicitis on Monday afternoon last. The operation was performed by Sir Alfred Fripp, the eminent surgeon, at Netley House, Henrietta-street, Cavendish-square, W., and Miss Hylton's numerous friends will be pleased to learn that the latest bulletin says that she is making satisfactory progress. Miss Hylton has been confined to her house for the past three weeks, and we wish her a permanent and speedy recovery.

"The Loose End," the new one-act play to be produced on Monday at the Palace, is the work of Mr. Malcolm Watson, and is likely to provide playgoers with several distinctly novel "thrills," the denouement in particular being of a highly-sensational character.

That Mr. Malcolm Watson can be grimly dramatic or scathingly and satirically amusing in writing for the stage is proved by those two highly-successful playlets, The Conversion of Nat Sturge and Sanctuary. If the general trend of The Loose End is serious, it finishes on a comic note. The principal part is that of a dashing young English officer who has just won his D.S.O. and sustained by Mr. Lawrence Grossmith. To Mr. Leslie Carter has been assigned a rôle hardly less in importance; whilst other characters will be undertaken by Mr. Philip Kay, Mr. Eric Ward, Mr. J. Graham, and Miss Maggie Neill.

In Ship Ahoy! the nautical divertissement in one scene to be produced at the Empire Theatre in a few days, Mr. Fred Farren will play Algy Fanshawe (of the British Legation—on leave), Colonel Currie will be represented by Mr. M. Girard, Cornelia Lady Currie, by Miss A. Courtland, and their daughters, Kathleen and Fay, by Miss Unity More and Miss Phyllis Bedells. Miss Beatrice Collier will have a character after her own heart in that of Jhansi, an ayah. Leontine L'Etoile (a French danseuse) will be played by Mlle. Lydia Kyasht. The scene, by Mr. Bruce Smith, will be the upper deck of the liner Empire, homeward bound. The music is by Cuthbert Clarke, and the production is designed and supervised by C. Wilhelm.

Miss Elisa Loubery, a newcomer to the Coliseum, is announced as a comedienne of Anglo-Gallic descent. She has a well-trained mezzo, and possesses a good range. She sang on Monday a Scotch song, "My ain Folk," and "The Lost Chord."

Friends of Mr. T. G. Transfield, circus proprietor, will be sorry to hear that he is lying ill in ward 24, Bellevue Hospital, New York. He will be pleased to hear from old friends.

Mr. Sydney Tolfree, the popular manager of the Wakefield Hippodrome, has been unable lately to answer letters, &c., owing to a severe attack of influenza, but we are glad to say he is almost recovered.

Mr. John Terry and Miss Mabel Lambert, recently at the Alhambra, are following up their London triumphs by gratifying success in the provinces. At the King's Theatre, Southsea, last week, they were enthusiastically received by large audiences.

A "joy wheel" similar to the one that so delighted the Parisians at Luna Park, Porte Maillot, this summer, has been installed at the Scottish Zoo-Circus, Glasgow, and Mr. E. H. Bostock inaugurated it there on Wednesday by giving free rides to all who ventured to sample the new sensation.

Miss Renee Grahame was to have joined Carlton's merry variety company at the Hippodrome, Leigh, last week, but was unable to appear owing to her engagements in America. She had also to refuse an offer to play Dandini during the coming pantomime season, William Morris having secured her services for the next four months.

The picture matinées, with trial turns, at the Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, continue to run as merrily as ever. Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the manager, is to be congratulated on the success of his venture. This week he arranged for a flying visit of the Countess Bekoffska, the lightning flower-painter, who paints on a luminous panel in total darkness, and is the only artist who performs this clever act.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Alfred Sutcliffe, wife of Mr. Alfred Sutcliffe, of the Sutcliffe Family, who, after being compelled by the precarious state of her health to give up active work last July, died suddenly, from heart disease, on Thursday, 27th ult, at Edmonton, at the age of thirty-four. The deceased lady was born at Burlington, U.S.A.

Last week a special Petty Sessions of Birmingham Justices was held at the Victoria Courts for the purpose of dealing with two applications for licences for the performance of stage plays. Mr. Isaac Bradley presided. Mr. Kimpton applied on behalf of Mr. John Lewis Jones for the theatre licence of the Alexandra, John Bright-street. He said that Mr. Jones was one of the executors of the late Mr. Collingwood, and was now directly responsible for everything in connection with the theatre. The application was granted.

At the same time Mr. Mark Lorne applied for the transfer of the licence in respect of the Bordesley Palace Theatre, High-street, Bordesley, from Mr. Woodward to himself.

At the Ramsgate Borough Petty Sessions on Monday Mr. James Emery, solicitor, Ramsgate, applied for the grant of a monthly music and dancing licence in respect of the King's Electric Theatre, King-street, Ramsgate. He said the ground plans had been delivered and notice served on the Clerk and Chief Constable.

He (Mr. Emery) had a long report from the borough engineer. He did not know that it was necessary to read it all, but in the concluding paragraph Mr. Taylor said that, in his opinion, the hall was well designed, and in all particulars met the safety of the public. He had no hesitation in saying that the building was suitable to receive the desired licence.

The Chief Constable said he had that morning had a conversation, on the telephone, with the Mayor, who was too unwell to attend the Court. The Mayor said that, with respect to this application, the Watch Committee had inspected the theatre, and they wished him (the Chief Constable) to say that there was no objection, so far as the Watch Committee were concerned, to the application being granted. The committee inspected the building for cinematograph purposes only, and were prepared to grant a licence of that character. The application was granted for a month.

"Consul," the performing chimpanzee, was the subject of much amusement in an action brought by the proprietors of the Pavilion, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Ltd. Defendants were Mr. Fred Ginnett, Mr. Frank C. Bostock, and Mr. Harold L. Hilliard. Damages were claimed for alleged breach of contract, made by Mr. Hilliard, on behalf of the other two defendants, for a week's performance by "Consul" at the Pavilion, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Defendants denied that any such contract was made, and further, it was denied that Mr. Hilliard purported to act for the other defendants.

Opening for the defendants, Mr. Shearman said that at the time in question Bostock had leased the monkey to Mr. Ginnett for £70 a week, and therefore Ginnett was the only man competent to make binding engagements. Mr. Hilliard did not know of the lease, and that was how the mistake came to be made. It was an honest muddle, for which defendants were sorry. The case ended in an amicable and businesslike arrangement that Consul should perform at plaintiffs' music hall in Newcastle in Christmas week.

Amidst the chorus of praise concerning some recent acts of swordsmanship, the claims of some of our variety artists to recognition should not be lost sight of. Amongst these Mr. Charles Wragg holds a worthy position, and next week, at the Hippodrome, Sutton (a new venture which has been piloted to success by its present proprietor, Mr. Harry Eventio), the patrons of the establishment will have the opportunity of witnessing some astonishing feats of strength and dexterity.

Mr. Wragg will cut the carcase of a sheep in two twice nightly (not the same sheep, of course) with one blow of his sword. With another blow he will sever in two a 2in. bar of solid lead, besides displaying other wonderful examples of his skill. Mr. Eventio is to be congratulated on his "up-to-dateness" in gauging the popular taste and catering for it.

The New Hippodrome, Exeter, of which the proprietor is Mr. Fred Karno, and the resident and acting-manager Mr. Frederick Sandy, attains its second birthday this week. It has, under the fostering care of the resident-manager, attained a very high degree of prosperity, and has now long since passed the stage when there was any doubt as to its ultimate success. The programmes have always been maintained at a very high standard of excellence, and the anniversary bill is, naturally, no exception to the rule. Marcel and Boris are aptly described as extraordinary equilibrists. An attractive burlesque vocal item is contributed by the Four Vagabonds, and Tom Jones, the whimsical Welshman, scores a big success. There are many other attractions.

Mr. Gus Elen returns on Monday to the Coliseum—a house where he has a legion of admirers.

Miss Lil Hawthorne has made a genuine hit in New York. All the papers speak very highly of her performance.

Miss Katie Marsh has been engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur to play in his pantomime next Christmas at the Kennington Theatre.

Mendel arrives in England by the s.s. China to-day, and opens at the Palace Theatre, Plymouth, on Monday.

Among the attractions at Richmond Hippodrome next week is Percy Honri's Concordia. Mr. David C. James is anticipating big business.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Houdini are interesting themselves in the Music Hall Home, and have already started collecting for the New Year's Fund.

Miss Dorma Morgan, who recently made such a success at King's Theatre, Edinburgh, has been engaged to play principal boy in Mother Hubbard, to be produced at that house on Dec. 22.

It is quite on the cards that Miss Ethel Irving will appear at the Coliseum in a version of Dolly Reforming Herself. Miss Irving's art should find a host of admirers among music-hall audiences.

Mr. Morris Abrahams wishes to tender, through our columns, his sincere thanks to all those artists who so kindly appeared at his benefit on the 28th ult.

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon next.

Mr. Ernest Lepard, the popular manager of the Canterbury, will take the chair at the second Vaudeville Club Bohemian Concert of the season, which is to be held on Sunday, Nov. 13. Everybody will be merry and bright.

Mr. Douglas Stuart informs us that owing to the increased size of his new "Railway Fare Book," the Post Office authorities are charging 2½d. for postage, so will intending purchasers kindly forward 8½d. for a copy instead of 8d.?

Mr. George Graves on Monday will be making his first appearance at the Tivoli in his funny and successful sketch Kofo, recently at the Palace. The production is kept right up to date by this wonderfully ready comedian, who will be supported by a strong company.

An interesting golf match for the music hall golf pennant took place at Chorlton Golf Club, Manchester, on Oct. 26 between J. Rickaby and J. Cullen (Cullen and Carthy) over 36 holes, resulting in J. Cullen being returned the winner by 11 up and 10 to play.

Mr. Albert Chevalier is paying another visit to America, where he has been a persona grata ever since he presented to Uncle Sam his character impersonations and his poetic conception of the coster. This time he is going out to produce in New York, on the 28th inst., a play entitled Daddy Dufard, by himself and Lechmere Worrall. As may be gathered from the title, the play is founded on Le Père de la Débutante, first adapted by Alfred Wigan for the English stage, and produced at the old Princess's in October, 1849, with the adaptor in the title-rôle, Achille Talma Dufard.

The character has been a favourite one with comedians ever since the production alluded to, and The First Night—to give the production its English title—has been revived many a time and oft to exploit the talents of a star comedian. Of late years Sir Herbert Tree has made the character his own, playing it at the Haymarket in 1888—though not for the first time. Mr. Chevalier, whose French accent is irreproachable, is particularly partial to the character; and his rendering of it at the Coliseum a year or two since will be well remembered. Of the jealousies of the stage, which is really the clou of the piece, the late Henry J. Byron wrote in The Prompter's Box, which was certainly based in its main incidents on the story of The First Night.

Mr. Pat Carey a broth of a bhoy as an Irish comedian, is returning to the stage. Pat's Hibernian comedy is of the cheeriest sort, and the man or woman who comes under the influence of his geniality when he is behind the footlights takes a more rosy view of life. Irish comedy of late has not been too popular. Pat Carey should alter this condition of things.

Mr. Bob Pender, Drury Lane clown, and his troupe are at the Olympia, Paris, with their giant act, which made such a hit at Drury Lane pantomime. They are remaining at la ville lumière till the end of November, when they return to Drury Lane for Christmas. The Parisians, especially the juveniles, have taken very kindly to their unique and admirably presented act.

In view of the fact that the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund Benefit Matinée, by kind consent of Mr. Stoll and the directorate, is to take place on Thursday, the 24th of this month, at the Empire, Liverpool, artists who have personal friends in that city (and there must be many) would do well to make the forthcoming event as widely known as possible, by word of mouth, letter, or otherwise.

The 682nd meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday, when Mr. Fred Herbert (chairman) presided. Messrs. Chas. Cohen (vice-president), T. C. Callaghan, Tom Packer, Arthur Rigby (hon. treasurer), Jack Straw, J. W. Cragg, Lieut. Albini, Chris. Van Bern, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary) were also present.

The nominations for the positions of chairman and vice-chairman to the Association for the forthcoming year were opened. Mr. Fred Herbert was unanimously re-elected chairman. The names of Messrs. Harry Blake, Lieut. Albini, and Arthur Gallimore will be sent out to ballot of the committee for the position of vice-chairman.

The weekly financial statement showed an increase of thirty-six new members, and receipts of £50 14s. 6d. The hon. treasurer's monthly statement disclosed the following position of the funds: Reserve fund, £545 17s. 6d.; deposit account, £168 16s. 6d.; current account, £105 4s. 3d.; cash in hand, £36 19s. 9d.; total of £855 17s. The amount from the 1s. extra on the cards has resulted in a sum of £32 12s. being collected for the V.A.B.F. for the month.

Mr. Harry Nation, at the Blue-Eyede Maid hostelry, Borough, S.E., organised a very successful inaugural concert on Thursday, the 27th ult., in connection with the "Islanders," whose chairman is Viscount Esher. The following well-known artists appeared:—Edward Ind, Syd Godfrey, Acton Holmes, Percy Hannan, Harry Dunbar, H. N. Eccles, the Two Harrys (second sight act), Master Bert (mandoline soloist), Mons. Earle (conjurer), Miss Dorothy Irving, Miss Hettie Lee, M. Cowan, and H. Nation. Mr. Sam Holman was in the chair.

Mr. Seymour Hicks will present on Monday at the Coliseum an "arrangement" of the tragedy of Richard III., in two tableaux and seven scenes. He will play the Crookback.

Mr. Hubert Carter, who has done admirable work in Shakespearean character at His Majesty's and other houses, will appear as Henry, Duke of Richmond, and there will be upwards of a hundred supernumeraries.

The overture and the incidental music are from the pen of Mr. Edward German; the scenery will be from the brush of Mr. W. T. Hemsley; and Mr. Frank Parker will "produce," which is another way of saying that we shall have a fine spectacle.

The Three Victors have scored an immediate success in The Flower of the Prarie, being at once engaged to open on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell. This new Western musical episode is from the pen of Mr. Herbert Shelley.

Miss Maude May Murray, on concluding her engagement at the Hippodrome, Buxton, last Saturday, was presented by the Countess Bekoffski with a beautiful painting. Miss Murray has been interesting and delighting audiences at the Empress, Brixton, on her reappearance at that house, by her beautiful dancing.

Mlle. Denarber, who was to have made her début in this country at the Palace Theatre a month ago, has so far recovered from her accident as to be able to appear at that house next Monday, when The Balloon Mystery will be presented for the first time. The air vessel propelled by the fair voyager will float over the auditorium, and she will sing and converse.

It will be remembered that Mlle. Denarber made a balloon journey over London on Oct. 2, and travelled to Essex. On arriving at Roydon it was decided to descend. It was then found that the valve was faulty, and the party were dashed to the ground from a height of over 7,000ft. How the aeronauts escaped instant death will never be explained except by the fact that the grappling iron of the balloon caught in an oak tree for a brief second and thus partially broke the fall.

"How is it done?" will probably be the question which will exercise the minds of the Palace Theatre audience on Monday evening, when the "Balloon Mystery" will be presented for the first time. A large balloon will float out from the stage and make a tour of the auditorium. In the car will be Mlle. Denarber, who will sing and engage the members of the audience in conversation. Apparently it can be propelled at will, and is under the full control of its fair pilot.

Miss Fanny Robina and Miss Florence Cooper, although early turns, have been meeting with great success at the Empire, New Cross, this week.

Miss Maie Hoey, who made such a success in their last pantomime, and also on their Bedouin Beauty tour, is specially re-engaged for pantomime by Messrs. Murray King and Clark.

Miss Florrie Robina will sing to-night three new songs for Mrs. Bayles at the old Victoria Palace, Waterloo-road. These numbers have been specially written for Miss Robina by two famous authors and composers.

The marriage of Carl Robarts (Charles Braham), an acrobat and gymnast who won European fame in the seventies, to Miss Julia Amelia Schami, took place at the Hammersmith Vestry Hall on Thursday. The bridegroom is the brother of Harry Braham, the impersonator, now in America.

At a Dalston concert on Saturday last the Rev. Bramwell Evans, nephew of "Gipsy" Smith, appeared in a suit of white ducks, and sang two comic sungs, one of which was Mr. Herbert Rule's "La, la, la, la (sing this chorus with me)." He provided one of the most popular turns of the evening.

At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday petitions were presented by Mr. Easton and Mr. Cobb against a proposed new music hall at Fulham, one being from the parishioners of St. James, Fulham, the parish in which the new hall would be situated, and the other from the shareholders and patrons of the Granville.

Mr. Handel Phasey, acknowledged by the American Press as the British Sousa, is a very busy man. Frank Bostock has engaged his great band to play at Earl's Court Rink, which opens next week, and other sections of this big band are playing at Balham Rink and Clapham-road Rink. Phasey knows how to catch the ear as well as the eye.

Miss Mabel Mavis, the well-known "novelty" musician, whose cleverness and versatility has often been recognised in our columns, has this week added Bristol to her captures, her first appearance in that city having been the signal for an outburst of journalistic enthusiasm which must be very gratifying to the gifted lady. Next week she reappears at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth.

Mr. Leslie Paget's success at a Saturday matinée at the Empire, Shoreditch, in some Dickens impersonations, led to his immediate engagement at that house, and dates until 1913. Miss Adèle Levey, who introduced this promising young actor to the management at Shoreditch, recently gave some of her monologues and stories at the Eccentric Club, where she earned the warm encomiums of the members, and was warmly complimented by Mr. Richard Warner.

Mr. R. A. Roberts, the English protean artist, has been letting the readers of The Strand Magazine know something of the secrets of his quick changes on the stage in Dick Turpin and Ringing the Changes. He also tells a little story, which is a vivid illustration of the chequered career of a star. Mr. Roberts came to London nearly twenty-five years ago without a penny in his pocket.

He had picked up an engagement at the Waterloo Rooms as an entertainer at one guinea a performance, which was never paid him. At the end of his first performance a gentleman and lady asked to be introduced to him, and they invited him to their flat to supper. Mr. Roberts had been twenty-four hour without food, so he did not hesitate about accepting the invitation. "It was a most enjoyable meal," said Mr. Roberts, "and I made a very big one; my host's little son, a keenly intelligent boy of thirteen, sat opposite to me and talked a great deal about the theatre. He told me he had made up his mind to go on the stage.

"I stayed at the house of my kind entertainers, who knew nothing about my circumstances, until long after midnight. As I bid them good-night, and glanced round at the pretty supper-table and bright fire in the grate, my heart sank, for I had nowhere to go that night. I slept, as a matter of fact, on the Embankment, and it was freezing terribly hard. The little boy who was so stage-struck has since become known to the world as Granville Barker, dramatic author and brilliant stage producer, and recently he told me he remembered the Waterloo Rooms very well."

To dissolve the mists of misunderstanding Mr. Stoll has issued a statement with reference to the Grange Estate, Kilburn, in which he says: "Judging by the report I have seen in the local paper, and a batch of letters which have come on to me, a good deal of misapprehension seems to exist in regard to the question of the Grange Estate, and I think it is desirable that I should make the position clear.

"I am one of the principal purchasers of the entire estate of over nine and a half acres, and it is only a small portion of the frontage facing the High-road upon which it is proposed to erect the Kilburn Coliseum.

"This theatre will be, if erected, of a high-class character, and will be conducted in the same way as I have for years past conducted the Coliseum at St. Martin's Lane, and the entertainment will be of a similar high-class character, and no intoxicants will be sold in the building.

"It is only through my being able to utilise this part of the frontage, and to take this at a somewhat larger price than it would realise for the purposes of shop property, that my solicitors (Messrs. George Reader and Co.) have been enabled to offer to the Council the large piece of the back land at the low price which they have done, and to thus render an open space, which is admittedly, on all hands, so great a necessity for Kilburn, possible to be acquired."

Miss Amelia Trapnell (of the Trapnell Family) has collected the most money in twelve months for the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. Miss Melinda May, on behalf of the committee of that deserving charity, begs most gratefully to thank the following: Mr. Bruce Miller (donation), £1; Miss Rosie Coleman (Mrs. Conlin), collecting 5s.; Miss Flo Banks, collecting 5s.; Mrs. Fawkes, collecting 2s. 6d.; Miss Irene Rose, baby's new woollen jackets; Miss Lottie Albert, letters for hospital; Miss Bessie Bishop, slippers and hose; Mrs. Kellner, useful parcel baby's clothing. The Guild has some very nice fancy dress costumes for sale—no reasonable offer refused. Will anyone make an offer for the fifteen large sized band books, given by Messrs Dennis and Morris (per Sisters Macarte)?

Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception, held every Wednesday from four to five o'clock. Will anyone help us with Mrs. Arthur Hatton's address? She has the winning number (50), and the handsome portière curtain belongs to her. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed. Will subscribers please make cheques payable to Music Hall Ladies' Guild?

At the Bloomsbury County Court on Wednesday Judge Bacon heard the case of Selinger v. Macnaghten. It was an action by Mr. Archibald Selinger, professionally known as Archie Pitt, to recover from Mr. Frank Macnaghten the sum of £11 15s., two weeks' salary, for alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. Giveen and the defendant by Mr. Martin O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. Blackwell). The chief question involved was the demur of an artist to take the first turn.

The plaintiff gave evidence, and said that he was to appear at the Foresters' Hall from Sept. 5 to 12, and another week at the Bow Palace. He was billed to appear at the Foresters', and he produced a bill. On the 5th (Monday) he went to the rehearsal, and the stage-manager came to him and said he had a nice turn. "What is it?" plaintiff asked, and he said, "The first turn." He went down to see the stage-manager, and asked him why he was to have the first turn, and he said, "I don't know; you had better see Mr. Baugh." He sent a note to Mr. Baugh, who replied that it was his turn, and he could not alter it. Mr. Baugh also asked him if he thought the programme could be altered to suit everyone, and said that if the Variety Artists' Federation were to make out the programme he would go out of the business and start as a greengrocer. (Laughter.)

Mr. Murray said that the plaintiff told him that unless his turn was altered he would not go on. Witness was not empowered to alter the programme, and told him that if he saw Mr. Baugh perhaps he would alter it for him. Plaintiff said, "It doesn't matter; I will get a doctor's certificate, and he knows where to find me."

Other evidence having been given, Mr. Baugh said a message was brought to him that Mr. Pitt would not go on, and, in consequence, he had to make arrangements for another turn. When he saw the plaintiff he told him that if the artists were going to run the theatre he would sooner start a greengrocer's shop. They had been friends, and they were still friends, he hoped. Mr. Baugh added, "You must have a first turn, and there must be the last one."

Judge Bacon said the main feature of the case was that the former, not finding his position in the programme to be what he considered his merits justified, intimated that he would not go on. The point that followed was, the performer having declined to go on, did any money payment devolve upon the defendants as a result of his refusal to fulfil his item in the programme? If money ment resulted, that must be taken into consideration. He thought an additional picture was obtained, that a money payment did not result, and, therefore, he must give judgment for the defendants, with taxed costs.

Messrs. Edward H. Lucas and Teddy Pirman were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers Order upon Friday, Oct. 28. The ceremony was performed by Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman, W.T., assisted by Terrier Andie Caine, V.T., and Organist Terrier Arthur Were. Messrs. Peter Birmingham and Sid Doody were initiated into the Mysteries of the Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman, W.T., assisted by Terrier C. W. Kloof, V.T., Organist, and Terrier Russell Brandow. Messrs. Joe Archer and Jack Austin have successfully passed the ballot. Applications for membership have been received from Messrs. Harry Alvey (X Rays), Fred Leon (X Rays), Phil Hayes (Barnes and Ascot), Charles A. Rowcroft (Zettmah), Frank Forsyth, Frank Sylvo, Jack Lane, Harry Valdo, and James Valdo (Valdo Bros.).

A hearty welcome was extended to Terriers G. P. R. Burgess, A. De Brean, Alf. Cawthorn, Fred Carr, and Frank Boyce upon their reappearance in the kennel on Sunday last. Terrier Bert Marsden acted as W.D., and Terrier Alan Rand as Y.B. In the absence of the Secretary, Terrier Arthur Were (who was attending the banquet of the O.P. Club), Terrier Tom Packer undertook the duties of the office. The Secretary desires to express his sincere thanks to Terrier Tom Packer.

Terriers and others are requested to note that Mr. Alf. Hampson is no longer a member, that he severed his connection with the Association many years ago, and that his representment as its founder and organiser is unauthenticated. The officers for November are as follows:—Terrier Andie Caine, W.T.; Terrier Fred A. Hooper, V.T.; Terrier C. C. Cornish, W.I.; and Terrier Arthur Were, Organist.

A ladies' concert will be held at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, on Sunday next at 8.15 p.m. Terrier Bert Marsden has been appointed M.C. Terrier Arthur Were represented the Association at the funeral on Monday last of the late Mrs. Harry Blake.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

In common with lesser productions at smaller houses, in a few short weeks the greatest money-spinner in the dramatic world, staged at one of the largest houses in the mightiest city in Europe, will have to retire for the nonce to give way for the reign of King Pantomime, and from Old Drury to the most distant Thespian fanes preparations to receive the monarch in fitting style are in progress. In all and every instance those "Masters of the Musick," Messrs. Francis and Day have been, or are being, consulted as to the songs, ballads, and marches to be employed in his honour, for it would not be meet to go for music to grace a purely British institution elsewhere than to the house which has, with its other British compeers, supplied the principal pantomimes with music for well over a quarter of a century. That is why managers and producers and artists return year after year to the firm of Francis and Day, knowing exactly what they want to get, and getting what they want exactly.

Legion have been the applications for those great pantomime numbers, "Flanagan," "There are nice girls everywhere" (which Mr. Whit Cunliffe is still making his pièce de resistance at the London Pavilion and elsewhere), and "Hi! Hi! Mr. McKie!" and that dashing song which is own brother to "Let's all go down the Strand," and which is entitled "Come with me down Regent-street." Miss Winifred Ward and Miss Daisy James have been instrumental in making this last so famous, as it already is. All the above mentioned songs are in Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue.

Of that great ballad "If I had the world to give you" it is impossible to say more than that it is ear-marked for use in pantomime everywhere where sound sentiment and a lovely melody are desiderata. At certain great cultured provincial centres—Bristol might be cited as one—such a song as "If I had the world to give you" will be hailed as the gem it is, and its known record with brilliant singers has been its own chief recommendation to pantomime talk. It is issued by Messrs. Francis and Day in three keys.

The melody of "On the silvery sands," the lyric by that brilliant young journalist, Arthur C. Findon, and music from the pen of Herman E. Darewski, will be hard to escape from on Boxing Night and before, having been secured on every hand and in all quarters for Christmastide use. Miss Madge Temple, who has been singing it nightly during the current week, both at the Oxford and at Poplar, makes on Monday her initial appearance at the Pavilion, Glasgow, where, in addition to "On the silvery sands," the popular lady will sing her other great success, "I'm looking for Mr. Wright." Both are issued by Mr. David Day's firm.

Miss Ada Reeve has been packing the Camberwell Empire to suffocation nightly, and in new songs and old favourites has shown herself to be what all know her as—a consummate artist without parallel. Her new humorous song "And just then he fell out of bed" is being much sought after for pantomime. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

The transformation scene of yore having been relegated to limbo at most pantomime houses, its place is now filled by a set scene of transcendent beauty, which requires much thought beforehand, a suitable peg to paint it round being often hard to find or hit upon. This year Messrs. Francis and Day's lovely song "In cherry blossom time in Japan" is being seized upon as the very thing (recent happenings at the White City aiding), and scenic artists and electricians (and vocalists) are all happy.

Still further reprints of Messrs. Francis and Day's two volumes of songs for the use of artists engaged in pantomime are being called for, and both Book No. 1 for principal boy and girl and Book No. 2 for comedian and dame are already being spoken of—as were their predecessors of former years—as worthy of being preserved as epitomes of the successes of the pantomimes of season 1910-11. One would imagine a limerick competition was being adjudged at the world's song market at 142, Charing Cross-road, to see the piles of sixpenny postal orders received daily for postage of one or other volume.

As was only to be expected, "You want to go to Tokio," "'Tis a faded picture," "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland," "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," "Hail, smiling morn! (Will you sing this glee with me?)," "You taught me how to love you," and that comic scream "We don't want a girl" are daily being asked for, each and all having been weighed in the variety balance and not found wanting, and therefore just the things for pantomime. All are issued by the celebrated house of Messrs. Francis and Day.

Among the multiplicity of good things just acquired for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day is a new song, entitled "Won't you take your old place?" It is by Leonard Cooke and Arthur Stroud, the music being by Alf. J. Lawrance.

A humorous song, with the title of "You'd better go back again," will shortly be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is written, composed, and sung by Mr. Frank Wood.

George A. Stevens and Charles Ridgwell, who can always be relied on for clever and tuneful numbers, have just disposed of to Messrs. Francis and Day a song named "Will you walk along the Prom—Prom—Prom?"

In the distinguished list of artists who have featured that fine song of Messrs. Francis and Day's "I've got rings on my fingers," none have stood out with more éclat than that superlatively gifted artist, Miss Winifred Hare. At the Palace, Camberwell, the popular lady has been cheered to the echo nightly for her rendering of this great feature of the forthcoming pantomimes, a rendering that has stood out as a thing by itself reason of her unique reading and insight of its possibilities.

At the Marlborough Theatre during the week now ending Miss Maie Ash has been singing in Leslie Stuart's delightfully musical Captain Kid and has nightly earned the approbation of multitudes of visitors for her rendition of the interpolated march-time song "Take your girlie where the band is playing." It has been secured for the leading pantomimes, and Messrs. Francis and Day have in it one that will be hard to even equal, let alone excel, for purposes where a march is imperative in a Christmas annual. It is written and composed by Fred Day.

At Edmonton and at Camberwell, and at the Canterbury also, and with audiences at exclamouring for more, Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, has during the week been regretfully allowed nightly at length to leave the stage by his myriads of admirers. His great songs "Mister Owl" and "There's a little black cupid in the moon" promise to be the rage of many a pantomime, thanks to their alluring melodies, no less than to the inherent cleverness of their lyrics, and, most of all, to the vogue given them by the artist. Messrs. Francis and Day continue to receive what may be better described as supplications rather than applications for each of these "gilt-edged securities" for pantomime. At the Euston Palace M. Foot-Gers has been nightly giving a fine imitation of Mr. Elliott in "If the man in the moon were a coon."

The Ted Snyder Music Publishing Co., whose advertisement appears opposite the Stoll "calls" this week, have a great song they have just published, entitled "Kiss me, my honey, kiss me," which has a chorus that is both original and taking. No less a person than Mr. Maurice Farkoa, the great concert artist, is going to sing this number, and it is not likely to be put on the market in the cheap edition.

Miss Hetty King, one of pantomime's greatest favourites, has secured the sole rights of the Snyder Company's patriotic song, entitled "My dream of the Union Jack," and has got same under rehearsal, and she will produce it in the form of a big scena. With such an artist as Miss Hetty King to handle a song of this nature, the success of it is a foregone conclusion.

Miss Maidie Scott will shortly produce the Ted Synder Company's big Dame song, entitled "If the managers only thought the same as Ma." This number justly deserves to be the Dame song of the year. The title is sufficient to tell the artist what the song is about without further explanation, and in the hands of such a capable artist as Miss Maidie Scott this ought to prove to be another winner for the Ted Snyder Co.

That famous eccentric comedian Mr. George French has got the Ted Snyder Company's "I'm a happy married man" in rehearsal, and will produce same shortly. This is a song every comedian should get hold of for pantomime, as well as that other great song, entitled "My wife's gone to the country," which Phil Parsons has scored such an enormous success with all over the country.

Miss Jessie Templeton's great song "When the bloom is on the heather" and George Lashwood's "Ring me up some rainy afternoon" are two numbers which principal boys should make a point of getting hold of. The choruses are just "the thing."

"THE BILLPOSTER."

Fantastic Sketch, by Arthur Anderson and Herbert Sargent; Music by Herman Finck, Produced at the Palace Theatre on Monday, Oct. 31.

Jim Banks ..... Mr. Lauri de Frece
Mephistopheles ..... Mr. Harry Gordon
Minnie the Milkmaid ..... Miss Mabel Sealby

Mr. Lauri de Frece, who made all London laugh as the Keeper of the Crocodiles in the comic opera Amasis, is at the Palace Theatre this week in The Billposter, a fantastic production that should increase in amusing incident and comic business with the passage of time. It is funny in idea, and the blending of the Faust and Pygmalion and Galatea legends is effective enough for the purposes of humour. Jim Banks, a billsticker, falls in love with a hoarding picture of Minnie the Milkmaid. Near by Mephistopheles stands in all the distempered effrontery of a coloured poster. In an unguarded moment Jim expresses his longing for the power of the ruler of Hades, and calls to his aid his majesty of the netherworld. The modern Mephisto agrees to come to the help of Jim on the condition that the latter gives himself up body and soul, and is willing to change places. Lightnings flash and thunder rattles. The changes are effected, and Minnie materialises. But she does not care for Jim, the new Mephisto, and the latter is not enamoured of her. Both demon and billposter resume their original positions, and Minnie and Jim Banks, at the curtain fall, retire to a watchman's hut. Miss Mabel Sealby, who will be remembered for her piquant performance of Magda in A Balkan Princess, makes a winsome milkmaid, and scores in song and dance; Mr. Lauri de Frece sings and acts in quaint fashion; and Mr. Harry Gordon gives efficient support as Mephisto.

"THE THIRD DEGREE."

Dramatic Sketch, Produced by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company at the Euston Palace on Monday, Oct. 31.

Inspector Reynolds ..... Mr. Chas. East
Casey ..... Mr. Gerald Valentine
Mrs. Von Hudson ..... Miss East Robertson
Rogers ..... Mr. Oswald Williams
Sergeant ..... Mr. William Bell
Second ..... Mr. Arthur Kellard

This sketch, which has had a great success in the provinces, was produced for the first time in town on Monday at the Euston, and proved an instantaneous success. Dealing with the system by which prisoners in America are tortured, and even starved, to make them confess to crimes of which they are often innocent, this tabloid drama grips you with interest from start to finish.

The scene is the headquarters of the police at New York, and depicts a prisoner being commanded to confess to a crime. Casey, the unfortunate man's name, protests his innocence to the inspector; but a burglar's jemmy and an injured hand leaves no doubt in the official's mind of the prisoner's guilt. After urging the wretched fellow to own up to his supposed crime, the inspector turns to threatening him, and hints to Casey the terrible results that will follow if he still remains obdurate. At last, seeing it is no good, he orders Casey to the cells, meeting with cold indifference the captive's passionate outburst of a wronged man.

No sooner has Casey been led away than a Mrs. Von Hudson, the wife of a millionaire, appears on the scene, and attempts to elicit information as to the whereabouts of a man who rescued her child from a burning building, and then suddenly disappeared. The inspector informs her that it will be almost impossible for him to help her; but the lady's quick eye has noticed a photo on the table, that of Casey, and immediately declares that her search is ended, for he is the hero she wishes to find. She then leaves the office with an assurance that Casey shall be sent to her in a few hours. Casey is sent for, and the inspector, in broken sentences, tries to make amends for his harsh treatment. The curtain falls on Mrs. Von Hudson kissing the wounded hand of the now overjoyed prisoner.

Undoubtedly this is one of the finest sketches of its sort that have been put on here, and Mr. Sleath must be congratulated on having secured such a capable company. As Casey, Mr. Gerald Valentine brought out all the strong points of the character, and was a decided success; while the same must be said of Mr. Charles East as the Inspector, whose sudden change from a stern and remorseless official to a forgiving and ashamed man, was a remarkable piece of acting. Miss East Robertson gave a pleasing study of the millionaire's wife, and the other parts were filled with credit.

Vaudeville will be given twice daily in the Centre Transept of the Crystal Palace on Monday next and during the week, the artists including: The Four Flying Oreninos, the most sensational act in vaudeville; Robert Gilbert's Canine Wonders; Rose and Wold, the great comedy acrobats; Warriner, in clever musical act; and the Brothers St. Clair, great comedy trick cyclists.

A COMPLAINT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Why—I only ask for information—is it that the majority of the newspapers—more especially the dailies—omit the name of the author when noticing the production of a music hall sketch?

Quite recently I have had several sketches produced at West End halls, and, with scarcely an exception, no mention was made of the author's name, although it appeared on the programme in each instance. Surely this is rather hard luck on the humble scribe!—Yours faithfully,

HERBERT C. SARGENT.

HOWARD AND HARRIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—A slight error occurred in last Saturday's Era. Referring to "Howard and Harris," it stated that they are booked up until 1913 by "Somers and Warner." Now, I have booked these artists for many years, and am booking them still, and I am pleased to say they are excellent clients. I should, therefore, be much obliged if you would correct this statement.—Yours faithfully,

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., a few weeks ago, acquired a song of the Irish persuasion, entitled 'Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town," which they were sanguine from the first would prove to be far and away the finest number of the year, from the Hibernian standpoint. Managers and artists are unanimous in endorsing the opinion of the publishers respecting this song, and it has been very extensively booked for pantomime for some time past. On Monday next, at the Palace, Oldham, that favourite performer, Miss Carlotta Levey, is specially producing "Maggie Ryan," and on the 14th inst. will make it her pièce de résistance at the Oxford and her other important London engagements. Principal boys or girls should make a special point of hearing Miss Levey in this song, on her return to town.

Mr. Mark Sheridan, who should certainly be one of the finest judges of the merits of a comedy chorus song in the business, absolutely swears by Feldman's great new number, "By the sea," as the best song of its type that has come his way for many years past. He will specially feature it in a scene that has been written into the Court Theatre, Liverpool, pantomime; but, prior to pantomime, he will introduce this taking song to the West-end, when he starts a special couple of weeks' engagement at the Oxford and Tivoli. Mr. Sheridan's latest wheeze, "Nothing doin'," certainly doesn't seem to be exemplified in his case.

The Holborn Empire patrons this week have emphatically endorsed the verdict that the habitués of the Oxford have pronounced on "By the light of the silvery moon" for a month past, viz., that this song, in dainty Miss Ella Retford's hands (to say nothing of her feet) is absolutely the "greatest thing that ever happened" in the song line. The Holborn denizens of high Olympus give forth the chorus in lusty accents calculated to cure the deaf, and the applause that greets the fair singer at the conclusion of her delightful "moon" number should be an earnest of what principal boys may expect for their rendering of the same song, if they are only well-advised enough to "go and do likewise." This number is published by Feldman.

One of the prettiest songs of the "Redwing" type that America has given us for several years is that dainty Indian romance, "Silver Bell," which Messrs. Feldman and Co. are "placing" everywhere for pantomime. That most accomplished artist, Miss Maggie Carr, on Monday next will specially produce this number at the Hippodrome, Brighton, prior to giving it a West-end production a week or two later at the Tivoli, to be followed by the London Pavilion, where this number will be produced with special effects, and should prove one of the most effective song-scenas of the year.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. have just accepted for publication a new and striking nautical ditty, entitled "When Jack comes home again," which Miss Daisy James is singing, and so instantaneous has been the liking that artists and producers have evinced for this breezy song of the sea that we have some confidence in predicting that it is destined to create something like a furore in all pantomimes into which it is introduced this season.

Surprising unanimity has been evidenced by principal girls and managers this year with regard to what is undoubtedly the premier principal girl's song of the year, that dainty and characteristic French laundress's ditty "Marie Louise," and Messrs. Feldman and Co. are to be congratulated on the possession of a song calculated to be as great a pantomime triumph as it has already proved at the halls of variety in the hands of Miss Venie Clements and other accomplished artists.

Miss Ada Reeve at the Camberwell Empire this week is charming her hearers beyond measure with her two inimitable songs, "Nobody knows, nobody cares" and "Foolish questions." The former of these, a pathetic ballad from the pen of Chas. K. Harris, is in very great pantomime demand, especially with artists essaying Dick Whittington and similar characters, and the incisive humour of the "Questions" morceau will have also a considerable number of pantomime exponents this year. Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. publish both these Reeve numbers.

To hear those sprightly and artistic young performers the Romps render that brilliant Feldman number "Oh, boys, I've seen you there" at the London Pavilion and elsewhere is a sheer delight and a big object-lesson to principal boys and others on the look-out for the sort of song that always "goes" in pantomime. During the current week the Feldman offices have been literally besieged by managers and artists all eager to acquire the rights to sing this truly great song in their respective productions. The Romps are now busily rehearsing several new Feldman numbers for production at an early date.

It is not generally known that Messrs. Feldman and Co. are in a position to extend pantomime permissions for all three of Mr. George Formby's latest winners, to wit, "I was standing at the corner of the street," "I put on my coat and went home," and that greatest of all comedy numbers, "Playing the game in the West"; but this is so, and early application should be made by comedians playing Idle Jack, &c., or they may get "left."

That exquisite song which Miss Annie Schuberth renders so delightfully, "Though years go rolling by" ("My star of hope"), bids fair to have a considerable pantomime vogue this year, and is being asked about considerably by fairy queens, &c. Miss Schuberth still continues to charm all hearers with Feldman's gem of vocal gems, "Beautiful garden of roses."

Miss Violet Romaine at the Hippodrome, Peterborough, this week is achieving a success second to none with Feldman's dainty song of sentiment "I wonder if it's true," which she, in common with many other artists, will feature in pantomime this year. This song possesses every element that makes for pantomime success, and a hit in every town where it is sung is assured.

Miss Gladys Re Vell, who in the title-rôle of Sinbad this year purposes "featuring" several of the Feldman numbers, notably "By the sea" and "Silver bell," is making a very great hit this week at the Empire, Burnley, with a Feldman number of the first water, entitled "I like the pictures hanging on the wall," which she assures the publishers catches on immensely everywhere.

Some of the loudest plaudits of the evening at the Camberwell Empire are showered upon charming Miss Ethel Re-Leslie for her fine song-scena "Connemara," which is published by Feldman and Co., and which proves so entirely to the liking of the audience that they heartily join in the "taking" refrain, plaudits loud and long being a pleasing accompaniment to the fair singer's final bow.

The latest talented and high-class artist to yield to the charms of Feldman's unrivalled ballad "Beautiful garden of roses" is Miss Lilian Lea, who at the Shoreditch Empire this week is nightly ravishing the ears of her enthusiastic auditors with the loveliest ballad that ever was borne "across the pond." Needless to say, the powers that be at Arthur-street have welcomed the "airy fairy Lilian" to the "Roses" fold with open arms.

Miss Josie Delaine has proved just as successful with her delightful little chansonette "Little Miss Importance" at the Walthamstow Palace this week, as she has been all along for weeks past at the Oxford, Metropolitan, and other important West-end halls, and all parts of the house, Oliver Twist-like, clamour for more at the termination of her most artistic interpretation of a most fascinating song. This is a big Feldman number for principal girls, and as such has already been extensively "booked" for pantomime.

That dainty number, "Little silver moonbeams," has quite established itself a prime favourite since Mr. Fred Wilson popularised it by his singing of it at Douglas Head Pavilion during the recent season. Messrs. Sheard are making this charming number one of their many good things for pantomime, especially as it lends itself so happily to scenic effects.

The Isle of Man and Mr. J. J. Mannix (the coffee-coloured coon) are responsible for the popularity among the young trippers of Lancashire and Yorkshire, who are everywhere humming, whistling, and singing that eminently catchy coon melody, "Oh, Miss Malind; or, when evening time comes round." This wonderful hit has already achieved immense popularity in the United States, where Miss Maud Lambert started it on its hurricane course over the American Continent. Sheard and Co. handle the song in this country.

Mr. Joe Archer, after three or four weeks in the provinces, is back again in town with "T.R.O.U.B.L.E" ("Those wedding bells are ringing"), which he, as well as many others, regard as the very best song he has ever exploited. Messrs. Sheard and Co. are granting a few special permissions for pantomimes, so those who have not yet heard it should take the opportunity of hearing Joe, or Mr. Thurban will be pleased to run it over to those calling at 196, Shaftesbury-avenue.

Messrs. Dempsey and Schmid, the authors of "Garden of roses," have placed with Messrs. Sheard their two latest song successes, "Moonlight in Jungleland," which is exceedingly melodious, and is regarded in the States as being the "one and only" jungle song.

"If you must love someone, won't you please love me?" is a most delightful love song, and is being used as a special number by Melville and Russell, in their Aeroplane Flirtation sketch. This is a double first-class number for princes, princesses, and other pantomime heroes and heroines.

Those purveyors of pretty, popular pantomime numbers Messrs. Chas. Sheard and Co. have secured two very taking specimens in "What would my life be without you?" which Mr. Will Norrie is delighting South Africa with, and "Alone but never lonely." Those looking for ballads that are sensible and sentimental at once, and with catchy chorus, cannot do better than make themselves acquainted with Edward St. Quentin's appealing song and Marcus Hope's effective love ballad.

Demon kings and such like this coming pantomime season should certainly look up Messrs. Charles Sheard and Co. at once. They will not be disappointed. Mr. Dan Billington, the great Yorkshire baritone, tells them that Stanley Gordon's fine song "Neptune" is the biggest hit since the same composer's "When the ebb-tide flows." All bass and baritone singers will hail this dramatic number with delight at having found a good thing.

Those well-known writers of winners Clifton Bingham and Stanley Gordon have through Messrs. Chas. Sheard and Co. got well there again in their new song for bass or baritone, "The Volcano," a number which lends itself finely to dramatic interpretation, while giving every chance to the vocalist. Singers on the look-out for something both strong and distinctive, should decidedly call and see this.

J. Chas. Moore and Karl F. Hooper, of the National Music Publishing Co., 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C., are indeed a lucky pair. Without doubt they have secured one of the biggest ballad hits of the year—namely, "Why do you wait for to-morrow?" This number is at present being featured on the halls with enormous success by Messrs. Carlisle and Wellmon. The future of the song is assured, having been already snapped up by most of the leading pantomime managers.

Another prime favourite, published by the same firm, is "Sammy in his Tam O'Shanter hat," a comedy chorus song with a melody haunting in the extreme.

The National Music Publishing Co. have still one or two things up their sleeve, so we would advise all pantomime managers and artists on the look-out for winners to keep their eyes (not to mention their ears) open for good things coming along.

J. Chas. Moore has lately collaborated with Fred E. Cliffe, a song-writer of the new school who is rapidly coming to the front. Considering that Fred E. Cliffe has only been writing since the autumn of last year, and has already written winners for such artists as Marie Lloyd, Mark Sheridan, George Formby, Carrie Moore, Hetty King, George Roby, and a host of others, with the able assistance of J. Chas. Moore, it certainly looks as if Fred E. Cliffe is getting there.

Miss Louie Tracey's new naval song, by Kenneth Lyle and Worton David, entitled "It's a little way we've got in the Navy," is proving a huge success everywhere, the Dapper Dandy Boy's trim figure being much admired in her well-cut naval uniform.

In "Give me pansies" Mr. Leslie Lloyd has composed a pretty song with a pleasing waltz refrain. The song, published by the Rietz Publishing Co., 12, Herbrand-street, W.C., is dedicated to and sung by Miss Mary Grey.

Little Eileen Breton has acquired the full rights of "It all comes out on the cinematograph," by Fox and Long, which is going well.

Miss Bessie Slaughter, who opened at the Oxford on Monday evening, again gave a magnificent rendering of "Your eyes have told me so." In response to a persistent encore she sang a new number by the same composer, entitled "Guardian Angel Mine," which evidently made a deep impression on the audience, who, at the conclusion, recalled the artist again and again. Messrs. Nightingale and Co., the publishers of "Your eyes have told me so," are to be congratulated upon securing both these excellent songs.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE accumulated evidence of the past few weeks seem to point with unerring certainty to one result. The Star Music Co.'s three special pantomime songs have been in such demand by managers and artists that a triumphal success is assured. From every quarter of the United Kingdom comes the demand for permission to introduce in forthcoming pantomimes A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's great numbers, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes," "Fall in and follow me," and "Here comes the chocolate soldier."

EACH morning the postman's burden becomes more bulky, and 90 per cent. of the correspondence refers to the above-mentioned songs. The daily despatch of copies alone employs the services of a separate staff. In spite of all counter attractions, the best material will come to the top.

DURING the past week many artists have scored tremendous hits with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's beautiful chorus ballad, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes," particularly Miss Mande Mortimer, who, at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, created a furore with this song. Miss Mortimer is featuring the number at all her engagements, and had the privilege of being one of the first to associate herself with this Star Company winner.

IF there is a principal boy who has not yet secured Charles Whittle's enormous success, "Fall in and follow me," for pantomime, that lady may write herself down as practically the solitary exception. Never has there been such unanimity in pronouncing for a particular pantomime number. No artist who has heard the song played has been able to resist the compelling power of its lilty chorus. One musical-director who advises in connection with a most important theatre, hearing the song for the first time, declared enthusiastically "Ah! this is what I call real pantomime music, bright, sparkling, catchy; in short, irresistible!" The Star Music Co. have printed band-parts for this number.

G. H. ELLIOTT, whose popularity with London audiences seems to increase at every visit, has scored tremendously during the past week at the Palace, Camberwell, and other halls, with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's quaint and melodious song, "Loo, Sue, Mary, Dinah." Mr. Elliott's rendering of this delightful number is an education in artistry. Next week he will produce his new song "Here comes the chocolate soldier." Both numbers are published by the Star Music Co.

MISS DOROTHY WARD, the charming musical comedy artist, now playing a "variety" season, has been repeating in the provinces the huge success she made at the London Coliseum with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's fine march song, "Cheer up, my Highland lassie." Miss Ward renders this number with incomparable dash and verve, her fine voice and splendid appearance adding to the general charm of her performance. Everywhere Miss Ward has sung this brilliant number it has brought down the house. The Star Music Co. will grant a few special permits for the halls to approved artists.

MISS MAY MARS, who is just now on the Stoll circuit, is featuring with exceptional success A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's dainty and catchy Irish ditty, "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy?" Miss Mars has been associated with many successful songs, but few have equalled this number from the point of view of applause, and, after all, that is one thing every artist must value. The Star Music Co. have great confidence in "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy?" which is suitable for boy or girl in pantomime. Band parts are printed in medium key.

LLOYD MORGAN, the favourite light comedian, continues to do the trick with his new song, by Harrington and Lane, entitled "There's a pretty little cot in Dover." Mr. Morgan's great success with this number has resulted in a huge demand for copies of the song, which has had a record sale in Leeds during the past week. The Star Music Co. publish this winner.

THE Von Tilzer Music Company have certainly found a big number for principal boys in their light comedy chorus song, "Pick me a nice one," which has already been secured by many of the leading artists. Miss Ella Shields' chorus hit, "If you see Harry," is also finding favour as a "boy" number.

MISS CARRIE MOORE will specially feature in the forthcoming pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, her latest success "Someland," which should appeal to all artists engaged for "Boy" or Fairy Queen. Von Tilzers publish this number.

MISS GERTIE GITANA'S success, "Queen of the Cannibal Isles," is being eagerly sought after by principal girls. It is a coon number with comedy, and is not of the stereotyped "moon" or "spoon" order. Another song that looks like "making good" with principal girls is "Sweet Kathleen" (in your dress of em'rald green), which possesses a dainty comedy chorus. These are also among Von Tilzer's publications.

COMEDIANS should see "I never, never, never saw such a thing before" ere they decide on their songs for pantomime. It is a screamingly funny song of the quaint "short chorus" persuasion, and the fact that it is from the pens of Worton David (the past-master of short, quaint comedy choruses) and Bert Lee, makes further comment unnecessary. It is published by Von Tilzers

"MILL."

A Dramatic Episode, in One Scene, by E. W. Garden, Produced at the Empire, Croydon, on Monday, Oct. 31.

Joe Preston .....MR. BERTIE MURRY
Dawes .....MR. C. A. WHITE
Mill .....MISS MABEL GARDEN

This is a very pleasing sketch, in one scene, the Dawes's house in Whitechapel. At the rise of the curtain we see Dawes and his daughter Mill at tea. The father is somewhat upset on account of hard times at his work, but his daughter endeavours to cheer him up. Joe Preston, who has lived with them for three months, and has made himself a part of their lives, is the subject of their conversation, when Joe comes on the scene, bringing presents for Mill and her father, which gives them great satisfaction. Joe states that he will have to leave them, but before departure has an important secret to disclose to Mill. The latter has confided to her father that she is in love with Joe, and she now thinks that the secret which Joe has to tell is that he loves her. She is greatly distressed when he only tells her that he is an author, and has written a book of their lives, with her as the heroine. She is unable to control her disappointment, and confesses her love to Joe. He is very fond of the girl, and, with this confession, he finds that his life would be a blank without her. He destroys the manuscript, and, embracing Mill, the curtain falls on a pretty love picture. Mr Herbert Sleath has well selected his company for this sketch. Miss Mabel Garden just touches the right note, and gives a pleasing impersonation of Mill; Mr. Bertie Murry acts with care and Judgment in the rôle of Joe Preston; and Mr. C. A. White deserves praise for his assumption of the part of Dawes.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

Cecil Raleigh's Drury Lane drama, The Price of Peace, cleverly compressed into a half-hour's sketch, is having its first representation in the West-End this week at the Oxford, Mr. Harry P. Selwyn's company being responsible for the production. The sketch was described in detail in these columns on its first performance at the Surrey on Sept. 12, where the exciting and effective playlet was warmly received; and Oxford audiences have been equally favourably impressed, the dramatic situations and telling lines holding their attention throughout. With one exception, the cast is the same as in the original production, Mr. Walter Gay repeating his impressive and finished performance as the Prime Minister, his delivery of the long speeches being splendid elocutionary feats, and his enactment throughout an admirable one. Mr. George Polson portrays the treacherous Marcus Benton effectively, being especially good in the House of Commons scene. Mr. H. Jephson and Mr. A. T. Lennard as Sir Henry Delabere and Sir William Addiscott, the Prime Minister's two faithful supporters, played with sincerity and ease; and Count Ostadine was capitally portrayed by Mr. Frank Woodville. Miss Kitty Lofting was a refined and sympathetic Lady Kathleen, playing with much tenderness in the scene with her father where she pleads for peace. The sketch was elaborately mounted, the House of Commons and the Ballroom of the Prime Minister's House being skilfully realised.

The bill at the Oxford contains many other turns of an alluring nature, the comedians of front rank including Mr. Wilkie Bard, who has given us nothing better than his screamingly funny and well-worked "I want to sing in opera"; Mr. Ernest Shand, with his quaint old Jack Tar impersonation, "I'll be there"; Mr. Sam Mayo, who chortles so effectively "Ha! Ha! Ha!" and his comic Indian number; and the peculiar and popular abbreviator, Mr. Phil Ray. The Two Bobs are enormous favourites with their artistically sung and humorous songs, quaint impersonations, clever piano playing, and generally agreeable and clever interlude, and are repeatedly recalled. Tate and Tate submit an amusing "American Bar Scene," in which the male does some wonderful somersaulting, and, in conjunction with his smart, athletic, and agile little companion, executes many novel and skilful feats, his resourcefulness and originality as a comedian helping along considerably the success of a keenly appreciated turn. The Westbrooks have a most attractive and neatly worked dancing scena, "Two Little Maids from School," and are applauded at their true worth; and Miss Jennie Hartley, in "He can't keep his eyes off the boots" and another number, finds many admirers, her skilful and neat footwork being particularly enjoyed.

The charming vocal comedienne, Miss Madge Temple, is singing here with her usual success "Looking for Mr. Wright" and "The silvery sands," popular and well-written numbers, which this delightful artist gives with much point and effect. Miss Josie Delaine, a gifted and versatile little lady, has an excellent song in "Can you tell me which is Tommy Atkins?" and her cleverness is admirably employed in an amusing dialect song, her neat and smart step-dancing also being a sure passport to popular favour. The cultured and fine contralto voice of Miss Bessie Slaughter is heard with much pleasure in "Your eyes have told me so" and "Guardian angel mine," both numbers being loudly applauded. Dainty and clever Miss Clarice Mayne and "that fellow at the piano," whom one seems to encounter all over London just at present, are of course keenly appreciated; and Satani and company, the mysterious "Raffles," the Bros. Ford, Mr. John Macaulay, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope also figure in the fine bill.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

When visiting the Holborn Empire three distinctive features strike one, and they are: the excellence of the programme, the consequent good business, and the marked enthusiasm of the immense audience. On Monday the only regret was the absence of Dainty Daisy Dormer; but another Holborn favourite was present in the person of Miss Ella Retford, who is undoubtedly extremely popular at this hall. She gives two sparkling numbers in her own delightful style, and dances daintily. It may be mentioned, however, that neither of the songs is of her catchy chorus type which the "gods" delight in, although the first has a lilting refrain.

Mr. George Mozart is also here, and is seen to great advantage in his droll dumb show, his facial expressions being particularly amusing—first in photographs of father and mother in different periods of their careers; then in the difference between male and the more artful female demonstrators(!). For his final effort this popular, comedian, with the help of his wobegone assistant, depicts the itinerary musicians (?) in two lights; firstly, in the beginning of the morning or thirsty-but-moneyless stage, and again at night after having dined not wisely but too well.

Daley Cooper and Mabel Lait gain many a well-deserved laugh in their brisk farce, A Man of Spirit, their business and gags being extra good. The skit is brimful of fun, and the last piece of business is very chic and much to the liking of the audience. Osborne and Brooks appear in two bright duologues as the lawyer and his fair client in A Breach of Promise Case, and also in the always diverting theme of the late (or early morning) homecomer, who brings in the milk with him to his indignant partner. Beattie and Babs, a pleasing turn, include a clever little Nellie Wallace, who is, nevertheless, an original comedienne. The other is a juvenile who dances nicely.

Mr. Chas. Norton, in his well-known show, "Pros. at the Races," embodying impersonations of Joe Elvin, Eugene Stratton, R. G. Knowles, &c., and Jordan and Harvey, in "Abraham" and another melodious number, needless to say, make good in courteous Mr. Conroy's liberal bill, which contains plenty of comedy—and his patrons appreciate it.

The entry of Mr. Charles Austin in the ever-popular character of Parker, P.C., is the signal for applause. The sketch is now a well established success, and for its continued popularity is well worthy to be ranked with such great successes as 'Appy 'Ampstead, Humanity, and The Fighting Parson. Clara Beck charmingly warbles "You taught me how to love you—teach me to forget"; and the three acrobatic Pasquali Brothers call for special mention, their performance being particularly smart and their comedy business being really original. Much can be and has been written anent Lively Lily Langtry, but it will suffice to say she is vivacity personified. Natalia and Diana, lady gymnasts; and Zajah, a charming dancing act, are well received, and the Bioscope, as usual, completes the programme.

CHELSEA PALACE

The leading feature on the attractive programme here is Mr. George Gray, supported by a powerful company, in Parson Gray V.C., a sketch full of dramatic incident. Mr. Gray gives a masterful impersonation of the Rev. Thomas Gray, and is recalled again and again at the close of the piece. He is ably assisted by the whole of his company, special mention being due to Miss Geraldine Somerset as Madge. Judging by the reception accorded by the audience, Parson Gray V.C. should have a long reign of popularity.

The Four Burnells are figuring prominently on the bill with their act, Fun on the Links, which keeps the house laughing from start to finish, their efforts earning them well-deserved applause. Mr. Bert Errol, the Lady (?) is giving his realistic impersonations of the fair sex including an excellent rendering of "Il Bacio," with which he scores a decided success. Little Ganty is extremely droll as a Captain of the Boys' Brigade, his "get-up" alone being sufficient to send the audience into convulsions.

A fine turn is conjurer Wishart, in his astonishing bottle and box tricks. In one of them he displays to the audience what appear to be two ordinary travelling trunks, which, after being examined by a committee from the audience, are locked, and placed one inside the other, and securely corded. Wishart then introduces a gigantic iron bottle, which is also examined thoroughly by the committee. He is then handcuffed, after which he gets inside the bottle, which is securely locked, and the bottle and boxes placed in a curtained recess. After a few seconds the handcuffs are thrown out from behind the curtains, unlocked. Eventually the curtains are drawn apart and the bottle unlocked. It is found to be empty. Attention is now called to the boxes, still corded, and to all appearances undisturbed. On their being opened, Wishart emerges from the inner one, calmly smoking a cigarette.

Mr. Auguste Van Biene, the actor-musician, and his company, are presenting Karl's Luck, a little sketch which serves admirably to display his undoubted abilities as a 'cellist. Other excellent additions to this attractive programme are Miss Edie King, in a series of dances, in which she displays considerable grace. Miss Ada Cerito, whose number "He's saving up his overtime for me," is very popular with the "boys," and Colley and Scott, in their comedy tit-bits. Mr. J. H. Scotland is a vocalist with a very good bass voice; but we would venture to suggest that his turn would be appreciated much better if his songs were a trifle more up-to-date; and Ruffell's Bioscope concludes with interesting films.

THE CANTERBURY.

A programme quite up to the usual high standard of excellence is provided by the management of this popular variety theatre for the current week, and in the twenty turns listed there is not an uninteresting one. Early in the evening Mr. Tom Lee amuses with an impersonation of a smartly-dressed Johnny who sings of "Seaside Swank," and a capitally rendered song descriptive of "Man, beautiful man" and his many excellent qualities is given by the swell comedian, Mr. Will Driscoll. The late Sir Henry Irving as Corporal Brewster in A Story of Waterloo is faithfully impersonated by Mr. Wilfred Burnand, and other admirable portraits are his George Formby and Harry Brown. Miss Venie Clements, the accomplished comedienne and mimic, appearing as a dark and dashing pierrette, sings with real cleverness a smartly-written and amusing character song. Mr. Fred Walmsley has a popular number wherein he describes the difference in the dance and song of fifty years ago and to-day; and the Whittingtons are winning their usual success with their entertaining skit, in which the male gives such a funny and faithful feline impersonation.

Miss Clarice Mayne and "that fellow at the piano" come in for a reception of the heartiest, the lady singing in the daintiest possible manner "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," and "The moon's pale light," and giving some capital impressions of Miss Marie Lloyd and Miss Victoria Monks, the "Fellow" occasionally introducing a quiet little bit of business—a sly look or a funny remark—that helps along the success of this happily-associated and entertaining duo considerably. Haley's Juveniles, a smartly-trained troupe of youngsters, contribute a pretty vocal scene, a couple of tots giving with remarkable precocity a duet and dance, and the entire combination engaging in their many and various evolutions with decided cleverness for children so young. The entertainment of the Jackley Trio includes some wonderful somersaulting and a sensational tableau fall by one of the members of the trio, but the antics of George, the whistling comedian, dominate the turn, and are justified by the evident delight they afford the audience. Carlisle and Wellman submit a pleasing and varied novelty musical act, the pair playing with gloved hands many admirable pianoforte selections, and vocalising seriously and humorously, their original interlude being loudly applauded; and Wood, Wells, and Wilkins have an amusing vocal comedy sketch in The Piano Tuner, their fine rendering of "Daddy" being particularly appreciated.

Mr. G. H. Elliott, the original chocolate-coloured coon, is as a matter of course acclaimed with unusual warmth by Canterbury audiences this week, and is giving with all his well-known artistic effect a couple of ear-haunting songs, "There's a little black Cupid in the moon" and "Won't you tell me, Mister Owl?" For the first number Mr. Elliott is immaculately tailored, being quite the dashing and debonair darkey swell; and in his second he appears as a love-sick coon, Sambo, who appeals to Mr. Owl, a very wise bird, for information as to the faithfulness of his sweetheart. A graceful dance concludes a particularly attractive and well worked number, and Mr. Elliott is enthusiastically recalled.

Mr. Sam Stern gives a funny impersonation of a Hebrew singing a parody medley of well-known songs; and his Italian boy song and his mock operatic business proclaims him a resourceful and droll entertainer. The always funny Poluski Brothers are still giving their "Haven't we?" duet, with its accompanying ludicrous business, and keep the audience continuaaly on the smile; and Musical Sylvo, the accomplished soloist on the musical glasses and the silvochimes, submits a turn that always meets with well-merited appreciation. The programme also includes Mr. George Sheldon and Mr. Rawson Buckley's company in Before the Dawn, the popular immobile comedian Sam Mayo, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

Sunday, Oct. 30, found a very large audience assembled, the National Sunday League submitting an attractive concert, with the Meister Singers' orchestra as the principal feature. Mr. Norfolk Megone, who conducted, is a very well-known personality in the neighbourhood, as prior to his engagement at Bridlington this season he was the musical director at the Holloway Empire, and under his spirited direction the orchestra performed an extensive programme of popular music, the items including such well-known numbers as the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, the William Tell overture, the selections from Iolanthe and The Arcadians, and the ever-popular Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, together with other items. Though limited in numbers the orchestra is excellently balanced, and in consequence the body of tone produced is remarkably good, and the ensemble playing exceedingly finished. Needless to say, the audience were most enthusiastic, and an appeal had to be made to them not to insist on encores.

Miss Phyllis Davies displayed an agreeable voice in "Angels guard thee," the violin obbligato being played by the leader of the orchestra, and "Unless," and had to concede an encore. Mme. Gertrude Shrimpton rendered a very effective little song, "The Land of Love," by Herbert Oliver, with the composer at the piano, this being deservedly encored, and for her second item she gave "Bonny blue 'kerchief."

A feature of great interest was the appearance of Mr. Ernest Meads, the well-known elocutionist, in a monologue entitled "Nero." This was the first performance in public, and Mr. Sarga, the well-known composer, who has written both the monologue itself and the pianoforte accompaniment, himself officiated at the instrument. It is a highly-dramatic and effective scene between Nero and his favourite slave, and illustrates one of the last episodes in the life of the cowardly and cruel King, this being the particular moment when he learns that the Romans themselves are going to rise against him. In the hands of so accomplished an elocutionist as Mr. Meads, naturally the scene was given with the greatest effect, and it completely held the undivided attention of the audience. Mr. Sarga's music is in keeping with the gloomy nature of the episode, and at the close both he and Mr. Meads were called to the front several times, Mr. Meads having to concede an encore. For his second item Mr. Meads gave "My first and last football match," this being in a very much lighter vein. Altogether the concert was in every respect admirable, and well deserved the large audience it attracted.

THE PARAGON.

A hearty welcome is given here to Hayman and Franklin, the popular delineators of Hebrew comedy, who engage in a merry jingle of smart repartee, the male partner's humour being quite bright. He also sings a verse and chorus of a descriptive song, which is exceedingly well-written, the title being "Life's a very funny proposition after all." Their concluding item is a number into which parts of popular songs are blended, and their efforts are loudly applauded. The marvellous Eugenes, four in number, give a clever and refined aerial act, their many feats being carefully studied, a great feature being the high double somersaults.

Mr. Dusty Rhodes, singing comedian, is certainly a good turn, for not only has he a batch of well-written songs, but also possesses a powerful voice to render them. His first item is a parody on that popular ballad "Somewhere," the second being a "Football" song, the singer making his appearance walking with a crutch. The patter is decidedly breezy, and Mr. Rhodes is forced to give an encore, viz., "Pictures we see in the gas stove," which is very funny. Orpheus presents a high-class musical act, which is elaborately staged and certainly artistic. Many popular ballads are delightfully played on sundry instruments, many of which are quite novel, the tit-bit being the various calls on a coach horn during a drive. The Bros. Ford are smart dancers. In their first number they give a well-executed fancy dance, their second being a step-dance, to which is added some difficult hand springs. Their voices, too, are above the average. Ruby Zethus gives carefully-studied impersonations of Miss Daisy Jerome, Sam Mayo, and Maidie Scott, finishing her performance by a well-rendered solo on the cornet.

Mr. Fred Carr and Ada Rose play an amusing sketch, After a Night Out. The story is not novel, for it relates to the adventures of a newly-married man, who imbibes too freely and quarrels with his wife on his return home, she finally vowing to leave him, but a promise to abstain from drinking causes a happy ending. Much good fun is put into the trifle, and the excellent singing of the lady is greatly appreciated. O'Malley and Brown, comedians and patterers, are amusing with their quips and gags, the bank-note business causing much laughter. Miss Ruby Emmerson has a good appearance, and sings pleasingly "There's a letter in the post for someone" and "I love only one girl." Jack and Willie give a clever equilibristic act, and Mr. W. H. Downs, the black tenor, is also well received. Many interesting films are displayed.

LOTTIE ALBERT, Hon. Treasurer.

Audited and found correct,
HYLAND AND RICHES,
Chartered Accountants.
21, Cannon-street, London, E.C.
Oct. 26, 1910.

The Executive Committee have pleasure in presenting their fourth annual report and balance-sheet up to date. It was the original intention of the committee to hold this meeting on or about Sept. 26 this year, thus making the general meeting and the yearly balance account come on about the date of the birth of the Guild. This was, however, impossible, owing to the death of a much-respected comrade.

It is very gratifying to know we have so many earnest supporters who are so appreciative of our good work, and we hope that many more will join and assist us during the coming year. It is, indeed, a joy to know that we can help so many people who through illness or misfortune have fallen on evil times, and to bring a little comfort into their sad lives. Many, many cases of illness and distress have been helped during the past year with food, clothing, coals, and medical assistance, solicitor's advice, employment obtained, &c.

A short summary of our work may now be given. We would like to draw attention to the clothing mentioned. This is a very important item that we have never brought upon our balance-sheet before; but as it is the means of making so many feel comfortable and respectable in appearance, so as to enable them to apply more freely for work, we have decided to make it known. We receive many gifts from members and friends of both new and secondhand clothing, and when we have not in stock what is urgently needed we buy it at wholesale prices and freely give what is required, no deserving case ever being refused.

The special feature of our Guild is to assist the women and helpless children of the music hall profession who unfortunately cannot help themselves, and we, being women, can fully understand their needs.

We want to call attention to our Jumble Sales, which we intend to have periodically. At these sales we only dispose of things that would not be useful to pensioners or would not improve with long keeping. With the money thus obtained we purchase baby clothing, or what is most needed.

The committee wish to draw special attention to maternity cases, for which they find doctor, nurse, nourishment, lending all linen and long clothing for a time, and then giving two full sets of shortening clothes. Most of these garments are made by the willing hands of the committee and members. During the last year we have had no less than nineteen maternity cases, all of which we have helped.

Another special feature of our work has been our endeavours to ascertain, by writing and investigation, the probability of obtaining the Old Age Pensions for some of our poor and aged applicants.

Another feature is to place deserving poor and unfortunate cases into homes where possible, and visiting the sick. Clothing, old and new, to the extent of £18 7s. 9d. has been given.

A few of many letters received by the committee expressing gratitude for the help tendered by the Guild, in money, food, clothing, and fuel, were quoted.

The Guild have to return their most grateful thanks again this year to all those kind friends who have helped us in our noble charity :—The Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, for kind co-operation, in no case having refused their assistance; to Dr. Walker, Camberwell-road; to Dr. Burroughs, City-road; to Dr. O'Dwyer, Hackney-road; to Dr. Loudon Gordon, Edmonton; to Dr. J. J. Oakman, Battersea; to Dr. Eales, of Manchester; to Nurse Baxter, Streatham; to the seventy medical gentlemen in the provinces who have so kindly and generously promised to attend to all Guild cases in their districts free of charge; to the Rev. Arthur Brinkman and the Variety Artistes' Benevolent Fund, for letters to enable us to place patients in hospitals and homes; to the clergy; to Messrs. Roberts, Seyd, and Co., honorary solicitors, who have been untiring in their efforts on our behalf; to the directors, Mr. Leon Zeitlin, and the management of the Metropolitan for kindly lending us their hall for our Sunday concert, also the artists who appeared and helped to make it such a success; to Messrs. H. and M. Rayne and Co., Waterloo-road, for their donations and special loan of stage clothing to assist our pensioners; to the gentlemen of the Press; and to Messrs. Marshall Bros., Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane, for giving us the hall on two occasions free of any charge.

We also beg to thank one and all who have sent gifts, donations, and clothing. The committee wish to thank Mrs. George Smythson, our acting vice-president, for her untiring efforts in discharging in so able a manner the duties of our president, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, who has been absent in America for the past twelve months. Thanks are also due to Miss Lottie Albert, who so kindly undertook the hon. treasurership of the Guild at a moment's notice, and has continued to do so with every possible satisfaction. Also to Mrs. C. C. Bartram for her hard work in connection with our Sunday concert, which realised a handsome profit.

The committee also desire to state that the work done by the secretary of the Guild, Miss Melinda May, in investigating cases, coupled with her other duties, has been performed with tact and ability.

Mrs. SMYTHSON said : When the Guild started in 1905 we had amongst us two ladies who are present to-day, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am to see them. They have been out of the ranks for the last twelve months, but I hope this will be the means of getting them back. Miss Lily Burnand —(Applause)—worked like a Trojan at our first matinée, and was the only lady ever known to enter the Stock Exchange to sell tickets on behalf of charity—a great feather in her cap. I do hope the ladies of the Guild will try and persuade Miss Burnand to come back amongst us as an active member. (Hear, hear.) I also see Miss Constance Moxon, another of the founders of the Guild, and I trust she will likewise return. (Hear, hear.) The report presented extends over only eight months, because we wished to bring the date of the annual meeting as near as possible to the birthday of the Guild. (Applause.)

Dealing with the annual report, Miss LOTTIE ALBERT, the hon. treasurer, said : As you have heard, our expenditure for the last eight months ending Oct. 19 has amounted to the sum of £111 15s. 1d., and our receipts from all sources have reached the figure of £134. To a casual observer, it might appear that our expenses for the period in question have been somewhat excessive, but I can assure you such is not the case. On the contrary, the committee have run the Guild on most economical lines, for you must take into consideration that a large part of our charity consists in giving to the necessitous poor articles of clothing, stage accessories, and other things, which we have distributed to the value of £18 odd, and that is not included in the balance-sheet which has been presented to you, as we certainly cannot expect our auditor to put on the credit side of the account clothing sent us by kind-hearted friends and new clothing purchased by ladies of the committee out of their private purses, and given to the Guild. In order to be able to collect and distribute these gifts, it is, as you will know, necessary to incur the various expenses which appear on our balance-sheet. We also give food, coal, lighting, and every kind of help we can. I wish to point out to your notice that we are as careful as we possibly can be in the distribution of these things, and every possible inquiry is made to find out if our applicants are deserving. Many ladies of the Guild, in the kindness of their hearts, personally investigate cases at their own expense, so that as far as it is possible our charity is only given where it is needed. If you only knew how these gifts are appreciated by our less fortunate brother and sister artists, it would at once convince you that we have not striven in vain. Should anyone in the audience desire to ask any questions on the balance-sheet, I shall be most happy to give any information in my power. I assure you it would be much easier for me to give you a song and dance than make this little speech—(laughter)—as I am a poor orator at the best. Thank you, one and all, for the patient hearing you have given me and for your attendance here to-day.

At the invitation of the chair, Mr. FRED HERBERT proposed the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, and congratulated the Guild on the good work they were doing. Undoubtedly the Music Hall Ladies' Guild was doing a vast and noble work among the poorer members of the profession, and nobody knew of its good deeds better than himself and his friend, Mr. Douglas Stuart, the secretary of the Variety Benevolent Fund, of which he had the honour to be chairman. They fully realised the difficulties that beset the ladies of the Guild in investigating cases, because they had the same difficulties in their own benevolent fund. He could specially commend the Ladies' Guild for their work in connection with maternity cases, and their efforts to assist their poorer members over such troublous times as those. Again, he could not conceive of any more noble duty than that of looking after children who were unable to look after themselves, and if for nothing else, the music-hall profession should be indebted to the Guild for its work in helping the little ones. The Variety Benevolent Fund was prepared to work with the Ladies' Guild, and to be in the future as in the past, the means of lifting out of distress and trouble unfortunate members of the profession during the coming winter. The Guild had been successful in placing some of their applicants in little positions, and the Fund had been successful in placing some of their old pensioners in situations. He knew the Ladies' Guild would do its utmost to alleviate distress, and he could assure them that he and his committee would work hand-in-hand with them.

Mrs. SMYTHSON explained that the account of receipts extended over only eight months, and that for payments principally over a twelvemonth. Amid applause, she read a letter from one of the beneficiaries, thanking the Guild for their assistance in getting an eye specialist to interest himself in the case of his wife, who had thus been preserved from blindness.

Mr. CHARLES COBORN seconded the adoption of the report and balance-sheet. He said he was very old in the business, and he was heartily in accord with every effort made on behalf of the music hall profession. The report was very pleasant and encouraging. The Guild seemed to him to be carried on very cheaply and very well. Besides giving many gifts in kind to poor people, the Guild got them work, secured medical assistance, and generally helped those in distress. He was quite sure from his own observation that the ladies of the Guild were doing excellent work, and he watched its progress with a keen desire for its success. The speaker counselled the members of the Guild to work together. If everything went smoothly at the fountain head, then they would make headway. Nothing but praise could be said of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. The only criticism he had to make was that they had started rather late. They had accomplished good work, but there was more to be done, and his advice was to get as many music hall ladies to interest themselves in their work as they possibly could. (Applause).

The Rev. STEPHEN BARRASS supported the resolution, and said he was convinced the Guild was doing a useful work. They could not measure work of that character by the money expended. The ladies banded themselves together with the object of helping others, and though they might only give a few shillings here and there, their work would have far-reaching results beyond anything they had dreamt of; it would inspire other people to give, and work would be accomplished that they would never hear of, but would be due to their inspiration. When they set about doing good, they never knew where that good was going to end. He had, with Mr. Coborn, to congratulate them upon their report. They were in a flourishing condition—money in the bank, and no debts. That was a very happy state to be in; with a good many charities with which he was connected the reverse was the case; but they were going on hoping for the best. He particularly admired the way in which charity was administered, and the kind spirit which underlay the workers. He spoke of all the ladies of the Guild, but the work centred more or less in the acting secretary, and he was edified at the able manner in which Miss Melinda May set about her work. They might mar the greatest charity by indelicacy in its administration. They must remember that very poor people were often more sensitive than those not in want. It was easier to give than to receive, but it was all the more easy to receive when the gift was tempered by delicacy and sympathy. He was sure not only the secretary, but the president and all the ladies of the Guild were inspired by that spirit of sympathy which unconsciously diffused itself wherever their work was felt.

The report and balance-sheet were carried unanimously.

Considerable amusement was caused by the reading of a letter addressed to the secretary by a gentleman in India. In quaint terms the writer inquired if they could furnish him with the name of a handsome young lady who was single and belonged to the Guild seeking a matrimonial life. He did not mind whether she was a fair or dark lady, but she must be not more than thirty-five years of age, with a good figure, and about 5ft. 7in. or 8in. high. He did not mind a foreigner if she came up to his desires. "I am," concluded the writer, "dark and good-looking, with a good figure, 12st., strong and healthy, and very steady, purely English, and in fairly good berth." He offered as a last inducement to forward one or two photos.

Mrs. SMYTHSON paid a tribute to the help furnished by the Actors' Church Union, who worked in conjunction with the Guild, and also acknowledged the assistance rendered by the hon. medical officers. Drs. WALKER and Dr. BURROWS replied.

Miss IRENE ROSE read the following appeal :—

"KIND HEARTS ARE MORE THAN CORONETS."

"Once more we appeal to our numerous friends to assist us in our arduous task of relieving the many necessitous cases daily brought under our notice. Our funds are sadly depleted, owing to the very heavy demands to which they have been subjected, and the ensuing winter, with every sign of being severe, promises to be a still further strain upon our already heavily taxed resources. One visit by you to any of the many distressing cases relieved by us would, we feel certain, so greatly impress the spectator with a feeling of pity that you could not but generously respond to our appeal.

"All past and present members of the music hall profession are eligible for our assistance, irrespective of creed, and in many cases the timely aid is not only the means of relieving pressing distress, but is often the stepping stone to the firm establishment of a prosperous future.

"If only we elicit your practical sympathy, which will enable us to carry on our work during the next season, we feel that we shall not have appealed in vain, and that the work already done by us has at least borne some good results, and we are sure that there is not amongst us to-day, one who will not do his or her level best to assist in this noble work of love and charity.

"Before concluding, we would draw your attention to the advent of Christmas, when it is our custom to supply our less fortunate sisters and brothers with free dinners and warm clothing, and it is at such times, when we are surrounded by our many friends in the midst of comfort, that we cannot, nay, must not, allow our conscience to reproach us with a feeling of unfulfilled duty to the poorer members of our profession."

Mrs. SMYTHSON tendered a vote of thanks to the Variety Benevolent Fund and its Secretary, Mr. Stuart, to whom, she declared, they never sent in vain for assistance or advice. She also acknowledged the kind co-operation of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, and thanked that society again for its donation of £40. Mrs. Smythson drew attention to the Christmas dinner. They were, she said, getting lots of clothing for the Christmas tree, and hoped to get more. In answer to her appeal last year she got twenty-eight lovely Christmas puddings, many of them made by the ladies of the Guild, who, while making their own, did an extra one for the Guild. They also purchased a number of puddings on sale or return, which enabled them to delight many a home with Christmas cheer.

Mr. STUART said he wished to reciprocate the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Smythson by saying that if the Benevolent Fund had a case with which they could not deal Miss May always looked after it for him. On behalf of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association he could say they would continue to give as much as they could out of their profits each year. Last year, he reminded them they had a dinner, and wondered whether they were going to have one this year.

Mrs. SMYTHSON replied that the date for the dinner fell at the time when a recent very sad case was on, and they did not feel justified in having that celebration at such a time. If there was time between now and Christmas they might possibly arrange for a dinner.

Answering a suggestion by Mr. Coborn, Mrs. Smythson said that the committee were considering a proposition to enrol honorary members at a lower rate.

Miss LILY BURNAND was urged to make a speech as one of the founders, but replied that she could sing a song, but could not make a speech.

Votes of thanks to the chair and the Press concluded the meeting.

MASONS AT PLAY.

The Earl's Court Lodge of Instruction, from which so many founders of that most successful Lodge Chelsea 3,098, emanated, held a gala night on the 27th ult., at the Villa Villa Restaurant, under the protection of Host W.B. Tettamente. Some of the older members of the Lodge, feeling that the time had arrived when some formal acknowledgment should be made of the untiring efforts of W.Bro. John Worth, the preceptor, to perfect the younger members in the work they eventually hoped to perform, a committee, consisting of W.B. Wolfe S. Lyon, L.R., A.G.P., as chairman, C. G. Hutt, P.A.G.P., vice-chairman, W. Bros. Thomas Tute, J. J. Gilbeart, Arthur J. Taylor, Albert J. Taylor, J. Bucklow, W. H. Neville, and P. Smethurst, treasurer, with Bro. S. N. Lavington hon. sec., was formed to bring the project to a successful issue, which culminated in a gathering of ninety-three members of the craft to assist at a supper and concert at which Bro Worth was the guest of the evening. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, W.B. Lyon proposed the toast of the evening, "Our Guest," and in well-chosen words said there was no occasion for him to dwell upon the many excellent qualities of the esteemed brother in whose honour they had assembled, but for the knowledge of the visitors present he would like to mention that for the twelve years the Lodge had been in existence, during the whole of which Bro. Worth had been preceptor, he had been absent only ten times, which he thought was a record, more particularly having regard to the fact that he resided at so great a distance as Horley. The members of the Lodge had also considered the self-denial of Mrs. Worth, who, instead of complaining of the apparent neglect of her husband every Thursday night, was proud of the work he was doing; and he had much pleasure in asking Bro. Worth if he would oblige the members by conveying to her in their name the contents of a small package he had had placed in the safe for protection before coming into the room. Mr. Lyon then requested one of the waiters to fetch same. The man returned in company with another waiter, the two supporting a large canteen of cutlery and plate, to which the chairman, to the amusement of the company, pointed as the small package from the safe.

In reply, W.B. Worth said that when he was first notified that a supper was to be held in his honour he felt very proud. At the moment of speaking he scarcely knew what he was saying, for the surprise that had been given him in the magnificent present to his wife had quite unnerved him. At the same time he was quite conscious of the honour he was receiving by so vast a number, including his esteemed friends W.Bros. Mulvey and Arthur Williams, both members of Grand Lodge, being present, on to him so memorable an occasion. "The Health of the Visitors," being proposed, W. Bro. Mulvey, who had, together with W.Bro. Williams, been called upon to respond, said he felt rather hurt that he should have been called on to respond for the visitors, as he did not, if the chairman had, forget he was an honorary member of the Lodge, and it afforded him the greatest satisfaction to know that so well deserved a compliment had been paid to so worthy a Brother. W.Bro. Williams said that perhaps to him more than any other brother was the pleasure of that evening. He had known Bro. Worth since his first introduction to Masonry, and it fell to his good lot to place the first collar of office round the shoulder of the guest of the evening. He knew the Earl's Court Lodge of Instruction, and could only hope that its worthy preceptor would be spared for many years to continue the good work he was doing. "The Health of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman" having been duly drunk, the proceedings were brought to a close with a concert, under the direction of W.Bro. Harry Bawn, at which the following artists assisted : Misses Violet James, Tremayne, Ethelle Stapley (gold medallist L.A.M.), Edith Taylor, Betty Wright, Messrs. Arthur Sargent, T. Burnetti, Coram, Andie Caine, Harry Claff, Bert Marsden, Albert Robb, Ambrose Thorne, and Fred Wildon.

THE management of the County Rink, Bath, have started races open to the district, the final heat for which takes place on Nov. 12. On Thursday, Nov. 24, a fancy dress carnival and confetti battle is to take place. Another attraction is the formation of a hockey club, the chairman of which is Mr. C. W. Ellis, the popular manager of the rink.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

Another year's record of invaluable work was unfolded on Sunday evening, when the thirteenth annual general meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane. Mr. Joe Elvin (president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. Charles Coborn (vice-president), J. W. Cragg and Paul Martinetti (hon. trustees), Arthur Rigby (hon. treasurer), Fred Herbert (chairman of committee), T. C. Callaghan, Chris Van Bern, C. C. Bartram, Willie Atom, Mrs. Chas. Coborn, Latimer, Gintara, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cowper, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The following report was read by the secretary:—

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The executive committee, in placing this report of the past year's working of the Association before the members, cannot help feeling that there is not a little monotony in these yearly statements. They seem to be nothing but repetitions—pleasant repetitions, certainly—but repetitions for all that. Each year, what in financial parlance may be termed a "healthy balance-sheet," is incorporated with the report; each year some minor concessions obtained for members have to be recorded; each year a large sum is allocated to charity from the profits derived; and each year the customary votes of thanks to medical officers and provincial agents—all honorary workers—thanks thoroughly well deserved, conclude the report.

The past twelve months have been no different to the others. Owing to increased expenditure, chiefly in the way of rent, the balance in hand is less than last year, while the membership is practically the same as last October—only thirty-five less.

The current account on Sept. 30, the end of the financial year, at the London and South-Western Bank, and the deposit account at the Birkbeck Bank, amounted to £173, as will be seen on reference to the Statement of Receipts and Payments overleaf, while the Reserve Fund, which is invested in Consols, amounted to £545 17s. 3d., and the petty cash at the London and Provincial Offices was £37, making a total of £755 19s. 3d.

The committee has, in addition to the £230 voted at the last General Meeting to be distributed between the railway and music-hall charities, donated during the year a further amount of £70 10s., and now recommends to the General Meeting that the remaining surplus of receipts over expenditure should be donated in the following manner:—£40 to the Music Hall Benevolent Institution (a donation having been granted to the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund in February last), £40 to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, and £20 to the Music Hall Home; also £100, in amounts of £10 each, to ten railway charities.

Regarding two items in the statement overleaf, the committee would like to make some comment. One is the Insurance premiums. In May a deputation of the committee met Mr. Snell, of the Ocean Company, and secured a reduction of 1d. on the premium of each member, amounting to some £28; while, on the other hand, a considerably larger sum has been paid out by the Insurance Company to members for loss of luggage (in one case £40) than ever before.

The other item is the large difference arising between the amount received and the amount paid out under the heading of Refunds. This is explained by the fact that whenever a party of five has been broken, and two or three members only have received the concession, by agreement with the railway companies the difference of the full and reduced fares is promptly paid by the Association to the railway concerned. Afterwards the question of liability on the part of the members is considered. If they can give legitimate and justifiable reasons why they did not, or could not, travel, then the Association pays the amount from the funds, hence the difference mentioned; but when the members are to blame—as, unfortunately, frequently happens—then the committee asks them to refund the amount. Sometimes they do so, very often they neglect to send, or ignore all letters on the matter. The committee has definitely and firmly decided—and due notice is now given to all members—that when they apply for renewal of their cards, the same will not be given them unless and until they have discharged the debt they owe to the Association, or given reasonable explanation of the case. The reasons why there exists this question of refunds—a very troublesome one to the railway companies and to the Association—are various. Sometimes it is caused by members putting their names on Agents' Lists in two towns, and then not advising one of the Agents, or members place their names down stating that they wish to travel by one railway and then go by another without notification, or they receive a contract at the last moment and never let the Agent know so that he could cancel the voucher. Whatever the reasons may be, they cause no little trouble, brought about as they are generally by the thoughtlessness of the members, and are very likely to jeopardise the valuable concession of individual tickets.

The Annual Dinner and Dance in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund and Music Hall Benevolent Institution was held on Feb. 20, when Mr. Eugene Stratton presided. There was a loss of some £7; but, considering the amount of donations received (over £600) and the number of invited guests (thirty-seven), the committee does not consider the loss a large one.

Regarding the provincial branch offices, the Variety Artists' Federation having dispensed with the share of the joint offices at Glasgow, new premises have been taken, and the branch is now conducted solely by the Railway Association.

During the year a regulation has been altered by the railway companies, which is now very vague in diction and very expansive in meaning. It would be impolitic to refer to it more precisely, but it has a decidedly prejudicial effect upon the interests of the Association. Therefore the committee has decided to convene a conference with the music-hall representatives of the railway companies, and if they consider that there would be any chance of having the regulation altered to render it more clear and more limited in scope, a deputation of the committee would be arranged to attend a Clearing House meeting and discuss the question in all its bearings with the superintendents. It is hoped that a favourable settlement will then be arrived at.

A conference was held in the spring of the year with the music-hall representatives of the railway companies, Mr. Joe Elvin, the president, being in the chair, when several questions were before the meeting, one having reference to the heavy charges made by the companies for the conveyance of animals. It was pointed out, however, that special trucks had to be built for large and wild animals, and that there was no chance of the present rates being reduced.

The concession of three-quarter fare has been during the year granted by two more steamship lines from England to the Continent, one having a day service on Sundays that should be of considerable benefit to members.

The committee desires to repeat its expressions of gratitude to all the hon. medical officers of the Association for their kind gratuitous attendance and advice to members. Especially are cordial thanks due to the hon. specialists in London, who, while at the head of their profession, are generous enough to give the best medical skill without thought of fee or reward. To the provincial agents—over 150 in all—who continue to perform their onerous and honorary duties so efficiently that scarcely ever do well-founded complaints against them come before the committee, the heartiest of thanks are due. Again, Mr. Arthur Rigby (the hon. treasurer), Mr. Fred Herbert (hon. chairman of the committee), and Mr. Harry Blake (hon. vice-chairman), are especially entitled to warm thanks for the able manner in which they have attended to the duties of their positions; and another friend should not be forgotten—Mr. Eugene Judge (the hon. solicitor), who gives legal advice to all members upon all points.

The committee, with a desire to express its thanks to the secretary, feels that this cannot be better done than by repeating the words contained in last year's report: "The committee again wishes to express its appreciation and entire satisfaction of the excellent manner in which Mr. C. Douglas Stuart has fulfilled his ever-increasing duties, and thanks him on behalf of the members for his conscientious attention and business-like zeal."

As to the attendances of the committee, the same complaint must be made—that, except for a loyal and devoted band of less than a dozen, the greater portion of the elected representatives of the Association—elected to govern its concerns, to control its affairs—have never attended a single meeting during the year, or possibly one or two only. No doubt the work at the meetings is chiefly routine business, and possibly to some uninteresting, but they might occasionally look in now and again when in London, or else tender their resignation.

There being no nominations received for membership on the executive committee, there will be no need of an election, and the present committee will be reappointed for another year.

To conclude this report the committee, bearing in mind the old adage, 'Happy is the nation that has no history," trusts and believes that the M.H.A.B.A. will continue to pursue its level course of continual, quiet, but effective good work, returning a thousandfold the value of the members' subscriptions, giving away yearly hundreds to charities, enriching the poor, helping the needy, proving itself an undoubted boon and blessing to the entire variety profession.

THE CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

The CHAIRMAN, in his opening address, said: I do not intend to worry you with a speech. Here are the same old faces, the same old few, always the same, whether it is the Railway Association, the Federation, or the Benevolent Institution. (Hear, hear.) I think the report of our secretary most satisfactory. I am sorry members do not take more interest in the working of the Association and give the committee more support. I don't know what the Association would do if it were not for men like Fred Herbert, Arthur Rigby, Harry Blake, and Charles Coborn, and the few others who do the hard work. The thanks of the Association are due to them for carrying on the business, and no doubt if they did not do so the Association would be smashed up, and we should not be able to reap the benefit of it or to give away money to various charities, both railway and music hall. I hope we shall continue to be prosperous, and I hope later on we shall be able to approach the directors of various railways and ask for a further concession. The directors are reasonable and far-seeing men, and will no doubt consider our proposals to place us on the same terms as anglers, and enable us to have cheap tickets for one instead of five. The theatrical traffic managers are always very kind and courteous to the profession; they always have been to me and my company, and I think it is our duty always to look after them as regards those "bad boys" who transgress. I am sure the committee show discretion in every way. I sincerely hope that the year 1911 will be just as prosperous as the present. (Cheers.)

Mr. FRED HERBERT said: It affords me the greatest possible pleasure to be here in my capacity of chairman of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association committee, and to be permitted the privilege of again moving the adoption of the report. It seems to me, as the chairman remarked, that it is a very bad state of affairs when the members of the Association, who number something like 7,000, do not take a greater interest in its working. There is, however, always one thing to be considered, that when members do not turn up at general meetings it shows they are satisfied with the way the organization is going on. We, of course, regard it as a great compliment that nobody comes here to challenge the figures or to create a bother, but it is hardly satisfactory to assemble year after year passing our own words and patting one another on the backs. There is not the slightest doubt if there was anything wrong with the Association members would roll up in large numbers. Just before the meeting Mr Coborn suggested to me that it would not be a bad idea to put a motion on the agenda proposing to divide up the funds at the next general meeting. It might have the effect of bringing members up to the scratch, if only to move an amendment, which I am afraid would be successful. During the past year, I am pleased to think, we have gone on satisfactorily. There has been less trouble than in previous years, and not one expulsion, I think, to chronicle. I believe we had during the year before two expulsions from the Association for bad conduct, and that possibly has had a deterrent effect upon others, and we have had no repetition of the trouble. I hope everything will be done to safeguard the concession. I do not suggest anybody does anything maliciously to endanger the concession, but little bits of friction may bring about trouble in the future. (Hear, hear.) The sight of the old faces, year after year, on the committee, is somewhat monotonous. The confidence of members is shown in the fact that there is no opposition to the committee. Nominations have been asked for to oppose the present committee with a view to getting fresh blood on the executive, and that would not be a bad thing, for some of the members of the present committee have not attended more than one meeting. I think the alternative for these people, who cannot do a little bit of the work, for which they derive as much benefit as we derive, is to tender their resignations. (Hear, hear.) Nevertheless, we must regard it as a compliment, and resolve to do our work just the same in the future as in the past. (Applause.)

Mr. ARTHUR RIGBY moved the adoption of the balance-sheet. He said he should like to say he was quite in accord with the previous speakers. He thought such a meagre attendance as they had that night was a slight on the labours of the committee. It would not be a bad idea to adopt the attitude of the Labour Members of the House of Commons, namely, payment of members of the committee. (Laughter.)

Mr. VERNON COWPER seconded the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, which was carried.

NAMES ON AGENTS' LISTS.

Mr. COWPER entered a protest against members not putting their names down earlier in the week. The matter did not affect parties, but it did affect individual members. He took it that the Association was for individual members, and not particularly for people who could get their five or ten. It should be impressed upon members that they ought to put their names down as soon as they knew their journey. Monday was rehearsal day, but they ought to have their names by Tuesday morning if possible. He had known of people leaving it until Friday, thus causing several to miss the concession. It was, he added, an absolute disgrace that there were not more members present that night to support the committee who do their work. He asked whether there was any chance of getting the concession applied to three instead of five.

The CHAIRMAN: I can only say that during the next year we shall form a deputation to the directors again, and take what we can get. The committee will bear in mind your remarks with regard to putting down names. I think the rule specifies Friday, and therefore they do not hurry themselves, but I am sure that Mr. Stuart might impress upon those members who travel singly the advisability of putting their names down on Tuesday, and not later than Wednesday.

Mr. COBORN said it should not be lost sight of that transfers were now very common, and people who put their names down earlier than Thursday did not know but that they might be transferred. If members put down names, and were afterwards transferred, they might thereby be the cause of breaking up the voucher.

The SECRETARY said that, as a rule, in London quite 75 per cent. of members did not put their names down until Friday. Some of that 75 per cent. must have known where they were going that week

Mr. HERBERT said he was on one occasion in an agent's office in Manchester at closing time on a Wednesday, and up to then only seventeen names had been put on the list in three days.

The CHAIRMAN said the committee would bear in mind the suggestions submitted.

A VOTE OF CONDOLENCE.

The CHAIRMAN said he rose to propose a vote of condolence with a respected member of their Association, Mr. Harry Blake, on the loss of his dear wife, with whom he had been associated so many years. The sympathy of the profession, of the committee, the officials, and every member of their Association would be extended to him in his sad bereavement.

Mr. COBORN seconded the vote of condolence, which was passed in silence, with the meeting upstanding.

THE PRESIDENT'S RE-ELECTION.

Mr. FRED HERBERT said he moved that their dear old friend, Joe Elvin, be reappointed to the presidency of the Association. (Prolonged applause.) He knew it was not Mr. Elvin's desire to be greedy and hold that office against the wish of anybody, but he did not know of any person in the profession more fitted to hold that position than their old friend, Joe Elvin. It was the only thing they had to offer him for all the kindness that he had bestowed upon the profession.

Mr. MARTINETTI seconded, and the resolution was carried nem. con.

Mr. ELVIN thanked the meeting for his re-election. He accepted the presidency of the Association. It was a great honour to be president of an association numbering 7,000 members, and two years was a very good engagement. There were, however, others in their profession—for instance, Mr. Joe Cragg, Paul Martinetti, dear old Charlie Coborn, and lots of others—more entitled to occupy that position than he was. (No, no.) Any way, he accepted the position for another year, and was determined to do his duty as president and anything possible for the profession. But next year he wanted to pass it on to somebody else. He did not believe in one person being in any position all the time. He thanked them from his heart for re-electing him.

REAPPOINTMENT OF OFFICERS.

Mr. VAN BERN proposed the re-election of vice-presidents, Messrs. Charles Coborn, Albert Le Fre, Douglas White, and Fred Millis. He alluded to the fact that Sir James Bailey, who had just passed away, was one of their vice-presidents, and accompanied the first deputation to the Clearing House. The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. COBORN thanked the meeting on behalf of his colleagues, who for various reasons were unable to be there that day.

Proposed by Mr. CRAGG and seconded by Mr. BARTRAM, Mr. Arthur Rigby was elected hon. treasurer. In returning thanks Mr. RIGBY said he had better hang on until they got payment for members. (Laughter.) But, joking apart, he would always use his best endeavours in the interests of the Association.

Mr. COBORN proposed the re-election of the hon. solicitor, Mr. Eugene Judge. They were, he said, all indebted to Mr. Judge for his advice given, most promptly and with a great deal of legal acumen. He was a valuable asset in their Association. The resolution was seconded by Mr. VAN BERN, and unanimously passed.

Mrs. VERNON COWPER (who will perhaps be better known as Mlle. Hirsch, a violin soloist and conductor of ladies' orchestras), thanked the meeting on behalf of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild for their kind donation of £40, which was appreciated exceedingly.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the chairman on the proposition of Mr. FRED HERBERT, seconded by Mr. CRAGG.

Mr. COBORN wished to emphasise the vote of thanks in the report to their secretary, Mr. Stuart, who, he added, did everything possible to make the machinery of the Association run smoothly. (Hear, hear.)

The meeting then concluded.

"BLUEBELL" AT HIPPODROME.

A Shortened Version of the Vaudeville Play, by Seymour Hicks, Music by Walter Slaughter, Produced at the London Hippodrome on Monday, Oct. 31.

Dicky	MR. STANLEY BRETT
Mr. Joplin	MR. ROLAND CHESTER
Will	MR. JOHN DORAN
Won't	MR. CECIL KINGSLEY
Mab	MISS IVY SAWYER
Winnie	MISS DORIS WALKER
Peter the Cat	MISS BERTHA SCHWARTZ
Bluebell	MISS ELLALINE TERRISS

Miss Ellaline Terriss came to the Hippodrome on Monday in one of her favourite characters, Bluebell, in a shortened version of Bluebell in Fairyland, which had such a successful run on its original production at the Vaudeville. Bluebell's travels are now restricted to her journey from her garret to a corner of the Strand. Incidentally, she is found outside Mr. Joplin's house, from which position she is driven by a bobby. Her Arcadian love affair with Dicky, the crossing-sweeper, is properly dwelt upon, and the happiness dispensed by the kind-hearted Mr. Joplin to all and sundry has quite a Christmassy flavour. Those wonderful footmen, Will and Won't, who have ideas and phraseology in common, are duly important and funny, and the flower-sellers are dainty blossoms in a garden of girls. Everything has been done to emphasise the idyllic nature of the production, and the play of fun and fantasy should prove agreeable alike to elders and youngsters. The charm and sweetness of Miss Ellaline Terriss are as irresistible as they were when the larger production first saw the footlights at the Vaudeville Theatre, and she dances with an alluring grace and daintiness that take us captive. Mr. Stanley Brett, who may be said to be his brother's (Mr. Seymour Hicks) alter ego, plays Dicky, the crossing-sweeper, with invincible cheeriness; and the duet and burlesque business with Bluebell are particularly full of gaiety. Mr. Roland Chester is effective as Mr. Joplin; Mr. John Doran and Mr. Cecil Kingsley are a couple of whimsical footmen; Miss Ivy Sawyer is a clever child actress as Mab; Miss Doris Walker makes a successful appearance as Winnie; and Miss Bertha Schwartz is benevolently feline as Peter, the cat.

A great novelty in the Hippodrome programme is found in the silhouette dances of the "Three Maidens from Sais" (Greece). These young ladies, in black tights that outline their shapeliness, reflect their figures on a strongly-lighted scene. They pose beautifully in a sinuous representation of "Idolatry," and the "veil" dance is quite in the classic vein. The realisation of the figures on a Grecian frieze is also particularly interesting and artistic.

Ayoë, a Danish comedienne, well endowed as an expressionist, reminds one strongly of Yvette Guilbert, especially when she sings "The Keys of Heaven," a favourite number with the French artist. Mr. J. J. Dallas, who is quite English, whimsically deplores the woes of a widow who sings "What I've suffered nobody knows"; M. Costantino Bernardi's long turn is a marvel of energy and versatility; the Maid and the Mandarin present an agreeable vocal and musical Chinese scena at the piano; and Boris Lensky, the violin virtuoso, is well applauded for his solos, in which he displays command of technical difficulties and a good tone.

Harry Brown, coloured comedian, is so quaintly confidential that he quickly gets on terms with his audience, who find originality and drollery in his song "In the summer-time it's all right; in the winter-time—no!" He shows some anxiety as to the appreciation of his humour by those in front; but this is only at the start of his turn. He gets right there at the finish. The Courtiers are responsible for some dainty, well-written, and well-produced numbers, the dresses of the ladies sounding a note of real elegance; Corbin's boxing dogs are amusing; the Three Emersons have a novel way of presenting a really smart gymnastic and acrobatic act; and the thrilling picture on the Bioscope of a genuine lion hunt keeps the audience until the close of a very fine programme, directed by the popular Mr. Fred Trussell, who has for his aide-de-camp Mr. Tom Miller.

NEW EMPIRE, KINGSTON.

Mr. Clarence Sounes, who has made such a bold bid for local favour by erecting this palatial music hall in a town honeycombed with places of amusement, is receiving a handsome reward for his enterprise, for the large house, which holds about 1,800 persons, has been well filled at each of the two performances nightly since it was opened last week, and judging by this, the latest of Kingston's places of entertainment has a promising future in front of it. Mr. Sounes opened with a remarkably attractive programme, and the bill of fare this week is even more notable. The star turn is provided by Miss Evie Green, the clever musical comedy artist from the London Hippodrome. Miss Green commands admiration wherever she goes, and the audiences at Kingston this week have not been slow to recognise her undoubted abilities. Her singing of "The Corsican Maid" was beautifully done, and she was equally successful in the song "I hear you calling me." In the hands of a less capable artist these commonplace songs might have gone flat, but Miss Green infused a power of expression and pathos into them that commanded universal appreciation, and she was vociferously rewarded for her efforts. She was loudly recalled, and for an encore gave a rustic recitation in the West Country dialect that brought her back to the front several times afterwards. Another important item in the programme is the performance of the remarkable Child Trio, three little juvenile actor musicians, who exhibit most precocious talent for their years. The singing of little Bessie was received with rapturous applause, and the climax was reached when her little brother John takes the conductor's chair and leads the orchestra of adults. The Five Whiteleys exhibit remarkable cleverness as acrobats, the lady member of the troupe being loudly applauded for some clever evolutions on a wire rope. Erne and Dave, the Warsaw Brothers, from Australia, create great fun in their comedy musical act, as also do Kenneth and Kane in their "comedy duo," with their latest song, "Oh! Oh! Oh!" Yetta, a clever lady artist, introduces her sensational novelty, a "cake walk on the wire," and Charles Ulrick, "the burrel king and franka wonder," Mr. Arthur Stephens, the local light comedian, and Mr. Arthur Slater, the whistling man in white, are also attractive features in the programme, which concludes each evening with pictures by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

HAS SENSATIONAL HIT IN HIS SKETCH, "ONLY A JEW."

The most exacting critic of the vaudeville stage or of the stage itself, regardless of classification, would be silenced by a visit to the American Music Hall this week. Popular acts are there in plenty, but also there is something over which to enthuse that is altogether worthy and acting sufficiently powerful to satisfy the most ardent advocate of high standards for the stage.

The people who take the stage and its people seriously, the people who cry for the managers to show them splendid acting, owe a vote of thanks to William Morris for bringing Jack Lawson to America. He has followed his triumph in The Monkey's Paw with a still greater triumph in The Open Door.

Mr. Lawson has completely upset many stage precedents. That the producers of dramatic plays who scoff at vaudeville should have allowed John Lawson to escape them is nothing short of astounding. Physically, he is a little man. From the standpoint of dramatic acting he is the biggest little man this American generation has known.

John Lawson is an actor who makes you forget that he is acting. Here is no clever stage mountebank, full of tricks to gain applause, but an actor who feels the character he is portraying so intensely as to forget the sham appeals for curtain calls. By his sheer sincerity he compels the greatest applause and the more curtain calls.

HERE IS THE STORY.

The story is of Only a Jew, so the lines run, who, in his admiration for a pretty face—"a toy," as he expresses it—has drifted from moneylending to racetrack touting, and finally to counterfeiting. He is tried, found guilty, and is likely to receive a five years' sentence.

Released on bail, he returns home. His wife, believing bail had been refused, is expecting an admirer, who had helped to trap and convict him. He discovers this, also that because the new fancy had spoken of his imprisonment as her "open door," she had intended delivering to the police the counterfeiting plates he had wanted her to destroy.

In his frenzy to keep her and to save himself at the same time he chokes her to death. He had not intended to do this, but he has no regrets. He hides the lounge on which she has fallen behind a screen before his rival arrives.

The dialogue and action from here hold every one breathless up to the startling climax, where the Jew gives the man who had much to do with his ruin a chance for his life. He gives him the choice, to be made in the dark, of two revolvers, one loaded, the other not, he to take the one left, and then both attempt to fire to kill. The loaded one falls to the Jew. He fires and kills.

The programme says this is a problem episode, and the last line discloses the problem when John Lawson, as the Jew, exclaims:

"And now I'll wait for justice!"

John Lawson, the Belasco of Vaudeville.—Sam M'Kee in the Morning Telegraph, New York, Oct. 25, 1910.

PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

A visit to the above popular South London house, over the fortunes of which Mr. Cecil Paget has so long ably presided, assures us of the fact that it has lost none of its pristine popularity. After a well-rendered overture by the orchestra, under the talented bâton of Mr. Julian Goldsmid, vivacious Miss Elsie Steadman opens the programme proper with an Hibernian ditty, "Molly Molloy," which she renders with much chic. Mr. Harry Nelson is an amusing comedian, whose two comic effusions, accompanied as they are by some humorous patter, prove much to the taste of the audience. Mr. Walter Peach, who possesses a fine baritone voice, renders with great effect "If I had the world to give you." A very artistic and enjoyable turn is that provided by Miss Alice Hoodless, who gives us a series of tableaux, most of which are reproductions of famous English paintings. Some of the tableaux are designed by Miss Hoodless herself, and she appears as the central figure in each. Especially notable are "February Sunshine," "A Christmas Carol," "Cutting a Cabbage," and "The Nun." Miss Hoodless deservedly receives a great ovation at the close of her turn.

The Two Bobs (Bob Adams and Bob Alden) present a sparkling mixture of fun, song, and dance. They are both very smart comedians, and a clever parody of "Funicular" and the American ditties "It's a good world, after all," and "Come to the barber's ball" are hugely enjoyed by the house. Lulie and Jessica Brooke, "the girls in blue," delight the audience with their songs and dances. One lady appears as a gay Court gallant, with her sword at her side, and the other as a pretty damsel, attired in the costume of our grandmothers' days.

Perhaps the hit of the evening is made by Mr. Jake Friedman and company, in the burletta Happy Holland, a merry and tuneful half-hour musical comedy in miniature. It is crammed full with fun, dance, and melody. Mr. Jake Friedman, with his clever yodelling and quaint humour, is the life and soul of the production; while Miss Florence Hunton sings sweetly as his Dutch fiancée. Mr. Charles Mavern, Mr. Leigh Ellis, Mr. Lucian, and Miss Limberg ably sustain the remaining characters; while their efforts are well supported by a chorus of some twenty ladies and gentlemen. Messrs. Crosby and Walker, the jocular Eton boys; Miss Louise Zetland; Ted Curtis, assisted by a lady and gentleman artist, in a clever dancing act; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are the remaining items in a first-class programme. Mr. G. B. Wayne ably sustains the duties of stage-manager.

SHOREDITCH EMPIRE.

A most attractive and varied programme is submitted this week at this popular house. The principal turn is that sweet-voiced vocalist, Miss Lilian Lea, who delights audiences with rendering "The Dear Homeland," "Il Bacio," and Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord." Another popular artist is Miss Alexandra Dagmar, who highly amused the patrons with her well-rendered songs and choruses, interpolated with humorous stories. The Two Bobs are a pair of most capable artists, who were heartily applauded in their several numbers, the most popular being "Casey Jones." Regan and Ryan are also an amusing duo, both in knockabout business and songs, and keep the company in a continual state of merriment. Olive Dene, a dainty character comedienne and dancer, was most successful in "Come, oh, come, to Santa Bay," followed by a neatly-executed dance.

Mark Leslie is a clever delineator of coon melodies, which greatly appeal to the audience. That his success was immediate was shown by the manner the number was received. He also scored most unmistakably in "If you have only got a little bit" and "You have my sympathy," and was applauded for his graceful dancing. Sterling and Love caused merriment in their well-known and extremely popular act, entitled Discord and Harmony, in which the gentleman introduces some very good instrumental playing and the lady entertains with fine vocal efforts.

Fred Moule's well-known sketch Gretna Green was received with every token of satisfaction, the fight between Jack Wayho and Jack Collinson with bare knuckles being well done. Among the other turns were Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer; Lewis and Elvy, Hebrew recruits; and Harry Marte, who assisted in making the entertainment a success. During the evening the bioscope threw some interesting films on the screen.

"THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE."

Janet .....Miss Netta Lynde
Jim .....Mr. Conway Dixon
Dorkins .....Mr. Christmas Grose

A very pleasant and attractive little production, entitled The Head of the House, is being introduced at the above hall this week. Mr. Ernest Bucalossi, the well-known musical-director, is responsible for both the book and the music, and he has succeeded in creating a playlet admirably adapted for vaudeville programmes. The characters are three—a husband, wife, and the husband's friend. All of them move in very humble surroundings, and the wife has already discovered that she is married to a man who has developed a dislike for work—an amiable but weak human being, who is beginning to make beer, tobacco, and a good dinner the main objects of existence, though not at all prepared to make it his business to earn the money to pay for them. Soon after the rise of the curtain the husband comes in, and commences to tell his wife that if he had a shilling to buy a little leather he would be able to earn five shillings by repairing the local blacksmith's bellows, which are broken. The wife, very accurately believing that it is a trick to secure the money, goes off to find out if the story is true. As soon as she has gone the husband's friend, Peter, who suggests all these little dodges, enters, and the husband, who is beginning to feel ashamed of himself, has a row with Peter, and announces his intention of going off to enlist. Peter tells the husband that if he would keep out of sight for a short time, so as to let the wife think he had gone, that he would tell the wife that for a matter of two or three pounds he could "square" the sergeant who had taken her husband and get him bought out.

The husband does not like the idea, and while they are wrangling the wife is heard returning, and the husband gets out of sight. As soon as she enters Peter begins to work the trick, and just when it has succeeded and she has paid over the money the husband comes out, forces Peter to refund the money, and kicks him out, then eventually announces his intention of reforming, and effects a reconciliation with his wife.

Apart from the slight touch of improbability as to the promised reformation being permanent, the episode is capitally worked out, and it gains a good deal from the music. Two numbers in particular are very effective—the duet between husband and wife, and the song sung by the husband, this latter item being capitally scored. Mr. Conway Dixon played the husband in a very convincing fashion, and displayed a good voice; Miss Netta Lynde was exceedingly natural as the wife, and also distinguished herself in the musical side of the show; and Mr. Christmas Grose as Peter submitted an excellent study of an elderly cadger.

The production was listened to with the greatest interest by a large audience, and at the fall of the curtain a very demonstrative "curtain" was accorded the artists.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

Good fare and plenty of it figures on the menu here this week. Prefaced by a capitally-played overture, "Light Cavalry" (Suppé), Rosie Gaston, dainty and delightful, warbles quite sweetly of oranges. She naïvely comments on the embarrassment of the situation when buyers "fix one eye on the oranges and the other on the orange girl." Goggin and Davis, droll's, get to work in a business-like way, and are soon in the good graces of the audience. Merriment reigns supreme while they are in possession. Some of the wheezes cracked by this duo are unique. A combat à la mort is one of the funny things of the evening. Alf Arbus adds his pleasing contribution to the programme, and as a juvenile is not without talent. Some excellent work is put in by Ross and Grayson, a quaint comedy couple, who extract humour from a harmless piano, and keep things humming in an all too brief turn. Ross and Grayson are, in a word, excellent.

Hailing from the land of kangaroos, Ed. E. Ford is responsible for considerable amusement in his novel entertainment, "Faces." There is a distinct touch of novelty about this clever comedian. His "business" is distinctly good, and his facial contortions remarkable. Ford at the dentist's is something "that tells a story." "We're all growing older and older," a chorus ditty, gets the gallery and pit humming the refrain of a vocal truism. A host in herself, Irma Lorraine is responsible for some very beautiful tableaux; a series illustrating "The Five Senses" is both artistic and delightful A couple of irresponsible wags, the Brothers Brook, gave forth quite a host of moral precepts to the air of "The grandfather's clock." Comedy on wheels is represented by the Marsumas, who, while demonstrating their ability as smart wheelmen, contrive to imbue their act with much that is amusing and not unfunny. A dainty little mimic, who will do better things later, Gladys Nelson gives a selection of "Imitations, More or Less Accurate." A bonne bouche is provided in Walter Bird's company, in their wildly-diverting sketch Her Husband. The plot of the piece is as gossamer, but its interpretation leaves nothing to be desired. As the burglar, Jem, that excellent comedian Ernie Lotinga is at his best. Never for a second did the fun flag, but "laughter, holding both its sides," proved the rule. All the parts were capably sustained. Mr. Lotinga had an enthusiastic "call," and deserved it. Richmond does bravely.

Before Mr. Justice Bray and a common Jury, in the King's Bench Division, on Thursday, was an action brought by Mr. William Thomas Lapthorne and his wife, Marion Lapthorne, known on the stage as Ashley Page and Marion Denvil, against Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler for salaries alleged to be owing them as music-hall artists.

Mr. Daldy said the plaintiffs were engaged to play characters in two pieces, Cromwell or the King? and The Other Woman. As matters stood he only asked, on behalf of the plaintiffs, for three weeks' salary at £15 per week and extra payments for two matinées. The defence was that Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler were only contracting agents for someone else, and were therefore not personally liable. The plaintiffs' contention was that the defendants contracted as principals.

Mr. Lapthorne, in the course of his evidence, stated that the original salary for himself and his wife was to be £20 a week at the Paragon Music Hall, Mile End-road. As the piece Cromwell or the King? promised to be a big success and to have a long run, he assented to the salary being reduced to £15 a week. Mrs. Lapthorne spoke of an incident at the Holborn Music Hall, when the company was asked to stand out of the bill, as it was overcrowded. Mr. Beecham refused to agree.

Mr. Charles Henry Beecham stated in evidence that in 1908 he was the manager and Mr. Wheeler was treasurer of the Paragon Music Hall, Mile End-road. The sketch Cromwell or the King? was written by Mr. Wheeler, and the plaintiffs received £20 a week for playing it at the Paragon. The witness and Mr. Wheeler afterwards started business as music-hall and dramatic agents. He got engagements for Mr. and Mrs. Lapthorne, and the former knew that if there was no play there was no pay. The further hearing was adjourned.

DANCING—FOREIGN AND ENGLISH

A CHAT WITH MISS LOLA LEE.

An article recently appeared in Truth concerning foreign and English dancing, in which our readiness as a nation to accept anything foreign and our unwillingness to recognise any merit in anything produced in our own country was deplored. By this neglect we allow our English school of dancing created by John d'Auban to languish and die, and while we still cherish memories of Kate Vaughan, Letty Lind, Sylvia Grey, and Mimi St. Cyr—to mention only a few of the brilliant little company who graduated in this school—their successors are not forthcoming. The opinion of Miss Lola Lee, one of our cleverest young English dancers, on this question should prove interesting.

Miss Lee, who learnt in the John d'Auban school, and is the one exponent of the Kate Vaughan style of dancing at present before the public, it will be remembered proved her versatility by her performance at the Hippodrome in many varied and difficult dances, and won a decided success. In the Kate Vaughan Waltz the dancer introduced a series of "dip pirouettes," and very few there are on the English stage who can do justice to the fascinating but extremely difficult movements. Her teacher, Mr. John d'Auban, is of opinion that Miss Lee executes these pirouettes better than any pupil he has ever had.

Asked by an Era representative why she gave up the snake dance, Miss Lee replied that she was very sorry to do so, being particularly fond of that kind of dance, but the snakes all died after she returned from South Africa with the exception of one, which is now in the Zoological Gardens. "And as everyone told me that sort of dancing was dead, I decided to give it up; but from the papers it seems that we are to have quite another invasion of barefoot dancers from abroad. I also see that an English dancer is doing a Kate Vaughan dance with bare feet. This is, of course, an anomaly.

"What are the chief characteristics of the Kate Vaughan dance? There is really no such thing. Kate Vaughan did many dances, all of which were creations of John d'Auban, who founded this style of dancing, which is really ballet dancing in long skirts and high-heeled shoes, with the addition of the arm and body movements, which are a speciality of all John d'Auban's pupils. Maud Allan is the only artist not a pupil of Mr. d'Auban that I know of who has these movements, and in her case there is no denying they were simply beautiful. All her actions were entirely spontaneous and untaught."

Asked if dancing in high heels instead of ballet shoes did not make the balance much more difficult, Miss Lee replied, "Certainly it does, and the high heels being a speciality of this kind of dancing you will see how ridiculous it is for anyone to talk of doing a Kate Vaughan dance with bare feet."

The lack of good English dancers at the present time Miss Lee attributes to the lack of demand for them. "There is a craze at present for foreign turns. Anything that comes from abroad seems able to obtain an engagement at our leading West End halls. I don't mean to imply by this that we have not had some really fine dancers from abroad, but I think some of them would never have got booked if there had not been a strong boom in foreign articles.

"You know it requires years of hard work to make a dancer. I practice two hours every day, and three days a week I have an hour's lesson as well. It's very difficult to keep on work, work, work, to find when you go to look for a job that it is a case of 'No English need apply.' I am sure there is plenty of the raw material, and if only there was the demand Mr. d'Auban would unearth it as he did in the old Gaiety days."

Many people doubt if Miss Lee is as youthful as has been stated in some of the papers, for her dancing is that of a fully trained artist, and not that of a child. Questioned on this point, the enthusiastic young lady replied: "It is quite true. I was fourteen on March 16 last. I came out at the Canterbury when I was 12½, and was starred in South Africa when I was thirteen. You should have seen the manager's face when I appeared at rehearsal, and have heard him exclaim, 'Good heavens, only a child!' But he was quite satisfied with the child after the first performance. I may tell you I am the youngest pupil Mr. d'Auban has ever had."

Speaking of her success at the Hippodrome, Miss Lee remarked: "I think Mr. Stoll, at any rate, thinks there is still some merit in English dancing, for he has given me the whole Moss and Stoll tour, commencing next year."

British born and British trained, Miss Lee's refreshingly artistic and clever work should quickly win for her a prominent position in the art of which she is so gifted an exponent.

Among the visitors to the Tivoli on Tuesday evening were several members of General Sir Archibald and Lady Hunter's wedding party, including Lord Kitchener.

"Scrooge" has again been presented by Mr. Seymour Hicks at the Coliseum, and on Monday the versatile actor had a very warm reception in the character. He is again receiving excellent support from Mr. J. C. Buckstone and Miss Adela Measor.

The Brothers Webb (Jo-Jo and Ruté), the musical clowns, are scoring a gratifying success at the Circus Variété, Copenhagen. The Countess Blücher and her daughter, Irene, have been three times to see their performance at the circus, and on Thursday, the 27th ult., these ladies invited the brothers to afternoon tea. During their stay they played the following pieces on their English concertinas: March, "Sounds of Peace" (Franz von Blon); valse, "Aimons Nous" (Lecoq); and Suppé's overture, "Poet and Peasant." Jo-Jo also gave a solo (fantasie), introducing an imitation of the bells of England, and Brother Ruté played a solo on the guitar. These ladies have since written to the popular musical clowns a letter of thanks for their delightful music. They left Copenhagen on Sunday evening for the Apollo Théatre, Mannheim.

MR. MORRIS ABRAHAMS' BENEFIT.

A well-deserved complimentary benefit was accorded to Mr. Morris Abrahams on Friday evening, Oct. 28, at the Queen's Palace of Varieties, Poplar. The house was packed at each performance, being ample testimony to the popularity which Mr. Abrahams enjoys. The programme contained some eighty-nine items, of which the following appeared:—Harry Brown; Arthur Boyne; Hal Berte, amusing as ever; Russell Brandon; Harry Brettel; Frank Bryce, who was greatly appreciated in his song scena, "Don't go down the mine, daddy"; Ruby Corbett; G. H. Chirgwin, who was received with hearty applause; Johnny Cecil; Collins and Moore; Dolli, whose clever dancing, heightened by fine scenic effects, was greatly appreciated and applauded—Dolli is certainly a graceful dancer; Florence Dudley, heard to advantage in "I want to come home to Killarney" and "Good-bye, darling"; Baby Vi Davis; Alexandra Dagmar, looking exceptionally well; Fred Durban; Dolly Elsworthy and company, a popular item; Rosie Ferne; Billy Farrell; Ian Grey; Muriel Harding; Frank Hartley; the Harbard Septette, in song and dance, a well stage-managed turn; George James; Dudley King; Fred Lincoln; Lyle and Lina; Chas. Lloyd and Cissie Barwick; Jack McKenzie; Bertha May; Mr. and Mrs. Manning; the MacJans; Mr. Arthur Rose and company, in the thrilling sketch, The Robbery of the Mail; Vesta Victoria; Lena Verdi; Sam Williams; May Ferry; Bros. Ogarlson; Frank Fernley; and S. W. Wyndham.

A pleasing expression of appreciation was made during the evening, when Mr. R. C. Jenkins presented, on behalf of the staff and friends, a purse of gold to Mr. Abrahams. In reply to the many nice things Mr. Jenkins had said, the beneficiaire tendered his heartfelt thanks for the splendid way in which his friends had rallied round to make the evening the success it was, and also to every member of the staff who had subscribed to his presentation. He mentioned that the evening marked two new things in his career: they were his first benefit and his first public speech, but that he sincerely trusted to bring off the double again in the near future.

The management of the evening's entertainment was in the able hands of Mr. Ben Abrahams, who pioneered affairs successfully. The smoothness and celerity with which the numerous turns were handled reflects great credit on Mr. Wilfred V. Biegen, the resident stage-manager, and his popular assistant, Mr. R. C. Jenkins. The musical arrangements were ably attended to by Mr. W. Hinkinson.

The bill for the current week is a particularly strong one. George Carney presents his latest sketch, The Fool of the Forge, written by himself, in three full-set scenes, in which he appears as Officer Mudd. Sharing the top of the bill is Fred Eustace and company, in a new dramatic sketch by G. Roydon Duff, entitled On Leave, in which Mr. Fred Eustace as Post-Captain Hughes and Miss Mary Eustace as Mary Hughes are particularly well placed. Billed as "the world's greatest English concertina soloist," Martin Henderson, the blind musical genius, wins well-merited applause; Harry Marte, that popular light chorus comedian and dancer, scores well; whilst Ryder Slone, Poplar's favourite, has some new numbers, which he gives in his own quaint style. Russell and Held have a very taking singing and dancing act, in which Lillian introduces her famous telephone song; Lottie Lennox, popular as ever, gives her latest successes, the best of which is "Put on your old plaid shawl." Also in the bill are Phœbe Lyndhurst and Trixie Richards.

The following story, by Mr. Harry Weldon, "Stiffy, the goalkeeper," a comedian who is as well known in the football world as he is upon the stage, is well worthy of reproduction in these columns. As a prefatory explanation Harry writes: "I am not the Wheldon that played so well for Aston Villa. I have been accused of this in each of the four countries. Wagers have been made about it, and the decision left in the hands of the editor of a well-known sporting paper.

"On one occasion in a certain town I was honoured with a splendid little supper in my honour; and, after the eatables had been replaced by the drinkables, my host rose and proposed the health of his guest. 'Gentlemen,' he said, 'I have pleasure in asking you to drink the health of Fred Wheldon, who as a forward knew no superior when he wore the colours of Aston Villa. Those of you who saw the great game he played against Blackburn Rovers in 1895 will agree with me that his like we shall rarely see again.' The health was drunk with musical honours, and then I was called upon to reply.

"'It gives me the greatest pleasure to drink this gentleman's health,' I began, 'because though I have not the pleasure of knowing him, yet from what my friend, Jimmy Crabtree, has told me of him he must have been one of the best players and the truest of men.'

"'Now, Fred, lad, theau needn't be ashamed of taking to the stage, and go in for disguising thyself. Theaurt earning an honest living, and theare's nowt to be ashamed of,' so ran the protest of my audience.

"'Gentlemen,' I responded, 'I'm very sorry to disappoint you in any way. I'd be very willing to be Fred Wheldon or anyone else to please you, but I must remind you of one or two things. Firstly, my name, like myself, is plain "Weldon." I never use the "h" in it. Then, again, in place of "Fred" I find that my name is "Harry," or to be "eloquition," as Tom Foy would say, it is "James Henry." As for that match against Blackburn Rovers in 1895, well, at that time I was a schoolboy of thirteen, so I'm afraid it could not have been me who played. I'm awfully sorry. I've enjoyed my supper and your company, and the real genuine article could not have done so more than I have.'"

PROVINCIAL MANAGERS.

MR. ERNEST BRIDGEN.

Mr. Ernest Bridgen, Empire Palace, South Shields, first entered "the business" as a box-office clerk at the old Munts Hall, Clapham Junction, London, 1894. After this he was appointed a manager by the late Herbert Campbell, chairman, and Dan Leno, vice-chairman, of a syndicate which owned at that time the Empire, Camberwell, the Palace, Croydon, the Granville, Walham Green, and the Grand, Clapham, London. Following this, he was appointed by Mr. Oswald Stoll as manager of the Empire, Briggate, Leeds. There Mr. Bridgen remained for the course of a year. Afterwards he was appointed manager of one of Mr. Stoll's most important halls in London—namely, the Empire, New Cross—where he remained for five years. He left with the best wishes of his employers to open the last music hall which has been opened in the suburbs of London—viz., the Kilburn Empire, not a stone's throw from the Marble Arch. From that hall Mr. Bridgen comes to us at the Empire, South Shields. He is known in this town as our dear old friend the Matinée King.—The Northern Observer, Aug. 26, 1910.

BALHAM HIPPODROME.

The comedy element is prominent in the current bill at the Balham Hippodrome, which has Mr. Mark Sheridan as the star. The strains of "I do like to be beside the seaside," which at the present moment is enjoying perhaps the greatest vogue of any song in town and country, is greeted with a roar of welcome, and the popular comedian has no lack of support in the chorus. Mr. Sheridan loses not a second in the making of mirth, and his description of Brighton beach and his accompanying patter are followed by roars of laughter. Nothing droller, either, is to be seen than his burlesque quadrille dance, and the pleasure derived by the audience is seen in repeated recalls. Jordan and Harvey are also effective in the production of merriment, and their quaint Yiddisher songs and "cross-talk" earn any quantity of laughter.

Pride of Regiment, the "beautiful homely incident" by Mr. F. D. Bone, is making as great a hit on the variety stage as it did on the theatrical. It has appealed forcibly to Balham music-hall lovers, who have applauded the capital acting of Mr. Nevill Graham as the old martinet of a father; of Mr. Arthur Leslie, who realises the youthful and degraded soldier admirably; and of Miss Nellie Lauraine, whose spirited and pathetic acting is equally impressive. A sketch of another kind is the comedy episode, Mixed Pickles, presented by Bowman and Morton, and designed to make the audience hilarious, a purpose in which it never languishes.

Favourite entertainers are seen in the Dandies, who provide mirth and melody unlimited. Their latest is a musical burletta entitled Our Audiences, in which the occupants of an imaginary pit, stalls, and gallery are amusingly satirised. A pretty duet, "If I were King," is sung by a lady and gentleman Dandy, and the efforts of the little company provide a never-failing source of enjoyment. Miss Queenie Essex, a fascinating comedienne, sings "Goo-goo Land" in exhilarating style, and wins loud applause for her rendering of a popular operatic selection. Another popular artist is the "Black Diamond," Charles J. Johnson, who scores particularly with a peculiar specimen of the cake-walk, by means of which he won the competition in "Paris, France." Other contributors to the programme are Vi Lauri, comedienne and dancer, and Jay Laurier, assisted by his blood-hound, Dirk. The Bioscope has some interesting pictures of monkeys gathering cocoanuts, and of the capture by natives of a gigantic snake. The new manager here is Mr. Charles Beresford, who comes from the Camden Hippodrome, and was formerly at the Holloway Empire under Messrs. Moss and Stoll. Mr. Beresford has also had a long career in the management of companies on tour.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1½; Drury Lane (15s. pd.), 1 1-16 xd; Empire (15s. pd.), 2; ditto (10s. pd.), 1½; Gaiety, 2 xd; London Pavilion (5), 2⅞; ditto Pref. (5), 4½; Metropolitan, ⅞; Moss' Empires (5), 4; Oxford (5), 6¾; Palace Theatre (9s. pd.), ⅞; Tivoli, New (5), 6 xd.

An impressive ceremony took place at the Jewish Cemetery in the Siegsburger Strasse in Cologne, when the remains of Siegwart Gentes, one of the founders of the International Artists' Lodge, and one of the most popular of German variety artists, was laid to his last rest. The solemnity of the occasion was further enhanced by the magnificent rendering of Mendelssohn's "Es ist bestimmt in Gottes Rat" on the part of the Dutch quartette, who, in loyal comradeship, came to the rescue, since, according to Jewish ritual, it being a Jewish festival, the Rabbi was prohibited from making a farewell speech. Born in Berlin on Aug. 12, 1872, Siegwart Gentes made his début in 1893 at Schippanowski's concert hall in Berlin, which brought him into immediate favour, and into the front rank among such stars as Frankl and Förster, playing their own compositions on piano and harmonium, Willy Harnisch, the character impersonator, and the eccentric musician Wolkenstein. His subsequent fortunes were largely bound up with those of Director Alexander Genée, who first engaged him for the Central-hallen Theater in Stettin, and subsequently for the Reichshallen Theater in Berlin. The deceased, who leaves a widow, a daughter of nine, and a son of five, retired from the variety stage at the beginning of this year, when the first signs of a nervous heart trouble were felt. He then established on the Neumarkt at Cologne a high-class wine restaurant, the Trocadero, which he worked up to a flourishing condition.

FUNERAL OF FLORA BLAKE.

The last sad rites over the remains of the late Flora Blake, beloved wife of Harry Blake, for so many years popularly known on the variety stage as the Two Bees, were performed at Tooting Cemetery last Monday amid many manifestations of grief and sympathy.

While awaiting the arrival of the mournful cortége one noticed the graves of many well-known people who have joined the great majority. Here was that of Dan Leno, newly strewn with blooms in token of his recent anniversary; hard by were the graves of Joe Laurence and Mrs. Joe O'Gorman, both taken within the last two years; and many other tablets bore names that brought up memories of the past. And now there is Flora Blake, cut down in the bloom of womanhood, and followed to the grave by comrades whose tear-dimmed eyes gave evidence of the affection in which she was held.

The little chapel where the burial service was read was filled with mourners, and there was quite a long procession to the graveside. Pathetic it was to see poor afflicted Fred Millis, all but deprived of sight, tenderly led by Fred Herbert to pay a last tribute of respect to the departed.

A number of deputations from the various societies with which Mr. Blake is associated were represented both by wreath and deputation. The Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, of the committee of which Mr. Harry Blake has been a member for over twelve years, sent a deputation, consisting of Messrs. Fred Herbert (chairman of the committee), Charles Coborn and Fred W. Millis (vice-presidents), T. C. Callaghan, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The deputation from the Grand Order of Water Rats, of which Mr. Blake is an active member, were Messrs. George Sanford (Sanford and Lyons), J. O'Connor (Jack and Evelyn), and E. W. Manning. Mr. Arthur Were (secretary) represented the Terriers' Association.

Miss Marie Kendal and Rats Steve McCarthy, Geo. Sanford, and Jack O'Connor, went to the house, 50, Grove-road, Clapham Park, but rehearsals prevented them following.

Among those present either at the house or at the grave we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Best, Mr. Frank Halter, Mrs. Harry Lester, Mrs. Fred W. Millis, Mr. Charles Cornish, Mr. Ralph Edgar, Mr. W. Hasberry, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Winstone, Mr. and Mrs. Rob Winstone, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barton, and Mr. Geo. Webster, and several inmates of the Music Hall Home.

The mourners were Harry Blake, the bereaved husband; his brother and sister, F. W. Sanders and Miss Sanders, Mum Winstone, and E. J. Warden in the first carriage; Mr. and Mrs. Alec Girling, Mrs. and Miss Shonfeld, in the second carriage; Arthur Were (Terriers' secretary), Harry Champion's daughter, Miss Tod, Miss Nellie Barton, E. W. Manning (Rat), and Mrs. Wm. Heath in the third carriage; Chas. Douglas Stuart, T. C. Callaghan, Chas. Coborn, Fred Herbert, and Fred W. Millis in the fourth carriage; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ethardo in the fifth carriage.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Mr. Harry Blake's offering took the form of a massive pillow of white flowers, with the words "Sleep, dear Flo" in blue flowers. From brother Frank and family came a very large cross of autumn leaves, inscribed "Auntie Flora." Miss Ruby Dahl (god-daughter) sent a wreath; and similar tokens of sympathy came from Mr. and Mrs. A. Girling ("Gates ajar"), Geo. and Rose Chirgwin (heart), Joe and Lottie Elvin (cross), Mr. and Mrs. Harry Champion (harp), the Craggs (harp), Grand Order of Water Rats (harp), Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Stuart (cross); wreaths from Miss Florrie Constable (of Brighton), the Kellino Family, Auntie Nancy and Alice, Mr. and Mrs. Hicks (of Leicester), the Terriers' Association, Mr. and Mrs. Will Ethairien (Copenhagen), Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ethairien (Copenhagen), Mr. and Mrs. Hopter, Miss Bella Dahl (Switzerland), Ida and Joe Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Heath, Mum Winstone, Mr. and Mrs. Luke (of Portsmouth), Miss Soper and Mr. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Steve McCarthy (Marie Kendal), Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, Miss Flo Shonfield and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nyman, Mr. and Mrs. Ethardo, Mr. and Mrs. Walton (of Walton and Lester), Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Vendome; and bouquets from Cissie Skuse, the Misses Cooper, Mrs. (Leno) Best, and Mrs. Harry Lester.

BENEFITS AND SALARIES.

The case of Desormes v Sebery and James was before his Honour Judge Woodfall in the Westminster County Court on Thursday, and was a claim for £7, two weeks' salary, against the proprietors of the Bohemian Concert Co. Mr. Portland Akeman, solicitor, said he was appearing for the plaintiff, and was also acting in this matter for the other members of the troupe of pierrots which defendants were running at Sandown, Isle of Wight. Defendants had other troupes of pierrots at the Isle of Wight. The weeks ended Friday night, and one Saturday afternoon a telegram was received from Mr. Sebery to close down the show. The artists had broken into a fresh week.

Plaintiff gave evidence in support, and narrated some difficulties in the troupe in connection with the artists' benefit. There was another benefit for them on the night before they were dismissed, and they divided up the proceeds after deducting what they agreed to pay the defendants for expenses.

For the defence, Mr. Sebery gave evidence that the whole of the proceeds of the benefits were to be paid into the firm and the firm divide the money. He had been in the habit of making the amounts up for "the boys." If the amount was £3 5s. he would make it up to £4 out of his own pocket, or if over £4 he would make it up to £5 each. He went over to Sandown from Ryde in response to a telegram, and finding the money had not been paid in, and that there was a refusal to pay it he dismissed the troupe.

His Honour was firmly convinced that the defendant wished to act fairly and kindly to the artists, but the question was as to legal rights. There was no right to terminate the contract of which the artists had in no way committed a breach. So long as the artists paid the expenses they agreed to, they were entitled to the proceeds of their benefit performance. He found for the plaintiff, with costs, and dismissed a counter-claim for £14 odd, the proceeds of the benefit.

The death is announced of Mr. De Monti, formerly of the Lisbon Troupe of Skaters. At one time the deceased gentleman, whose real name was Holt, was a member of the duo Chivers and De Monti, and for the last twelve years of the Four Mayos, comedy skaters. Pneumonia was the cause of death, which occurred on the 28th ult. in Camden Town. The remains were interred on Monday in St. Pancras Cemetery, Finchley.

Herr Strazini, known as the Human Volcano, gave a private exhibition of his extraordinary powers at the Alhambra on Wednesday morning. He began by swallowing lumps of solid paraffin; crunched up oyster-shells and small chunks of tallow from a burning candle. After this déjeuner Herr Strazini had a smoke, but his appetite apparently being unsatisfied, he ate up a large mouthful of his clay pipe just as a savoury. This was washed down by several drinks, including a wine-glass of paraffin, a tumbler of water, and a liqueur brandy. He struck a match, put it in his mouth, and out shot a flame seven or eight feet long.

The Guild Chaplain and Rotherham Statutes.

THE organising Chaplain will have a busy week-end at Rotherham Fair. He will be the preacher at St. Michael's, Northfield, on Sunday morning. In the afternoon the annual meeting of the Guild will take place at three o'clock, in Farrer and Tyler's cinematograph coliseum. In the evening he will conduct the Guild service and preach in the same show at 8.15. On the Tuesday in next week the annual benefit performances for the Guild funds will take place. Ever since the proposal to have benefit performances originated Rotherham has been faithful to the scheme. The result, considering the size of the fair, has always been most gratifying.

Showman's Letter-box.

A Most Urgent Case of Need.

WE understand from Mr. Irvin (who is interesting himself as a friend in the matter) that Mr. and Mrs. Chittock are in necessitous circumstances. We have known for some time past that dear old Chittock, as we love to call him, has been in failing health. Mrs. Chittock, with the bravery and perseverance that mark showwomen, has done her best to keep the show going and to maintain the family. The task has been manifestly too much for her. An attempt was made in the summer to sell the show, Mr. Tom Norman, out of sheer kindness, doing his best to dispose of it as a going concern. This well-meant effort failed. Since then the family has made a precarious living on various private pitches in the suburbs of London. In these days of keen competition from permanent picture palaces at every street corner, picture shows on vacant land in back streets make little money. Anyhow, the Chittocks are, through ill-health and continued misfortune, in real distress. Mr. Irvin kindly lent them his traction engine, and gave his personal help to move the show to a new pitch last week, and he informs us that it is a case needing immediate help. We shall be glad to receive subscriptions, however small, and will acknowledge them week by week in The Era. Mr. Pedgrift will act as treasurer to the fund, and the Rev. T. Horne will see that the money goes to Mrs. Chittock for their pressing wants.

Alf. Ball Fund.

THE time is rapidly approaching when this fund must be closed. We confidently reiterate our appeal for this extremely deserving case. We readily admit that the response has been generous, particularly from the fairs where the Ball family are well known. It is now the season of the big all-England fairs—Nottingham, Peterborough, Hull, Stratford, Warwick, Rotherham, Wakefield, York, and the great hiring fairs of the North. Efforts, we think, might well be made at these fairs to support the Alf. Ball Fund.

AMOUNT already received and acknowledged in The Era £163 15s. 6d.

WE shall be glad to receive all outstanding subscriptions to this truly deserving fund. New subscribers' names will be duly acknowledged in our columns. The treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, is anxious that the help given shall not only be generous, but that it shall be immediately available.

Kidwelly Fair.

THIS fair opened on Saturday of last week, and was well attended, good business being done all round. There were more showmen present this year than at any previous year. Messrs. Hy. Studt and Sons, of course, occupied premier position with their large machines. The shows included that of the Lemans, remarkably clever Australian knife and hatchet throwers; Davies' very popular model coal mine; Professor Lloyd's palace of varieties; with Hesson and Lydia, very smart sleight-of-hand artists, &c. Hoop-las, cokernut shies, and Mollies, &c., were supplied by Messrs. David Boswell, James Day, Wm. Blower, Wm. Otley, Wm. North, and others. Station-road, outside the fairground, was crowded with small stalls, whilst at the open end of the road were Professor Lloyd's juvenile roundabout and shooting saloon, Clarke's freak show, Bossett's swings, and others.

THE CONTINUANCE OF MITCHAM FAIR.

We told our readers last week that the long-deferred transfer of the fair rights from the trustees to the Board of Conservators had taken place. We understand that the deed of conveyance has a clause expressing the desire that the Conservators use their best endeavours to prevent the fair being held. The publication of this clause in the covenant between the late trustees and the board has already misled the Press, with the result that many newspapers announced it as the doom of the fair. We wish at once to correct that wrong impression. It would take many such expressions of opinion and many such covenants to get behind the Abolition of Fairs Acts, and to over-ride the constitutional right of appeal of both traders and people to the Home Office, and the ultimate authority of the Crown. If it was a comfort to the late trustees to get over their obligations to the subscribers to the fund they used to purchase the franchise, let them enjoy it for all it is worth. We fear they have already had many discomforts to endure in the revelation that their poorer neighbours objected to the improvement of the fair green at the cost of losing their fair.

We, at any rate, can say that we never ceased warning them of the error of their way, and begging them to recognise that public opinion did not justify the scheme—however good the motive—for the abolition of Mitcham's ancient Charter Fair.

The Present Position of the Matter.

We are face to face with an entirely new situation. The position of the matter is vastly simpler, and the prospect of a wise and permanently peaceful settlement immeasurably brighter. So far from feeling depressed by the outcome of last Thursday's discussion at the Board meeting, we rejoice at it. May we go further and say that the transfer of the manorial rights to the Board is the one thing we have worked for and have kept before the people. For this perfectly obvious fact—the Board is the only public authority that can deal with the continuance of the fair for the people on wise and statesmanlike lines. We know now with whom we have to deal. Personal prejudices and private ends and ambitions cease to have any weight in the question. It is a great thing to lift the subject out of the arena of parochial politics, and to find it handled by a body of gentlemen free from narrow parochialisms and sectional interests. We gladly recognised at the time in The Era the utterly different aspect the question assumed (as far as the Board was concerned) when Mr. Mallaby Deeley, M.P., became chairman—not that Mr. Mallaby Deeley loved the fair; but as a public man he recognised that if Mitcham people loved their fair, he, for one, would be no party to abolition.

This first pronouncement, as chairman of the Board, on the fair dispute, was to the effect that whilst he could not undo what had been done by the Board or in its name, he would advise the Board not to continue the mistaken and futile policy of preventing the continuance of the fair by High Court process of inhibition against individual showmen. From this policy and from this advice to his colleagues he has never swerved. We know enough of his integrity and wisdom as a public man to still hold that he will maintain the best traditions and the strictest impartiality of public life.

The Story of the Fight for the Fair.

In order that the ground may be cleared for a wise settlement of the dispute, it is necessary to briefly recapitulate the history of the people's efforts to keep their fair and the showmen's endeavour to continue their trade and business rights and privileges. As far back as the month of April, 1906, a petition was before the Home Secretary, asking him to exercise his powers under the Fairs Abolition Acts to abolish Mitcham Fair. This petition provoked a certain amount of local opposition, and two of the Parish Councillors took action against the petition. The Showmen's Guild petitioned the Home Secretary against the proposed abolition of the fair. A deputation of the Guild executive laid their views before the Home Office, and the end of that stage in the struggle was extremely satisfactory to both showmen and people, for Councillor Parker received the following reply from the Home Secretary:—

"With reference to your letter of the 26th inst., relative to the proposed abolition of Mitcham Fair, I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that he has decided not to interfere with the holding of the fair this year. Mr. Gladstone will inquire further into the matter, and will be glad to consider any objections, in writing, to the abolition of the fair, or any evidence that it is practicable to move it to a more convenient site.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"W. P. BYRNE."

When the matter became more acute, and in order to allay public apprehension, the Home Office sent another letter, reaffirming in more definite terms the decision of the Home Secretary, "that the Home Secretary had issued no order to abolish the fair."

Despite the refusal of the Home Secretary to abolish the fair, the abolitionists tried to override the Statute and to prevent the fair being held. The then Chairman of the Board of Conservators of Mitcham was the late Alderman Foss. In his dual capacity as part owner of the fair rights and as Chairman of the Board, he issued the following prohibitory notice:

"MITCHAM FAIR, 1906.

"Notice is hereby given that no sites for shows, roundabouts, or other similar amusements on the fair green will be let for the present year, and proprietors of such shows, &c., are warned that they must not pitch on the ground of the fair green, or on any part of the common. By order of the Conservators of Mitcham Common,

"FREDK. FOSS, Chairman.

"And on behalf of the owners of the franchise.

"Dated this 4th of Aug., 1906."

The old tenants of the fair came as usual, and occupied their accustomed pitches on the fair green amidst great demonstrations of public approval and support. Public indignation meetings were held, protesting against the prohibition of the Franchise owners. Three representative showmen were served with writs of the High Court, to show cause why they had disregarded the prohibitory notice of the chairman of the Board of Conservators and the owners of the fair rights. The showmen did not defend the action and injunctions were issued against them.

The Futility of Prevention by Injunction.

This was seen at the next fair in 1907, when the same policy of prohibition by public notice was continued. No less than forty-five tenants of the fair were served with writs, and in due course (as no defence was made) were brought under injunction. There was a double mistake made in thus pursuing individual showmen. It was futile in that there are seventy thousand showmen ready, if need be, to come and maintain the fair until prohibition by injunction proves its own limitations, and besides that, the yearly demonstrations of showmen and the people against abolition, only served to advertise the fair and make it more popular than ever. From being fairly well contained on the fair ground—as it was in the days when a showman owned the fair rights—it grew so rapidly that private pitches to hold the overflow were opened. Prohibition by individual injunction only resulted in increasing the fair and swelling the attendant crowds.

The Wise Action of the Conservators.

It was in the year 1908 that the Board of Conservators, under the chairmanship of Mr. Mallaby Deeley, M.P., had to consider the wisdom of continuing the policy of their late chairman with regard to Mitcham Fair. It is public property that Mr. Mallaby Deeley refused to sanction—and in this view had the support of the Board—the issue of further writs against the showpeople. The position taken by the Board was clear: that until the Board was in full possession of the Franchise of the fair, as a public body it could not properly consider, much less determine, its policy. Mr. Mallaby Deeley, though personally, as we have already acknowledged, not favourable to the fair, offered, in the interests of peace and to settle a question growing more difficult to handle every year, to endeavour to effect a mutually satisfactory arrangement. This eminently kind and public-spirited action was scouted by the abolitionists on the Board, with the result that Mr. Mallaby Deeley withdrew his offer of mediation. This brings us down the story of the question as it touched the Board of Conservators to the present year. The resolution to be moved by Alderman Allen at their next meeting—"That at the next meeting of the Board he would move that Mr. Mallaby Deeley be asked to open up negotiations with the Home Secretary and the Showmen's Guild with regard to Mitcham Fair, to see if the differences could not be amicably settled"—is the proper outcome of the present position of affairs. In the greater interests of peace and the settlement of a dispute in which popular feelings are much concerned, we again express the hope that this resolution will be passed, and that Mr. Mallaby Deeley will again begin his statesmanlike endeavour to bring all the interests concerned into amicable conference and agreement.

What Mitcham Did to Save its Fair.

Besides the public demonstrations against abolition held every fair time, Councillor Dant and other supporters of the popular demand obtained the important constitutional point of "calling a parish meeting," and taking an open vote of the people for or against the fair. This was properly called by the clerk, and presided over by the chairman, Councillor A. Dendy. Councillors Dant and Bland moved and seconded the resolutions, which were passed amidst loud cheers:—

"That this meeting of the electors of the Parish of Mitcham, constitutionally assembled, expresses its strong disapproval of the action of Mitcham Parish Council in seeking to bring about the abolition of Mitcham Charter Fair, and desires to record that any attempt to abolish the fair would be contrary to the will of the people."

"That it be an instruction to the Clerk of the Parish Council to forward this resolution to the Home Secretary."

The following resolution was also proposed by Councillor Dant and seconded by Councillor Bland:—

"That this meeting of the electors of the Parish of Mitcham, constitutionally assembled, desires to see the removal of Mitcham Fair from the Fair Green to a more suitable site on Mitcham Common, if the same can be effected without prejudice to the rights granted under the Charter. That it be an instruction to the Clerk to the Parish Council to forward this resolution to the Home Secretary and to the Board of Conservators of Mitcham Common.

A year later a similar meeting was held, properly convened as a Parish Meeting, and resolutions against abolition were passed with unanimity and acclamation. Public meetings on the Fair Green, held by both the Showmen's Guild and by local committees, sent petitions numerously signed by the ratepayers to the Home Office against abolition, but favouring a wise policy of removal to a less congested site on some part of Mitcham common lands. Every constitutional means were taken by the people of Mitcham to maintain and to secure the continuance of their fair. The culminating point of their endeavour was seen last Easter, when two avowed champions of the people's and the showmen's fair rights and privileges were returned to the Parish Council, one of these being an official of the Guild Executive Council (Mr. F. H. Pedgrift), who, together with Councillor Bland, stood as avowed friends of the fair and the showmen. It was a clear issue to test public feeling, and they won. At an early meeting of the Parish Council, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift moved and Mr. Bland seconded the following resolution:—

"'Mitcham Fair.' That this Council, desiring to bring about a peaceful settlement of the question, resolves to approach all parties concerned with a view to co-operative action for the removal of the Mitcham Fair from the Fairgreen to a more suitable site, if the same can be accomplished without prejudice to the continuance of the fair and the ancient rights pertaining thereto."

The Hope for the Future.

We confidently expect that Alderman Allen's wise resolution will be carried, and that Mr. Mallaby Deeley will resume his effective mediation with the Home Office and with the Board of Agriculture to bring about the removal of the fair to a better site on the common lands. This policy will receive the hearty support of the Showmen's Guild. The showmen will support Mr. Mallaby Deeley's wise endeavour. They have absolute faith in his character for fair and fearless dealings. His strong sense of public duty has already led him to subordinate his personal view, which is against the continuance of the fair, and to have regard to the views of the great bulk of his neighbours. They know that under his guidance justice will be done to all parties concerned. It will also enable the conservators to permanently improve the old fair green and make it a sylvan beauty spot in the heart of a village. This much-desired improvement will fully carry out the covenants of the transfer of the manorial rights. It will settle permanently the recurrent increasing trouble of dealing with a fair grown too big (under modern conditions) for the centre of a growing town. Further, under direct control of a public body it will tend to uplift the tone and character of the popular open-air amusements of the people. It will also yield a yearly revenue in the shape of tolls that will be available for the upkeep and improvement of the people's commons.

We confidently look to the Board of Conservators to treat this matter in strict accord with the best traditions of public service. The lead has been given them by their chairman, Mr. Mallaby Deeley, M.P., who has on many occasions with manly and courageous persistence dissociated himself from all partisan or selfish interests, and has taken his stand on the firm ground of devotion to the greater good of the people, and the acceptance of the constitutionally voiced opinion of the majority of the people directly concerned. In his willingness to undertake this important work of mediation we see the brightest auguries of ultimate success. It will be a worthy achievement for the honour of public life and devotion to the interests of the whole body of Mitcham residents—rich and poor alike—if a lasting settlement be effected. We venture to ask not only the showmen and their patrons, but also the public men of Mitcham and neighbourhood, to heartily forward the movement for a mutually acceptable settlement of the Mitcham Fair dispute.

Worksop Fair.

FOR the people's amusement at this fair the following entertainers were in attendance:—Tuby and Sons, with cinematograph pavilion and other attractions; Relph, with midgets and giant girl; Fisher, with swings and shooting gallery; Campfield, Gillett, Leach, Wallser, Webb, and Illingworth, with throwing games and variety stalls. Tuby's motor-cars are located for private business at Grimsby.

THE TRAVELLING AUCTIONEERS AND THE SHOP-HOURS (2) BILL.

In reply to the request of the Auctioneers' Trade Defence League for an interview on the Shop Hours (2) Bill, Mr. Fred M. Barber, the secretary, received the following official communication:—

"The Home Office, Whitehall,
Oct. 31, 1910.

"To F. M. Barber, Esq., The Era Office, Strand, W.C.

"Your letter of 26th re Shops Bill, the Home Secretary will receive deputation from travelling Auctioneers' Trade Defence League on Thursday next, 3rd inst., at 12.30.—Private Secretary."

The deputation consisted of the President, Mr. T. Harrison (London); the Rev. T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain; Mr. R. J. Bloom (Sunderland), Vice-President; Mr. Wm. Taylor (Leeds), Vice-President; Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer for the London District; Mr. Fred M. Barber, Secretary; and Miss Harrison, Assistant Secretary. Mr. H. Greenwood was also included in the deputation, but was not able, owing to pressure of business, to be in attendance. The deputation met in committee the day before, and discussed possible amendments for submission to the Home Secretary.

At the Home Office to receive the deputation were the Right Hon. Winston S. Churchill, Home Secretary, Sir Edward Troup, Permanent Secretary of the Home Department, Mr. Delevine, of the Home Department, and other officials.

The Rev. T. Horne introduced the deputation, and made (at the request of the League President) the opening statement of the conference. The other speakers were Messrs. Harrison, Bloom, Taylor, and Barber. The scope of the Bill as it might injure the business interests of the whole body of travelling auctioneers was discussed in a most thorough manner, and with every wish on the part of the Home Office to do justice to the claims submitted by the deputation.

The Home Secretary promised to give the points submitted to him the most careful consideration, and asked that two London members of the League should be ready to confer with them at a later date.

The deputation retired from the conference convinced that the cause they had at heart would receive full justice at the Home Secretary's hands.

Subscriptions to the League Fund.

Mr. W. Knight, Auctioneer, Birmingham, £2 2s.; Mr. A. Golding, Auctioneer, London, £1 11s. 6d.; Mr. H. Spiro, Auctioneer, Southampton, £1 11s.; Messrs. J. and B. Rosenthal, Auctioneers, London, £1; Mr. T. Morris, Auctioneer, Plymouth, 10s.; Mr. R. Todd, Auctioneer, Southport, 10s.; Mr. Thos. Newall, Supplier, Lancaster (second contribution), 11s.; Mr. Lympthy, Supplier, London (second contribution), 10s. 6d.; total, £8 5s.

FILM GOSSIP.

Will Brown Elected Councillor.

MR. WM. BROWN, the popular proprietor of Brown's Assembly Rooms, Oldham, whose picture hall is so well patronised, stood for the position of Councillor for the Oldham Town Council, his opponent being ex-Alderman Johnson, of St. James's Ward. He is well known as a sound business man, and is a Liberal in politics. This was his first contest, and at the close of the poll on Tuesday he was elected Councillor by a good majority. Mr. Brown is shortly opening a new picture hall in Hollinwood, which will compare in every detail with any similar house in Lancashire, and will have a seating capacity for 1,200 people.

B.B. Pictures at Dundee.

DISTRICT-MANAGER MR. TOM LUNN has a fine assortment of pictures on tap at the Palace Theatre this week. A very fascinating film is A Bobsleighing Competition at Moscow, the audience being held spellbound as sleigh after sleigh glides down an icebound slope with amazing speed. The Dumb Half-breed's Defence is an intensely dramatic story of the West; and a thrilling naval story is unfolded in the film entitled Lieutenant Rose and the Chinese Pirates. Khmara tells a romantic story centring round Russian peasants; and a very amusing film is Tontolini Pays Visits.

"David Copperfield" on the Screen.

AT the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, a very interesting film is shown, being in the form of a playlet from Dickens's novel, "David Copperfield." Another fine item is The Broken Symphony, which tells the love-story of a poor fiddler with sympathetic effect. Other pictures are A Fair Exchange, Mr. Breakneck's Invention, and The Trick Cyclists; while the illustrated song, "Top of the morning," is well received.

"Now We Have to Call Him Father."

AT the Empire Theatre, Dundee, Mr. R. W. Austin, the courteous and energetic acting-manager of this popular house, has also a capital programme, which includes a very fine film, entitled Hako's Sacrifice. The singing picture, "Now we have to call him father" meets with vociferous appreciation.

Dundee Cinema Theatre.

THIS comfortable and elaborately fitted up house is making great headway in public popularity, and Mr. P. Feathers has evidently provided a felt want in the north-east district of the city. Amongst the pictures shown this week are:—A Woman's Wit, Feeding the Seals, The Miser's Lesson, A Child's Impulse, &c.; whilst the illustrated songs are "The Lost Chord" and "Annie Laurie."

Quality and Quantity at Mansfield.

IN quantity and quality of the pictures presented at the Victoria Hall, Mansfield, the sternest critic could find no cause for dissatisfaction. The entertainment, consisting as it does of instructive pictures, with a necessary leaven of clean, humorous films, has become more than popular in Mansfield. The best pictures presented this week are His Last Game and Charity.

Andrews' Pictures in Burnley.

THIS week's attractive programme of Andrews' world-renowned pictures, screened at the Church Institute, Burnley, includes Smith Gets Engaged, From Tyranny to Liberty, Love Me, Love My Dog, His Master's Voice, Lieutenant Rose, Billy as a Boxer, A Trip on the Ganges, Little Angels of Luck, Take Care of the Wardrobe, The Hobble Skirt, The Great Train Hold-up, and The Boy and the Physic. Illustrated songs are also given by Mr. G. R. Lees.

Crewe Picture Palace.

THE pictures here still keep up to a high standard of excellence, and the result is capital houses are the rule. Sadie and Vone, coloured humorists, and Miss Lillie May, a local favourite, are excellent turns.

Dukinfield Electric Palace.

THE work on this building in Crescent-road, Dukinfield, under the direction of Mr. Hamilton Jackson's general-manager (Mr. Manville Morton), is proceeding with remarkable rapidity. The Dukinfield Palace is the seventeenth theatre Mr. Morton has opened in the past five years—a fine record—and with such an experienced manager at its head it should soon be in the front of the amusements of Dukinfield and district. The lessee and proprietor, Mr. Hamilton Jackson, is also the proprietor of electric palaces all over the kingdom. They are under the direction of Mr. Morton, who comes here from Bournemouth, where he has been running another for some months past with tremendous success. The Dukinfield Palace is within easy reach of all parts of the district, and will be opened early in November with an attractive programme.

CINEMATOGRAPH DEFENCE LEAGUE

The monthly meeting of the Cinematograph Defence League was held at the offices, 18, Charing Cross-road, W.C., on Tuesday, Nov. 1, Mr. George Gray being in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the secretary reported on the delegates of the League's interview with the London County Council authorities, at whose invitation they attended and discussed the proposed advisability of inaugurating a technical school for operators. Whilst not committing themselves to any definite opinion, they expressed the willingness of the League to co-operate with the L.C.C. in anything that might be deemed advantageous to all parties.

A lengthy discussion took place on the growth of seemingly reckless and unfair competition of cinematograph enterprises, and it was decided that so momentous a question should be left open to discussion and dealing at the next general meeting.

A letter was read from the Kinematograph Manufacturers' Association with reference to the Cinematograph Trade dinner being held earlier in the year than was possible on the last occasion. Mr. Barker and Mr. Walker were appointed as representatives of the League to wait upon the above Association, and discuss the necessary arrangements.

The chairman congratulated the League on the strength of its executive representation, drew attention to the important work it had already accomplished, and foreshadowed the strenuous efforts it would be called upon to make in the future for the maintenance of protection of every branch of its growing industry, beset, as it was in many quarters, by fanatical and hypocritical prejudice. He urged the necessity of concrete unity in combating the difficulties that in this country invariably impeded the paths of progression. He referred, inter alia, to the vexed question of Sunday performances and the grave importance of the forthcoming appeal from the magisterial decision, affecting not only the trade and charity institutions, but the rights and privileges of the citizens of the United Kingdom.

The secretary then read letters from the League's solicitors stating that Mr. C. A. Russell, K.C., and Mr. Perfumo had been engaged as counsel for the League to contest the appeal of the L.C.C. from Mr. Chapman's favourable decision on Sunday opening.

The whole question was exhaustively discussed, and it was unanimously resolved that a fighting fund should be inaugurated, and that proprietors of cinematograph halls, and showmen generally, should be invited to subscribe one guinea per hall, the same invitation to be extended to every branch of the trade. Also that the proprietors of the trade journals should be empowered to receive and acknowledge subscriptions for this specific object.

The resignation of Mr. G. W. Grant as president of the League, owing to his inability through stress of business, to devote the necessary time and attention that the position called for, was received with great reluctance, and a vote of thanks was extended to him for the able work he had given to the League's interests in the past.

The election of Mr. Bye, Mr. Jupp, Mr. Deakin, and Mr. Prentice as members of the executive, was confirmed, and the following new members were elected as members of the League:—Violet Melnotte Wyatt, Mr. Whiffin, Mr. J. J. Rye, and Mr. Bowman.

WINGATE'S NEW THEATRE.

A long-felt want has been adequately met at Wingate (Co. Durham) in the erection of a handsome and commodious new theatre, which has been named the Empire Electric Theatre. Wingate is one of the most thickly populated mining districts in Mid-Durham, and the new theatre, being situated almost in the centre of the town, can readily be reached from all parts. No expense has been spared in making the interior of the new building of a comfortable and cosy character. Seating accommodation is provided for about 1,000 people, and, upholstered in green and red leather, the auditorium presents quite a bright and attractive appearance. Tip-up chairs have been introduced, and the fittings throughout the theatre are of a modern and up-to-date character. Special attention has been paid in the way of painting and artistic decorations. The walls are green, with a dado of a darker tint, and with richly-designed gilt panels between the windows a pleasing effect has been secured. The stage and scenic effects are excellent. The stage front is finished in Doric architecture, with a Roman and Corinthian statue at each side, in elaborate relief, picked out in white and gold. For bioscope purposes, machinery of the latest type has been utilised. The machine is a Gaumont "Chrono," driven by two gas engines. The contractors were Messrs. G. Colwell and Co., builders, Wingate; painting and decoration, Mr. J. J. Harrison, Wingate; electric lighting, Messrs. Long and Co., Newcastle; seating, Messrs. Dean and Co., Birmingham; furnishings, Messrs. Robinson and Sons, Hartlepool; and stage effects by Mr. W. E. Clark, Houghton-le-Spring. The directors have secured the services of Mr. Richard Mortimer as manager, and the success that has attended his efforts at the Central Palace Variety, South Shields, and other Northern places of amusement, will doubtless be continued at Wingate. In the presence of a large and representative gathering, the opening ceremony was performed on Monday by Mr. S. S. Wheatly, architect, Newcastle, and chairman of the directors.

The Mad Museum.

The Mad Museum, a curious collection of things as they are not, on view at the Victoria Arcade, 107, Strand, is well worth inspection, and the visitor who departs without having his risible faculties greatly tickled must indeed be a very dull dog. In this frivolous exhibition of distorted ideas some sixty-one articles are catalogued, and the Mad Girl of a Family is certainly a lady to be avoided. The Original Banana is said to be the one offered a comic singer who was wont to warble a ditty inviting all and sundry to visit the thoroughfare wherein the museum is situated. The Mighty Atom is an antiquated piece of cheese; Shakespeare's Rival, two rashers of bacon; Brussels Exhibition, a collection of sprouts; The Lady Killer, a pair of stays; Pillars of Greece, four candles; The Abode of Departed Spirits, some empty bottles; Something the World Shuts its Eye to, a piece of soap; The Castaway, an old clay pipe; and so forth. Much ingenuity and no little originality has been shown in this queer and quaint collection, and it is admirably arranged. The astute manager of the Arcade, Mr. Ernest Gibbins, is to be complimented on his novel exhibition, which is only one of the many allurements offered the seeker for amusement with a little spare time and a few spare pence.

Notes from the Midlands.

JENNING'S portable theatre is having a successful short season at Brighton. Buckley's show is located at Winchcomb. Kaye's picture palace and variety show is at Evesham. Sedgewick's menagerie is on tour in this district, and on Friday visited Henley-in-Arden, and is billed for Bromsgrove on Monday. Fossett's circus was at Lichfield on Wednesday last.

PROFESSIONAL RENDEZVOUS.

"GOOD OLD ENGLISH FARE."

Oh, the roast beef of Old England! Where is there a Britisher who would scorn the standard dish of his country, and where is there one who does not enjoy the succulent chop or the seductive porter-house steak, the haunch of mutton and red currant jelly, to say nothing of silverside with carrots, turnips, and dumplings? Sound, solid, toothsome dishes, always appetising and always satisfying. True, there is a plentiful supply of eating and chop houses in the city of London and its environments, but they are not handy, especially in the West End of London. This week heralds the institution of a new order of things "up West," and at Maxim's Restaurant, in Wardour-street, adjacent to Leicester-square, there has been added a new grill-room, which for comfort, cosiness, and catering is just the thing wanted. Further, the charges are most reasonable, and the cooking is par excellence. Here the joints are served from the waggon in the old style; here you get your meal piping hot, and redolent of home and its fascinating privacy. Every conceivable English dish can be had for the asking, as they are all ready. If a full-course luncheon or dinner is required, a few moments' notice, and your wishes are complied with. Take, for instance, a little special dinner ordered this week by a gentleman for forty friends:—

Maxim's Restaurant.
Oysters.
Clear Turtle.
Turbot and Lobster Sauce.
Whitebait.
Saddle of Mutton.
Brussels Sprouts.
Rissolé Potatoes.
Roast Pheasant.
Salad.
Ice Pudding.
Stilton Cheese.
Celery.

The daintiest epicure could not find fault with a menu like this. On the other hand, every style of cooking can be had—French, German, Russian, and even American (plank Shad) if ordered. Catering for the wants of the inner man in these days of rush and vitiation is a clever art, but it is too often spoiled by having to wait too long for service; hence irritability and the demon indigestion. But M. Louis Roux, the manager of Maxim's, is used to looking after the material wants of all comers: he is thoroughly cosmopolitan. At Monte Carlo, Paris, and many other cities on the Continent he has managed hotels galore. In London readers will remember his careful attention at Blanchard's, in Regent-street, at the Quadrant, in the Western Gardens, at Earl's Court Exhibitions, and latterly at the Queen's Hotel, Leicester-square. M. Roux is exceedingly well known to members of the dramatic, musical, and vaudeville professions. To all attention is called to the fact that during and after rehearsal M. Roux will be there to attend to your immediate wants. It is more than necessary to rejuvenate the gastronomical organs after an exhausting tussle with the system's vitality. "Dr." Rous is the specialist to consult, and without the physician's glorified fee. The maxim of Maxim's is "Essentially English," so there need be no fastidious objections to partaking of the dishes. You can have your meal with music or without; in public or in private. The charge for Manager Roux's personal attention is not extra, and, if you prefer it, his animated conversation on the brightest of subjects will give your appetite just that piquancy which can hardly be self-created.

CHARITY AT TOTTENHAM PALACE.

Tottenham is nothing if not thorough in the cause of charity. Each year it gives up a day or two to gala for the financial benefit of the local hospital. The district skating rinks throw in their lot with the good work associated with Carnival Day, while the picture palaces also contribute their quota in the sweet name of charity. Following on these praiseworthy efforts, Mr. Thomas Mayne, the manager of Tottenham's pretty variety palace, each year takes up the line and organises a matinée on behalf of the hospital. This year's event took place on Thursday, when Mr. Mayne presented a bumper programme to a host of patrons. Long before the day, by dint of sheer hard work, both he and his able lieutenant, Mr. Harold Nuttall, were able to declare all the best seats taken, and this despite the high prices which ruled. The occasion appealed to the generosity of the local public. One box fetched ten guineas. Well, the house was packed in all parts, and seated amongst the gathering were four millionaires! The audience was one big family just gathered together to have a real good time, and Mr. Mayne saw that they had it. True to his promise, Mr. Harry Lauder came along, though straight from bed with a severe cold. His appearance was a signal for a great reception. He started to make a speech, and apparently got annoyed with himself for doing so. "Ye dinna want me a blathering a kna'. Ye jest want a song." The audience acquiesced, and got the true and tried favourite, "I love a lassie." Chirgwin, always popular at Tottenham (and where not?) chatted and chipped his listeners to no end of fun, made a neat little speech, full of his usual puns and wittiness, and brought down the house with his performance. Indisposition claimed Miss Marie Lloyd, but she sent a thoughtly wire and promised a cheque to the fund. The Two Bobs put in no less than eighteen minutes with their rollicking act; Footgers gave his clever impersonations; Rinaldo entertained on his violin, and Jen Latona at the piano came in for a fine ovation. Yet another piano act, that of Miss Clarice Mayne, preceded Whit Cunliffe, whose girly choruses were sung again and again. Miss Olga Doré's vocalism charmed, and Dick Tubb's screaming facial contortions set all laughing lustily. Arthur Lewis gave his Diabolo exhibition, and the Boccaccios their musical act. Of sketches there were two, "The Quarrel" scene from The School for Scandal, depicted by Miss Frances Dillon and Mr. Eric Mayne, and The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, Harold Nuttall's top-liner. Lottie Lennox, in chorus songs, Chas. Santon, Madge McCalla, Mme. Lilian Mackenzie Fairfax, J. H. Scotland, Roma and Romani, Miss Jessie Hughes, and Brull and Hemsley all contributed to the afternoon's enjoyment. The latter turn are on the current bill, and their bright little act, "Fun in a Music Shop," was quite one of the best features of the matinée. They were accorded a hearty reception, and had time permitted they could have doubled their stay. On behalf of the Hospital Committee Mr. F. W. Drewett thanked Mr. Mayne, the artists, and staff for their kindly services, and, responding, Mr. Mayne said it was just a real pleasure, and was sure that other helpers were with him in this.

Something like £300 has been raised through this performance; programmes alone realised £20. Behind the stage Mr. Harry Phillimore and his assistants worked hard to make the show a success, and Mr. Wm. Burgess and his band of musicians never flagged in their contribution to an in every way satisfactory entertainment.

THIS week, at the Empire, Islington, the Eight Sunrays, one of the finest troupe of vocalists and dancers on the boards, are making a hit. The combination is headed by that well-known dancer Miss Kitty Denton, and with its smart and refined stage business gets out of the ordinary groove. Next week the Sunrays are appearing at the Camberwell Empire.

"PAPA'S CONSENT."

An Operatic Absurdity, in One Act, Produced by Stuart Alexander at the Willesden Hippodrome on Monday, Oct. 31.

Col. Benjamin Buzzar ..... MR. HARRINGTON WEEKES
Dora Buzzar ..... MISS MAUDE DAVIS
Mrs. Tobias Tuppleton ..... MISS ALMA
Fanny ..... MISS MADGE WHITE
Capt. Frank Gordon .... MR. STUART ALEXANDER

The scene is laid outside Col. Buzzar's bungalow in India, and the piece opens with a meeting between the Colonel's daughter, Dora, and Capt. Gordon, with whom she is in love. The Colonel has refused his consent to their marriage on account of the Captain's lack of means. In order to force such consent, the Captain hits upon a ruse, whereby the Colonel and a Mrs. Tobias Tuppleton shall be found together under circumstances which would cause the ridicule of the regiment to fall upon the Colonel were such circumstances to become generally known. The "trick" is arranged, and the Colonel receives a note (apparently from the widow) asking him to meet her outside the bungalow at midnight, and to give as a signal the barking of a dog. The widow also receives a note (apparently from the Colonel) requesting a similar meeting and giving a signal the mew of a cat. The meeting duly takes place, but Dora and the Captain are witnesses of the same, and behind the shelter of a friendly sheet extract a reluctant consent from the Colonel.

The characters are cleverly sustained throughout, special praise being due to Miss Alma (who reminds one very much of Miss Connie Ediss) as Mrs. Tuppleton, and Mr. Stuart Alexander as Captain Gordon.

The playlet is suggestive of potted comic opera, and several excellent numbers are rendered, including a duet, "What care we?" by Miss Maude Davis and Mr. Stuart Alexander; "Do you remember when I was a girl?" by Miss Alma; "My boy," a reminiscence, by Mr. Harrington Weekes; "My Star of Hope," a serenade, by Mr. Stuart Alexander; and a finale by the company, "All's well that ends well." Miss Madge White makes a very smart maid, and is a pretty dancer. The scenery and dresses are all that could be desired, and the piece should have a very successful run.

In addition to the foregoing playlet, a good vaudeville show is being presented this week, including, amongst others, Mr. Harry Champion, singing "Ginger, you're balmy"; Mr. Chas. R. Whittle, with "When the lights are low" and "Fall in and follow me"; Miss Madeline Rossiter, an amber beauty with an excellent manner and sweet-toned voice, an artist of whom more will be heard. Albert Wyndham is presenting a strong and well-acted historical sketch, entitled Magna Charta, and Mrs. John Lawson is presenting a striking moral play, Sally in our Alley.

Mr. Gibbons must be congratulated upon having put such a splendid programme before his audiences at Willesden this week. Mr. George R. Hatley is an unqualified success with the baton, and Mr. Lawrence F. Moloney is unstinting in his energies at the front of the house.

A STRONG programme at the London Hippodrome next week will include an entirely new act, provided by the beautiful and graceful Mlle. Simone de Beryl, who amid illuminated fountains will pose as "La Source."

THERE is no end to the attractions at Richmond Hippodrome. As we go to press a grand beauty show is being held. The nice point for the adjudicators to settle is, Who is the prettiest girl in Richmond? The management stipulate that competitors must not be under fourteen. The audience have a task both congenial and difficult, and local excitement runs high. Six prizes are offered. Mr. David C. James, the manager, states the booking has been phenomenal.

MR. W. F. FRAME, "the man from over the Border," appears next week at the Olympia, Liverpool. He is always welcome to the natives on the Mersey. "Hooch, aye; the man ye ken!"
